Progress was slow today as I headed north. I was heading up a muddy forest path shrouded in mist. Everything was a blur and I could not really tell where I was going.
(16)

Upon reaching the summit, I realised that I had been hiking up the outer wall of a giant volcano, millions of years old.
(17)

Eighteen hundred feet below me was the crater floor known to the Masai tribe as Ngorongoro. It was cloudy and bitterly cold on the volcano's rim yet, far below, the dust whirled across parched lakes, scattering flamingo flocks like seeds in the wind. There was little life on the waterless landscape.
(18)

Back down by the lakes, the flies bit my ears and crawled into my shirt. They tick you off more than mosquitoes and their bite can make you very sick.
(20)

Tonight I will camp under the stars on the crater rim and listen for the rumble of the volcano's ancient heart...

LOVE NATURE?

You can volunteer with us!

The Singapore Parks Board is always on the lookout for volunteers. Volunteers help Singapore Parks Board keep operation costs low. The money saved is then used for land conservation.

Are you interested in...

- ❖ conserving nature and the environment?
- ❖ meeting others who share your love of nature?
- ❖ broadening your life experiences?

If you answered 'Yes' to any of these questions, then we have some great volunteer opportunities for you!

Every Wednesday, Darren Mah leaves his day job, as a sports therapist, to spend the afternoon among the thousands of seabirds nesting and soaring around Chek Jawa - a tropical paradise surrounded by corals and greenery. As a wildlife volunteer, he gives 'live interpretations' of Chek Jawa's impressive populations of storm petrels, herons and other birds to visitors taking boat trips around the islands.

Mr Mah says his previous work in wildlife conservation inspired him to give time to helping out. While some projects require a level of expertise in a particular area, many offer training and there are lots of schemes where all that's needed is some enthusiasm.

I face four walls most days of the week... I'm happy when I can get out, into a boat, with the sea breeze in my hair and see these fantastic creatures. I'm so glad to be involved in this programme - yeah, most definitely. It's brilliant!

I just thought it would be great to give my time back freely. You don't need to be an expert. You just need to have a passion for nature or simply, a passion to try different things!

Why volunteer?

Volunteering can be a rewarding way of giving back to Singapore's wildlife.

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

At Singapore Parks Board, we rely on volunteers to help us make Singapore our garden.

We have a range of volunteer activities that you can get involved in. Whether you enjoy working with others or prefer to work on your own, we may have one just right for you.

Name of Park	Volunteer Opportunities
Fort Canning Park
HortPark & the Southern Ridges
Pasir Ris Park
Singapore Botanic Gardens
Sungei Buloh Wetland Reserve

Legend

Gardening

Having green fingers is a bonus here. You will be involved in maintaining an area of a garden, from sowing the seeds and pruning to identifying the various plants and labelling them.

Visitor Services

You will be responsible for providing general information to park visitors, answering phone queries, gathering feedback and managing the notice boards and brochure stands.

Conservation Programmes

You will help improve the quality of various habitats through restoration programmes such as weed management and coastal cleanups. Join us if you are looking to make a change.

Guided Walks

As a guide, you are the face of the park. You will share interesting information about the parks with the groups you lead. This is an opportunity for you to share your wealth of knowledge with visitors.

Outreach Programmes

If you like meeting people and have a desire to share your knowledge and expertise, this may just be your cup of tea. You will help facilitate workshops and programmes for the parks.

Other Areas of Contribution

Other areas of volunteer help we require include building up the plant information database, photo-taking and repairing.

Ng Siaw Meng was one of Singapore's most famous hawkers. For thirty years, diners would gather _____ his stall for a taste of his satay beehoon. (29)
_____, last year, Mr Ng found out he had cancer and had only a few months (30) to live. Thus, he decided to sell his famous satay beehoon recipe for $200,000.

This might sound like a lot of money but it _____ actually a very (31) reasonable price. Some hawkers can make $80,000 every month just by selling cheap, delicious food from _____ stalls. (32)

Mr Ng had several offers for his recipe. He turned them all _____. He (33) explained that _____ of them were from people who wanted to use his name (34) to make a quick buck while others were going to 'destroy' his recipe by adding artificial flavouring.

There was one person, Allan Moo, _____ was truly interested in (35) making his satay beehoon the traditional way. However, when he met up with Mr Ng, he had a shock. The recipe was too complicated for him. _____ required nine (36) ingredients just to make the five-spice powder.

In November last year, Mr Ng passed _____. Now, no one makes (37) satay beehoon the way he _____. A valuable part of Singapore's hawker (38) heritage has been lost forever.

Each of the underlined words contains either a spelling or grammatical error. Write the correct word in each of the boxes. (12 marks)

A phobia is an intense fear reaction to a particular thing or a situation. With a (39)
phobia, the fear are out of proportion to the potential danger.

(40) (41)
Phobias cause people to drad and avoid the things and situations they fear.

As the physical sensations of fear can be so extreme, having a phobia may (42)
innterfear with normal activities.

(43)
A girl with a phobia in thunderstorms may feel terrible distress and fear when (44)
the sky turns cloudy. A person with social phobia has an intensity fear of public (45)
speaking and may be afraid to answer questions from class or speak to classmates.

(46)
It can be disappointing to miss out on opotuneeties because fear is holding (47)
you back. Furthermore, it can be confusing and emmbearesing to feel afraid of things that others seem to have no problem with.

(48)
Having a phobia isn't a sign of weakness or immaturity. It is a responding the (49)
brain has learned in its attempt to protect the person. It as if the brain's alert system (50) triggers a false alarm, generating fear who is out of proportion to the situation. Thus, the person is convinced the danger is greater than it actually is.

Fill in each blank with a suitable word.

(10 marks)

Gratitude is one of many positive emotions. It is about focusing on what is good in our lives and being _____ for the things we have. It is pausing (51)
to notice and appreciate the things that we often take for _____, like (52)
having a place to live, food, clean water, friends, family or even computer access.

We can use _____ of words to describe feelings of gratitude. We (53)
might say we feel thankful, lucky, fortunate, humbled, or blessed.

Cultivating a habit of gratitude can also be good for us. Like other positive emotions, feeling grateful on a regular _____ can have a big effect on (54)
our lives. People who are _____ appreciative are happier, less stressed, (55)
and less depressed. Gratitude is like a U-turn on complaining or thinking of what we do not have.

_____ we feel grateful for someone's kindness toward us, we are (56) likely to perform an act of kindness in return. Your gratitude can also have a positive _____ on someone else's actions. Thanking someone can make it even (57)
_____ likely that they will show kindness again. When we feel and (58)
express heartfelt gratitude and appreciation to people in our lives, it _____ loving bonds, earns trust, and helps you feel closer.
(59)

You can cultivate the habit of counting blessings just by paying _____ each day to things you have in your life. Slowing down and (60)
noticing the things you're grateful for is just the first step in building a gratitude habit.

When Ben discovered that Gully was under the bed, he jumped up in fright. Gully was pressed into the corner at the head of the bunk but Ben could still have stretched out his hand and touched him. Gully was so close that Ben could hear every whimpering breath he drew.

He would have to get out of there before Gully realised that he had company. Maybe he could make it to the closet. He started to wriggle forward. 5

Bam! Crash! Crrackle-BOOM!

Ben backed up so fast that he hit his head against the bed. The storm sounded as though it was right in the room with them. Thunder was rattling the open window. A blinding pink glare of lightning flashed across everything Ben could see. He gasped and covered his face with his arm. He could not make himself go out there, Gully or no Gully. 10

Rumble-grumble-BAM!

Ben was shaking now and fighting not to cry. He did his best to keep still so that Gully would not notice him. He could not figure out why Gully had hidden under the bed too in the first place. 15

Then, all at once, he guessed. Wasn't Gully shivering even harder than he was? Hadn't he heard the big dog whimper? As the lightning flashed next time, he watched the dog. He was sure he saw Gully cover his eyes with one of his giant paws.

Gulliver Gallivant was as scared of thunderstorms as Ben Tucker.

He's too big to be afraid, Ben thought. Then he remembered Dad saying, "You're too big to be such a crybaby, Ben." Being big did not help a bit.

The thunder roared again. Gully moaned.

"It's okay, Gully," Ben found himself saying. He did his best to sound like Dad but Gully stayed scrunched down. However, when Ben spoke to him, his tail gave a feeble thunk against the floorboards and, the next moment, he began to creep towards Ben. The boy hesitated, and then kept talking. 25

As he tried to pacify the timid creature, he was amazed at how he sounded just like a grown-up. He went on, not really sure whether he was talking to Gully or to himself. Gully was now almost touching him. 30

"This is only sheet lightning. My father says sheet lightning never hurt..."

This time the flash of lightning came right on top of the crack of thunder. Without stopping to think, Ben clutched at Gully. He buried his face in Gully's thick, warm fur. He did not remember that this was a dog nor that he was afraid of dogs. He just wrapped his arm around the dog's great neck. 35

Gully turned his head and gave Ben's ear a quick lick. Then they both waited. The next peal of thunder was not quite so loud. Ben raised his head a little and listened. Was the worst part over already? It was. The storm, which had blown up so fast, was leaving as quickly as it had come. 40

Gully was still shaking. He did not understand that the storm was going away. His brown eyes met Ben's. Then, the big Labrador dropped his head onto his paws and gave a long sigh that ended in a little whimper.

"Hey," said Ben softly, "you're not such a dragon after all. You're a big marshmallow!" 45

He arrived in Singapore at the age of 17, without a cent to his name. Yet, when he died, Tan Kah Kee had achieved more in his lifetime than most people could ever hope to.
(16)

Frequently referred to as one of Singapore's pioneers, he made a great impact on education in Singapore.
(17)

Tan Kah Kee worked initially as an apprentice for his rice merchant father when he arrived in Singapore in 1890. He later went on to start his own business and made a fortune selling rubber and making rubber products, which earned him the nickname "the Rubber King". At the age of 45, he was one of the richest men in Singapore but Tan Kah Kee was not satisfied with merely enjoying the trappings of his wealth. Instead, he made it his commitment and duty to see that thousands of young people would benefit from the (19)
(18)

education he would help to provide.

Today, the legacy of Tan Kah Kee lives on in many educational institutions he helped to establish here. This is quite an achievement for a man who had only eight years of formal education as a child.

NATIONAL Spelling CHAMPIONSHIP 2014

Can you spell "concentration"?

Singapore's favourite mind sport is back!

The Straits Times and RHB Banking Group are pleased to present the National Spelling Championship for the third consecutive year. This competition aims to lift primary school pupils' proficiency of the English language while injecting adrenaline-pumping fun.

The competition is open to Primary 4, 5, 6 pupils or those in the primary section of a full school or equivalent under the Ministry of Education Singapore (MOE).

Interested participants must be nominated by their schools, which will register them directly with the MOE.

Look out for a special series on how to improve your spelling in Little Red Dot, The Straits Times' weekly publication for primary schools. The series began on Jan 28.

To obtain more information or follow the competition, log on to www.straitstimes.com/big-spell-2014

The 2014 Championship
 Preliminary Round: March 1
 Zonal Rounds: April 5
 Grand Final: April 26

Prizes
 Champion: $5,000 and a challenge trophy for the school.
 First runner-up: $3,000
 Second runner-up: $1,000

(Go on to the next page)

- Registration is now open for the pen-and-paper preliminary round on March 1, where competitors must spell 50 words that are read out to them. Top scorers will then proceed to the zonal rounds.

For Teachers

- Free workshop by The Straits Times and MOE for all teachers from MOE schools who have pupils taking part in the competition.
- MOE master teacher Soo Kim Bee and The Straits Times' Schools correspondent Debra Ann Francisco will share tips and classroom activities in a hands-on workshop to help teachers give their pupils life-long spelling skills.
- Teachers interested in the workshop can write to bigspell2014@punch.com.sg with their details.

Words from the organisers:

- "We're all thrilled that The Big Spell has become the mind sport to watch every year," said Ms Serene Goh, the editor of Little Red Dot.
- The Straits Times deputy editor Zuraidah Ibrahim said, "Besides making you seem smart, spelling is also critical in conveying exactly what you mean."
- Mr Kellee Kam, group managing director of RHB Banking Group, declared, "We are committed to the holistic development of young minds, and we want to build generations that are confident and highly motivated so that they can ultimately lead successful lives."
- "Also, the competition is a good platform for pupils to display values like resilience and sportsmanship," said Mrs Ruth Tai, assistant director of the MOE's Gifted Education Branch.

The pond was very big, so people swam at one side while others fished at the other. I had always been able to swim and my friends used to say that was because fat floats well, I did not mind. They called me Sausage.

I swam but I never dived – not from any diving board, thank you. I had to take my glasses off and I could not see without them, so I was not going to dive, and they stopped nagging about it long ago. 5

Then, one summer, my instructor made me learn duck-diving. I would be swimming on the surface of the water and suddenly I upended myself just like a duck and dived deep into the water. I had to swim to the bottom of the pond, and pick up a brick he had thrown in, and bring it up again. You practise that in case you have to rescue anyone from drowning. Of course they would be bigger and heavier than a brick, but you have to begin with bricks and work up gradually to people 10

The swimming instructor said, "Sausage, I'm going to throw the brick in –" it was a brick with a piece of old white cloth wrapped round it to make it more visible underwater. "—Sausage, I'm going to throw it in, you go after it – go after it, Sausage, and get it before it reaches the bottom and settles in the mud or you'll never get it. 15

He had made everyone come out of the water to give me a chance to succeed, and they were standing and watching. I could see them blurred along the bank as I was treading the water, waiting. Then I saw the brick go over my head as he threw it, and there was a splash as it went into the water ahead of me. I took a deep breath and then my head went down and my legs went up into the air and I went right down into the water. 20

The water was like a thick greenish-brown lemonade. The brick went down a few seconds ahead of me but I could still see a whitish glimmer that must be the white cloth around it. It was fading into the lower water as I moved after it. It was dark underwater and I could hardly see anything at all, but I caught up with the brick. It looked different down there, and it had already settled in the mud – there was only one corner sticking up. I dug into the mud and got hold of the thing and then I let myself go up. I shot upwards as I was in a hurry. The colour of the water changed as I went up and then I could almost see the sun shining through the water. 25 30

Then suddenly, I was at the surface – I had exploded back from the water into the air. Pond water was trickling down inside my nose and into my mouth. I let out the breath I had been holding and took a couple of fresh, quick breaths and treaded water and held up the brick. 35

I noticed the instructor and my friends shouting from the bank. My friends were cheering and shouting and then I heard the instructor bellowing, "Sausage! Sausage! What on earth have you got there, Sausage?"

They had finally found the cave after hiking for close to two hours. John was the first to step into the cave with Sam following closely behind. Due to the recent rainy days, the cave was damp and dark. Sunlight was not able to enter it. Walking in the darkness was a first for the boys. John and Sam moved cautiously as they ventured further into the cave. Although the boys had torches with them, they refrained from turning it on as bats are known to shy away from bright lights. The boys took a long while before they adjusted to the darkness in the cave. As tiredness started to set in, John and Sam made the most painful decision and decided to give up their search. They were disheartened as their trip had been unproductive. Before they left the cave, the two boys still did not manage to spot any bats.

River Safari

Visit Asia's First and Only
River-Themed Wildlife Park!

Newly Opened!

Embark on a journey of discovery into one of the world's largest repositories for river dwelling animals. Let your curiosity run wild across two zones in the park – Rivers Of The World and Wild Amazonia. Dive in to a whole new wildlife adventure to uncover over 5,000 amazing land and aquatic animals representing 300 species! The River is Calling...

RIVERS OF THE WORLD

Mississippi River

Begin your journey with nature's greatest architect, the beaver, and witness this busy builder in action! Venture on to discover the unusual spatula-snouted Mississippi paddlefish and the alligator gar, a prehistoric-looking river monster that's been around for 100 million years.

Murray River

Check out the wonders of Down Under, including the Murray cod, Australia's largest freshwater fish. It has a varied diet of other fish, spiny freshwater crayfish, shrimp, freshwater mussels, frogs, water fowl, tortoises and other reptiles.

Look out for the Australian lungfish. It is one of the oldest specimens found in the river. The Australian lungfish is a rare living fossil with ~~ancestors~~ ancestors that are older than the dinosaurs! It can survive during periods of low dissolved oxygen such as in stagnant pools during drought by breathing air from the surface every 30 to 60 minutes. When the lungfish rises to the surface to swallow air into its lung, it makes a sound like that of a small bellows. The Australian lungfish is a very long-lived, slow-growing fish.

WILD AMAZONIA

Amazon River Quest

The Amazon rainforest comes alive in this boat ride!

Look out for close to 30 animal species including the jaguar, Brazilian tapir, two-toed sloth, maned wolf and others lurking amidst the lush tropical foliage. All on board!

- First departure at 9am
- Last departure at 5.30pm
- Boat departs at 30 minutes interval
- Passengers must have a minimum height of 1.06m
- Passengers must be able to transfer to the boat unaided

Amazon Flooded Forest

Be amazed by the world's largest freshwater aquarium which showcases the annual flooding of the Amazon rainforest. Witness over 18 majestic animal species like the graceful manatee, striking red-tailed catfish and the arapaima with colourful, armour-like scales.

You'll also find the giant manatee the first time in Asia, in the exhibit designed to resemble its natural riverbank habitat.

For an added bite, come face-to-face with the fearsome red-bellied piranhas!

He usually took the bus home from school, but today he decided to take an alternative route by using a short-cut through the sheltered areas.

Suddenly, Henry tripped over a bump and stretched out his arms to break his fall. As he fell, he heard a yelp. His right elbow hit the concrete pavement and the pain was so excruciating that he cried out loudly. Blood started to drip slowly down his arm from the wound. He lay on the ground, clutching his elbow in pain. He opened his eyes when he felt something soft and wet licking his cheeks. A pair of friendly brown eyes was staring at him.

Henry sat up, his throbbing pain forgotten as he gazed at the creature. It had shiny brown fur and it was wagging its bushy tail. Henry wanted to pat it but resisted as he recalled what his mother had said about humans catching fleas from stray animals. As much as Henry wanted to bring the creature home as a pet, he knew could not do so. His mother was allergic to animal fur. So, he got up, reluctantly took his eyes off from the creature and continued his journey home.

As Henry was about to unlock the front door of his house, he heard a familiar yelp. He turned around and caught sight of the creature looking at him, its tail wagging happily. "Perhaps it's hungry," Henry thought.

"I can't let you enter the house. Stay here and I will bring you some food," he instructed. The creature put its head on one side and thumped its tail. Henry thought the creature might have actually understood what he was saying. He opened the door and in the blink of an eye, the creature zoomed into the house. Henry was caught off-guard and that instant, his mind went blank.

"Oh, no!" Henry exclaimed. "Mum's going to get mad when she sees the creature." He immediately kicked off his shoes, threw his bag on the couch and began searching for the mischievous creature. He knew he had to find it before his mother returned home. He searched the whole house frantically but the creature was nowhere to be seen. Minutes passed and Henry felt a chilly panic grow in him. He had to think of a way to entice the creature to come out from its hiding place. An idea struck him and he fetched a huge, tasty bone from the refrigerator.

25

Dangling the bait in front of him, Henry walked round the house calling out to the creature. He was still at it when he heard the dreaded sound – a key turning in the front door lock. Then his mother shouted, "Henry! I'm home!"

Read the passage below and answer questions 71 to 80.

(20 marks)

Mr Lim, an elderly man, was having his breakfast at a coffeeshop one morning when he lost his money and handphone to a trickster. It was the second time he had been duped.

The first time, Mr Lim was tricked in his own house. His nephew, Dan, had visited him one afternoon when everyone was at work. Dan had gone to Mr Lim's house on the pretext of checking on his health. After making some casual enquiries about his high blood pressure, Dan whipped out a handphone to show Mr Lim how he could use it to help monitor his blood pressure.

He convinced his uncle to buy the handphone by saying, "Uncle, it is cheaper for you to buy this phone for $1000 and applications or apps for short to monitor your blood pressure than to see a doctor every month." It sounded logical to Mr Lim as he was not well-informed about the market value of handphones and knew nothing about apps. As such, he was not aware that such a new handphone could be bought at only $400. As for the apps that Dan had mentioned, they were actually free apps.

When Mr Lim's daughter found out about her father's new handphone, she asked why he had handed over his money so easily to Dan. He explained resignedly, "He is my relative so I have no reason to doubt him." His daughter thought of making a police report but Mr Lim stopped her, saying it would hurt family ties. In the end, she confronted Dan and asked for a refund. However, Dan claimed he had spent all the money. She was furious and complained to Dan's father who had apologised but did not pay up for his son.

20

A few months later, Mr Lim was tricked again. This time it was by a woman named Nina who had chatted with him at a coffeeshop. She showed Mr Lim how she could check for lucky draw and lottery updates on her handphone. She claimed that her handphone had an application that allowed her to study the pattern of the lottery numbers. This would make it easier to predict the winning numbers and that was why she could make a fortune by betting on the right numbers. When Mr Lim found out she had won $13 000 using that app, he asked if she could help him install it on his handphone.

She replied, "Uncle, as you are a nice man, I will do this for you for free." Mr Lim was so grateful that he attempted to tip her with $20. Feeling a little guilty, she pushed the money back to him and said, "No trouble, no need."

Nina assured him that she would return next week with his handphone. Then she scribbled her handphone number on a piece of paper and handed it to Mr Lim when he requested for it. When she did not show up a week later, Mr Lim rang the given number unsuccessfully every few days. A month later, he made a police report. He was saddened he had been tricked again.

Sometimes, our pets can be accidental heroes. Pam, a dog from a rural community north of Bangkok, spends most of his time (16) rummaging around the piles of rubbish for tasty scraps. However, when he (17) came across a newborn baby inside a white plastic bag in a rubbish tip, he gently picked it up in his jaws and (18) gingerly carried it home to his owner, Thongmak. Pam barked loudly to raise attention until Thongmak's 12-year-old niece came to see what the (19) racket was about. She and her mother (20) scurried immediately to a nearby hospital with the tiny baby. The 2.2 kg baby girl was believed to have been born prematurely, at about seven months and needed immediate care.

- Tee off at the golf course for free for the 2nd runner-up
- A manta ray ride at the Arena at no cost for Consolation

Review from Tom, a fishing enthusiast, from Singapore

"I caught two fish an hour in the Fishy-Watering Hole Competition. It is indeed a thrilling experience as a token is given for every two fish caught. I received 12 tokens for catching 24 fish. What's more? You will definitely enjoy two nights complimentary stay at the hotel if you are the champion."

Review from Jane, a tourist, from Malaysia

"Splendid landscapes on either side of the road unfolded before me on the bus ride from the airport. The refreshing morning breeze caressed my skin. Feeling high-spirited, I hummed a tune merrily. The MRT ride to Beaufort Station was very relaxing. It was indeed a fascinating experience taking the submarine. I was welcomed heartily by the hotel staff at the lobby."

Getting To Seabottom Hotel

Submarine ride, every Tuesday at 9 a.m. from Beaufort jetty to the doorstep of the hotel

Nearest MRT station to the jetty is Beaufort Station

Section F – Editing for Spelling and Grammar (12 x 1 mark)

Each of the underlined words contains either a spelling or grammatical error. Write the correct word in each of the boxes.

Bukit Brown Cemetery was the first Chinese public cemetery in colonial

(39)

Singapore. As early as 1904, the Chinese community in Singapore persuade the colonial government to set apart a cemetery for them. At that time, such burial needs were took care of through private family cemeteries or clan asociation cemeteries.

(40)

(41)

(42)

(43)

However, changes in the law then was limiting the amount of space available for such burial grounds. This was why the Chinese clamerd for a public cemetery to take care of their burial needs. There was reluctence in starting a public cemetery for the Chinese at first due to their cultural beleaves. The government was worried that the Chinese could not be willing to accept the grid-like standard plots of a public cemetery as they had individualised preferences at size and direction of tombs.

(44)

(45)

(46)

However, the colonial government was eventually convinced that such a cemetery was feesible.

In 1922, Bukit Brown Cemetery was the first Chinese public cemetery that did not needed relationships with a family or clan before one could be buried. It was the first Chinese cemetery that allowed Chinese of diverse communal origins, such as Hokkien, Teochew and Hainanese, to be buried next to each other. This is why ancestors of many Chinese Singaporeans are buried in Bukit Brown today.

(49)

(50)

An elderly lady did her grocery shopping and upon returning to her car, she found four males trying to steal her vehicle. She dropped her shopping bags and screamed at the top of her lungs, "I have a gun and I know how to use it! Get out of the car!" The four men did not wait for a second warning. They got out and ran frantically. The lady was so flustered that she quickly loaded her shopping bags into the back of the car and got into the driver's seat. She tried over and over again to get her key into the ignition, however, she could not. It was then that she realised why. It was for the same reason that she was puzzled as to why there was a football, hockey sticks and jerseys in the car. A few minutes later, she found her own car parked four or five spaces further down. In the meantime, the four males had reported a car hijacking by an elderly woman.

ANIMALS AT THE ZOO

7 November to 25 November 2014

Opening Hours
8.30am to 6.00pm daily
(Last ticket sale will be at 5.30pm)

Zoos have an important role to play in conservation. They help to protect, preserve and restore wildlife and their habitats. Zoos bear the responsibility of educating the public and creating awareness about the dwindling numbers in the animal kingdom through various activities. In line with these aims, The Singapore Zoo is the most successful conservation park in the world.

BUY TICKETS TO HELP THE GIRAFFES!

- ◆ Discount of 5% applies to online purchase of adult and child tickets only.
- ◆ For purchase of a single ticket, show your NTUC card and members will be eligible for a 15% discount.

(All sales proceeds will be donated to the Giraffe Conservation Foundation Fund)

GIRAFFE CONSERVATION FOUNDATION FUND

For 3 weeks this November, giraffes from West Africa will be making a special appearance at The Singapore Zoo.

These animals are on the brink of extinction. They live on land that is shared by many villages. Farmers living in these villages have been clearing their land for crop cultivation. This has forced the giraffes to move to other areas to find food, making them targets for poachers.

Make your contribution to the conservation fund by purchasing tickets to see these special guests.

CONSERVATION OUTREACH: DO YOUR PART!

Be Responsible, Save these animals!

Tigers are killed for their bones, elephants for their meat, rhinoceros for their horns and turtles for their shells.

Let's do our part in conservation.

Pledge :

- ◆ not to buy souvenirs made from endangered animal parts
- ◆ not to keep wild animals as pets
- ◆ not to buy wild animals with the intention to rescue them

Spread the Word!

- ❖ Take the first step not to support the sale of any animal product.
- ❖ Go through the ingredient list of traditional medicines before you buy them.

Weekend Highlights:

Venue: Fragile Forest

The Singapore Zoo sets up booths each year to educate the public on Wildlife Conservation.

This year, the zoo hopes to raise awareness on the threats to wildlife due to poaching.

Come down and check out the exhibits on 16th November 2014. Learn about conservation efforts!

Calendar Design Competition

Do your part to help raise funds for rescued animals!

Mr Arnold Leong has lived in Tiong Bahru for more than ten years. He often visits the shops around the neberhood during his leisure time. Mr Leong has (40)

(39)

a sense of humorous and the shopkeepers enjoy chatting with him. He has become a well-known pursenaliti in the estate and forged many friendships with the shopkeepers.

(41)

(42)

However, the estate has been repidlee changing in recent years. Several (43)

shopkeepers have retired due to old age and new biznesmen have bought over the shophouses. There are also newly-opened shops sell more trendy items.

(44)

(45)

Mr Leong laments "The area has lost its charm. The tredishenel shops have been replaced by those that offer products which was found at any modern shopping mall. I miss the old feel of the place." Other residents also share Mr

(46)

(47)

Leong's sentiments. Those who have been bring up in the area agree that the changes have resulted with a loss of identity as they are no longer able to visit places they used to freekwent.

(48)

(50)

"It is sad to see things slow disappearing," says a disappointed Mr Leong.

To preserve memories, Mr Leong is planning a project to record the history of Alfie was driving home from the supermarket. It was 8 p.m. and as traffic was heavy, his mind drifted. His thoughts were suddenly interrupted by a loud roar. "Oh my goodness!" he shouted. Further up the road, flames reached so high that they brushed the top of the street lamp. Brake lights flashed as traffic slowed to a crawl.

Up ahead, Alfie saw a tangle of crushed vehicles. A pickup truck had collided into a police patrol car which in turn smashed into the lamp post, crumpling the police car. The wreck looked like a crazy metallic structure, set in a mammoth bonfire. Through the smoke and flames, Alfie could see a policeman lying on the ground, under what was left of the patrol car. He was trying to crawl away from the wreck but seemed unable to move.

10

Alfie immediately grabbed the bottle of water that he had bought earlier at the supermarket, stopped his car and jumped out. Then, he quickly ran towards the stricken policeman. Onlookers screamed as he raced by. "Don't go there!" one of them yelled at Alfie. "The tank of the truck is going to explode!" Alfie shouted back, "I have to help him!" He was furious that none of the onlookers had made a move to rescue the policeman. Another voice shrieked, "Are you crazy? Get away from there!" Alfie ignored the voices in the crowd.

15

The orange tentacles of the blaze were reaching out to him as he approached the patrol car. Flames were engulfing the policeman's body. Alfie took off his jacket and soaked it with the water. He put it on the policeman's body to put out the fire. It went out with a sickening sizzle. The smell of petrol was overpowering. As Alfie knelt down by the policeman to check his condition, he discovered that the man's left leg was broken.

20

"Can you move?" Alfie asked. The policeman's eyes were closed and he did not respond. He was too heavy for Alfie to lift so he gently dragged him as far away from the blaze as possible. Still no one came forward to assist. The fire that had engulfed the patrol car was hungrily lapping at the front of the pickup truck and eating away under the hood of the engine. The tank could explode at any moment. A voice cried out, "There's someone inside!"

25

Alfie glanced up at it and saw an unconscious woman in the driver's seat. He ran to the door but it was locked. He pounded the window with his bare fists, oblivious to the pain. The glass finally broke into pieces and Alfie reached in to press the button to unlock the door. Swinging it open, he grabbed the woman and carried her over his shoulder to the spot where he had left the policeman.

35

As Alfie sat on the ground to catch his breath, flashing lights and sirens signalled the arrival of the police and ambulance. Both victims were whisked away to the hospital. "You're a hero, young man," a few of the onlookers praised Alfie. He simply looked at them with an angry glare as he walked back to his car.

Squirty was already up and about when I reached her den. I had been hoping to quietly film her (16) looking after any cubs she might have had this year. Instead, she greeted me with a soft “mmm, mmm, mmm” appeasement call. I took off my backpack, which contained a (17) rather large quantity of camera devices, and brought out the grapes I was carrying as a treat for her.

However, Squirty was not impressed. I have known this black, female bear for 17 years – I first met her when she was seven weeks old – and she sees me as a member of the clan. Yet I am not (18) free from her wrath. Bears lay down rules when they form alliances and social contracts, and punish those who break them. In Squirty’s eyes, I had done just that.

She must have believed that there was something more exciting to eat in my backpack, and made a move for it. I was leaning against a tree on a steep incline, so Squirty had the advantage. She grabbed the straps of the backpack and pulled. I held on and shook the backpack, hoping to (19) retrieve my photographic equipment – it was worth $4,000. One of the cameras fell to the ground. Then Squirty started making aggressive “huh, huh, huh” sounds and I knew I had to (20) give up. I did not want to aggravate her further.

The following reflection was written by Anna Goh, a Project Build & Bless participant in 2013.

Last June, I gave in to the nudging of friends and participated in Project Build & Bless. My friends have been involved in such projects for years.

I knew that they were meaningful, but I was unwilling to give up the comforts of my home for people I did not know. I was willing to donate some money like I always did but had no desire to be physically involved. I asked myself: what difference would it make? Even if I was not there helping, someone else would be.

However, life often does not turn out as planned. I lost my job of eight years and was depressed. I could not seem to find a new job and was constantly whining about how unfair life was, and how much I had to suffer. When my friends encouraged me to join them for the project again, I finally agreed. I did so, as I could not help myself and simply wanted to be of service to others.

The month that followed that decision will always be vivid in my mind. The smiles on the faces of the children we were teaching, the genuine happiness and generosity of the people whom we had labelled poor and needy, the lessons in life that we never thought we would pick up from those "less fortunate" than us...

In truth, the people whom I thought we were showing kindness and bringing blessings to helped me appreciate life and see things in a different light. The experience was one of the best things that had ever happened to me.

"You have not lived today until you have done something for someone who can never repay you."

~ John Bunyan

For each question from 21 to 28, four options are given. One of them is the correct answer. Make your choice (1, 2, 3 or 4). Shade the correct oval (1, 2, 3 or 4) on the Optical Answer Sheet. (8 marks)

Read the passage below and answer questions 71 to 80. (20 marks)

The truck driver was enjoying his meal at a local restaurant and happened to look towards the door when it opened. That was probably the only reason he ever paid attention to the old lady who came in. She was quite ordinary-looking, a little bent, with wisps of white hair under her hat.

He bit into his hamburger and expected the lady to disappear into one of the booths quietly. What happened next caught him by surprise. There was the sound of running footsteps. Soon, the owner and the waitresses hurried from behind the counter to meet the old lady.

"Mrs Cosby!" they shouted. The old lady smiled and greeted them all, "Susan, Bob, Alyssa, Carmen, good to see you all." "Very good, indeed, Mrs Cosby!" Bob, the owner said. "Now, let me take your coat," he continued. The truck driver watched with interest. This was something he had never seen before. He had never seen an owner of a restaurant help anyone out of his or her coat before and he had been driving across the country for quite a few years.

"I shall bring you a little soup first. Then you can decide what it is you wish to eat this time," Alyssa smiled and returned to the kitchen. "Let me tidy up your table," Susan said.

Out of sheer curiosity, the truck driver waited, watching in awe at how the waitresses did everything in their power to make the old lady really enjoy her meal. When she was finished, Bob refused to take any payment from her. He escorted her to the door and stood there, waving as long as it took her to reach the corner and turn out of sight. Then he turned and realised that the truck driver had been observing him.

"Would you like to listen to a story?" he said as he sat down across the driver. "You know how every school seems to have a class that everyone thinks will never graduate? Trouble makers, that was what we were," Bob smiled as he looked in the direction of the waitresses. He continued, "None of our teachers stayed for long. One morning, a new teacher walked in yet again. We looked at Mrs Cosby and gave her

He reminisced, "She opened her briefcase and took out a bunch of papers. We feared the worst – a test. But no, it was something that totally surprised us. She asked each one of us to come to the front of the class, one by one, and gave us each a paper. In each paper, she had written what we had been good at during the last month."	35
"Mrs Cosby did that every month from then on. Her positive attitude transformed our class. We did not want to hurt her feelings anymore and actually started to study. On the day of our graduation, Mrs Cosby hugged each and every one of us, and told us with tears in her eyes how proud she was of us."	40
"She had turned a bunch of misfits into people who could achieve great things – because we believed in ourselves and went on to fulfil our dreams. Maybe, now you understand why that old lady deserves all the respect we can give her," Bob concluded.

Then this past season, things started going right. I finally realised that I had what it takes. I began to really believe in myself, and was finally ready to take on the biggest challenge of my life.

As I entered the stadium, the glare of the sun blocked out all my distractions. This was it. I was the odds-on favourite, having broken the world record in the trial. Could I do it again? Would I be the Olympic champion?

I did it! The hot favourite, as well as the rest, was annihilated by me! Some said it was a stroke of luck, others said I was finally coming into my own, that I was about to fulfill my potential. It was not a lucky break. It was hard work and determination.

The Champion

Karen Lim, 12, a student from Republic Primary School, became Singapore's Junior Scrabble Champion 2013, after winning the Amazing Scrabble Race. She beat second-placed Lina Lee, 10, from Mandarin Primary School. The 12-year-old was a stand-out performer among the 200 other participants and she described her experience as amazing. She has a vast vocabulary that most of us would struggle even to pronounce. In the deciding game of the tournament, she scored 98 points for 'coniines', a poison found in hemlock, and 86 for 'bandura', a Ukrainian lute. As the winner of the championship, Karen received $5000 in prize money which she plans to save for the future and a trophy for her school.

Firstly, by taking part in the competition, I have learnt many new words from my fellow competitors. Also, I have learnt how to strategise my options. Most importantly, the competition has taught me how to remain focused under pressure and persevere towards my goals.

I strung my longbow and set out on the trail that crisp September morning, with Fred some distance ahead of me. The early snow had melted and the woods were damp, making it easy to move along quietly.

As I came over a hill, I saw movement in the trees off to my left after hearing a ruffling noise. At first it was hard to fathom - two brown shapes hurtling into the air, 35 yards away. Then I realised they were first-year grizzly cubs, the size of German shepherds. The cubs had been nursing as the mother lay on her back. At the sight of me, the sow had jumped to her feet and tossed the young bears a distance away for safety Immediately, the sow charged. Grunting harshly, head low, the creature which must have weighed at least 200 kilograms, closed the gap with unbelievable speed. I remember seeing those little black, beady eyes, and the anger which was like an aura around her.

I spun, looking vainly for a tree to climb. Fred was twenty yards up the trail, so I ran towards him, yelling, "It's a bear! Get your spray!"

Running from the bear, I now admit, was a total mistake. You cannot outrun bears. They are like missiles homing in on their targets. It only increases the likelihood of a full-blown attack.

Fred groped for his spray, which was stuck in the leather holster. Fearing for his life, Fred dove off the trail. I jumped behind a log. There she was, a few feet away. I could not help thinking what a beautiful, magnificent animal it was, but that thought was quickly replaced by fear that this was really happening. I thrust my bow at the sow and yelled, "Get out of here!" She whacked the bow out of my hands with one paw, and leapt over the log. It all happened so fast. The next thing I knew, I was just seeing teeth and trying to jump out of the way. The bear lunged, biting me in the face and neck. Then I realised I had to play dead or I was going to be dead.

Armed with his pepper spray canister in hand, Fred came running towards the bear, screaming. She dropped me and lunged at Fred. Directing the nozzle at the sow's face, Fred emptied the contents of the 4 ounce spray can. Gasping and choking, the bear veered off into the woods with her cubs bounding after her.

Through my struggle to stay conscious, I heard Fred say, "Are you all right?" Now Fred's experience as a physician came into play. He calmly assessed my wounds and assured me I would survive. Perhaps it was the body's strange way of coping with intense pain, the only real pain I felt was in my arm, which I thought might have been broken.

Twenty minutes later, as we neared our Jeep, it occurred to me to take a photograph of myself in order to remember the event. Only when I looked into the Jeep's rear view mirror did the full extent of my injuries hit me. It was also at this point that the pain began. Suddenly, my head and face hurt terribly

Are Singaporeans gracious? It appears that some of us are not. There was an uproar when residents of an estate in Blossomville helped themselves to the items such as used toys and electronics collected by the student volunteers for needy families. (16)

Mr Ong, the teacher in-charge was stunned when he saw a man get out of his car and take a toaster out of the pile of collected goods. Mr Ong reported that the man had returned the toaster very reluctantly only after he had been sharply told off by a parent volunteer. (17)

(18)
The students had gone from door to door, speaking to the residents about lending a helping hand to those in need by giving away their used items that were still in good condition. The students then collected the items that had been given away and redistributed them to needy families that had been identified by the Residents' Committee. Dear Aishal.,

39

How have you been? I hope that you are on good health. I am trying to keep my spirits up amidst the darverstation. As you may have heard, Typhoon Haiyan hit the Philippines on November 8, 2013. It is considered to be the deadliest typhoon

40

41

42 that has ever hit my country. Many naighbooreeng countries were also affected with the storm. Typhoon Haiyan has klaymed thousands of lives in the Philippines and there are still many people who are missing.

43

44

In Tacloban city, many buildings are destroyed; trees were uprooted and cars were piled up in heaps along the road. There was widespread flooding and the storm

"It's my turn tomorrow," mumbled Raghu to himself as he climbed the stairs in his school. He had been dreading this day ever since Mr Tan, the much feared History teacher, declared his grand class prodigy scheme two months ago. He explained that he was looking for a smart student who was able to teach a lesson in an innovative manner.	5
Mr Tan had announced that each student would be given a week to prepare a lesson for the class. He even invited the boys to chew on his brains during this process if they wanted to. Saying this, Mr Tan had grinned while the class gave an involuntary shudder - it would take a very brave boy to seek out Mr Tan's assistance outside the classroom.	10
"At the end of the term, we will have a poll to decide the best teacher of all. That boy shall be the Class Prodigy. I shall personally recommend the Golden Star Award for him," Mr Tan droned in his usual style.
Week after week Raghu saw the best and the brightest of his classmates being reduced to quivering jellies during their teaching sessions under Mr Tan's merciless sarcasm. The weeklong preparation might never have been enough for each student found that he could never do it right.	15
And now it was Raghu's turn. Worse, he had done virtually nothing to prepare the chapter on the French Revolution that had come his way. His mind was a complete blank.	20
He had tried, of course. For a week now, it had become a routine for him to sit with his History textbook open at the page where the chapter on the French Revolution began. And somehow, he did nothing but stare at the sketch of Marie Antoinette, Queen of France in the late 18th century when the Revolution broke out. It showed Marie Antoinette, with her hair cut in a pageboy style and dressed in an emerald gown, just before she was executed.	25
Raghu felt very close to her for some reason. He felt for her. She was treated unjustly before her death - exactly how Raghu was feeling right now.
And then there was only one day to his ordeal. Deep down Raghu knew that even if he had stayed up every night the whole week to study, he would still be the target of Mr Tan's snide comments the following day.	30
That afternoon, the chiming of the school bell did not rouse that familiar sensation of freedom in Raghu. "If only I could refuse to teach the class," he wondered as he ambled home. "But how could I possibly do that?"	35

76)False / Mr Tan had announced that each student would only be given a week to prepare for a lesson for the class.

True / The best and the brightest of Raghu's classmates had reduced to quivering jellies during their teaching lessons under Mr Tan's merciless sarcasm.

False / Raghu had done virtually nothing to prepare the chapter on the French Revolution. It had also become a routine for Raghu to sit With his History text book open at the page where the chapter on the French Revolution began and do nothing but stare at the sketch of Marie Antoinette.

77)a)Marie Antoinette's hair was cut in a pageboy style.

b)Marie Antoinette was dressed in an emerald gown.

78)The word 'her' in line 28 refers to Marie Antoinette, the Queen of France in the late 18th century when the French Revolution broke out.

79)Raghu did not want the day to end as it was his turn to teach the next day and he was not looking forward to it.

80)No, Raghu would not be able to because his best and brightest classmates were not able to do it right and he was totally unprepared.

"Hearing about the reopening of Kampong Laut brought back many memories for me. In those days, we lived in kampong huts, not high-rise apartments. The hygiene standards of our dilapidated attap huts, and the lack of electricity, gas and water did not bother us. What we had in our backyard was a world of discovery and adventure. I have been told that the new Kampong Laut has this, and much more, to offer!"

*Dr Ho Kian Soon
Member of Parliament for Pinvale Town*

"Having been involved in the new Kampong Laut project, I know that chalets modelled after the old kampong houses have been erected there. I am glad that people can now have a taste of kampong living. I will certainly take my children there to visit and experience a stay. I can also share with them what I remember of my growing up days."

*Mr Robin Choo
Mayor of Pinvale Town*

"In the old Kampong Laut, life was simple and the people were contented. The reopening of Kampong Laut is a piece of wonderful news! I will leave my city comforts and escape there as soon as I find an opportunity."

*Ms Fion Chua
Director of Pinvale Tourism Board*

"With the rapid urbanisation of Singapore, kampongs had to make way for high-rise apartments. Our relaxed pace of life and close human contact with our neighbours were lost forever. I am looking forward to spending some serene moments in the new Kampong Laut."

*Mdm Nurul Huda
Chairman of Pinvale Women's Council*

For each question 21 to 28, choose the most appropriate option (1, 2, 3 or 4) and shade your answer on the Optical Answer Sheet. (8 marks)

21 Based on the flyer, which of the following is true about the new Kampong Laut?

- (1) Fresh seafood can be purchased there.
- (2) A new shopping mall has been built there.
- (3) Fishing competitions are a daily affair there.
- (4) It will be exactly the same as the old Kampong Laut.

22 The official opening of Kampong Laut would _____.

- (1) include games suitable for families
- (2) be held at the Pinvale Shopping Mall
- (3) include activities that run late into the night
- (4) begin with introducing the winners of the fishing competition

23 According to Dr Ho Kian Soon, the old Kampong Laut _____.

- (1) did not have a very clean environment
- (2) was well-supplied with electricity, gas and water
- (3) was a place where he had many bad memories
- (4) used to have both high-rise apartments and attap huts

24 Which interviewee felt that the people who lived in the old Kampong Laut were satisfied with their lives?

- (1) Ms Fion Chua
- (2) Mr Robin Choo
- (3) Dr Ho Kian Soon
- (4) Mdm Nurul Huda

25 Why were inverted commas used for the texts on the second page of the flyer?

- (1) to enhance the design of the flyer
- (2) to note the exact words had been quoted
- (3) to draw the readers' attention to that section of the flyer
- (4) to show that the four people are well-respected in the community

- 26 Which of the following is not one of the changes as a result of 'rapid urbanisation of Singapore'?
- (1) increased hygiene standards
 - (2) Singaporeans' relaxed pace of life
 - (3) losing the closeness with our neighbours
 - (4) high-rise apartments replaced kampongs
- 27 Which of the following is the most likely reason that the comments made by the four people were included in the flyer?
- (1) to tell people more about the new Kampong Laut
 - (2) to show that the four people would be invited guests at the official opening
 - (3) to help Pinvale Town's residents understand the prominent people in their community better
 - (4) to show that the new Kampong Laut had the support of influential people in the community
- 28 What is the main purpose of the flyer?
- (1) to promote the fishing competition
 - (2) to encourage people to engage in outdoor activities
 - (3) to let people know about the reopening of Kampong Laut
 - (4) to give people the opportunity to share about what the old Kampong Laut was like

"Haha... you fell for it again!" taunted Paul before he and his classmates erupted into peals of laughter as John landed heavily on his bottom. It was the fifth time that John had fallen for Paul's trick. Paul had the habit of pulling the chair from under John whenever he was about to sit in class. John's face turned red with anger. He tried not to react as hot searing rage throbbed painfully at his temples. With clenched fists, he gave an icy stare at Paul who had been giving him a hard time since Primary 2.

"That's it, this is the last straw. I've had enough. I have to do something!" John made a silent resolve to retaliate and stop the bullying. He racked his brains for ideas to get back at his classmate. As he scanned the classroom, his gaze fell upon a poster which read, "All about Peanuts". He knew that Paul was allergic to peanuts. When the teacher had asked the pupils to write down any dietary restrictions they had prior to participating in the Primary 4 camp, he distinctly remembered Paul writing down, 'allergic to peanuts'. John's eyes widened with glee at the thought of his bright idea. His mind raced as he crafted his plan. He was blinded by his urge for vengeance.

10

After school that day, John went to a supermarket to buy some ground peanuts. During recess, the following day, John hung around Paul for an opportunity. Paul was lining up at the drinks stall to buy his favourite iced tea. When Paul was about to pay, John purposely dropped a few coins which tinkled on the floor right behind Paul. Distracted by the noise as well as the sight of the coins falling to the floor, Paul bent over to pick the coins. John took that split-second opportunity to complete his task.

Once the deed was done, John smugly sneaked away from the drinks stall with an unmistakable glint in his eyes. He imagined Paul breaking out in a rash or sneezing continuously the next day. However, he definitely did not expect the events which unfolded. Within minutes, there was a commotion near Paul. Apparently, after taking a sip of the tea, Paul collapsed and started foaming in the mouth. Meanwhile, a teacher at the canteen called for an ambulance. Horrified at the turn of events, John hung around the scene. Minutes later, when the paramedics arrived, John overheard one of them saying, "The doctor will not be able to treat him effectively unless he knows the cause of the reaction."

25

Hearing that, John was stricken with guilt. Despite knowing the punishment that awaited him, John stepped forward to confess. He knew he had to tell the truth and not withhold any information. Feeling remorseful, John told the paramedics about how he had sprinkled ground peanuts into Paul's drink despite knowing about Paul's allergy.

The barn was cluttered with broken furniture and infested with armies of bugs. Inside the remains of the rickety barn (16) dwells a family of field mice which had not taken any food for a few days. They scurry about in the dark, looking for morsels of food to satisfy their (17) relentless hunger.

One of them scores a kernel of dry corn and quietly (18) nibbles its treasure by an old bale of straw. Without a whisper of warning, the little mouse is pierced by a quick, disabling strike from the shadow. As a burning pain rushes through its body, the stunned creature dashes in panic across the floor and hides beneath a stack of rotten wood. There the mouse lies, immobilised and helpless.

Out of the camouflaging darkness (19) slithers an attacker. Constantly flicking its tongue to detect the mouse's (20) scent in the air, it slides across the floor towards its hidden victim. Unhinging its jaws, it swallows its lifeless victim whole, beginning with the head.

About us

Nature Trekker is an environmental group that started in 2000.

Our main objective is to educate people to conserve the environment.

We organise outdoor trekking, bird-watching, plant appreciation, mangrove study and nature photography.

We also conduct exploration trips* to the following places:

- Pulau Semakau
- Chek Jawa
- Taman Negara
- Endau Rompin
- Fraser's Hill

* Exploration trips are limited to 20 persons per group. Additional cost of $10 per trip for photography treks.

Our Most Popular Programmes:

- Pulau Semakau Nature Exploration Trip
- Replanting Programme

Pulau Semakau Nature Exploration Trip

In land-scarce Singapore, refuse incinerated on the main island, is taken to Pulau Semakau. It is Singapore's first offshore landfill island. The sludge and ash are transferred to barges and dumped into each cell from which seawater has been pumped out. Then, it is covered with soil and grass.

If Singaporeans are able to recycle more and reduce waste from 1.1kg a day per person to 0.9kg, then the landfill island may last for 46 years.

We will help visitors apply for entry pass to the island from the National Environment Agency (NEA).
NEA will not issue entry pass directly to individuals.

Replanting Programme

During construction of the landfill island, mangroves were destroyed. To replace the lost mangroves, we help the National Parks to replant 400,000 mangrove saplings. The mangroves are thriving. They act as an indicator to give early warning if toxins leak into the sea. To safeguard against pollution of the sea, a wall is built around the landfill site. Join us in planting Sea Hibiscus and Casuarina to conserve the mangrove!

How to register to be a member?

Blank Page

Section I - Comprehension Open -ended (20 mark)

Read the passage below and answer questions 71 to 80.

The mist was a hindrance to Laura's visibility. She tripped over something that felt like a wire and fell. That would not have been serious but instead of staying where she fell, she went sliding down a slope covered with a loose, slippery mixture of gravel and earth. By the time she reached the bottom of the slope, she was badly bruised and breathless. She began to feel the pain in her legs and arms.

Where was she? She could only suppose she was at the bottom of a quarry or one of the deep pits. "Well, I had better try to climb out," Laura murmured.

She began to ascend the slope. She could not see much ahead. With all her might, she tried to move her body up the slope. She was gaining some confidence when she slipped again on the treacherous, loose surface and slithered back down for several metres. Her vivid imagination began to paint fearful pictures of what could be near her. Could there be wild animals or dangerous traps next to her? Was her life in danger? The harder she tried to keep her mind from wild thoughts, the faster her mind raced. She shuddered and resolved to stay where she was till she could see more clearly.

Hours seemed to pass. She prayed that someone would see her, though deep in her heart, she knew the possibility was almost non-existent. There was a terrible sadness in Laura's eyes. Then, from far in the distance, a low echo came to her ears. It sounded familiar. She listened intently and concluded that it was a distant train rumbling slowly through the thick mist. The sound grew steadily louder but it was not until the train, with its carriages aglow and dispersing the mist that she realised she had slithered down a steep-sided railway embankment.

20

Laura sprang up. She could have cried with relief. She was in no danger from the train, which was travelling slowly because of the mist and she was several metres away from the railway track.

25

All she had to do now was walk alongside the track until she came to a station, which she was bound to do in time.

She walked slowly and painfully, but steadily. She could feel a strain in her muscles. Within an hour, she had reached a station. However, that was not the end of her ordeal. It was late and all public transport had ceased. Her legs were weary and painful. It had started to drizzle and she wanted very much to be home, to have a warm shower and get enough rest as she had to perform a surgery the next day. She gritted her teeth and made her way back home despite the pain and rain.

30

71. From paragraph one, how do we know that the physical conditions had not been favourable to Laura? (2m)

72. What does the word 'that' in line 2 refer to? (2m)

73. Choose words from paragraphs 3 and 4 which have opposite meanings to the words below. (3m)

descend
dull
gathering

74. Based on the passage, state whether each statement in the table below is true or false, then give one reason why you think so. (3m)

	True/False	Reason
The train moved at a fast speed.
Laura managed to catch a bus home.
Laura suffered some injuries from her fall.

75. In line 17, the writer states that there was a 'terrible sadness' in Laura's eyes. Why was there sadness in her eyes? (2m)

76. What was Laura's occupation? (2m)

77. Which word from the last paragraph tells us that ^{Laura} ~~the writer~~ was tired? (1m)

78. Explain clearly why had Laura's ordeal not ended when she reached the station? (2m)

79. Write 1, 2 and 3 in the blanks below to indicate the order in which the events occurred in the passage. (1m)

_____ Laura heard a low echo.

_____ Laura tripped and slid down a slope.

_____ Laura realised she was seated near the railway embankment.

80. From the passage, what positive quality did Laura display?
Support your answer with one piece of evidence from the passage. (2m)

It was a warm day at the shores of the Italian Riviera. Fierce wind has begun to lift and swirl the surface of the sea. Mas, a large black dog and her owner, Pilenga, scanned the horizon and saw a fleet of colourful sailing boats heading towards the port. In the rough water, the crew of one boat struggled to manoeuvre against the direction of the wind, but their boat moved closer to the jagged rocks on the wrong side of the barrier before the harbour. Pilenga and his shaggy companion braced for action. As Pilenga clambered quickly along slippery rocks, Mas followed close on his heels, barking excitedly. When they reached the end of the jetty, they leapt into the waves and swam towards the floundering sailing boat.

The following is the winning entry of last year's Poster Design Competition.

Spreading the Love for Endangered Animals

Cuddly Baby Pandas

Pandas start out small — about the size of a stick of butter. The mother panda cares for her young until they are ready to venture out on their own. It does not leave the den when the cubs are still young.

The panda cubs are nursed until about 18 months of age, but will begin to eat bamboo at about 7 to 9 months. Pandas spend over 12 hours a day eating.

Funny Baby ~~Pygmy~~ Slow Loris

The pygmy slow loris is nocturnal. It sleeps in the day while gripping a branch with its hands and feet. Its grasp is so strong that the animal can hang by one leg and feed in this position.

The name 'loris' comes from the Dutch word for clown, which describes the animal's wide-open eyes and facial markings and its acrobatic and comical positions as it moves about. When confronted, the loris will usually 'freeze' in mid-movement.

Your poster should include:

- drawings or photographs of baby animals
- interesting information about 2 to 3 species of endangered baby animals

For each question from 21 to 28, shade your answer (1, 2, 3 or 4) on the Optical Answer Sheet (OAS).

21. The main aim of the poster design competition is to _____.

- 1) encourage children to design beautiful posters
- 2) promote the photography of endangered animals
- 3) introduce children to the Institute of Animal Protection
- 4) encourage children to find out more about endangered animals

22. Which of the following is not a requirement of the competition?

- 1) Participants must be children above 4 years old.
- 2) Participants must draw pictures of three baby animals.
- 3) Participants must send in their entries by 25 July 2014.
- 4) Participants must provide information of at least 2 endangered animals

23. The champion of the poster design competition will receive _____.

- 1) $5000 cash voucher and Arts Friends membership
- 2) $5000 cash and a free membership of Rochaii Cafe
- 3) $5000 cash and a photograph taken with a baby animal
- 4) $5000 cash voucher and a free membership of Randai Zoo

24. Participants are to register and submit their entries _____.

- 1) by calling Jenny Tay at 9885 3367
- 2) by emailing the poster to babyanimals@gmail.com.sg
- 3) at the Singapore Randai Zoo Customer Service Counter
- 4) at the Institute of Animal Protection Customer Service Counter

25. Panda cubs stop drinking milk when they are about _____.

- 1) 7 months
- 2) 9 months
- 3) 16 months
- 4) 18 months

26. _____ is not a sponsor of the Poster Design Competition.

- 1) Rochaii Café
- 2) Arts Friends Pte Ltd
- 3) Singapore Randai Zoo
- 4) Institute of Animal Protection

27. Why is the loris named after the Dutch word 'clown'?

- 1) It sleeps in the day and has strong grasp.
- 2) It has wide-open eyes and facial markings.
- 3) It stops moving when confronted in mid-air.
- 4) It can hang by one leg and sleep in this position.

28. Which of the following statement is TRUE?

- 1) The pygmy slow lorises are active at night and sleeps in the day.
- 2) The mother panda usually leaves their den to find bamboo for her cubs.
- 3) The pygmy slow lorises and the giant pandas eat both plants and animals.
- 4) The giant pandas eat bamboo and butter when it is about 7 to 9 months old.

Section I: Comprehension (20m)

Read this passage and answer questions 71 to 80.

When the phone call came through, it took but a moment to dash the hope I held for days. "I am sorry," said the manager. "However, the other applicant was more suitable for the job." Upset with the news, I left a note for my absent wife telling her what had happened and went for a stroll to clear my head. Accompanied by my dog, Peanuts, I headed for the beach, wallowing in self-pity.

All of a sudden, Peanuts started barking like crazy. Distracted, I looked up to see what was happening. To my astonishment I saw a large creature lying at the water's edge about 100 metres away. Its bulk and colour led me to believe that it was a dead shark. Peanuts was standing just a few metres away from it, barking furiously.

As I approached, I could see the unmistakable tail of a dolphin. Inspecting it further I was surprised to see the blunt shape of its head. A little whale! It was roughly 2.5 metres long, but must have weighed between 200 and 300 kilogrammes. I examined it closely but saw no evidence of injury. Then, noticing what might have been an eye on its blunt head, I leaned in for a closer look. Suddenly, it opened, blowing wet air in my face. Not an eye, but a spout. It was breathing!

Shocked and excited, my first thought was to rescue it. I did not think I could move it by myself, but I was alone on the beach and more than three kilometres from town. There was no choice: I knew I had to do something. I decided to try to roll it. What an effort! It was a backbreaking task, but I was making great progress in rolling it a few times. However, a giant wave picked the whale up and pushed it back, despite my efforts to brace against it.

Dejected, I fell backwards underneath the whale and, as the water receded, found myself in a sitting position with the baby whale in my lap. I could not move. When the next wave began to roll in, I could feel the panic rising inside me as the water quickly surged up to my chin, engulfing me. I took a deep breath and went under.

Luckily the whale became buoyant and I was able to scramble out from under it. I quickly turned it face first into the oncoming waves. It worked! With each rising wave, I slowly pushed the hapless creature further into the deeper water until it was floating. When the next big wave came, I was horrified to see it turned sideways again, and heading back to the shallows. I waited until we were between waves so I planted my feet firmly in the sand and then I gave it an enormous shove. It went under the next wave and surfaced a few metres away. "Yes!" I cried, as I watched it move into deeper water. Exhausted but thrilled, I made my way up the beach and watched.

The whale was not in any immediate trouble so I decided to run home and grab my wetsuit, intending to dive to make sure it did not beach again. Arriving home, I peeled off my wet clothes and donned my wetsuit. "What are you doing?" my wife asked. "Saving a life! We have to go!" I replied. Explaining the situation as we sped up the beach, I saw the whale and pointed. It was floating, resting and apparently safe. I was overjoyed. As we sat whale-watching in the fading light, my wife started saying how sorry she was that I had missed out on the job. By then, I had forgotten about it. "It doesn't matter anymore," I said smiling. Suddenly, what I had accomplished that day seemed far more important.

Recent research has shown that the ill effects of sugar on one's health are more extensive than one could imagine. According to a 2012 article in the journal Nature, it is a toxic substance that should be regulated, like tobacco and alcohol.

Studies show that too much sugar not only makes us fat, but also wreaks havoc on our organs, such as the liver and even the brain. As a result, we become more susceptible to heart disease, diabetes and maybe even cancer.
(17)

Some experts say that raising awareness is insufficient. A lot more needs to be done to remedy the situation. Some experts have suggested tight controls limiting the sugar used in foodstuffs or even a tax on sugar.

The global war against plastic bags is picking on steam. Shoppers in San Francisco

(45)

Singapore, a much smaller city and one that has serious airspurations of making its mark as a champion of green technology, not following suit in a big way?

46)

Ever since a heated debate on plastic bags is sparked off some two years ago, awareness of the problem has gone up somewhat. A national ertempt to encourage the use of reusable bags have taken off well with 100,000 such bags sold at major

Section I : Comprehension (Open-ended) 20 marks

Read this passage carefully and answer the questions 71 to 80.

Every year in winter, Mr Manner and his family gather at a lakeside cabin in the mountains in Helsinki. He and his two sons go skating and ice fishing if the lake is frozen, or they fish from the canoe if it is not.

Two years ago, the lake was covered by a thin layer of ice, too thick for boating, but not solid enough to walk on. Mr Manner and his family spent most of their time in front of the blazing fire in the cabin. In the mid- afternoon, while preparing dinner, they heard a commotion from outside.

"Be careful!" someone bellowed, "don't go out too far!"

Mr Manner and his family hurried to the window and saw a young girl skating across the ice. As they watched on in fear, the girl's feet slipped and she lost her footing on the unstable surface. She managed to stand back up on her feet and started skating further and further away.

She was in the middle of the lake when she stumbled once more. This time, the ice gave way and the girl disappeared under it. She was nowhere to be seen. Seconds later, she resurfaced gasping for air as she struggled to hold on to the ice and keep her head above water.

Mr Manner and his son, Theo, ran to the edge of the water. Theo took a few steps on the ice before quickly retreating to shore. He realised that he was in a precarious situation and decided to join the rest of his family who was trying in vain to work a channel open with the canoe.

"She can't last long in that icy water," Mrs Manner said. Tears were welling in her eyes.

The other people who were watching what was happening before them started to cry out in despair as they joined the Manner family in trying to break the layer of ice with the canoe. They knew they had to race against time.

Suddenly, little eight-year-old Theo, jumped up and shouted, "I have an idea!"

He ran into the cabin and grabbed the rope that they always used to pitch their tents. He tied the rope into a knot securely around one of his favourite plush toys but realised that it was not suitable for his use. He looked frantically for something that could float. He picked up a golf club which was placed by the fireplace but shook his head. Then there were the porcelain crockery and silver cutlery. Just as he was scratching his head, he spotted an orange buoy hanging on the wall. He fastened it to the rope he had in his hand and then rushed out again. From the side of the lake, Theo tossed the buoy to the girl who then grabbed it with her life. With the help of Mr Manner, they managed to reel the girl back to safety.

All the onlookers started cheering as Mrs Manner was ready with a large towel to wrap around the young girl who was still in shock and shivering profusely. She was swept by a wave of remorse and she hung her head low. The Manner family quickly ushered her into their cabin where it was warm so that she could recover from what could have been a tragedy.

An early morning winter storm had dumped a lot of snow here in the mountains of my home. Schools were closed, roads were dangerous, and all I wanted to do was stay in bed. Still, I knew I had to get the day started. I dressed warmly before I stepped out of the house. The snow was over my shoes. The cold draft was chapping my lips. My fifty-year-old back ached in anticipation of the shoveling I would have to do if the snow did not stop soon.

Yet, when I looked out on the crystal blanket that covered the ground, I could not help but smile a bit. It was so beautiful. It softened the naked trees and hid the dead grass. In the distance I could hear the sound of the snow plow on the road, the barking of a happy dog, and the laughter of children playing outside, enjoying their day off from school.

"Singapore's Mass Rapid Transit (SMRT) system is more reliable nowadays. There are fewer delays (29)_____ huge sums are being spent to maintain and improve the network," said Transport Minister Lui Tuck Yew. (30)_____ he acknowledged that SMRT could have done "much better" in handling the three breakdowns last month, especially in providing timely information on the situation to commuters.

Mr Lui said the SMRT and Land Transport Authority (LTA) are spending about S$500 million to overhaul older trains (31)_____ the North-South and East-West lines by 2016. This will include upgrading the signalling system by 2018.

SBS Transit, (32)_____ other rail operator, is also improving its network. It is replacing problematic parts of the North-East Line overhead power system, and doing (33)_____ upgrade of major systems of its 10-year-old trains. The improvements made (34)_____ both operators have led to fewer delays that exceed five minutes. The number of delays fell from 396 in 2012 (35)_____ 309 last year.

"Fewer trains (36)_____ also being withdrawn from service on all lines," Mr Lui added. "We have made some strides in the right direction, but there is certainly room (37)_____ improvement." He also said SMRT is changing (38)_____ approach in dealing with breakdowns. Instead of having a generic plan for stretches of rail, it will have a station-by-station contingency plan.

Read the passage below and answer questions 71 to 80.

(20 marks)

In 1934, when I was about four years old and living in Kenya, my parents returned from a business trip to Nairobi with two small lion cubs. The pair, a male named Sultan and a female named Sanya, had been neglected by their sick mother in the capital city's zoo. They arrived at my home, a small farm, hissing and spitting. Then they tottered round my garden on their short legs.

5

It did not take long before they had both settled in as our dog, Bonzo, got along well with them. However, at feeding time, Bonzo had to be shut away to stop him from stealing their food. The cubs would spend the night in the bathroom. The next morning, when the cook came to bring us our breakfast, they would push their way into our bedrooms. I would feed the cubs with my leftovers and then they would lie on our chairs. The cubs were friendly towards my family as well as our friends.

10

However, my mother's friend, Aunt Sophia, from South Africa, had a different experience when she came to visit us one day. After numerous cups of tea, she had to answer the call of nature. When she entered the toilet, a cub's head appeared at one end of the bath and another appeared at the opposite end. The poor woman screamed, opened the door immediately and fled. To her horror, the fascinated lions followed her. She became so hysterical that she took the earliest train home.

15

The cubs scared some of my neighbours too. When the cubs grew much bigger, they had to be locked away at night in a cage. This pleased some of the neighbouring farmers, who had complained about the possible danger of our "wild lions" to their lives and their animals.

20

To me, the cubs were never a danger to them or my family. In fact, I often played games with Sultan and Sanya. I loved being dragged round the garden on the end of their tails. On one occasion, when I was five years old, my mother was playing a game of 'Peekaboo' with me on the couch. She hid her head in a cushion and then popped up to say "Boo!". Sultan decided to join in and at one point when my mother lifted her head, I had disappeared. Mother looked over just in time to see my feet at the door – my head in Sultan's mouth. Mum dashed over and stopped him. He let me go and licked me. However, he got a spanking from Mum for his trouble. This must have made Sultan very upset as he was locked up for a week after that incident.

Finally, the fateful day came when my family had to return to England. My father learnt that a zoo in South Africa was willing to take them so he made arrangements to send them there. A look of worry creased my forehead. Would they adapt well in the new home? As I bade my farewell to the cubs, I promised to visit them in the future.

In 2005, researchers travelled to Panama on a rescue mission. The invasive chytrid fungus had been found in the country's mountains, threatening to eliminate entire populations of amphibians. Biologists loaded hundreds of frogs into crates, including several dozens of rare Rabbs' fringe-limbed tree frogs and tadpoles, to safeguard them in U.S. labs.

Now, only one Rabbs' frog remains. The others died of natural causes and new tadpoles were never able to fully metamorphose in the labs. The last Rabbs' frog, nicknamed Toughie by his caretakers, lives inside a biosecure shipping container with various other frog species. He is fed a diet of crickets and is weighed but otherwise touched sparingly. Although Toughie is healthy, researchers believe he is also old.

As a young lawyer in Morocco, Mr Taha Bouqdib was all set on a career path in legal services. _____, an invitation to a tea warehouse turned his world upside down.

It was an eye-opener for the young Mr Bouqdib _____ was until that point, familiar only with the usual Moroccan brew of "mint, green tea and a lot of sugar". The friend who invited _____ "showed me all the different types of tea from around the world and the connection _____ myself and the tea was immediate," he recounts.

(32)

"The product attracted me first more _____ the business behind it. I knew it was my destiny." Thus, this began Mr Bouqdib's love affair with tea which today has culminated _____ the thriving Singapore-based empire that is TWG Tea.

(33)

(34)

_____ he founded TWG seven years ago, Mr Bouqdib had made a point of learning the craft of brewing the perfect cuppa by working for fourteen years at French gourmet tea company Mariages Freres. Eventually, Mr Bouqdib decided to strike _____ on his own. Initially, he and his wife had their sights set on the United States but a friend who was living here persuaded them to consider Singapore as their base instead.

(35)

"So we came and the magic of Singapore won us over – between the airport and the hotel, I made the decision that Singapore _____ be the right place to start our company."

(37)

Within a year, the couple had packed up their lives and moved here and began working round the clock to start up _____ business. They are now permanent residents.

A loosened cover on a Downtown Line (DTL) train's detrainment switch was what caused Singapore's newest MRT line's second disruption in less than a week.

(39)

Downtown Line operator SBS Transit reportedly said at a press conference on Saturday that the switch was believed to be triggered with a young girl who moved the metal cover that concealed it, triggering a cut in the power supply, an in-built safety feature, and the deployment of a ramp for emergency evakuaton.

(40)

(41)

Friday night's disruption lasted about 40 minutes, from around 9.34pm to 10.14pm, according to SBS Transit. However, they resulted in a halt in service for more than an hour, according to other local media reports.

(42)

(43)

The company said it had since enhanced its switch covers "for a tighter fit" on all its DTL trains, adding that it has stationed staff at both ends of its trains to prevent repeat incedents.

(44)

"At about 9pm, there was a power fault affecting the Downtown Line, 50 passengers on one train was detained at Bayfront Station. Full service resumed at 10.10pm. We apologise to all commuters for the inkonveneince caused," said Tammy Tan, SBS Transit Senior Vice (46)

(45)

President of corporate communications.

Further investigations by both SBS Transit and the Land Transport Authority are ongoing.

(47)

Throughout the disruption, SBS Transit and the Land Transport Authority keep commuters updated via social media and activated its free bus bridging service between stations.

(48)

This is the second time the new Downtown Line xperienced a service disruption. The first one happened just hours after its official opening the previous Sunday. Train service was delayed near Bayfront MRT station for 15 minutes due to a train fault then.

Commuters took to social media to vented their frustration. Many expressed their disappointment and disbelief.

The passengers on the bus watched sympathetically as the young woman with the white cane made her way carefully up the steps. She paid the driver and, using her hands to feel the location of the seats, walked down the aisle and found the seat he had told her was empty. She settled in and rested her cane against her leg.

It had been a year since Safiya became blind due to a medical misdiagnosis. She was suddenly thrown into a world of darkness, anger, frustration and self-pity. Once a fiercely independent woman, Safiya now felt powerless, a helpless burden on everyone around her. No matter how much she cried or ranted, she knew her sight was never going to return. Just getting through each day was an exercise in frustration and exhaustion. All she had to cling on to was her husband, Meraj.

10

Meraj was an Air Force officer. A determined man, he had made up his mind to help his wife regain the strength and confidence to become independent again. He knew that was the most daunting task he would ever face.

Soon Safiya felt ready to return to her job, but how would she get there? She used to take the bus but was now too frightened to get around the city by herself. Meraj volunteered to drive her to work each day even though they worked at opposite ends of the city.

This comforted Safiya and fulfilled Meraj's need to protect his sightless wife who was so insecure about performing the slightest task. Soon, however, Meraj realized that the arrangement was not working - it was hectic, and costly. Safiya had to start taking the bus again. How would she react to such a suggestion?

20

Just as Meraj predicted, Safiya was horrified at the idea of taking the bus again. "I am blind!" she responded bitterly. "How am I supposed to know where I am going? I feel like you are abandoning me."

25

Meraj was heartbroken. He promised Safiya that he would ride the bus with her until she got the hang of it. For two weeks, Meraj accompanied Safiya to and from work each day. He taught her how to rely on her other senses, specifically her hearing, to determine where she was and how to adapt to her new environment.

Meraj helped her befriend the bus drivers who could watch out for her and save her a seat. Each morning, they made the journey together and Meraj would take a cab back to his office. Although this routine was more costly and exhausting than the previous one, Meraj knew it was only a matter of time before Safiya became independent again.

30

Finally with the overwhelming support and encouragement from her husband, Safiya decided that she was ready to try the trip on her own. Monday morning arrived and for the first time, they went their separate ways. 35

One Friday morning, Safiya took the bus to work as usual. As she was paying for her fare to exit the bus, the driver said, "I envy you. It must feel so good to be taken care of and protected like you are." 40

Safiya had no idea what the driver was talking about and questioned him curiously.

The driver answered, "Every morning for the past week, a gentleman has been standing across the corner watching you when you get off the bus. He makes sure you cross the street safely and watches you until you enter your office building. Then he blows you a kiss and walks away. You are one lucky woman." 45

Tears of happiness poured down Safiya's cheeks. Although she could not physically see him, she had always felt Meraj's presence. Safiya was lucky for he had given her a gift more powerful than sight, a gift she did not need to see to believe. 50

Good hygiene habits help to keep bacteria, viruses and diseases at bay. Besides physical gains, there are mental ones as well. Practising good hygiene habits helps us feel good about ourselves, which is vital to our mental health. One of the most important hygiene habits is brushing and flossing our teeth. Many people tend to disregard the importance of flossing. This results in an accumulation of bacteria in the mouth which can lead to gum diseases and tooth decay. Another important habit that we sometimes forget is washing our hands before meals. Keeping a small bottle of hand sanitising gel can be handy when we are having our meals outside. Let's spread this simple yet important message to our loved ones!

Renowned marine biologist, Dr. Jack Lim, will be the guest of honour on the opening day. He will be giving a talk on 'Save The Sharks' from 3.00 to 5.00 p.m. in the auditorium. The key topics of the talk are as follows:

Sharks are endangered

Ten of millions of sharks die each year. They are mainly killed for their fins. There is a high demand for shark fin, especially in Asian countries. Different parts of the shark like the teeth, jaws, skin, and cartilage are used in the production of skin care and medicinal products.

Importance of the survival of sharks

Sharks have been around for more than 400 millions years. They have evolved to become the top predator in the oceans. They keep the prey populations healthy by targeting the weak and sick members of the prey populations. If sharks become extinct, the marine ecosystem will collapse.

Cruelty in hunting sharks

Many fishermen engage in shark finning. When a shark is caught, the tail and fins are cut off before the shark is thrown back into the water and left to die. This is an extremely cruel method of hunting.

Other interesting topics that will be shared

- Ways to protect the sharks
- Common misconceptions about sharks

During my first seven semesters as a medical student at Gadjah Mada University in Yogyakarta, Indonesia, I spent most of my time studying and in classrooms. I rarely spoke with real patients in a hospital setting. Then last year I started visiting a ward at Dr. Sardjito Hospital to gather data for my study. Anita was lying on bed 4B. She looked weak as she was still recovering from her recent fall and stroke. There were no relatives or friends with her. Even the bed beside her was empty. I introduced myself and told her that I wanted to gather additional information from her.

The questionnaire consisted of three simple yes-or-no questions. After I had finished, I prepared to leave so I could go through more medical records. Before I could stand up, Anita spoke up in her weak voice, "I haven't seen you here before, doctor. Are you new?"

10

"Not really, Ma'am. It's just that I have not been here recently," I replied. She started making conversation, asking where I was from and why I was working so late in the evening. I was surprised someone in her condition would want to talk.

15

"Doctor, do you think I can get back my normal life?" Anita asked at one point.

Deep in my heart, I thought, I wish I was your doctor so I could answer you properly. I was only a medical student. I told her I was not sure but most patients who had a fall and suffered a stroke like her could recover within a year.

Anita started talking about herself. She told me that she had three children in primary school who were staying with a neighbour. "My husband died a year ago and I'm the sole breadwinner of my family. We are not rich and my pay as a cleaner is just enough for my children and me."

I did not know what to say. Without realising it, I had begun holding Anita's hand. Since I did not have anything to say, I just sat quietly while she talked. That was when it occurred to me that she was not expecting any reply from me. She just wanted me to listen.

25

The conversation went on like this for about twenty minutes. She shared her difficulties and sufferings, talked about her husband who was killed in a car accident and her struggles to earn money. She also expressed her fear about what would become of her children if something bad happened to her. All I did was nod my head as a way of showing my sympathy.

30

Finally, Anita stopped talking. "I'm very sorry for keeping you here to listen to my problems, but I feel relieved now. I had no one to pour out my problems to."

A single tear fell from the corner of her eye. I stroked her hair and continued to hold her hand. Finally, I knew what to say. "Don't worry, Ma'am. It's part of my duty."

35

"Thank you, doctor. Thank you very much."

She let go of my hand. I stood up, covered her with a blanket, waved goodbye and left her alone in her bed.

Anita taught me the most important lesson a doctor can learn. Sometimes patients do not need expensive medicine or state-of-the-art technology. They just need someone with the patience and willingness to lend an ear and spare a little of their time. For me, that is one of the best things a doctor can do for a patient.

Good hygiene habits help to keep bacteria, viruses and diseases at bay. Besides physical gains, there are mental ones as well. Practising good hygiene habits helps us feel good about ourselves, which is vital to our mental health. One of the most important hygiene habits is brushing and flossing our teeth. Many people tend to disregard the importance of flossing. This results in an accumulation of bacteria in the mouth which can lead to gum diseases and tooth decay. Another important habit that we sometimes forget is washing our hands before meals. Keeping a small bottle of hand sanitising gel can be handy when we are having our meals outside. Let's spread this simple yet important message to our loved ones!

During my first seven semesters as a medical student at Gadjah Mada University in Yogyakarta, Indonesia, I spent most of my time studying and in classrooms. I rarely spoke with real patients in a hospital setting. Then last year I started visiting a ward at Dr. Sardjito Hospital to gather data for my study. Anita was lying on bed 4B. She looked weak as she was still recovering from her recent fall and stroke. There were no relatives or friends with her. Even the bed beside her was empty. I introduced myself and told her that I wanted to gather additional information from her.

The questionnaire consisted of three simple yes-or-no questions. After I had finished, I prepared to leave so I could go through more medical records. Before I could stand up, Anita spoke up in her weak voice, "I haven't seen you here before, doctor. Are you new?"

10

"Not really, Ma'am. It's just that I have not been here recently," I replied. She started making conversation, asking where I was from and why I was working so late in the evening. I was surprised someone in her condition would want to talk.

15

"Doctor, do you think I can get back my normal life?" Anita asked at one point.

Deep in my heart, I thought, I wish I was your doctor so I could answer you properly. I was only a medical student. I told her I was not sure but most patients who had a fall and suffered a stroke like her could recover within a year.

Anita started talking about herself. She told me that she had three children in primary school who were staying with a neighbour. "My husband died a year ago and I'm the sole breadwinner of my family. We are not rich and my pay as a cleaner is just enough for my children and me."

I did not know what to say. Without realising it, I had begun holding Anita's hand. Since I did not have anything to say, I just sat quietly while she talked. That was when it occurred to me that she was not expecting any reply from me. She just wanted me to listen.

25

The conversation went on like this for about twenty minutes. She shared her difficulties and sufferings, talked about her husband who was killed in a car accident and her struggles to earn money. She also expressed her fear about what would become of her children if something bad happened to her. All I did was nod my head as a way of showing my sympathy.

30

Finally, Anita stopped talking. "I'm very sorry for keeping you here to listen to my problems, but I feel relieved now. I had no one to pour out my problems to."

A single tear fell from the corner of her eye. I stroked her hair and continued to hold her hand. Finally, I knew what to say. "Don't worry, Ma'am. It's part of my duty."

35

"Thank you, doctor. Thank you very much."

She let go of my hand. I stood up, covered her with a blanket, waved goodbye and left her alone in her bed.

Anita taught me the most important lesson a doctor can learn. Sometimes patients do not need expensive medicine or state-of-the-art technology. They just need someone with the patience and willingness to lend an ear and spare a little of their time. For me, that is one of the best things a doctor can do for a patient.

In conjunction with International Reading Week, the Singapore Reading Society presents...

The Inaugural Children's Book Review Competition

Book reviews allow readers to tell others about the books that they have read as well as share their personal opinions on them. Through this competition, the Singapore Reading Society aims to get children to read more widely. The society hopes that the book reviews written will introduce children to a wide variety of books and encourage them to be more adventurous in their choice of books.

Competition Details

1. The book review submitted must
 - be on a fiction book
 - include title of the book & author's name
 - be between 250 and 300 words
2. Submission by email to: reviews@srs.org
3. Deadline: 10 December 2014
4. Top 10 entries will win $100 book vouchers from The Book People
5. More information on the participation rules and judging criteria can be found at www.srs.org/reviews

The following book review was one of the winning entries in a similar competition held in Australia last year:

Title: The Way to Live a Million Years

Author: Jean Duncan

This is a story about a ten-year-old boy named Luke. He was untidy, playful, cheeky, a little lazy and very greedy - just like most boys I know. However, Luke had cancer - a disease which made him very sick and might end his life in a few months, if what the doctors said really came true.

For some reason which even Luke's parents could not understand, Luke did not spend his time feeling miserable, whining about the torturous treatment or throwing tantrums about not being able to go outdoors to play with his friends. He told them that he did not want to waste time being unhappy. Instead, he embarked on a project to do something different every day, write about his experience, and post his thoughts on his blog to share with whoever was interested enough to read.

Trying to do something different every day sounded easier than it really was. Some days, Luke stared into space for hours, racking his brain for an idea. Thankfully, many people visited Luke and started to suggest all sorts of things he could do after they heard about his project. Even strangers who stumbled upon his blog while aimlessly browsing the Internet left comments to help him along in his project.

I was deeply saddened when Luke eventually succumbed to the disease. His optimism and zest for life moved me. Nothing seemed to be capable of bringing him down. Because he was such an inspiration to so many people, he will indeed live for a million years when his story gets passed on from generation to generation.

More about this book...

It is based on the life story of Max Li, a thirteen-year-old boy who passed away last year after a courageous three-year battle with cancer.

For each question from 21 to 28, four options are given. One of them is the correct answer. Make your choice (1, 2, 3 or 4). Shade the correct oval (1, 2, 3 or 4) on the Optical Answer Sheet. (8 marks)

21. Based on the flyer, which one of the following is true of the book review competition?
- (1) The book review competition is being held in Australia.
 - (2) Entries can be submitted online at www.srs.org/reviews.
 - (3) The Book People will form the panel of judges for the competition.
 - (4) The Singapore Reading Society will accept entries received on 10 December 2014.
22. According to the Singapore Reading Society, book reviews _____.
- (1) must be below 300 words
 - (2) will encourage children to read more adventure books
 - (3) may motivate children to try reading different kinds of books
 - (4) will improve children's abilities to share their personal opinions
23. The most likely reason for the competition details to be given in the form of a list is to present the information _____ to the intended audience.
- (1) clearly
 - (2) positively
 - (3) accurately
 - (4) ambiguously
24. In the first paragraph of the winning book review, "what the doctors said" refers to _____.
- (1) cancer making Luke very sick
 - (2) Luke having only a few months to live
 - (3) cancer being a life-threatening disease
 - (4) Luke having been diagnosed with cancer

25. According to the winning book review, Luke did not throw tantrums because _____.
- (1) many people visited him
 - (2) his parents were very strict with him
 - (3) he was too engrossed in his new project
 - (4) he felt that being unhappy was a waste of time
26. The writer of the winning book review was _____.
- (1) one of Luke's friends
 - (2) touched by Luke's positive attitude
 - (3) a playful and cheeky boy just like Luke
 - (4) inspired by Luke to write a story about him
27. Which of the following information from the flyer was made up?
- (1) Max Li did not recover from cancer.
 - (2) Jean Duncan wrote the story about Luke.
 - (3) Luke was a ten-year-old boy who had cancer.
 - (4) "The Way to Live a Million Years" is about a boy's battle with cancer.
28. The main purpose of the flyer is to _____.
- (1) share the goals of The Book People
 - (2) promote a meaningful book about a boy who was struck by disease
 - (3) interest children in a competition that is being held for the first time in Singapore
 - (4) showcase an excellent book review that had won another competition

Read the passage below and answer questions 71 to 80. (20 marks)

Mum has swiped a huge paper calendar from work and taped the month of April to the kitchen wall. She used a fat green marker, also swiped from work, to draw a pyramid on 27 April with dollar signs and exclamation marks all around it. She made a quick run to the supermarket to buy a fancy egg timer that can accurately measure half a minute. I suppose there are no fancy egg timers in the supply cupboard at her office.

5

27 April is also Rachel's birthday. Naturally, Mum wonders if this is a good omen, having her best friend's special day fall on such a potentially life-changing date. Rachel and I are going to help Mum practise every single night, which explains why I am sitting at my desk instead of watching after-school television shows – a birthright of every latchkey child. "Latchkey child" is a term for a kid with house keys who spends time alone after school until a grown-up gets home to make dinner. Mum hates that expression. She said it reminds her of dungeons and she assumed it must have been coined by someone strict and awful with unlimited childcare budget. "Probably someone German," she remarked, grinning at Rachel, who is German but uncharacteristically so.

"You're lucky," Rachel tells me. "Keys are power. Some of us have to knock," I suppose she was referring to the two occasions where the sound of the doorbell had been masked by the loud television.

Rachel is tall, blonde and very polished. Her legs go on for miles so they do not really fit under our kitchen table. She looks especially big next to Mum, who is vertically-challenged and so petite that she has to buy her belts in the kids' department and make an extra hole in her watchband to prevent it from slipping off her wrist

Mum calls Rachel "Miss Perfect" because of how she looks and how knowledgeable she is. Yet, every time she does that, Rachel taps her right knee. The instinctive reaction is due to her right leg being shorter than her left. All her right-foot shoes have two-inch platforms nailed to the bottom so that her legs are of the same level. When barefooted, she limps a little.

25

Rachel aside, we have exactly twenty-one days to get Mum ready for the game show. Instead of watching television, I am copying words for her practice session tonight. I write each word on one of the index cards Mum swiped from work. When I

30

have seven words, I bind the cards together with a rubber band. Hearing Mum's key in the door, I flip over my word piles to prevent her from peeking.
"Miranda?" She clomps down the hall – she is on a clog kick lately – and sticks her head into my room. "Are you starving? I thought we'd hold dinner for Rachel." I think it is a good sign that Mum is hosting dinner. There have been times where we had to survive on just bread. Going to bed hungry is normal for me.	35
"I can wait." The truth is that I have just munched my way through a whole bag of potato chips. After-school junk food is another fundamental right of the latchkey child.	40
"Great!" She smiles and reaches into her coat pocket. "Catch." She lobbs something towards me, and I grab a bundle of brand-new markers in rainbow colours.
Rachel and I figure that the number of items Mum swipes from the office reflects the amount of stress she faces at work. I look at the markers for a second before getting back to my word piles.	45
Mum has to win this money.

PAPER1 (WRITING)

20 October 2014

Dear Mr Tan,

I am writing this letter to explain why I was late for school today. This time I was late as on the way to school, the bus that I was taking broke down. The timing of the bus breakdown was 7.20am and the bus broke down along Goodwill Road. Today, to avoid being late, I had even skipped breakfast. Only after about 15 minutes, the next bus arrived to take me to school. I was very worried about being late for the third time. I hope you can accept my sincere apologies.

Yours sincerely,
Tom Chan

The world is indeed getting smaller every day. It feels as though Earth is diminishing in size due to overpopulation. The good news is, there is a vast space out there for us to explore.

Commercial space travel not only makes space transportation more convenient for astronauts, but it is also a once-in-a-lifetime outer space exploration for the rich. Typically, a space tourist is blown away by the rare experience of a wonderful space holiday.

Bookings for some space tourism operators are now on-going. Space travel entails questions that a savvy tourist always asks. How long will it take? Is it safe? What is the cost of a trip to outer space? It is even speculated that space travel might allow us to live on other planets one day. For now, we just have to be contented with space tourism.

Bring Out The Thoughtful You!

Come up with your very own cartoon character to nudge commuters into being more thoughtful!

Deadline:
5 November 2014,
12pm!

Introducing Stacey, Martin and Glenda, our Thoughtfulness Heroes! Their mission is to promote thoughtful acts on public transport. Can you think of a cartoon character, apart from Stacey, Martin and Glenda, to encourage more thoughtfulness on public transport? Come up with a Thoughtfulness Hero and give it a suitable name and tagline.

Miss Koh Ling Ling
Director of Advertising Committee

Q21
(Whilst listening to music or indulging in smart phone games,) we sometimes forget to look out for people who may need a seat or give way to fellow commuters. Deep inside, we are actually gracious and thoughtful!

Top 3 schools with the most entries stand a chance to win up to $1,000 worth of prizes. These schools will be featured in the public transport network advertising campaigns!

(The top 5 best entries will win $100 worth of vouchers each!)

Tips for submission:

- Competition is only open to students. Each student is allowed to submit 1 entry only.
- Teachers are to submit their students' entries collectively as a school, accompanied by a completed registration form. The form and students' scanned artworks are to be emailed to lta-happenings@lta.gov.sg.

Designing Your Character

When designing your character, keep in mind one good habit that you want commuters to adopt or one annoying behaviour that you want commuters to stop.

Kelly Chen, 12.
(Past-year winner)
Q23

Since the public transport network is for everyone, I created Stand-Up Stacey to remind the public to be responsible and gracious so that everyone can enjoy their ride.

Below are some examples of good habits and annoyances to guide you in your creation. (Create a more impactful character by just keeping in mind that your character should promote courtesy and mindfulness among commuters.) It is the key to winning the competition!

When using the escalator

- Keep left and let others pass on your right
- Give way to children, pregnant women and the elderly

When waiting for the train

- Stand behind the yellow line at the platform
- When the train arrives, stand to the side of the door and give way to alighting passengers

During the train journey

- Move to the middle of the car to make room for others to board
- Offer your seat to someone who needs it more
- Respect others by not playing music or talking too loudly

DO NOT

- Block the landing of the escalator or the landing of the staircase
- Use the escalator if you are carrying bulky items, in a wheelchair or are feeling unwell (Please use the lift instead.)

DO NOT

- Rush to board the train when you hear the train door closing announcement or chime

DO NOT

- Hog priority seats not meant for you
- Sit on the floor as you will obstruct passengers entering or alighting the train
- Litter and leave your trash behind

Hi, I am MOVE-IN MARTIN. I am the thoughtful you who moves in so others can board.

Hi, I am GIVE-WAY GLENDA. I am the thoughtful you who queues and lets others alight first.

Hi, I am STAND-UP STACEY. I am the thoughtful you who gives up the seat to those who need it more.

I thought I had no recollection of my primary school days, but a recent gathering where I met my primary schoolmates brought back memories of school.

Ah Huat was one of my closest friends in school. He almost had to stop school, but a dedicated teacher, Miss Lim, found a solution for him to continue pursuing his education while fulfilling his duties as a son. He came from a very poor family. When he got home every night, he had to help his father make shoes. He had to complete several pairs each evening before he was allowed to go to bed. One day, we had a spelling test. Ah Huat did not look very well on arriving at school and when Miss Lim mentioned the test, he turned pale.) Q12

After marking the spelling test, Miss Lim called Ah Huat to see her. 10

"Ah Huat, you haven't spelt a single word correctly," Miss Lim said.

"I know, teacher," was all Ah Huat said.

"Then you know you must do better than this. Do you think you can succeed in your studies if you continue to score so badly in your test?" Miss Lim reprimanded.

At that, Ah Huat burst into tears, saying, "I'm sorry, teacher, but I had to work last night." 15

"Work? For whom?" Miss Lim asked.

("My father. I had to help make twenty pairs of shoes before going to bed. I wanted to study, but my father wouldn't let me.) He said I had to help him earn some money and (I was wasting his money by going to school," Ah Huat answered. 20

"Never mind," Miss Lim finally said a little uneasily, as her face turned red. "Just try to use your time in school carefully, and do as much homework as possible here."

We thought Miss Lim handled the situation rather well. She was a new teacher, and did not know much about our different backgrounds.

Besides this, I also recalled an incident when I was nearly punished. A very tall student used to sit in front of me, and I could not see the blackboard. I tried to see, by moving to the left or the right of him but every time I did that, he would also move left or right and continue, quite deliberately, to block my view. One day, I got so frustrated that I jabbed a pencil into his back. I did it so hard that the pencil lead was stuck in his skin! Mr Tan, the teacher, wanted to send me to the principal. I was scared and clung to the wire mesh by the window. Mr Tan saw red. After some time, he gave up and did not move me physically. He was not that harsh on me as he knew the circumstances and had seen the student in front of me blocking my view on many occasions. 25 30

Not long after, I had a taste of my own medicine. It was only when I got jabbed with a pencil myself when playing in the school playground that I realised how painful it was. Another boy did it - he was making a gesture with his pencil and I just happened to get in the way. It bled and hurt. The scar remains, serving as a reminder for me to treat everyone with patience and kindness. 35

Animal Fable

How the Zebra Got His Stripes?

Long ago, when animals were still new on earth, the weather was very hot, and there was very little water left in pools and pans. One of these was guarded by a boisterous baboon, who claimed that he was the 'Lord of the water' and forbade anyone from drinking at his pool.

When a zebra and his son came down to have a drink, the baboon, who was sitting by his fire, jumped up. 'Go away, intruders,' he barked. 'This is my pool and I am the Lord of the water.'

'The water is for everyone, not just for you, monkey-face,' retorted the zebra's son.

'If you want it, you must fight for it,' returned the baboon in a fine fury and in a moment, the two were locked in combat. Back and forth they went, until with a mighty kick, the zebra sent the baboon flying high up among the rocks of the cliff behind them. The baboon landed with a smack on his seat, and to this day he carries the bare patch where he landed.

The zebra staggered back through the baboon's fire, which scorched him, leaving stripes across his white fur. The shock sent the zebra galloping away to the grasslands, where he has stayed ever since. The baboon and his family, however, remain high up among the rocks where they bark defiance at all strangers, and hold up their tails to ease the smarting rock-burn of their bald patched bottoms.

Researchers in the US had expected male shrimps which have larger snapping claws to behave more aggressively. However, despite their (51) _____ claw size, female shrimps snapped more often when (52) _____ their territory.

"We're so (53) _____ to seeing animals in which males have larger weapons than females: bigger antlers, bigger teeth, bigger horns, etc. And in many of these species, males are more aggressive (54) _____ females," said Dr Melissa Hughes, from the College of Charleston in South Carolina, US who led the study.

Snapping shrimps use their larger claw as a deadly weapon to kill their (55) _____ and opponents. They can kill with one deadly snap and (56) _____ known to stun potential food with a jet of bubbles by rapidly opening and (57) _____ their larger claw.

The researchers wanted to see how different sexes use their claws to defend (58) _____ territory. They observed these interactions and counted the (59) _____ of snaps - a sign of aggression - by each shrimp.

In both species, female shrimps contradicted the researchers' expectations (60) _____ snapping more and behaving more aggressively towards other females. Conversely, males were just as (61) _____ to both male and female intruders.

Dr Hughes admitted the reasons (62) _____ females' more aggressive behaviour are unclear. "Female aggression has not been (63) _____ nearly as much, so we don't understand it nearly as well," she told BBC Nature.

"One possibility here is that females are competing with each other for males, (64) _____ through direct competition by fighting over males or by defending large territories (65) _____ that the distance between females is too large for one male to easily move between multiple females," explained Dr Hughes although she clarified that more research has to be carried out.

(20 marks)

I was a late August evening in 1898 when the Scotsman took a ride through the newly laid track from the main road to his coffee plantation. The track was still soft and rather lumpy as well as being punishingly steep.

Wearied by the slope, Mr Robertson dismounted and began pushing his bicycle. Then he heard what sounded like a powerful creature.

"I thought it was some big game," he later told the British Central African Gazette, "but as I felt a certain amount of uneasiness, I moved away as quickly as I could."

A distance away, he took a glance behind. There, in the moonlit road, was a fully-grown lion. For a moment, man and beast stood frozen as they eyed each other warily. Then the lion charged.

"I attempted to mount my bicycle but owing to the slope and my excitement, I failed twice," said Mr Robertson. "Once I succeeded, I pedalled for all I was worth."

Off he rode, every muscle straining to coax the most speed from his rickety bicycle. But when he risked another look, he was perturbed to see that not only was the lion still in pursuit but the gap between them had been halved.

"I think I could easily have outstripped him if it had been level ground, but the machine kept up a rattle over the uneven track, and once or twice I was almost thrown off."

20

At the point when the lion was almost close enough to leap and dine on the Scotsman, Mr Robertson made it to the crest of the hill and got a kindly kick from gravity.

He tore down the slope, using every inch of his strength to keep from being thrown off and steered so hard that his knuckles turned white. Suddenly he remembered a short cut - a sewerage canal. There was no time to dismount, so he rode right into it, his bicycle bouncing off a curb and the shock flung him out of the saddle, but thankfully he fell back on it.

"It was the kind of stunt performed by men who worked as stunt doubles," recounted Mr Robertson who survived and emerged from the tunnel unscathed, 30 but the same could not be said for his bicycle.

That was when he realised that the blood-curdling growl had faded away to silence. Whether exhausted or bored, the lion was nowhere to be seen.

The Edinburgh Evening News later called it "one of the most extraordinary adventures of a Scotsman." The Illustrated Police News billed the story as a "Mad Ride For Life" 35

As for Mr Robertson, he had learnt his lesson. "No more moonlight rides for me," he vowed.
