Paper 0411/11
Written Examination

Key messages

In Section A, some candidates have a tendency to write too much, given that the marks available in this section are significantly fewer than in sections B and C.

Candidates should read the questions carefully to ensure that they are providing all that is required of a question. This is particularly pertinent in questions where appropriate understanding and application of technical language are required.

There is an expectation that candidates will be familiar with the dramatic and technical terms in current use. Centres are reminded that an extensive glossary is available to assist in the identification of key terms. Furthermore Centres are reminded that the written examination seeks through discussion to isolate and identify PRACTICAL application in drama. Literary or analytical approaches are to be avoided and candidate responses which focus on narrative or character per se without exploring the practical application of dramatic skills and techniques cannot access the higher mark bands.

Technical and design questions demand an approach which is both informed and able to discuss the application of technical method to the dramatic intention. Centres which have not taught the basic specific understanding of any given technical or design skill should advise their candidates to steer clear of questions which may require an understanding of these areas.

General comments

A number of centres had clearly investigated the context of Talk of the City and many candidates displayed a perceptive understanding of the piece, especially in relation to plot, characters and their interactions within the political and social circumstances of the drama. It is encouraging that there seems to be a growing awareness of how the elements of drama can be applied effectively to enhance performance and the understanding and use of appropriate technical language continues to improve although there are still some key terms which appear to be causing confusion.

The devised pieces have shown a more adventurous approach with candidates attempting to communicate quite sophisticated messages in interesting ways. Centres seem to be aware that unimaginative approaches to devising tend to lead to weak responses to questions based on the stimuli and this session has seen a number of effective responses, many of which seek to investigate social issues of significance.

Comments on specific questions

Section A

Questions 1 – 6 *Talk of the City

Question 1

Most candidates were able to score full marks here recognising a point where a valid prop is introduced. Most opted for the television camera mentioned in the stage directions whereas a few were more adventurous and suggested uses for notes, sticks, brooms etc. all of which appeared in Scene 2. However, a significant number scored only one mark because they did not provide adequate justification of effectiveness in that they simply referred to its significance as a presence rather than suggesting how it might be used effectively.

Question 2

Though this question was approached with confidence in the majority of cases there were a significantly high number of instances where candidates clearly did not understand the term 'pace'. A majority of answers discussed possible aspects of MILLY DEWS's vocal delivery including volume, tone, pitch and even timbre. Some responses referred to characteristics such as happiness, excitement and enthusiasm but very few even mentioned pace which is what the question specifically requires. Regrettably, many candidates scored no marks on this question.

Question 3

There were two approaches common to this question. A number of candidates produced a character analysis showing the commonalities and dissimilarities between the two characters of CLIVE and ROBBIE. This scored no marks. Others recognised that practical application was required but unless they gave specific examples of what actors could actually do to illustrate the possible relationship and what this demonstrated they could not achieve full marks.

Question 4

This question was generally well answered with many candidates scoring full marks. Most could identify two of ARNOS's characteristics and say how they would bring them out. The characteristics chosen had to be clearly defined however and where only a vague sense of intention or inclination was given marks could not be awarded.

Question 5

Again there was a good range of effective responses with many candidates perceiving how the character of HONKER might control his vocal delivery. The most insightful responses were able to cite elements of volume, tone, pitch, breathing and energy. Most candidates were able to score at least two marks on this question.

Question 6

Responses mostly recognised the hints from the text about ISABEL's individualism. Her appearance, dress and demeanour were all recognisable in the answers. More able candidates were able to expand upon this within the context of her feelings for CLIVE and her enjoyment of teasing ROBBIE. The best answers included reference to the potential for the character's physicality and vocal qualities.

Questions 7 – 8 Devised work

Question 7

All candidates were able to identify a character but a number were unclear about how the character helped to move the action along. A number of candidates restricted their answers to a narrative description of the events of the piece, with occasional references to their character. Stronger responses were able to point to actions or moments where the character said or did something which impacted upon the plot. It is not sufficient to say that the character was central to the plot, however, because this does not necessarily indicate how they moved the plot along. Successful answers had to explain what the character actually did to make a difference to the energy, atmosphere, pace, tension etc. which in turn impacted upon the action.

Question 8

Many responses showed that candidates were less than secure when it comes to discussing the specific application of gesture. A very high proportion of responses talked about gesture in the generic sense without actually saying what the gesture was e.g. 'We used lots of angry gestures in this scene to show how the crowd felt...' The question calls for a discussion of specific application such as 'shaking fists' or even 'wildly staring eyes'. Where gesture was considered generically marks were not awarded. Even further from the intention of the question were those candidates who considered gesture in abstract ways such as a political gesture for example. This type of answer too did not score any marks.

Section B

Questions 9 – 11 *Talk of the City

Question 9

A few candidates were able to suggest an imaginative, comprehensive and detailed sound design. This included a consideration of the many options presented by the broadcasting studio environment and the creation of atmosphere both indoors and externally, with particular emphasis placed on the opportunities for sound effects to create the busy station environment. More frequent and less confident responses focused more on music and in some cases this was their exclusive concern, reflecting on the style, period and genre of the music, its volume and its fading up and down and thereby narrowing the context of the question. Such answers were unable to access beyond the middle band of the assessment criteria.

Question 10

This question was in the main answered well. Candidates seemed to understand the role of BERNARD. Many wrote at length on the way his character might manifest his transition from one environment to another. They were able to identify and explain his strengths and vulnerabilities and discuss them in great detail. Here of course lies the danger, since over-analytical responses do not always perceive the need to apply a practical process to the discussion and clearly explain what the actor might do to demonstrate the product of this analysis. The best answers managed to maintain a sound balance between in-depth analysis (understanding) and practical, communicative demonstration (application).

Question 11

A significant number of candidates responded well to this question focussing mostly on the contrast between the reality of the outside world and the forebodings of war and the privileged, hermetically sealed environment of the broadcasting studio. The most successful answers concentrated on characterisation, relationships and the creation of atmosphere in which the suppressed tension might be released. Other responses tended to focus on set, lighting and costume and in doing so ran the risk of becoming fixated on technical and design disciplines rather than directorial ones thereby not scoring so highly.

Questions 12 – 14

Stimuli

Of the three stimuli the photograph proved the most popular, closely followed by both the poem and the quotation.

Question 12

Regardless of which stimulus was chosen this question caused problems for candidates, a worryingly large proportion of whom ignored the question's insistence on vocal projection and articulation and went off to discuss all manner of challenges and problems faced by the cast including space, energy, set, lighting and even absenteeism. It is unclear why this question was so commonly misinterpreted. Few candidates who opted for this question scored highly but those that did included challenges such as ambient noise in open air performances, poor acoustics in venues and the delivery of choral speech and songs.

Question 13

This question appeared to be enthusiastically welcomed by those that chose it. One or two responses really maximised the opportunities provided by a well-equipped theatre and there were some imaginative and workable set designs. Sadly, with all these opportunities for implementing an original and effective set many candidates focused on lighting and for many the lighting design became the set design. Though this in itself is not unheard of in the professional context it is a shame that candidates did not take their opportunities to consider options for practical set design applications. Wherever clearly explained valid suggestions were made they were credited, however.

Question 14

All responses were able to cite a central message, even if only a very elemental or simple one, that they wished to communicate through the piece. Some went on to describe this message in great detail and in doing so ran a risk of producing lengthy narrative. Clarity of understanding of the intended message was sufficient for many to score marks in the upper part of the middle band of the assessment criteria but for a response to score highly in the upper band there needs to be a significant level of evaluation. This means that it is not sufficient for a candidate to write that a specified action or technique 'shows' something. The requirement is for them to go further and say why it showed the thing discussed and how effectively it did so. Real evaluation is challenging for some candidates and this question was answered well by a relatively small number.

Key messages

- Some candidates continue to ignore the allocation of marks; often writing more for a 2 mark question than for one of the essay questions in Sections B or C that carry 25 marks.
- The improvement in responses based upon the devised work continues and there is greater evidence of the work actually being performed.
- Two of the questions in Section C required candidates to evaluate their work; this was generally superficial and lacked reflection on how the actual performance had realised what was intended.
- A number of candidates attempted the design question in Section B who were evidently not prepared for such a question and would have been better served by attempting another question.
- Whilst Centres are evidently using the glossary provided in their teaching more, some of the technical language used presented some challenges most notably 'pace' and 'physicality'.
- In essay questions, the mark scheme is incremental, with the middle and upper bands moving from understanding or process into application or evaluation. To gain access to the upper band, candidates must first meet the criteria for the middle band. In other words, there must be understanding AND application or process AND evaluation.

General comments

Many candidates evidenced how the elements of drama can be applied effectively to enhance performance. This attracts higher marks than answers which tend to respond in general terms rather than tying specific comments about aspects of performance to particular points in the text/performance. There is also growing evidence of the understanding and use of both appropriate technical language and practitioner influences and techniques. However, these can only attract high marks if there is also evidence of relevant, appropriate and specific application.

Most candidates had clearly worked as part of a group to prepare and perform a single piece of devised work. A number went to considerable lengths to justify their work in terms of how it responded to the chosen stimulus; this is not a requirement and takes up valuable time. However candidates do need to be explicit in the points that are made so as to make their intentions clear to an examiner who has not seen the performance. While examiners do not want lengthy narratives about the pieces, candidates should be aware of the need to provide sufficient relevant detail to enable a person who has not seen the performance to understand the points they are trying to make.

The approach to devising was varied. Many of the devised pieces seemed to be both imaginative and creative, with evidence of experimentation with different styles, including children's theatre, docudrama and physical theatre, clear dramatic intentions and a strong sense of audience. Such approaches provided the candidates with much more understanding and experience that they could incorporate into their answers and thus improve their chances of accessing the higher levels within the mark scheme. Conversely, mundane and unimaginative approaches to devising tended to lead to weak responses; pieces that simply aimed to entertain, with success evaluated in terms of assertions about how much the audience laughed, generally provided candidates with too limited an experience to allow them to reach the higher levels in the mark schemes.

Many candidates wrote their answers in far too much detail, often completely ignoring the allocation of marks. There was also a tendency to supply more than the number of points specified in the question, for example in questions 3 and 4. There was a particular trend seen this year in the number of responses that did not focus on the question that was actually asked. Candidates sometimes provided quite sophisticated responses that were mostly irrelevant and therefore could not be credited.

Comments on specific questions

Section A

Question 1

There were numerous props cited in the text and, therefore, candidates were expected to use this information. A few candidates listed items that are classed as 'set' which could not be credited. Most cited an appropriate prop, but a few responses were too vague about its use to gain the second mark.

Question 2

Many candidates did not understand the term 'pace' and therefore gained no marks. Those candidates who showed understanding of the technical language were able to use the text well in supporting their answer.

Question 3

Candidates needed to show that they understood the relationship between Rex and Leonard, that is that Rex is a junior member of staff at the radio station and Leonard is keen for him to know his place in the organisation. There are a number of encounters between the two characters through which Leonard clearly puts Rex in his place. This question caused some problems for candidates. Many wrote at great length but said very little that could be credited. There were lots of suggestions about how the relationship could be shown which did not specify the aspect of relationship that was being illustrated. A number suggested three or more different ways of showing the same aspect of relationship, often by citing vocal elements, gesture, facial expressions etc. Such a mechanistic approach to using the elements of drama in their responses provided weaker responses.

Question 4

This also caused some problems. Many failed to identify two valid character traits. Indeed in many cases it was evident that candidates did not really understand John and some ignored the information that was given in the pre-release material. There was a tendency to isolate aspects of John's actions or reactions in the specified extract and present them as character traits. Once candidates had gained the first mark for a valid aspect of character, they were usually able to go on to say how it could be brought out in performance, thus gaining the second mark also.

Question 5

Controlling delivery was somewhat loosely interpreted and so most candidates made some valid points about vocal elements related to the speech in question and gained two marks. A fair number had some notion of context and gave specific examples but very few were able to present responses that displayed a clear understanding of how to control the vocal delivery and the way in which different lines might be approached.

Question 6

This elicited a similar response to the previous question, with most gaining at least two marks and many three because of an implicit understanding of context and a good number of suggestions for delivery directly related to particular points in the extract. A high proportion of candidates did not really understand the context of this speech which is an integral part of accessing the full range of marks available.

Question 7

The response here was very varied, with many choosing an aspect that related to their overall dramatic intention for the piece, which made it harder for them to specify particular examples of what they did to make the aspect memorable for the audience. Therefore, many relied on general or quite vague comments and a significant proportion of candidates simply recounted the plot of their piece, without further reference to making it memorable for the audience. Candidates who chose to focus on a particular dramatic moment in the piece tended to reach the higher levels in the mark scheme.

Question 8

This question provided challenges for many candidates, some of whom lost sight of the question and drifted into general discussions of proxemics or simply repeated their narration of the plot of their piece. Some never got to grips with the idea of varying the physical distance between performers, even though they may have had some interesting things to say about their use of space. As always, there were a number of candidates who really focused on the question and who had obviously worked with creativity and flair on the creation of their piece, so that they were able to supply a clear and, in some cases, proficient response.

Section B

Question 9

This was not a very popular question and, in many cases, those who attempted it did not have sufficient technical knowledge to access the full mark range. Most candidates were able to make a limited range of valid suggestions about the use of sound in a production of the piece, linking their suggestions to fairly general aspects of the extract; their ideas were frequently centred on the use of music either to help set the scene or create atmosphere. Only a few were able to apply sound design at specific key points in the extract, with the better candidates explaining their decisions in terms of meeting the intentions of the piece and enhancing the audience's experience. Many did not really attempt to explore the practical potential of the play's focus on the medium of radio and only a few acknowledged the opportunities for sound design provided by other aspects of the piece, for example in the supermarket scene. A small number wrote with some authority on technical matters, which would only gain credit if the response also met the assessment criteria in terms of demonstrating practical understanding with references to the extract.

Question 10

This was the most popular question in Section B and candidates generally showed a good understanding. Susan's appearances in the piece were relatively limited but most were able to pick out at least a few valid character traits, although some of the weaker candidates' responses contained rather contradictory statements without any attempt at justification. Contradictions were most evident when candidates worked through the extract, picking out points about character and making suggestions for performance as they went along, although some of the stronger characters adopted this approach with success. Another approach was to deal with a range of character traits in turn; again the better candidates were able to link quite developed understanding of character, clearly evidenced from the text, with a variety of practical suggestions for performance approaches expressed in terms of what the actor would actually do in order to communicate effectively with the audience. Perhaps the most difficult approach for candidates to manage effectively was when they worked from aspects of performance, such as voice, gesture, costume or make-up, and then sought to apply relevant approaches to character performance, with or without relevant references to the extract; this tended to result in responses that did not merit a mark in the Upper Band in spite of evidence of clear application because the understanding of character was not demonstrated.

Question 11

This was another popular choice although only a few candidates were able to show really developed understanding of the theme of frustrated ambition throughout the play. However, most candidates showed some understanding of the director's role, although one or two concentrated on that to the exclusion of any detailed consideration of the extract. Although many were able to cite examples of ambition or frustration, overall understanding of the theme was seldom evident. Some, who considered the piece in terms of performance, tended to explore a range of aspects, including technical matters such as set, costumes, props, sound and lighting, although many did not manage to keep their ideas relevant to the director's role in bringing out the theme in a performance. Again, many candidates managed either some understanding or some application, but few succeeded in combining the two. It was common for candidates to give a general introduction that clearly evidenced understanding of the question, but then to offer random practical suggestions as to how they might bring various aspects of particular scenes out in performance without linking them to the theme identified in the question.

Question 12

This was a very popular question which, generally, was quite well done. Most managed at least a response that provided some detail of who wore what and why. While it is very appropriate to use costume to enhance the drama by helping to set a piece in time and place and to communicate information to the audience about character, status, relationship etc., many eschewed such practical and workable approaches in favour of highly dubious symbolic aspiration, often based on a fanciful notion of colour-coding that would be completely lost on the audience. That is not to suggest that colour is unimportant in costume design, because clearly it is, but candidates must make their justifications clear and include sufficient detail that will demonstrate exactly how their designs will communicate their intentions to the audience. There was a tendency to make only general references to the devised piece, although there were some very impressive responses, in which candidates discussed exactly how the actors used their costumes to assist them in communicating with the audience in very specific ways and at clearly identified points in the piece.

Question 13

This question was probably almost as popular as question 12 and provoked a wide range of responses. Most were able to show some understanding of character relationships within the piece, although some attempted to subvert the question and explored the relationship between actors and their audience, which had a part to play in evaluation but was not what the question was about. This question sometimes elicited a narrative or, at best, descriptive response from weaker candidates. Sadly, this sometimes happened where the devised pieces were rather more imaginative in dramatic style and techniques, as they did not always have clearly defined characters but adopted more of an ensemble approach. However, in these cases the better candidates were still able to access the higher levels in the mark scheme by exploring the interaction between actors across the range of roles they played in the piece and evaluating them in terms of realisation of intention and impact on audience. It was interesting to see character development techniques, such as hot-seating and role on the wall, being utilised in the process of character development, but candidates sometimes forgot that the primary focus of this question was the evaluation of their success in creating character relationships in performance for an audience, which might include, but should not end with, the techniques used to build individual characters during the preparation process.

Question 14

This was not quite as popular as the other two questions. Unfortunately, some candidates did not understand the term physicality at all and wrote about everything except how the actors used their bodies in performance. Many of the others simply regurgitated the material they had used in answer to question 8. However, there were a number of excellent responses, which explored and evaluated their use of physicality in a variety of pieces of devised work. Some adopted a nuanced and sensitive approach to physicality in essentially naturalistic or realistic pieces, while others fully exploited the potential for communicating their dramatic intentions through the use of highly inventive, energetic, disciplined and effective examples of physical theatre techniques.

Key messages

- Candidates should read the questions carefully and ensure that they provide all that is required of a particular question. Equally, they should not use their time providing information that is not asked for in the question.
- Literary approaches to answering questions must be avoided. Where questions ask the candidate to provide advice on how a dramatic role should be performed, it is not enough to recount the story or to provide detail of the character's personality, attitudes and relationships without making clear how the character should be heard and seen on stage in order to convey those traits.
- In Section A, candidates should observe the number of marks available for each question. Lengthy responses for 2 to 5 mark questions are not necessary and will result in less time to respond to the essay questions in Sections B and C which are worth 25 marks. Two sentences to answer a 2-mark question and up to seven sentences to answer a 5-mark question should be regarded as a limit. The best responses are those that are well-considered and expressed succinctly – often in fewer sentences than the limit here indicated.
- Candidates need to consider carefully their choice of question in Sections B and C. For example, Centres which have not taught the basic technical or design skills, such as sound design in this year's paper, should advise their candidates to steer clear of questions which require extensive understanding of these areas.
- In Sections B and C candidates should support their knowledge and understanding of dramatic concepts with practical examples of how these ideas can be applied in performance or detailed evaluation of the success and effectiveness of the piece, from conception through the developmental process and to performance. Invariably, questions in Sections B and C will require candidates to offer such analytical comment – how something can be achieved and why it was effective. Purely narrative responses attract very few marks.
- Candidates who have engaged practically with their devised pieces to performance standard tend to show greater confidence with the questions in Section C.
- Candidates should be familiar with the dramatic and technical terms in current use. An extensive (but not exhaustive) glossary is provided in the syllabus to assist in the identification of key terms.

General comments

Centres, by and large, and year by year, are demonstrating a greater understanding of the syllabus requirements, and candidates are showing greater knowledge of the technical aspects of performance with appropriate use of performing arts vocabulary. Fewer candidates are hampered by a lack of subject-specific knowledge. The appropriate and knowledgeable use of performing arts vocabulary is essential if candidates are to score highly, although it is not enough to reference these without giving precise explanation. For example, candidates may refer to 'body language', 'tone of voice' etc. as a means of showing how a character/role might be (or was) played but with no further description of what the actor might do in order to achieve the desired effect. Candidates should refer to particular points of action in the text or devised piece rather than making generalised comment.

The responses to the questions about the play extract displayed a wide range of ability although there were fewer candidates achieving marks in the lower mark bands than in previous years. It was clear in many instances that the recommendation that the text be performed, at least informally, had been heeded. As all the questions on the play extract were concerned with eliciting responses that demonstrated an understanding of how to transfer 'from page to stage', candidates who had practical experience of American Days were likely to be at a distinct advantage.

With the questions relating to devised work, while many candidates demonstrated the ability to link theory to practice, there was still a tendency to offer too much narrative content. There was a sense that, in some cases, practical work was insufficiently realised or inadequately developed, and there was evidence that some candidates lacked an understanding of key dramatic ideas. As always, candidates who planned their time and strategy carefully produced confident responses with the strongest coming from those candidates who had explored ideas fully in performance. These were able to reflect critically on their own actual experience of creating drama – they were, in fact, able to write about the application of creative ideas and be able to evaluate their effectiveness in performance.

There was a marked improvement in the way candidates approached the discussion of technical issues and less evidence of inadequate understanding of costume, lighting, sound and set design in the theatre, all playing their part in the communication of dramatic meaning through sign and symbol. Yet there are still some areas where confusions lie with the most telling being in relation to properties (props) and the set, its settings and furnishings.

In a few cases the quality of candidates' handwriting gave cause for concern and Centres are requested to encourage their candidates to write legibly. Candidates whose work is illegible are self-penalising, since credit cannot be awarded for ideas that cannot be deciphered.

A few candidates attempted to answer all the questions in Sections B and C and in such cases marks were awarded to the answers which addressed the greatest number of assessment criteria. Naturally, because of the time required to produce a strong answer for a 25-mark question, such candidates were unlikely to score above single figures for each section. Centres are reminded to advise candidates about this aspect of the rubric before they sit the examination.

Comments on specific questions

Section A: 1–5

Question 1

Most were able to access this question and score full marks. There were one or two instances of candidates identifying props that were not mentioned in the text but the props were appropriate and creatively used – the mark scheme, however, did not allow for this. Some took imagery from the dialogue such as the tapes and whilst identification could be credited, effective use was unlikely to be. There were a number of candidates who identified the fridge as a prop and then went on to describe its function as a piece of set.

Question 2

Many candidates mistook pacing for delivery giving suggestions for intonation, or pitch/ volume with a small number confusing pace of delivery with pacing around the room. There were several over long answers, possibly due to the change of attitude demonstrated by the character, but despite this, only one piece of advice was required. There were, however, a lot of good responses identifying moments in the extract where pace of delivery would naturally change and why.

Question 3

This proved to be quite a difficult question for some. A large number of candidates mistakenly talked about proxemics or SHERMAN's facial expression towards IAN when, in fact, SHERMAN was in a different part of the building and on the other end of the phone therefore not on stage at all. Many candidates were able to provide evidence of the relationship between the characters but did not provide examples of how to show this in performance, and thus could not be credited.

Question 4

This was one of the most successful Section A questions as most candidates had a sound grasp of SHERMAN's character and were able to identify two character traits with answers that demonstrated understanding of how to show these in performance. Candidates with the best responses made valid suggestions about the character and then succinctly gave advice for portrayal in a couple of sentences. Others, perhaps keen to demonstrate their understanding of the character gave lengthy responses that could not receive additional credit. (Please see 'key messages' above.)

Question 5

Most candidates understood this question and seemed to grasp fully the purpose of GARY's monologue. There were, however, several candidates who neglected to make actual explicit reference to specific lines. Most candidates focused on pace (slow/fast) with some including pause and stuttering. Better answers were able to connect specific moments in the text to changes in GARY's perceptions and attitude as the monologue progressed. There were also those who dominated their response with directions on movement and physical gesture which could not be credited.

Question 6

There were generally good answers to this question. Candidates demonstrated understanding of opportunities for physicality and expression in order to give an impression of LORRAINE's character to the audience. Most were able to identify her as a shy, timid character, but some felt she was a little more devious than first thought – whilst this is an interesting take on the character, there is little if anything to suggest it in the extract. The best responses did pick up from the text that there were occasions where she needed to be portrayed as 'standing up' to SHERMAN.

7–8 Devised Work

Question 7

This was a very successful question with the majority of candidates being able to identify the most dramatic moment within their piece and therefore earn at least one mark. There were some excellent answers with some good levels of detail as to what the moment was and why it had greatest impact. Some candidates were unable to be specific in their identification of the 'moment' and discussed whole scenes, but most were able to justify their choice in relation to dramatic effectiveness.

Question 8

There were many good answers with candidates understanding scene changes and the technical/performance means by which they achieved outcomes. In better responses, candidates were able to discuss not only the scene changes, but also the transition of mood/atmosphere/tension and release with some excellent examples of critical evaluation. However, several candidates simply listed the blackouts and movement of furniture rather than analysing how they were managed. Some candidates simply wrote that they had no scene changes and therefore nothing to write about.

Section B: 9–11 American Days

Question 9

This was the least popular of the three questions in this section. The best responses showed understanding of how sound can be used in a largely naturalistic piece to support location and enhance drama with sophisticated discussion of external sounds being heard and varied according to, say, the opening and closing of the door. Suggested use of leitmotif for each character with description of instruments and their timbre showed clear understanding of the text but not of the play's style. Others discussed a range of sounds and effects but these were not always fully developed, whilst a few wrote a paragraph or two about sound design and then went on to explore set, costume and make-up.

Question 10

This was the most popular choice with some excellent answers. The responses all seemed to have a good grasp of the character of TALLULAH and were able to make some excellent references to specific lines and how they should be delivered. Some understood the significance of the role in relation to other characters and could provide examples of her effect upon them and her changing attitudes according to her own confidence levels. Some, whilst showing good understanding of the character, did not give any textual evidence when making suggestions about how the character could be portrayed and thus could not be awarded marks in the higher bands. A small number focused unduly upon considerations of costume which could only be fully credited when linked with communication of character.

Question 11

This response tended to be from candidates who were able to attain higher mark levels and, on the whole, showed some excellent creativity. There were some real attempts made to lift the extract from the page with a clear sense of directorial vision. Whilst there were some otherwise sophisticated answers, there was sometimes a lack of attention to the second part of the question – bringing out the theme in performance – with the result that able candidates were losing marks by too much discussion of their directorial ideas at the expense of demonstrating too little application in terms of how these ideas would be achieved in performance. Some candidates focused on the whole picture – not only how the actors would perform but also how other aspects of the production, such as set, costume, sound and lighting would contribute to the intended directorial vision. These candidates fared better, as a rule, than those who concentrated on a single element such as character.

Section C: 12–14 Devised work

Question 12

This was the most popular question from Section C and most often combined with question 10. There were some excellent responses to this question that showed a real understanding of the development of the devised work from initial idea to final performance. There was a pleasing amount of theoretical understanding and ability to identify the influence of existing practitioners on the final work and the devising process. The best responses often followed a point, example and explain/evaluate structure with others tending to provide too much narrative content. In order to access the higher band marks, candidates needed to be able to relate explanation of the content to its development from an original idea.

Question 13

This question was also a popular choice – the idea of contrasts seemed to be a fundamental consideration in much of the devised work and it was clear that many candidates had a sound understanding of the intention of their piece and how contrasts were used to meet this intent. Most answers contrasted roles, their purposes and attitudes and costume; some included contrasting themes and others provided details relating to other technical aspects such as set, lighting and sound. Whilst these discussions could be impressive on their own, in order to attain higher marks, candidates needed to provide detailed evaluation of the outcomes of the use of contrasts, particularly in a performance context.

Question 14

This was the least popular choice in this section. Character analysis was variable with the best answers describing several traits of the character and how these were revealed through the development of the action and made explicit to the audience through acting skills and the relationships with other characters. Several pieces had stylized use of roles as opposed to developed characters and these answers tended to be less successful at showing how personality was dramatised.

Paper 0411/02
Coursework

General comments

The session ran smoothly in terms of administration, with most Centres being very well organised for submission dates. There was a good level of accuracy in the completion of the paperwork, and Moderators reported very few errors of addition or transcription. The two most common problems were a) where Centres did not include the ICMS forms for all of the candidates, or b) the opposite, where all the work and the forms were included, but the Centre did not identify a moderation sample. The ICMS forms for all candidates must be sent to Cambridge, and the Centre should draw from this total a sample of six candidates whose performance work should be sent. This sample should include the highest- and lowest-marked candidate, with an even spread across the remaining candidates.

The quality and relevance of the comments provided on the ICMS forms was variable. Most Centres provided fulsome, helpful remarks that indicated precisely where credit had been awarded, although a minority provided hardly any comments at all, and others merely quoted what was in the assessment criteria. Moderators emphasised the importance of explaining how and why a particular mark was arrived at, drawing on the criteria for assessment and making clear what the candidate had done to warrant the mark awarded.

Nearly all candidates stated their name/number at the beginning of the recording, dressed exactly as they would then appear in the performance. It would also be helpful in addition if Centres could reinforce this on the ICMS forms with an accurate description of what candidates were wearing and a physical description (hair, glasses, relative height, etc.).

Recordings of performances

The overall quality of the DVDs was better than in previous sessions, and many Centres chaptered their discs, which was very helpful. Some Centres did not use a static camera, which meant that candidates were not always seen in full. There were relatively few technical problems with the recordings themselves, however: a few DVDs had been damaged in transit, and there were also some MP4 format DVDs that did not play on an Apple Mac. A number of recordings suffered from high levels of extraneous noise, which was sometimes distracting to the performers.

Text-based performances

Moderators reported that the standard of work seen was generally consistent with that submitted in previous sessions, although there appeared to be greater accuracy in the application of the assessment criteria this session.

Monologues

This was generally a very strong aspect of the work of most candidates, where they were in complete charge of the success of the performance. Most candidates were able to showcase acting skills that were honed and refined through a specific text, and there was strong evidence of effective rehearsal with very few memory lapses and some excellent articulation and enunciation. A number of candidates struggled with spoken English and gave performances that were very far from being ready for an audience to view.

It was evident that most candidates had considerable empathy with the role they were acting.

The strongest candidates presented their pieces with conviction, conveying their character and context to their audience with a real sense that they understood how to create effective performance. They delivered their lines in a very confident manner and interpreted the performance text in a mature and sophisticated way. Excellent phrasing and timing, coupled with a strong stage presence and keen awareness of audience, was apparent in many Centres.

There were fewer static performances than in previous sessions, although some Centres provided all candidates with a desk, chair and phone for their monologues. This encouraged a one-size-fits-all approach, which was not helpful to any of the candidates in the Centre since it restricted their approach to gesture and physicality.

Many Centres offered a wide variety of texts, calling for different styles and techniques. It was pleasing to see candidates extending their knowledge and understanding of theatre across different historical periods and styles. Although not compulsory, some Centres paid careful attention to set and costume where period drama was tackled. This was commendable and helped candidates get into character and develop stylistically. Some candidates, however, did not seem particularly aware of the style of the play from which their monologue was taken. It was not always evident that candidates had researched the whole play and, on occasion, monologues were presented out of context.

Group-text

The quality of group repertoire pieces was generally good.

Moderators reported seeing some outstanding performance work, which was both dynamic and engaging. The majority of candidates understood the need for a strong performance focus and where there was a real sense of theatrical discipline, the work was powerful and impactful. It was pleasing that many candidates performed to a live audience.

Candidates who performed in appropriate performance spaces to live audiences were much more successful in performance. This added a sense of occasion and raised the level of the candidates' performance skills, which were generally absent in classroom or corridor settings.

It was pleasing that there were few examples of scripts on stage this session.

The choice of text was the most significant factor in determining the success of the pieces and the strongest candidates performed challenging texts with confidence and commitment. Some of the contemporary pieces and the more culturally relevant texts were very successful, although traditional playwrights such as Oscar Wilde also continued to be popular. Some groups were let down by limitations in the texts that were given them. A few Centres showed an inappropriate reliance on the work of D M Larson, whose plays – although readily available on the Internet – are largely intended for classroom performance rather than the stage.

Devised performances

Moderators reported that, although there were some effective pieces, many candidates' devised work was less strong than their repertoire performances.

The strongest work reflected an understanding of a range of dramatic techniques and approaches. These pieces took risks with ideas, characters and situations, often using physicality, mime, music and non-narrative structures to create exciting and innovative work. Some non-naturalistic pieces were powerful and effective, and there were examples of some excellent physical work inspired by DV8, Frantic Assembly and a range of experimental practitioners. There was also some very effective politically inspired work, which at its best showed sensitive awareness of issues in the history of individual countries. It was also pleasing to see mature responses to political and ecological issues, avoiding the more obvious teenage angst.

Many devised pieces were, however, predictable or clichéd, often lacking in physicality or development of characters beyond the stereotypical. Many candidates attempted to explore topics that were often unsuitable for them, as they lacked sufficient understanding of the issues. As a result, the level of performance skills was often lower because the dramatic material itself was not especially challenging, and candidates needed to think more creatively as to what they could do to showcase their acting skills.

Assessment Objective 2 was frequently over-marked by Centres as credit was awarded for effort rather than outcome. Comments on the ICMS forms indicated that marks had been awarded because candidates had impressed their teachers because of their high level of motivation and/or attitude rather than ability to create, shape and refine dramatic content. This accounted for many of the adjustments in marks.

MARK SCHEME

Maximum Mark: 80

Published

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and candidates, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which Examiners were instructed to award marks. It does not indicate the details of the discussions that took place at an Examiners' meeting before marking began, which would have considered the acceptability of alternative answers.

Mark schemes should be read in conjunction with the question paper and the Principal Examiner Report for Teachers.

Cambridge will not enter into discussions about these mark schemes.

Cambridge is publishing the mark schemes for the May/June 2016 series for most Cambridge IGCSE®, Cambridge International A and AS Level components and some Cambridge O Level components.

Section A

- 1 Identify a moment where a prop is mentioned in Scene 2. Give one example of how you could make effective use of that prop.

The first mark is to be awarded for identifying a prop mentioned in the text of Scene 2. The second mark is awarded for suggesting one effective usage of that prop.

If a candidate identifies a prop not mentioned in the text, award no marks.

1 mark	Identifies a moment where a prop is mentioned in Scene 2.
--------	---

and/or

1 mark	Gives an example of an effective use of that prop.
Total = 2 marks

- 2 You are advising the actor playing MILLY DEWS on how to pace her lines in Scene 1 (between lines 98, ‘Hello, hello, everyone’ and 104–5, ‘...for those at home to enjoy’). Give one piece of advice, and say why she should follow it.

MILLY DEWS is described as having a ‘fragile, rather nervous manner’ but is also part of a group of people who are ‘well-practised, at home in their world’. Her radio character is upbeat and cheerful.

1 mark	An appropriate piece of advice on pacing.
--------	---

and

1 mark	An appropriate justification for giving this piece of advice.

- 3 Look at lines 589 ('At the start of any enterprise, between two comparative strangers...') to 633 ('The form was good') Suggests three ways in which the actors could show how CLIVE and ROBBIE relate to each other.

CLIVE is described as having 'sharp features, natural authority and is elegantly dressed'. He holds very high position at the BBC, and has helped to draft the Abdication Speech for King Edward VIII in 1936. CLIVE's background is in the mysterious and distant 'Talks' department, whereas ROBBIE is in Entertainment as the host on 'Friday Night at Eight'. Despite their not hitting it off immediately, at the end of Scene 2, CLIVE invites ROBBIE to come and work for him. This excerpt is a power play as CLIVE tries to find out more about ROBBIE.

Allow suggestion for any credible means by which the relationship might be shown.

1 mark	A valid suggestion as to how the relationship could be shown.

- 4 You are performing ARNOS’s speech from line 711 (‘Splendid’) to line 727 (‘It’s American of course, the tune –’). Suggest two aspects of his character that you would want to bring out and, for each aspect, say how you would do it.

ARNOLD GROVE is the Head of the Spoken Word at the BBC, and is affectionately known as Arnos, after the London Underground station called Arnos Grove. He is a man of fifty, with ‘a large blustery manner’. At this point, he offers a diversion to the seriousness of the forthcoming broadcast of the coronation of King George VI and demonstrates a party trick by fiddling with the wireless dial. There is plenty of potential in his speech for physicality, bold talking, and absurdity.

1 mark	An aspect of character that could be communicated to the audience.
--------	--

1 mark	An indication of how that aspect could be brought out.

- 5 You have been given the role of HONKER. How would you control your vocal delivery between line 299 ('There you are! Hello, I'm Harry Wallace') and line 346 ('You'll get the knack! Ready?')?

HONKER's real name is Harry Wallace, but he is called Honker because he honks out the phrase 'marvellous, marvellous, marvellous' all the time. There is an element of buffoonery about the role and yet his purpose in this excerpt is to reinforce the absurd point about the BBC's ban of the use of radio costumes on television. They were acceptable when no-one could see them, but not now they can be seen. His bluster about using real people in Trafalgar Square is an absurd distraction from the reality of the situation.

Volume is the most obvious feature of HONKER's delivery, but answers might also include reference to breathing, tempo, intonation and vocal pitch.

1 mark	Able to make a general point about how to deliver the lines.
2 marks	The candidate offers one or two suggestions as to how to control the delivery.
3 marks	A clear discussion as to how to control the delivery, with good use of examples.
4 marks	A clear discussion as to how to control the delivery, and the way in which different lines could be approached.

- 6 Look at line 805 ('So you're a peasant really?') to line 853–54 ('That must be a little difficult for you'). As the actor playing ISABEL, what impression would you want to give to the audience, and how would you do it?

ISABEL first appears in Scene 2, and is described as being in her thirties, fashionably dressed and with a witty unpredictable manner. She is a friend of CLIVE, and confesses to ROBBIE that she loves CLIVE. Here in Scene 4, she teases ROBBIE about his newly-established working relationship with CLIVE, whilst at the same time revealing how her job involves a good deal of people-watching.

1 mark	Some rudimentary ideas about ISABEL.
2 marks	Some rudimentary ideas about the intended impression of ISABEL and a general comment about how to create this.
3 marks	A competent grasp of the intended impression of ISABEL and some indication of how to create this from the text.
4 marks	A clear discussion of the intended impression of ISABEL and several suggestions of how to create this from the text.
5 marks	A proficient discussion of the intended impression of ISABEL, with several detailed suggestions of how to create this from the text.

- 7 Choose one of the characters in your devised piece and say how that role helped to move the action along.

The focus of the question is on identifying one of the characters in the devised piece that was important in moving the action along. This may take a variety of formats, but credit any understanding of how the role functioned to move the drama along.

1 mark	The candidate is able to identify a character in the devised piece.
2 marks	The candidate is able to identify a character AND make a general comment as to how that role moved the action along.
3 marks	A competent explanation of the chosen character, with some specific indication of how that role moved the action along.
4 marks	A clear discussion of the chosen character, with several relevant examples of how it moved the action along.
5 marks	A proficient discussion of the chosen character, with relevant and detailed examples of how that character moved the action along.

8 How effective was the use of gesture in your devised piece? Give examples to support your answer.

Allow a broad interpretation as to what constitutes gesture, if necessary making allowance for facial expression, or broad discussions of physicality. Candidates should be credited for specific examples taken from the piece.

1 mark	The candidate is able to identify a single use of gesture in the piece.
2 marks	The candidate is able to identify a single use of gesture in the piece AND makes a general comment about its effectiveness.
3 marks	A competent explanation of the use of gesture, with some specific indication of its effectiveness.
4 marks	A clear discussion of the use of gesture, with several relevant examples of its effectiveness.

Section B

9 You have been asked to design the sound for a performance of this extract. Discuss how your design ideas will enhance the drama.

The extract is set mainly in broadcasting studios, although the non-studio scenes are also important atmospherically. There are many opportunities for the sound designer to take aspects of the stage directions and turn them into a sound design. However, there is much more to sound design than this, and credit should be awarded to candidates who demonstrate a clear understanding of the ways in which the use of sound can enhance and deepen the experience, rather than simply creating a file of sound effects.

Candidates should outline:

- their ideas for the sound design.
- the way these support and enhance the setting of the extract.
- the specific possibilities for sound within the extract, outlining relevant points of interest in relation to the given stage directions, and other possibilities implicit in the dialogue

Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of sound design and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Comprehensive discussion of sound design showing sophisticated understanding of how it would enhance the drama.</li> <li>• Excellent, practical suggestions with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application
20–22	Shows a perceptive practical understanding of sound design and its challenges <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An assured discussion of sound design, showing perceptive understanding of how it would enhance the drama.</li> <li>• Insightful practical suggestions with frequent and well-selected references to the extract.</li> </ul>
17–19	Shows a detailed practical understanding of sound design and effect <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An effective discussion of sound design showing detailed understanding of how it would enhance the drama.</li> <li>• Well-formulated ideas although there may be scope for further refinement; consistent and appropriate references to the extract.</li> </ul>
14–16	Shows secure understanding of sound design <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A consistent understanding of sound design which is mostly workable; there may be some suggestions of how it would enhance the drama.</li> <li>• A good level of detail with some appropriate references to the extract.</li> </ul>	Middle band – understanding
11–13	Shows some understanding of sound design <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Variable understanding of sound design some of which is viable; there may be limited suggestions of how it would enhance the drama.</li> <li>• A focus on the more obvious aspects of the extract.</li> </ul>

10 You have been cast in the role of BERNARD. How would your performance communicate his character to an audience.

BERNARD first appears in Scene 2, where he is described as ‘a dark-haired’, short, good-looking young man in his early twenties’. He plays the role of the Baron Freiher von Brandis, who is meant to be a tourist exploring London. It transpires that BERNARD is himself Jewish, and his role is a means of introducing a profoundly disturbing point in the drama about the suffering of the European Jews.

Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the varying aspects of the role <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A comprehensive discussion of how the role could be played, showing sophisticated understanding of the character and its significance in the extract.</li> <li>• Excellent, practical suggestions with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application

11 ‘Talk of the City explores the tension between the glamorous world of entertainment and the more serious issues of the time.’ As a director, how would you bring out this tension in a performance of the extract.

Stephen Poliakoff’s play has a number of themes, most of which are apparent in the extract from Talk of the City.

- The strangeness of having to maintain a world of glitz and glamour, which is seen by no-one, as the programmes are on radio only.
- The tension between the entertainment function of the BBC and its remit to report news
- The juxtaposition of the frivolous and the serious in the play.

Allow credit for any appropriate suggestions with evidence from the text.

Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the play and its style and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Comprehensive discussion of the director’s intention with sophisticated understanding as to how it can be realised in performance.</li> <li>• Excellent ideas with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application

12 What challenges did your devised piece present in terms of vocal projection and articulation? How effectively did you deal with these challenges?

Simplistic answers may focus only on volume, perhaps reflecting on whether the actors were audible. Such answers might dwell on audibility and clarity. There might be comments about English not being the mother tongue, which can be credited if there is an assessment of what could be done in the context of the piece.

Stronger answers may relate articulation and projection to other dramatic features, perhaps breathing, posture, physicality or proxemics, and the way in which dialogue is more than simply the delivery of words on stage. There may also be references to intended impact, and dramatic moments that could have been improved through better control of vocal projection and articulation.

Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of vocal projection and articulation <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A comprehensive discussion of the challenges of vocal projection and articulation</li> <li>• Excellent, practical evaluation of how effectively these were dealt with; sustained and detailed reference to the devised piece.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application

13 You have been invited to perform your devised piece at a local theatre and have the opportunity to design a set. Discuss the details of your set design and how it would enhance the drama.

Allow for a number of creative solutions here. It is possible that no set design was used for the actual performance, but that does not matter since the focus here is on the possibilities of what can be achieved in a new venue, which may have a different size performance space, and more technical potential. The question calls for understanding as to what set design would now be desirable in the light of the new venue.

Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of vocal projection and articulation <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A comprehensive discussion of the challenges of vocal projection and articulation</li> <li>• Excellent, practical evaluation of how effectively these were dealt with; sustained and detailed reference to the devised piece.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application

14 What message did you wish to communicate in your devised piece? How successful were you in achieving this?

The focus of the question is twofold: the ‘message’ of the piece itself (which may have taken many different formats) and the success of the actors in communicating that message in performance. Allow for a variety of responses depending on what the candidate suggests is the ‘message’.

Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the intended message of the piece <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A comprehensive discussion of the message of the piece.</li> <li>• Excellent, practical evaluation of the success of communicating the intended message, with sustained and detailed reference to the devised piece.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application

MARK SCHEME

Maximum Mark: 80

---

Published

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and candidates, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which Examiners were instructed to award marks. It does not indicate the details of the discussions that took place at an Examiners' meeting before marking began, which would have considered the acceptability of alternative answers.

Mark schemes should be read in conjunction with the question paper and the Principal Examiner Report for Teachers.

Cambridge will not enter into discussions about these mark schemes.

Cambridge is publishing the mark schemes for the May/June 2016 series for most Cambridge IGCSE®, Cambridge International A and AS Level components and some Cambridge O Level components.

Section A

- 1 Identify a moment where a prop is mentioned in Scene 3. Give one example of how you could make effective use of that prop.

The first mark is to be awarded for identifying a prop mentioned in the text of Scene 3. The second mark is awarded for suggesting one effective usage of that prop.

If a candidate identifies a prop not mentioned in the text, award no marks.

1 mark	Identifies a moment where a prop is mentioned in Scene 3.

1 mark	Gives an example of an effective use of that prop.

- 2 You are advising the actor playing NICOLA on how to pace her lines in Scene 1 (between lines 226, ‘A little louder...’ and 245, ‘Oh good – thank you’). Give one piece of advice, and say why she should follow it.

Nicola’s voice is described in the extract as ‘extremely flat, unemotional’ when she is first heard, and she is also very quiet and nervous when she is talking to LEONARD BRAZIL on the phone.

1 mark	An appropriate piece of advice on pacing.

1 mark	An appropriate justification for giving this piece of advice.

Total = 2 marks

- 3 Look at lines 81 ('Why do you keep on doing this?') to 99 ('You're not, yet'). Suggest three ways in which the actors could show how LEONARD and REX relate to each other.

REX is clearly a junior member of staff at Leicester Sound, and LEONARD is keen for him to know his place in the outfit. There are a number of encounters between the two actors through which LEONARD delivers a series of put-downs to REX, which provide the context for this short passage in which there is a verbal skirmish between the two.

Allow suggestion for ways in this might be done, and also for ways in which REX might respond.

1 mark	A valid suggestion as to how the relationship could be shown.

- 4 Look at lines 546 ('You must be enjoying all this anyway...') to 585 ('Always trying to put them off...'). Suggest two aspects of JOHN's character that you would want to bring out and, for each aspect, say how you would do it.

JOHN is described as small, and 'a shiny, red-faced man'. He is clearly a consummate broadcasting professional, able to put up with the treatment he receives at the hands of LEONARD and maintain his high standards. He is also able to vocalise his thoughts about the inappropriate nature of LEONARD's behaviour whilst the show is on air, but manages to maintain a balanced demeanour.

1 mark	An aspect of character that could be communicated to the audience.

1 mark	An indication of how that aspect could be brought out.

- 5 You have been given the role of JIM'S VOICE. How would you control your vocal delivery between line 846 ('...I mean, don't you agree with me Leonard...') and line 879 ('WHAT would I do with a –')?

JIM does not appear on stage. The audience hears his voice over the telephone. He is a frequent, irate caller, intolerant of vandalism in the local area and other social ills, and talks on at length to LEONARD, who quickly tires of the call and tries to cut him off. The skill of the actor lies in sustaining the intensity of the delivery so that LEONARD cannot get a word in. However, the actor also needs to avoid too great a level of initial intensity or the role will lack credibility.

Answers might include references to volume, breathing, tempo, intonation, and vocal pitch.

1 mark	Able to make a general point about how to deliver the lines.
2 marks	The candidate offers one or two suggestions as to how to control the delivery.
3 marks	A competent grasp of how to control the delivery, with good use of examples.
4 marks	A clear discussion as to how to control the delivery, and the way in which different lines could be approached.
Total = 4 marks

6 How would you advise the actor playing LEONARD to deliver the speech between line 1115 ('No need to fear, Nicola is here') and line 1145 ('...SHOUT IT OUT')?

At one extreme, LEONARD is an on-air control freak who has the microphone and invites the contributions of others simply to bolster his own ego. At the other, he is a showman, whose delivery has little sincerity, but is more focused on entertainment. The speech shows LEONARD's increasing disintegration, which contrasts with his considerable charm at the start of the extract.

There are several other possibilities, so allow credit for any realistic suggestions.

1 mark	One piece of advice about how to deliver the speech.
2 marks	Some rudimentary ideas about how to deliver the speech.
3 marks	A competent grasp of how the speech might be delivered, with some references to the text.
4 marks	A clear discussion of how the speech might be delivered, with several references to the text.
5 marks	A proficient discussion of the speech might be delivered, with several detailed references to the text.

7 What aspect of your devised piece did you most want the audience to remember, and what did you do to achieve this?

The focus of the question is on identifying the aspect of the devised piece that the group wanted to stay in the audience's mind. This may take a variety of formats, but credit any understanding of what the candidate did in order to achieve this.

1 mark	The candidate is able to identify the aspect they most wanted the audience to remember.
2 marks	The candidate is able to identify the aspect they most wanted the audience to remember AND make a general comment as to what they did to achieve this.
3 marks	A competent explanation of the chosen aspect, with some specific indication of how they made it memorable for the audience.
4 marks	A clear discussion of the details of the chosen aspect, with several relevant examples of how they made it memorable for the audience
5 marks	A proficient discussion of the chosen aspect, with relevant and detailed examples of how they made it memorable for the audience.

8 In what ways did you vary the physical distance between performers in your devised piece, and why?

The performance space in which the candidates worked may have been large or small, cramped or cavernous, but this does not matter since the focus here is on the relationship of performers to each other rather than the performance space itself. This is not therefore a question about the nature of the space, but about the way the characters related to each other in that space.

1 mark	The candidate is able to identify one variation of physical distance.
2 marks	The candidate is able to identify one variation of physical distance AND make a general comment as to its purpose.
3 marks	The candidate gives a competent explanation of variations of physical distance, with some specific indication as to their purpose.
4 marks	A clear discussion about variations of physical distance, with several relevant examples as to their purpose.
5 marks	A proficient discussion about variations of physical distance, with relevant and detailed examples as to their purpose.

Section B

9 You have been asked to design the sound for a performance of this extract. Discuss how your design ideas will enhance the drama.

The extract is set mainly in a radio studio, although the non-studio scenes are also important atmospherically. There are many opportunities for the sound designer to take aspects of the stage directions and turn them into a sound design. However, there is much more to sound design than this, and credit should be awarded to candidates who demonstrate a clear understanding of the ways in which the use of sound can enhance and deepen the experience, rather than simply creating a file of sound effects.

Candidates should outline

- their ideas for the sound design.
- the way these support and enhance the setting of the extract.
- the specific possibilities for sound within the extract, outlining relevant points of interest in relation to the given stage directions, and other possibilities implicit in the dialogue

10 You have been cast in the role of SUSAN. How would your performance communicate her character to an audience?

SUSAN, described in the character list as being ‘extremely volatile’, is a work colleague of NICOLA and they are both employed as assistants at Liptons Supermarket. They discuss stealing food from the store, but they are afraid of being caught by the security detective. Their conversation is largely functional and is interrupted by the booming voice of LEONARD that is played over the radio. An important dramatic function of the role is the way she develops the conversation with NICOLA about entering the radio competition, during which she engages in the ardent physical activity of manufacturing the dummy. Allow credit for any other point that can be sustained from the extract.

Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the varying aspects of the role <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A comprehensive discussion of how the role could be played, showing sophisticated understanding of the character and its significance in the extract.</li> <li>• Excellent, practical suggestions with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application

11 ‘City Sugar explores the theme of the frustrated ambitions of its characters.’ As a director, how would you bring this out in a performance of the extract?

The focus of the question is on the ability of the director to bring out relevant means of exploring frustrated ambition. There are numerous manifestations of the theme of frustrated ambitions, affecting most of the characters.

- The lack of opportunity for most of the characters.
- The petty squabbles and bickering that ensue from the ‘total’ environment of work.
- The frustration of a man with a huge sense of self-importance, trapped in an unfulfilling job.
- The tension between Leonard wanting to work in London, and the local situation of Leicester Sound.
- The portrayal of Nicola and Susan stuck in a supermarket job where their every move is watched, whilst their dreams are of fame and fortune.
- The attempts of Rex to make headway in his career, constantly put down by Leonard.

Allow credit for any appropriate suggestions with evidence from the text.

Marks should be awarded as follows:

Section C

12 Discuss the costume design for your devised piece. How would your costumes enhance the drama?

Allow for a number of creative solutions here. It is quite possible that no costume design was used for the actual performance. The focus, however, is on the design that would be most appropriate in the light of the performance. It might be expected that candidates will refer to the character list for inspiration but allow credit for any viable, justified solutions. Answers should focus on design rather than manufacture of the costumes. Candidates may find it helpful to include sketches, which should be credited if relevant. Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of costume design and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Comprehensive discussion of costume design.</li> <li>Excellent, practical suggestions as to how the costume design would enhance the drama. The proposed solution is completely workable and there is sustained and detailed reference to the devised piece.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application
20–22	Shows a perceptive practical understanding of costume design and its challenges <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>An assured discussion of costume design.</li> <li>Insightful practical suggestions as to how the costume design would enhance the drama. The proposed solution is workable and there are frequent and well-selected references to the devised piece.</li> </ul>
17–19	Shows a detailed practical understanding of costume design <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>An effective discussion of costume design.</li> <li>Well-formulated practical suggestions as to how the costume design would enhance the drama with consistent and appropriate references to the devised piece. The proposed solution is workable although there may be scope for further refinement.</li> </ul>
14–16	Shows secure understanding of costume design <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>A consistent understanding of costume design which is mostly workable; there may be some suggestions of how it would enhance the drama.</li> <li>A good level of detail with some appropriate references to the devised piece.</li> </ul>	Middle band – understanding
11–13	Shows some understanding of costume design <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Variable understanding of costume design some of which is viable; there may be limited suggestions of how it would enhance the drama.</li> <li>A focus on the more obvious aspects of the devised piece.</li> </ul>

13 What character relationships did you intend to create in your devised piece? How successful were you in doing so?

It does not matter what the actual relationships in the piece were. The important thing here is that candidates should be able to discuss them in detail and evaluate their success in achieving their dramatic intention. Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the intended character relationships in the piece <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A comprehensive discussion of the character relationships in the piece.</li> <li>• Excellent, practical evaluation of the success of creating these relationships, with sustained and detailed reference to the devised piece.</li> </ul>	Upper band – evaluation

14 What were the most important aspects of physicality in your devised piece? How effective were they?

This question gets to the heart of an essential component of drama, which is the bringing to life of believable characters and the extent to which candidates have been able to create rounded, physically varied, roles.

Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the physicality of the piece <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A comprehensive discussion of the physicality of the piece.</li> <li>• Excellent, practical evaluation of the effectiveness of the physicality, with sustained and detailed reference to the devised piece.</li> </ul>	Upper band – evaluation

MARK SCHEME

Published

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and candidates, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which Examiners were instructed to award marks. It does not indicate the details of the discussions that took place at an Examiners' meeting before marking began, which would have considered the acceptability of alternative answers.

Mark schemes should be read in conjunction with the question paper and the Principal Examiner Report for Teachers.

Cambridge will not enter into discussions about these mark schemes.

Cambridge is publishing the mark schemes for the May/June 2016 series for most Cambridge IGCSE®, Cambridge International A and AS Level components and some Cambridge O Level components.

Section A

- 1 Look at the start of Scene 2, as far as line 222 ('They're all listened to'), and identify a moment where a prop is mentioned. Give one example of how you could make effective use of that prop.

The first mark is to be awarded for identifying a prop mentioned in the text at the start of Scene 2. The second mark is awarded for suggesting one effective usage of that prop.

If a candidate identifies a prop not mentioned in the text, award no marks.

1 mark	Identifies a moment where a prop is mentioned at the start of Scene 2.

1 mark	Gives an example of an effective use of that prop.

- 2 You are advising the actor playing IAN on how to pace his lines in Scene 2 (between lines 691, ‘You can take your time...’ and 719–720, ‘You’re quite lucky to be here at all’). Give one piece of advice, and say why he should follow it.

This focuses on IAN’s interaction with LORRAINE as she pretends to be able to play the piano. The piece of advice should focus on IAN’s pacing as he gradually becomes more annoyed with her.

1 mark	An appropriate piece of advice on pacing.

1 mark	An appropriate justification for giving this piece of advice.

Total = 2 marks

- 3 Look at lines 72 ('Ian ... Ian') to 100 ('Are you still there?'). Suggest three ways in which the actors could show how SHERMAN and IAN relate to each other.

SHERMAN is described by Ian as 'the top guy you can see' at IBC records, and Ian also reveals that some people have waited five years to see him. SHERMAN is completely aware of his own power and authority with regard to those auditioning before him, as well as his authority over IAN. IAN, however, has clearly learned methods of presenting situations to SHERMAN in a way that helps to persuade and this passage is concerned with exactly that.

1 mark	A valid suggestion as to how the relationship could be shown.

1 mark	A valid suggestion as to how the relationship could be shown.

- 4 Look at lines 235–236 ('You seen about Zat's single?') to 267 ('There's no need to be nervous'). Suggest two aspects of SHERMAN's character that you would want to bring out and, for each aspect, say how you would do it.

The role of SHERMAN is central to the drama, not least because of the length of his speeches in comparison with all of the other characters. This is one of his longer speeches, and allows a good deal of opportunity to focus on aspects of his character such as: enormous energy, strong presence, authoritative, bombastic and used to exerting absolute power. The final line apparently stands in contrast to this as SHERMAN tries to reassure the teenagers.

1 mark	An aspect of character that could be communicated to the audience.

1 mark	An indication of how that aspect could be brought out.

- 5 You have been given the role of GARY. How would you control your vocal delivery between lines 461 ('You want to know?') and 480–481 ('...the police are all really crude...')?

At this point in the extract, GARY is attempting to demonstrate his familiarity with New York in an attempt to impress both SHERMAN and the other teenagers. His description is based on exaggerated stereotypes of the city, and it is unclear whether he has actually visited New York. The resulting description of his trip to New York has an intensity and power that has not so far been evident and the challenge for the actor is to deliver this without becoming frenetic.

Answers might include references to volume, intensity, breathing, tempo, intonation, and vocal pitch.

1 mark	Able to make a general point about how to deliver the lines.
2 marks	The candidate offers one or two suggestions as to how to control the delivery.
3 marks	A competent grasp of how to control the delivery, with good use of examples.
4 marks	A clear discussion as to how to control the delivery, and the way in which different lines could be approached.
Total = 4 marks

- 6 Look at lines 384 ('You've got it upside down. I can't read it') to 423–424 ('[Has back to them, with finality.] Right'). As the actor playing LORRAINE, what impression would you want to give to the audience, and how would you do it?

LORRAINE is a nervous teenager, is five feet tall, and therefore barely looks her age. She is clearly intimidated by the power of SHERMAN's physical presence and is hesitant talking to him, although this changes to indignation when he does not believe that she has told him the truth about her age.

1 mark	Some rudimentary ideas about LORRAINE.
2 marks	Some rudimentary ideas about the intended impression of LORRAINE and a general comment about how to create this.
3 marks	A competent grasp of the intended impression of LORRAINE and some indication of how to create this from the text.
4 marks	A clear discussion of the intended impression of LORRAINE, and several suggestions of how to create this this from the text.
5 marks	A proficient discussion of the intended impression of LORRAINE, with several detailed suggestions of how to create this this from the text.

7 Describe the dramatic moment that seemed to make the most impact in your devised piece, and say why you think this was.

The focus of the question is on whether candidates can identify a significant dramatic moment, and then demonstrate a reflective understanding as to why it was effective.

1 mark	The candidate is able to identify the moment that seemed to make the most impact.
2 marks	The candidate is able to identify the moment that seemed to make the most impact AND makes a general comment as to why.
3 marks	A competent explanation of the moment that seemed to make the most impact, with some specific indication as to why.
4 marks	A clear discussion of the moment that seemed to make the most impact, with several relevant examples as to why.
5 marks	A proficient discussion of the moment that seemed to make the most impact, with relevant and detailed examples as to why.

8 How did you manage scene changes or transitions from one section to another in your devised piece? How effective were these scene changes or transitions?

The focus is on the means by which changes of scene or transitions were managed and how effective they were. Allow credit for a variety of means of making transitions at various scales between different sections/scenes.

1 mark	The candidate is able to identify scene changes/transitions in the devised piece.
2 marks	The candidate is able to identify scene changes/transitions AND make a general comment about their effectiveness.
3 marks	A competent explanation of the scene changes/transitions, with some specific indication as to their effectiveness.
4 marks	A clear discussion of the scene changes/transitions in the piece with several relevant examples of their effectiveness.
5 marks	A proficient discussion about the scene changes/transitions in the piece, with relevant and detailed examples of their effectiveness.

Section B

9 You have been asked to design the sound for a performance of this extract. Discuss how your design ideas will enhance the drama.

The play is set in a record company and there are several opportunities for the sound designer to take aspects of the stage directions and turn them into a sound design. However, there is much more to sound design than this, and credit should be awarded to candidates who demonstrate a clear understanding of the ways in which the use of sound can enhance and deepen the experience, rather than simply creating a file of sound effects.

Candidates should outline

- their ideas for the sound design.
- the way these support and enhance the setting of the extract.
- the specific possibilities for sound within the extract, outlining relevant points of interest in relation to the given stage directions, and other possibilities implicit in the dialogue

Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of sound design and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Comprehensive discussion of sound design showing sophisticated understanding of how it would enhance the drama.</li> <li>• Excellent, practical suggestions with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application

10 You have been cast in the role of TALLULAH. How would your performance communicate her character to an audience?

TALLULAH is probably the most intelligent and the most talented of the three teenagers who are auditioning for SHERMAN. She has bright orange hair and conveys a sense of confidence in her appearance and her ability. She is the most impressive performer when it comes to actually singing.

Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the varying aspects of the role <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A comprehensive discussion of how the role could be played, showing sophisticated understanding of the character and its significance in the extract.</li> <li>• Excellent, practical suggestions with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application

11 ‘American Days explores the challenges facing those seeking fame and fortune in the music industry.’ As a director, how would you bring this out in a performance of the extract?

Stephen Poliakoff’s play has a number of themes, which are apparent in the extract from American Days. These include:

- The setting-up of the power relationship between SHERMAN and IAN, and between IBC and the teenagers who have come to audition
- The tension between the thrill of landing a recording contract and the angst of the audition process.
- The frustration of the other characters having to deal with SHERMAN, who has a huge sense of self-importance and imposing his will on them
- The potential of the characters to rub each other up the wrong way through being in close proximity
- The petty squabbles and bickering that ensue from the ‘total’ environment of the record company

Allow credit for any appropriate suggestions with evidence from the text. Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the play and its style and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Comprehensive discussion of the director’s intention with sophisticated understanding as to how it can be realised in performance.</li> <li>• Excellent ideas with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application

12 What was the original idea behind your devised piece? How successful were you in developing it?

In order to be able to evaluate the development involved, the candidate will need to offer some clear statement as to the nature of the original idea underpinning the piece.

This idea may have then developed considerably during the working process, given the collaborative nature of the work for this task.

Evaluation should be based on specific features of the work, rather than on a subjective review of how the candidate/s felt about the performance.

Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the original idea and the way in which it was developed <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A comprehensive discussion of the original idea behind the piece.</li> <li>• Excellent, practical evaluation of its development, with sustained and detailed reference to the devised piece.</li> </ul>	Upper band – evaluation
20–22	Shows a perceptive practical understanding of original idea and the way in which it was developed <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An assured discussion of the original idea behind the piece.</li> <li>• Insightful practical evaluation of its development with frequent and well-selected references to the devised piece.</li> </ul>
17–19	Shows detailed practical understanding of the original idea and the way in which it was developed <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An effective discussion of the original idea behind the piece.</li> <li>• Well-formulated practical evaluation of its development although there may be scope for further refinement; consistent and appropriate references to the devised piece.</li> </ul>
14–16	Shows secure understanding of the original idea and the way in which it was developed <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A consistent understanding of the original idea behind the piece. There may be some evaluative comment.</li> <li>• A good level of detail with some appropriate references to the devised piece.</li> </ul>	Middle band – process
11–13	Shows some understanding of the original idea and the way in which it was developed <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Variable understanding of the original idea behind the piece. There may be limited evaluative comment.</li> <li>• A focus on the more obvious aspects of the devised piece.</li> </ul>
8–10	Shows undeveloped/superficial understanding of the original idea and the way in which it was developed <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A few partially formulated ideas about the original idea behind the piece.</li> <li>• A superficial approach based mostly on description; occasional reference to the devised piece.</li> </ul>

13 As you worked on your devised piece, what contrasts did you create? How effective were these contrasts?

It does not matter what the actual contrasts in the piece were. The important thing here is that candidates should be able to discuss them in detail and evaluate their effectiveness.

Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of contrasts <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A comprehensive discussion of the contrasts created.</li> <li>• Excellent, practical evaluation of the effectiveness of the contrasts, with sustained and detailed reference to the devised piece.</li> </ul>	Upper band – evaluation

14–16	Shows secure understanding of contrasts <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A consistent understanding of the contrasts created which are mostly effective. There may be some evaluative comment.</li> <li>• A good level of detail with some appropriate references to the devised piece.</li> </ul>	Middle band – process

14 Choose one role from your devised piece. Discuss how the personality traits of that character were dramatised.

The focus of the question is on the building of the character, and its realisation in performance.

Marks should be awarded as follows:

23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of how to dramatised the character's personality traits <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A comprehensive discussion of the character's personality traits.</li> <li>• Excellent, practical suggestions of how to dramatised the character's personality traits, with sustained and detailed reference to the devised piece.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application

May/June 2016

PRE-RELEASE MATERIAL

To be given to candidates on receipt by the Centre.

---

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

The questions in Paper 1 will be based on the stimuli and on the extract from Stephen Poliakoff's play Talk of the City provided in this booklet.

You may do any preparatory work that is considered appropriate. It is recommended that you perform the extract, at least informally.

You will not be permitted to take this copy of the material or any other notes or preparation into the examination. A clean copy of the pre-release material will be provided with the Question Paper.

This document consists of 28 printed pages.

Stimulus 3

Photograph: Port Authority (Mystery No. 12), by Mac Adams (1975)

EXTRACT*Taken from Talk of the City by Stephen Poliakoff

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

Stephen Poliakoff's play Talk of the City was first performed by the Royal Shakespeare Company at Stratford-upon-Avon, England, in 1998.

The play is set in 1937, just before the start of the Second World War. It depicts the early years of broadcasting at the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC). On a lighthearted note, it shows the way that performers and announcers used to dress formally, even though they could not be seen on radio. There are also some more serious underlying historical themes. These include the rise of Hitler and the Nazis in Germany, the Spanish Civil War against fascism, and the constitutional crisis in Britain caused by the abdication of King Edward VIII. The play also hints at the reluctance of the BBC to report the mistreatment of Jews by the Nazis.

At that time, the BBC broadcast from its headquarters at Broadcasting House and also from Alexandra Palace (an exhibition centre), both in London.

The play is in two Acts, and the extract consists of a slightly shortened version of the first six scenes of Act 1.

Characters

Robbie	a radio-show host in his mid-thirties
Dredge	a dancer in her early twenties
Daphne	a studio manager in her thirties
Mabs	a radio performer in his late fifties
Milly Dews	a singer and radio performer in her twenties
Clive	a broadcasting executive in his thirties
Honker (Harry Wallace)	a junior studio manager in his mid-twenties
Isabel	a researcher, a friend of Clive, in her thirties
Bernard	a Jewish actor from Germany, in his early twenties
Assistant	a trainee newsreader, in his twenties
Arnos (Arnold Grove)	Head of the Spoken Word at the BBC, aged about 50.
Dancing Girls

Act 1

The play opens in February 1937.

Scene 1

The Radio Show.

The back wall of the sound studio is flecked with Art Deco pieces that can shine at various stages in the play. The floor has a severely beautiful pattern on it, evocative and formal.

The bells. The Big Ben chimes before the news broadcast. We hear an educated voice, who starts to read the news.

VOICE-OVER: 'This is the National Programme. Copyright reserved.'
'Here is the news summary and sports bulletins. They are followed by 'Friday Night at Eight'. You will then hear something about an event in British air travel.'

10

The lights come up. The musicians come on and take their place followed by DREDGE – a young London woman in her early twenties – and two DANCING GIRLS. All three of them are in full costume. They stand waiting as other news items follow.

VOICE-OVER: 'Barcelona is reported to have been shelled by an unknown vessel today, very little damage was done and when the shore batteries opened fire the vessel went away.'

MABS enters, a man in his late fifties, large appearance with a soft, self-deprecating manner. He is holding a leather binder, and a small yellow suitcase. He stands waiting, taking his position at his microphone. The news continues.

20

VOICE-OVER: 'The insurgents claimed today to have captured various places near Malaga and to have taken prisoner some thousands of militiamen.'

ROBBIE enters. He is in his mid-thirties, dressed in full evening dress, his energetic appearance trapped in his immaculate radio clothes. He is also holding a leather folder. He stands with authority by the microphone.

ROBBIE: Turn down the news please ... [He turns to the musicians.]
Gentlemen, I have a new signal, watch, please. [He does a hand signal like a conductor.] It is for a slow dark tempo ... I'll show it to you once more ... you too, Dredge ... I'm calling it the skimmer. [He grins at DREDGE in her costume.] You look glorious.

DREDGE: [Laughs] Do I? Pity nobody else can see it, isn't it!

35

ROBBIE: But I can. [He grins.] Isn't that enough?

The news continues, half heard. DAPHNE enters, in her thirties, sharp, rather strict appearance but with a hint of something more playful underneath.

ROBBIE:	Seen the new sign?	40
DAPHNE:	I certainly have ... in moderation only please. Now, [ Tapping his script ] the words of your Parisian interview with Milly are quite complicated, I hope you've studied them – careful of trips, and no deviation.
ROBBIE:	[ Smiles ] Deviation, forbidden! Absolutely.	45
DAPHNE:	[ Handing him a folded note ] But there is a note for you – since I know you love last-minute surprises. Thirty seconds everybody.
	ROBBIE is reading the note.
DAPHNE:	It's rather aggressive, and self-important, isn't it?
ROBBIE:	It certainly is. [ Reading aloud ] 'I need to see you. Might be able to fit you in on Wednesday.' Who is he? I have never heard of him.	50
DAPHNE:	He's second or third down from Arnold Grove, Head of the Spoken Word.
ROBBIE:	Oh, he's from 'TALKS'! Of course – explains the deadly tone. [ He looks up. ] Is he here, do you think? Tucked away somewhere up there?	55
	MILLY DEWS comes running on to take her position, fragile, rather nervous manner, she stands near ROBBIE at the microphone.	60
DAPHNE:	There you are, Milly. Fifteen seconds everybody. [ Glancing round ] Mabs, remember.
MABS:	Yes, don't get my pages stuck together this time. My hands are nice and dry today. [ Places yellow suitcase at his feet ]
DAPHNE:	And the suitcase is the wrong colour [ She smiles. ] I don't like 'wireless lies', you know that. [ As she moves off, to ROBBIE ] To the back of your mind now ... the note.	65
	One of the big red lights on the set springs on. They are standing waiting, staring around and up, very respectful, well-behaved and formal, in their evening dress and costumes as the news swirls around them.	70
MABS:	It seems to get longer and longer the news, these days.
	The other red light flicks on. ROBBIE begins to sing, the girls dance when ROBBIE makes signs, the whole atmosphere is of people well-practised, at home in their world.	75
ROBBIE:	[ Singing ] IT'S 'FRIDAY NIGHT AT EIGHT', AND HERE WE ARE AGAIN.
MILLY:	[ Singing ] Here we are again.
ROBBIE:	And these are some of the delights we have in store.
	The musicians play, the girls dance. As ROBBIE alters the tempo with hand signals, there is a sharp dramatic change.	80
ROBBIE:	[ Spoken ] We have of course Inspector Bonnington of Scotland Yard, with a new mystery to solve. [ Assuming upper-class, understated, throwaway voice ] So Sergeant Ostler, where are you dragging me off to today?	85

- MABS: [As Sergeant Ostler] Well, sir, news has come in of a baffling murder ... in south London ... it's being called 'The Blue Suitcase Murder'.
- ROBBIE: [As Bonnington] You sure the local chaps can't handle it?
- MABS: [As Ostler] No, they're completely stumped ... it's definitely a case for our top detectives. 90
- ROBBIE: [As Bonnington] 'The Blue Suitcase Murder' ... Sounds a little over-dramatic to me. I suppose we better go over there and nose around. [Sings] IT'S 'FRIDAY NIGHT AT EIGHT', AND THESE ARE SOME OF THE DELIGHTS WE HAVE IN STORE. 95
- [Spoken] The girls are dancing, the music changes because we are delighted to welcome back Milly Dews.
- MILLY: Hello, hello, everyone.
- ROBBIE: Milly, you've been very busy, haven't you?
- MILLY: [Reading from script] Very busy, Robbie. 100
- ROBBIE: [Reading] You've been to Paris since we last saw you?
- MILLY: [Reading] That's right. Wonderful Paris, croissants, a trip down the Seine, and some marvellous music. [She sings a lyric in French.] [Spoken] I brought back a song or two for those at home to enjoy. 105
- ROBBIE: Milly has been collecting songs like she collects hats. She brings a whiff of the continent to our shows, a taste of WHAT'S ABROAD. [Sings] It's 'Friday Night at Eight' and these are some of the delights we have in store. [He looks up, makes his hand signals, the music darkens, he speaks with surprising intensity.] 110
- And Mr Tudor Baines will be here to give us an extract from his current success here in London, 'Dark Waters'. The scene is a rusty old cargo boat, moored in a dangerous port, bobbing slowly on dark waters. [The music plays, ROBBIE connects with the mystery, with feeling.] The water is thick with debris, foul smelling and full of secrets. You may wake up still thinking about these chilling events tomorrow morning. 115
- ALL: [Singing loudly] IT'S 'FRIDAY NIGHT AT EIGHT', AND THESE ARE THE DELIGHTS WE HAVE IN STORE.
- The music continues as MABS, DREDGE, the DANCING GIRLS and MILLY exit. ROBBIE stops the music abruptly with a hand signal, the red lights snap off, the musicians leave, the lights change on stage. ROBBIE sits in the middle of the stage and starts taking his shoes and socks off.* 120
- ROBBIE: [Muttering intensely to himself] The rhythm wasn't right. 125
- DAPHNE enters.
- DAPHNE: A taste of the continent. [ROBBIE looks up.] It should have been just a taste of the continent, not a whiff. And you plopped in that phrase about abroad – it came from nowhere.
- ROBBIE: [Smiles] Unforgivable. 130
- DAPHNE: Of course. The approved text is paramount – as you well know.
- ROBBIE: [Amused but respectful] Don't worry – it will always be paramount.
- The DANCING GIRLS and DREDGE come back on, still in costume but soaked with sweat. MABS follows them, looking like he's given his all.* 135

ROBBIE:	[To DAPHNE] But what about THE SHOW?
DAPHNE:	The broadcast ... it was not bad.
ROBBIE:	It's never the show – she always calls it the broadcast!
DAPHNE:	And you should be pleased I do. But there were lapses. The 'Dark Waters' introduction was a little intense.	140
ROBBIE:	I didn't deviate!
DAPHNE:	No – but you dwelt ... things got a little disorganised around there –
CLIVE:	I noticed.	145
They turn. CLIVE has entered and is standing on the edge of the area. He has sharp features, natural authority and is elegantly dressed. He is in his thirties.
ROBBIE:	You noticed did you? And who might you be?
DAPHNE:	I think this must be the author of your note, Robbie.	150
CLIVE:	Clive Lynn-Thomas and yes, I sent you a note. I need to see you.
ROBBIE:	[ Startled by his confident manner ] You wanted an appointment, did you? We'll have to look in the book and see where I can fit you in. [ Indicating DAPHNE who's holding a ledger ] It will be at least a fortnight.	155
DAPHNE:	At least ...
CLIVE:	I think it would be much better if it was right now.
ROBBIE:	You do, do you! Well, that's impossible.
CLIVE:	[ Indicating ledger ] Then keep looking.
DAPHNE:	The only possibility I can see in the next three weeks, is the day they've asked you to appear on television ... you know this television enterprise.	160
ROBBIE:	No, I'm not doing that. Nobody who's anybody appears on that! But I have other plans for that time. [DAPHNE turns page , ROBBIE looking at CLIVE ] I told you it wouldn't be easy ... [ He moves. ] So what else did you 'notice' while you were up there ... did you have a good time?	165
CLIVE:	A good time? No. It's not the expression I'd use.
DREDGE:	It's not, is it!
ROBBIE:	[ Dangerous grin ] I think certain expressions are occurring to us , aren't they. Obviously we don't draw the great stars like those that appear on 'Monday Night at Eight' we all know that – but this was a good show –	170
MABS:	You must have got wrapped up in Inspector Bonnington's investigation, surely?	175
CLIVE:	[ Calmly ] No, that was embarrassing.
ROBBIE turns startled.
CLIVE:	I've never understood why all wireless detectives have to talk out of the corners of their mouths like that – and never get excited.
ROBBIE:	[ Dangerous smile ] Because that's what they do. And I always get my man, don't I, as you may have noticed.	180
DREDGE:	[ Pugnacious ] He always gets the murderer.
ROBBIE:	[ Moving ] Now I think you've already overstayed your welcome ... so if you'd excuse us ...
CLIVE:	[ Calmly ] But you do something unique in your show.	185
ROBBIE:	Unique! Do I? And what is that?
CLIVE:	You have a medley at the start telling the audience what is coming up – which nobody else does. A totally novel feature,

- something unique. The show itself is mere fluff of course, the usual variety items and Victorian melodrama – and that tedious Bonnington. But the medley is interesting. You move from light to dark, and you stay on the dark longer than expected, not afraid to linger. 190
You show an instinctive sense of structure.
- They are all staring at him.* 195
- CLIVE: Yes, really.
I call it ‘instinctive’, because I have no idea if you realise you are doing it or not. [He smiles.] But there we are. [To DAPHNE] Found a time yet?
- ROBBIE: I’m off. It’s incredible, isn’t it! Can you believe this character! Get him out of here. [He exits.] 200
- DAPHNE: I rather feel you’re going to have to wait to see us. [She exits with MABS.]
- CLIVE calmly takes out cigarette case.
- DREDGE: [Astonished] You can’t smoke here. Nobody can smoke in this building. Ever. You know that. 205
- CLIVE: Don’t worry.
- DREDGE: You mean you’re above the rules! Are they all as bad as you in TALKS?
- CLIVE: Oh, most of them are far worse. No they are. [He smiles at her.] Hard to believe, I know. 210
- ROBBIE re-enters, standing barefoot.
- ROBBIE: I forgot my shoes. [He walks over slowly to get them.] ‘Instinctive sense of structure’, indeed!
- CLIVE: You may think it’s ridiculous. But you do have it. 215
- ROBBIE picks up his shoes.
- CLIVE: You should go and do this television experiment you know.
- ROBBIE: Really? What on earth for?
- CLIVE: Because it’ll be interesting. It’s a terrible journey of course, miles away in north London, but it can’t fail to be worth a look. 220
- ROBBIE: I can’t go.
- CLIVE: Why not?
- ROBBIE: I have things to do – I’m buying an umbrella, for the Coronation.
- CLIVE: The Coronation isn’t till May.
- ROBBIE: It’s important I’m prepared. I missed the Abdication speech, that great moment. When everybody, the whole nation was sitting round the wireless set. And you know why, why I wasn’t listening? Because I had to study my script for my interview with Milly Dews the next day. I had to study for our ‘spontaneous’ chat. [He looks at CLIVE.] Did you hear it? 225
- CLIVE: [Smoking] Your interview with Milly?
- ROBBIE: No, the Abdication speech.
- CLIVE: Well, I sort of had to ... I helped draft the speech.
- ROBBIE: You did what!
- CLIVE: I gave my notes to our Director-General, Sir John Reith, and he incorporated them into the text with the King. 235

ROBBIE: [Truly startled] You helped write the speech!?

CLIVE: I'm afraid so.

ROBBIE: [Recovering] Well, no wonder this world here ... the world of variety is a bit of a shock to you! If that's how you spend your time! 240

CLIVE: No, no, no shock. It's been fascinating. [Moving to exit, he turns.] And we will definitely have that time together.

ROBBIE looks at DREDGE.

DREDGE: What a snob! 245

ROBBIE: [Moving] Yes ... he dares give me advice ...! Instinctive structure ... we don't realise what we're doing ... it's all an accident ... he gives me instructions! [He stops in the middle of the stage.] I'm definitely going to buy the umbrella.

BLACKOUT 250

Alexandra Palace.

In the blackout, the screams of a trumpeting young elephant, and the deeper urgent, throaty grunts of a young rhino.

ISABEL standing alone for a second as the sounds fade away. She is in her thirties, fashionably dressed. She has a witty, unpredictable manner. She is drinking tea out of a badly chipped cup. The floor is sprinkled with animal droppings. 255

Upstage the only prop is a single, rather sinister-looking original television camera.

HONKER, a very enthusiastic rather innocent man in his mid-twenties, comes rushing on with a broom. 260

HONKER: Just got to get rid of these last traces ... then the smell will go as well [He starts sweeping the droppings up.] or at least nobody will know what it is, which is just as good.

ISABEL: I rather like the smell. It's most unexpected – like being at the circus. 265

HONKER: Well, you know radio people, they can be a little grand.
ISABEL: I certainly do know – and you're right, I'm not sure they're used to performing surrounded by rhino droppings.

HONKER: [Sweeping dung] Rhino and elephant droppings in this case. 270

ISABEL: They're late, aren't they?

HONKER: Oh, everyone is always late coming here! Which is useful today! [He rushes off to get dustpan.]

ISABEL: [Amused, staring at droppings which are now in a pile] I won't offer to do anything – because you seem to have it under control. 275

ROBBIE sweeps in, in a good suit, fine new shoes and overcoat.

ROBBIE: I'm late. I hate being late. The others are just coming. It's miles,

- it's like travelling to the moon getting here! [Moving around] And I can't believe the smell – that has got to go.
- ISABEL: They had a baby elephant and a baby rhino here. They both got stuck in the lift apparently, poor things. 280
- ROBBIE: Snakes, they didn't have any snakes, did they?
- ISABEL: I believe they had one or two snakes yes.
- ROBBIE: That could be it! I can see the camera staring at a dead snake for half an hour for one of those interludes they're so fond of! 285
Anyway now show me to our dressing rooms please ...
- ISABEL: No. [ROBBIE turns, surprised] I'm sorry I don't work here. I'm a friend of Clive Lynn-Thomas, I'm meeting him here.
- ROBBIE: So there are two of you now! Popping up to watch me perform. [He looks across at her standing by the droppings.] You know I never thought I'd meet a friend of Clive's standing next to a pile of dung. 290
- ISABEL: You know Clive well?
- ROBBIE: I met him once – for a few minutes.
- ISABEL: [Lightly] I see. Well, first impressions are pretty accurate when talking about Clive. [She smiles.] But I'm not sure you really know him yet. 295
- HONKER enters, greeting ROBBIE.
- HONKER: There you are! Hello, I'm Harry Wallace. People, I'm afraid, call me Honker ... so feel free ... [ROBBIE about to speak] It's because I honk out all the time apparently, 'marvellous, marvellous, marvellous'. So ... [He gets down on his knees, sweeping up dung.] It's marvellous to see you. 300
- ROBBIE: It's ... interesting to be here.
- The whole entourage enter. DREDGE, and the DANCING GIRLS, all three dressed in fur coats, and their finest show costumes. MABS is in a splendid coat, top hat and cane as if for a wedding. DAPHNE is in her working clothes and holding a large notebook.* 305
- ROBBIE: We're complete. 310
- HONKER: [HONKER turns and stares at the stunningly dressed group, the women looking gorgeous.] What a wonderful sight!
- DREDGE: We thought so ... [Showing off her costume, under her coat] we made a real effort.
- HONKER: It's marvellous to see you. It's a feast ... for the eyes. Clearly. But I just want to say, and I say this very reluctantly, and I realise the stupidity of it all, but we can't allow wireless costumes on television. We're not permitted to do that. 315
- Silence*
- ISABEL: That's idiotic. 320
- DREDGE: We can't be seen like this?! We haven't got anything else to wear.
- MABS: It doesn't seem to me, to make total sense ...
- ROBBIE: But nobody has ever seen them when they dress up on the radio! These girls have never been seen by anybody. They're totally unknown, completely fresh. You must make an exception. 325
- DREDGE: Nobody has ever seen us dance.

- HONKER: I know I know, it's senseless. But there's trouble for me if I break these regulations. It's all to do with budgets and departments and money – and other ludicrous things. 330
- DREDGE and the other girls stare back at him.
- DREDGE: [Very quiet] You mean there's no possibility at all that we can be seen?
- HONKER is rushing off.
- DAPHNE: [To ROBBIE] I told you they probably couldn't appear. I warned you. You can be seen, because you're being yourself. 335
- ROBBIE: [Startled] I'm being myself?
- HONKER comes back with a small table.
- HONKER: But there are freedoms here. Other freedoms, I like to think. Our show, 'Trafalgar Square', that's what we call it, has real people. People we found in Trafalgar Square, normal people, like the man who cleans Nelson's Column. And a typical tourist, a foreigner's impression of London. [Breezily to ROBBIE] You've seen the scripts? They're simple, aren't they. When you read the interviews, look up every other sentence, up down, up down, and look at the interviewee. You'll get the knack! Ready? [He exits.] 340
- ROBBIE: [Taking scripts out of pocket, nervous laugh] Ought to be able to do this, meeting everyday folk, good working-class boy like me. 345
- DREDGE, MABS, the DANCING GIRLS and ISABEL move towards exit. 350
- DREDGE: We could have appeared as ourselves.
- ISABEL: [Lightly] You will. Somewhere. And without the smell.
- DAPHNE takes ROBBIE's overcoat off and exits. HONKER re-enters with two chairs. 355
- HONKER: It'll soon be seven o'clock. Hang on tight. [He exits.]
- The lights changing, focus on the small table and the camera.*
- ROBBIE: At least I managed to bring my own musicians. [He does his hand signals. Music starts. He moves to table, puts the scripts in front of him. Stands for a second alone. To himself] Remember you're appearing as yourself ... [He sits facing us.] 360
- HONKER: [Voice from above, hushed.] Ten, marvellous, nine, marvellous, eight, marvellous, seven six five, marvellous, four incredible, three two terrific, one, marvellous. Zero. [His voice booms out as ROBBIE prepares himself in front of us.] Ladies and gentlemen we welcome you to the British Broadcasting television service, broadcasting from Alexandra Palace, London, and it is our pleasure to present 'Trafalgar Square'. 365
- ROBBIE: [ROBBIE looks up.] Hello I'm ... [He hesitates for a second.] I'm Robbie Penacourt ... and this is 'Trafalgar Square' ... [ROBBIE does his hand signals, the music drops and changes.] 370

- HONKER: [From above] Oh dear – I forgot to warn him about his hand signals.
- ROBBIE: [Does signal, music stops] And the first person we're going to meet this evening is Mr Robin Tucker who is the person that cleans Nelson's Column. [Pause, nobody enters, ROBBIE glances around at the script.] I think he cleans Nelson himself, the actual figure of Nelson, right at the top of the column. [Nobody enters.] 375
- HONKER: [Off] Go on, go on, go on. We're having a problem with Tucker. Do the paragraph about where we are. 380
- ROBBIE: So ... while we're waiting for Mr Tucker. [He shuffles papers.] I'm Robbie Penacourt ... I'm appearing tonight as myself. [He does hand signal, low music, and finds the right page] Maybe you'd like to picture where we are, we're in the great crumbling Alexandra Palace, a vast old building of exhibition halls, high above London. [He improvises.] And it's absolutely miles from the centre! 385
- HONKER: [Off] Back on to script two ... we have the next person, script two! Everything is back on track. 390
- BERNARD enters, heads for the table and the pool of light. ROBBIE holds up his hand very formally and stops BERNARD. ROBBIE is shuffling his papers wildly. He stands up, starting the music again with signals, and then beckons to the camera, instinctively responding to the technology. 395
- ROBBIE: Bring the camera forward ... closer, closer ... point it at the chair! [To audience] We're having a moment's Interlude now, ladies and gentlemen ... THE CHAIR.
- He walks up to BERNARD in the shadows. BERNARD is a dark-haired, short, good-looking young man in his early twenties. 400
- ROBBIE: [Lowering his voice] Who are you?
 BERNARD: I'm the Baron Freiherr von Brandis.
 ROBBIE: You're the typical tourist? ... I don't think – I don't think I can find your script. For the interview. And it may not look good if we share. 405
- BERNARD: [Confident, unfazed] That's all right, is it not? [He slips his script in his pocket.] We could just try to talk.
- ROBBIE: Without a script? How would we? We wouldn't know what's going to happen ... [He looks at BERNARD.] If we do ... what about?
- BERNARD: About the city, this great English city that I'm in. That's why I'm here. 410
- ROBBIE moves back to table and into light with BERNARD. ROBBIE stops the music with signals, sits in chair.
- ROBBIE: This is the end of the interlude now. You're watching 'Trafalgar Square'. And now we meet, this is the Baron Frei ... Frei – 415
- BERNARD: The Baron Freiherr von Brandis.
- ROBBIE: He is a tourist ... a foreign eye. [He looks at BERNARD, smiles] and we're trying to talk ... about ... London, the centre of this country and the Empire ... [Suddenly] So was it much grubbier than you expected, when you first saw it? 420
- BERNARD: [Unfazed] Yes, it is a dirty city, quite quite dirty, but also, I tell you

- what I think, it is a great warren, a city afraid to show itself, to declare itself.
- ROBBIE: You mean it's full of secrets? That's right, you're right, Baron. [To audience] In fact, in a few weeks, maybe here in 'Trafalgar Square' there will be the secrets of London ... who knows, look out for it! Right here on 'Trafalgar Square'. 425
- BERNARD: And I will tell you something else, and this is very interesting – the day I arrived, just a few months ago, on a train coming from the white cliffs of Dover, and I'm from Leipzig, a quite dark city at the depth of winter, and it is night now, and I'm looking out of the window of my train, as we enter London – and I couldn't believe my eyes. The whole city is shining! I thought this is the most amazingly bright, well-lit city I've ever seen. All of it is revealed. It is like day! 430
- ROBBIE: [Excited, moving in his seat, jumping in] I know what you're going to say! I know what's coming! ... It was the night the Crystal Palace burnt down, last year wasn't it? When it lit up the whole of London as it burnt. Wasn't it?! 435
- BERNARD: Yes. Correct! 440
- ROBBIE: What an amazing night to arrive, in a foreign city! Your first night fresh from Europe and you're greeted by that!
- BERNARD: Yes, the sky was completely red.
- ROBBIE: It was, and you could see everything and everybody so brightly. All the couples out walking arm in arm, or kissing in corners, every nook was lit up! It was so un-English. [He starts the music with a signal. To audience] I wish I could tell you some of the things I saw that night ... saw people do ... things even I had never seen before! [He lifts hand to make the music louder. He cuts the music dead and the lights change.] 445
- ROBBIE moves around stage incandescent. BERNARD stands. HONKER and DAPHNE run on.
- ROBBIE: I have never, NEVER ever been so embarrassed ... in my whole life. This is one of the worst moments. I cannot believe how amateur this outfit is. [He moves.] I make no apologies for being a radio beast ... I will be monstrous. If I have to. That was a disgrace. 455
- DAPHNE: [Trying to calm him] It wasn't too bad, Robbie – honestly, you survived ... it wasn't that embarrassing.
- ROBBIE: It was a shambles ... no wonder television is a laughing stock. 460
- HONKER: It was a roller coaster. Heart-in-the-mouth stuff, I had no idea what was going to come out next.
- ROBBIE: It was an outrage.
- CLIVE: It was fine.
- CLIVE is entering with ISABEL. He is calm, and elegantly dressed. 465
- ROBBIE: So you are here!
- CLIVE: Absolutely. I told you I would be. [He moves.] No, it was a shock to hear something so unprepared ... probably the only time that's ever happened, either here or at Broadcasting House. 470
- DAPHNE: That may well be true. [DAPHNE makes notes in her large ledger.]
- ROBBIE: [Serious] It really was fine? Are you sure? [Then turns] I don't know why I'm asking him!

CLIVE:	Yes – it was like watching a traffic accident.	475
ROBBIE:	[ Stops ] What? I thought you said it was OK?
CLIVE:	[ Calmly continuing ] In the sense that it's unrepeatable – that element of surprise ... it just happened.
HONKER:	Unrepeatable – an unrepeatable accident. But worth seeing!
CLIVE:	It had danger.	480
ISABEL:	[ Lightly ] And what's more hardly anybody is watching so it doesn't matter what happens here. The rest of the world couldn't care a hoot.
HONKER:	Yes, sadly only two thousand people have televisions ...
BERNARD:	Yes – that is what I am thinking. That is why I enjoyed it so much.	485
	They all turn and look at him.
ROBBIE:	You were very good, Baron, very good indeed. I couldn't have done it without you.
BERNARD:	Thank you. Yes I was thinking the following while it was happening ... For one reason or another, because of charitable work my family is concerned with in Germany, I have been seeing a lot of refugees over there, aliens, you know how they are followed and policed and checked up on. [ He laughs. ] I was thinking – the only place I have felt I wasn't being watched recently, was just now on television! Yes! [ He smiles. ] A very good sense of being free from prying eyes!	490
	ROBBIE watches him, carefully intrigued.
CLIVE:	The other significant feature of course is – there's no record. What happens here has already disappeared into the ether. There's nothing to say it ever took place.	500
ROBBIE:	Thank God for that!
HONKER:	Come on, everybody, let's go to the Dive! [ To ROBBIE ] That's where I put your entourage – it's our little hut, where we're allowed to drink. [ He grins. ] Which is marvellous! Come on, let's celebrate.	505
DAPHNE:	I'm not sure that's the word I'd use – celebrate the fact that Robbie is still in one piece perhaps. [ She exits. ]
BERNARD:	An excellent idea. [ He follows. ]
ROBBIE:	I will join you.
	BERNARD stops. They look at each other.	510
ROBBIE:	Don't run away. You were superb. [ He turns back. ] As for you two ... there's something a bit sinister about you being here. What are you up to?
CLIVE:	What are we up to?
ROBBIE:	Yes. That's right ... Why are you studying me like this?	515
ISABEL:	[ Emollient ] He has something to put to you –
CLIVE:	[ Rather grandly ] Yes. I want you –
ISABEL:	[ Softening it ] He has a request –
CLIVE:	I want you to –
ISABEL:	He would like you –	520
CLIVE:	[ Ignoring this ] I want you to come and work for me.
ROBBIE:	[ Very startled ] Work for you?!
CLIVE:	That's correct.

Silence, ROBBIE staring at CLIVE

ROBBIE: I don't follow. I'm just a song and dance man. 525
 CLIVE: Precisely. [Pause]
 ROBBIE: I don't understand ... [Holds up hand and moves] No! I don't want to hear! I'm going to the Dive. Right now! Where I belong!

BLACKOUT

Broadcasting House. 530

A young man's voice starts reading in the educated BBC tone, but a little over-eager.

VOICE-OVER: 'In the House of Commons this afternoon the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs was asked whether he had seen Herr Hitler's recent assurances about the neutrality of Holland and Belgium. 535
 Lord Cranbourne replied that he did not think that the position resulting from Herr Hitler's statement a week ago was clear enough for him to say anything on the matter.'

*We see the ASSISTANT, a young man in his twenties dressed in similar suit to CLIVE, modelling his appearance on him. The 540
 ASSISTANT is reading the news sitting on a chair, while CLIVE
 moves around him listening.*

ASSISTANT: [Looks up at Clive] Was that all right?
 CLIVE: It was excellent ... but if you want to sound exactly like the original, you need the slight reassurance in the voice – that 545
 everything is all right in the world really, that these great matters
 are in careful hands.

ASSISTANT: Oh yes of course, I should do that.
 CLIVE: [Reassuring tones] 'The meeting with Herr von Ribbentrop, the German Ambassador, was merely routine ...' or those wonderful 550
 words when the old King died ... 'the King's life is moving peacefully towards its close ...'

ASSISTANT: 'The King's life is moving peacefully towards its close ...'
 CLIVE: Once more 'the King's life is moving peacefully towards its close ...' 555

ASSISTANT: [More effortless gravitas] 'The King's life is moving peacefully towards its close ...' That's nearer, isn't it?
 CLIVE: Yes, it was tinged with the tone, it was good.

ROBBIE enters.

ROBBIE: Well, I'm here. Don't ask me why. 560
 CLIVE: I think the other six news items can wait.
 ASSISTANT: [Jumping up] Absolutely, Mr Lynn-Thomas. I will go back to my normal duties now. That was a very good observation, thank you.

ROBBIE: Yes, he's good at observations! 565
 ASSISTANT: I'm sure Arnos will be impressed.
 CLIVE: Arnos?

- ASSISTANT: Oh, I mean Mr Grove. You know everybody calls him Arnos Grove, after the stop on the Piccadilly line, on the Underground. [Embarrassed] Sorry, shouldn't have mentioned that. (Very respectful) Thank you again. [He exits.] 570
- ROBBIE moving warily, a little closer.
- CLIVE: My assistant. They are selecting some standby newsreaders ... in case of problems ... he's having a go.
- ROBBIE: Will he have to dress up in the full garb, you know evening dress, stiff collar, even for the audition? 575
- CLIVE: Of course ... [Watching ROBBIE.] It's amazing, isn't it – the way this organisation behaves. It is only fifteen years old, and yet it has become an instant cathedral of broadcasting, managed to create all this sham venerability – so people have difficulty remembering a time when it didn't exist. 580
- ROBBIE: In reality it is so young, but in spirit – It's never been young?!
- Slight pause*
- CLIVE: Good. 585
- ROBBIE: [Grins] I get a 'good' ... [Moves] I got a 'good'! I've survived the first round.
- CLIVE looks across at him.
- CLIVE: At the start of any enterprise, between two comparative strangers, this is really one of the most difficult moments – this now ... isn't it? 590
- ROBBIE: Absolutely, I agree.
- CLIVE: When one doesn't know each other's tastes, opinions. [Slight pause] If I was to say for instance Henry James is the most compulsive story teller there has ever been, bar none, bar absolute none. Dickens is sentimental claptrap, not fit for grown-up consumption, and J.M.W. Turner couldn't paint for toffees ... [He turns.] What would be your reaction? 595
- Silence*
- ROBBIE: [Swallows] If you were to say that – I'd play for time definitely! [He moves.] Obviously. [Looks at CLIVE] But eventually I'd say – that remark you made, that was the most absolute complete rubbish I've ever heard. 600
- CLIVE: Right. I see. Good.
- ROBBIE: Another 'good' ...? Not quite such a big one. 605
- Pause*
- CLIVE: [Fingering the records carefully] Did you get that recording of my programme ... those records?
- ROBBIE: Yes.
- CLIVE: Did you listen to them? 610
- ROBBIE: Yes.
- CLIVE: Tell me absolutely frankly what you thought ... Holding back nothing.

- ROBBIE: I thought, without doubt ... it was the best programme that I'd ever heard about Friesian cows. 615
- CLIVE smiles.
- CLIVE: Good. I'm glad you thought so.
- ROBBIE: If you don't mind me asking – how much time did you spend on it?
- CLIVE: Oh, it was not too bad. About eight and a half months. 620
- ROBBIE: Eight and a half MONTHS! You're not serious – in that time –
- CLIVE: You've done a thousand medleys, I know. [He smiles.] The programme should have been at least twice as long of course.
- ROBBIE: But it was an hour long already!
- CLIVE: It would have been better at about two and a half hours. I 625 would have been able to include all the history. [Forcefully] And listeners would have stayed with it. I assure you.
- ROBBIE: Well I would have stayed. [Grins] I think.
- CLIVE: But you liked the form? The real farmers, going on location as they say – the shape, beginning with the sound of a calf 630 being born, the dark, surprisingly prolonged section in the slaughterhouse.
- ROBBIE: [Amused, but impressed] The form was good.
- CLIVE moves with records over to where gramophone is built into the wall. 635
- ROBBIE: Is that more of it there?
- CLIVE: No, [He smiles.] something even more interesting. [He turns, having put on record.] You know I said how little time all this has been here.
- The record starts, a woman's voice talking softly. 'I can't remember where it was, or when it was, but it went like this ...' She begins to sing a ballad.* 640
- ROBBIE: Yes. Why is this woman's voice important? Who is she? Was she here at the beginning? The very start of this place?
- CLIVE: No. It doesn't matter who she is – the fact is, she's already dead. 645
This person here is singing to us, not from beyond the grave, but while she's in her grave. Until very recently we couldn't hear people's voices after they were dead. Nothing remained. Their sound, their voices, had gone for ever. And now, in this very building – there is a whole room of the voices of the dead. 650
- ROBBIE: [Moves] I hadn't thought of it like that.
- CLIVE: We tend to forget how quickly we get used to ideas like that. [He stops the record.] And now, with the Abdication of the King, which the whole nation – apart from you – listened to. And with the Coronation about to happen – 655
- ROBBIE: [Suddenly] This is an essay in power you're giving me? ... Isn't it! An essay in the power of the instrument – It's an essay, with demonstrations!
- CLIVE: I'm not lecturing you, I hope.
- ROBBIE: No, no no. [Urgent] Tell me why I'm here, Clive! 660
- Pause*

- CLIVE: I had a radical thought while doing the Friesians ... that project was pure, of course. But –
- ROBBIE: Yes?
- CLIVE: I had an unprecedented thought for the next project – 665
- ROBBIE: Yes?!
- CLIVE: To use somebody from Entertainment, in a 'Talk'. Somebody who can sing and play many parts – to help both dramatise and document the world we're living in. Instead of doing a straightforward documentary or talk, we engage the listener from an unexpected direction. 670
- ROBBIE: That is a startling thought!
- CLIVE is about to continue.
- ROBBIE: Wait a moment, wait ...! [He moves, thinking] Entertainment colliding with the world of Talks! Me in a documentary! That is revolutionary! [He looks at CLIVE.] What is the subject? 675
- CLIVE: I thought the subject would be English apples.
- ROBBIE: [Stunned] English apples? Why?
- CLIVE: [Breezily] Evocative subject, moving from orchard to orchard, there are some wonderful stories behind certain kinds of apples, there's the Egremont Russet, the Laxton's Fortune, the Ellison's Orange. We take something seemingly simple and reveal its mysterious history – [He stops.] Does the principle appeal to you? 680
- ROBBIE: The principle certainly ... but – 685
- CLIVE: The principle appeals. Good! It will need careful handling through the bureaucracy here, of course. I will need to write a very lengthy proposal document.
- ROBBIE: Maybe the subject matter ... we could discuss a little further? Find an alternative ... ? 690
- ARNOS enters. He is a man of about fifty, with a large blustery manner, but flashes of beadiness coming through.
- ARNOS: Clive, just dropping by ... nothing formal.
- CLIVE: [Surprised] Mr Grove ...
- ARNOS: [Quick nod in the direction of ROBBIE, then back to CLIVE] I wanted to let you know – as soon as I heard – the paper, the one I asked you to write about the Empire Service, well, the Director-General is very pleased, very pleased indeed. 695
- CLIVE: [Carefully watching ARNOS] That's excellent news ...
- ARNOS: 'Elegant' and 'incisive' – those were some of the words being used, I believe. You usually come up trumps, don't you! 700
- CLIVE: [Sharp smile] That's very gratifying ... and all those reservations you had, were those noted and discussed?
- ARNOS: My reservations? ... [Blustery laugh] They can't have been very serious, can they – because they've already slipped the memory! Now – the Coronation. Got to help me out there, Clive – what we broadcast surrounding the Coronation ... many countries listening, got to be judged perfectly. New task, new paper! 705
- CLIVE: Fine. I'll start right away. 710
- ARNOS: Splendid. [He moves over to radio in wall and switches it on. Dance music pours out of it.] Just watch this – I want you to watch ... It's my party trick at the moment ... it's made an

- impression on everybody I've done it to so far. Are you listening carefully? ... It may not work today, of course. [He slowly starts twiddling the knob on radio.] So you move the dial – through all those squeaks and bumps ... never know what they are ... we're going into France now, we're in France. [The same dance music pours out.] You see ... and now we move the dial again – and here we are, not sure where we go next, I think this is Belgium ... and what do we have? ... [Same dance music pouring out] And then again with Germany ... and if we're lucky, if we're very lucky – [A snatch of German talk comes out of radio. ARNOS disappointed] No ... [A moment later, the same tune, but different arrangement bursts out. ARNOS turns, triumphant.] There! [Music playing] Isn't that interesting? – the same music everywhere! It's American of course, the tune –
- ROBBIE: It's called 'Laughing in the Night', [ARNOS turns.] the tune.
- ARNOS: Yes. Is it? Who are you? I don't think I know who you are.
- CLIVE: I'm sorry, I should have –
- ROBBIE: I'm Robbie Penacourt ... [ARNOS looks blank.] Robbie Penacourt ... from 'Friday Night At Eight'.
- ARNOS: Oh yes of course, of course.
- CLIVE: And this is Arnold Grove.
- ARNOS: Head of the Spoken Word. Pleased to meet you. Forgive me not recognising you ... but this is a very unusual encounter for me, somebody from the Entertainment Side.
- ROBBIE: Don't worry about it. [Grins] I'm used to it.
- ARNOS: [Staring at Robbie] I'm afraid I'm usually out on Friday nights ... Occasionally, I catch Inspector Bonnington, isn't it? Yes. I think that's good value, not quite as good as Inspector Hornleigh on Mondays, but you're right on his tail! [Moving off] Keep at it, keep it all going ...
- ROBBIE: [Suddenly] Can I ask you something?
- ARNOS turns, surprised.
- ARNOS: Yes. What is it?
- ROBBIE: If Mr Lynn-Thomas here – this is a revolutionary thought, Mr Grove ... But if he was to ask me to perform in a talk, to help dramatise that particular subject, either a historical matter or something happening now, if I was to sing songs and play people ... doing voices –
- CLIVE: In the documentary – to help people understand the topic.
- ROBBIE: To engage them from another direction! Would that be acceptable? In principle?
- Silence
- ARNOS: What a truly extraordinary notion.
- CLIVE: It is, yes – but that doesn't make it necessarily unwise.
- ARNOS: It's so radical – it goes beyond the revolutionary.
- ROBBIE: That's why it's exciting.
- ARNOS: [Moves] What would one call it? It's a very complicated idea for the listener, they could get confused between what is proper fact and what is entertainment.
- ROBBIE: Depends how one does it! But the principle is not ruled out? [He smiles.] Is it?
- ARNOS: It's an amazing proposal. [He moves.] I'll have to consider all aspects ... and of course refer it to others as well. [To CLIVE]

Further discussion will follow ... [He exits.]

ROBBIE: He didn't rule it out!

CLIVE: No.

ROBBIE: I hope you don't mind ... that I did that. 770

CLIVE: It took me by surprise ... [He moves thoughtfully.] but it was an excellent move.

ROBBIE: I thought I'd cut through everything. Smack him with it, when he was totally unprepared. You really don't mind?

CLIVE: [Smiles] No. It was very bold. You grabbed the chance. I approve. 775

BLACKOUT

Scene 4

Nightclub. The Night Out.

Dance music playing, as in a fashionable nightclub.

ISABEL in a rich evening gown, sitting on a high stool, holding a drink. ROBBIE sitting next to her a little distance between them, on another high stool. He also has a drink and is a little unsteady. He is in a dinner jacket, his bow tie askew. 780

ROBBIE: I think he's angry with me. I interfered when I shouldn't have.

ISABEL: He doesn't get angry easily...

ROBBIE: Why do I mind? I've only just met this man – and already I seem to want his approval. It's crazy! [He drinks.] I DON'T CARE [He drinks.] He forces you to care what he thinks, doesn't he ... he even gave me a sort of cultural test – which I failed miserably! ... And then I found myself worrying about it afterwards, all down the street ... ! 785

ISABEL: The Dickens versus Henry James test?

ROBBIE: That's the one.

ISABEL: He hates Henry James – [She smiles.] I expect you passed.

ROBBIE: Really? He talked to me about apples as well.

ISABEL: Now that I've never heard him do. 795

ROBBIE: And the funny thing is I'm from the country. I know all about apples. He thinks I'm a factory worker originally, I'm sure he does ... with machine oil coming out of my ears. Or a coal miner. All intellectuals think like that – if they know you're working class.

ISABEL: [Drinking] When in fact you were brought up in a field of cabbages? 800

ROBBIE: Nearly. Turnips. Near Swaffham, in Norfolk. My parents were farm labourers. As a boy I ran up and down behind them as they worked the fields. [Holds up hands] Horny hands of the soil.

ISABEL: [Warm, teasing smile] So you're a peasant really? 805

ROBBIE: Yes. I'm a country boy who came to the big city ... [He turns towards the music.] I hate this tune ... [He does one of his hand signals, towards the musicians, self-mocking smile.]

ISABEL: You're not on your show now – they're beyond your control.

ROBBIE: I have no influence now, away from my variety studio! [Staring at ISABEL in her evening dress] And what about you? I know nothing about you? 810

ISABEL: I thought you'd never ask!

ROBBIE: [Grins] Been waiting for my chance. What's your relationship with Clive ... been longing to ask that! 815

- ISABEL: That's not difficult. I love him.
- ROBBIE: Yes. Yes. I thought so. Are you going to get married?
- ISABEL: Maybe ... who knows.
- ROBBIE: And do you do anything else? I have a feeling you work at something. 820
- ISABEL: I observe.
- ROBBIE: Yes, I'd noticed that! I do too – when I remember.
- ISABEL: No, I observe professionally. When the King abdicated, various people got very interested in the reaction of the masses, in 'primitive reactions' as they were called. In measuring them scientifically. 825
- ROBBIE: Primitive reactions – I know all about those!
- ISABEL: Yes – so they recruited people to conduct surveys, into what the masses were really thinking – by sitting in pubs, standing in bus queues, being amongst them at the races. Mass observation. Noting everything down they saw and heard. [She smiles.] I do that. 830
- ROBBIE: Wait a minute – you're studying the masses by sitting in pubs, and listening to what they're saying as they play darts?!
- ISABEL: I write down what I see. 835
- ROBBIE: And then you draw conclusions! From what's happened in this one pub?! Those are their typical primitive reactions to such and such a subject? You can't be serious.
- ISABEL: I just collect evidence, I don't interpret it. [Smiles] Not yet anyway. 840
- ROBBIE: But I might walk into this pub ... and sing a burst of one of my medleys. Tell some jokes. What would that signify?
- ISABEL: [Laughs] No, you wouldn't be a very good subject ... No.
- ROBBIE: Why not?
- ISABEL: Because you make these ... these rather surprising leaps of thought ... between subjects. 845
- ROBBIE: How do you know that isn't typical? I may be a perfect example of a farm labourer's son ... [He drinks.] The whole thing's rubbish –
- ISABEL: It's not rubbish to try to work out for the first time what the mass of people are thinking, rather than just guessing – or not caring. 850
- ROBBIE: And all the time you're doing this, you have to blend in – don't you? In each pub, each bus stop ... [Staring at her in her splendid dress and her posh manner] That must be a little difficult for you.
- CLIVE enters with a drink, he is also in evening dress. 855
- CLIVE: No, she's very good at that ... she has chameleon-like qualities [Touching her briefly] – haven't you – that come as a real surprise.
- ISABEL: There you are ... [She smiles.] Tell Mr Penacourt what I do isn't rubbish. 860
- CLIVE: It certainly is not ...
- ISABEL: [To ROBBIE] He's using it for his work too.
- CLIVE: Yes ... she feeds me little pieces from time to time ... when she picks up something relevant ... And they're surprisingly interested in it at Broadcasting House. 865
- ISABEL: Before, they had absolutely no idea what their listeners thought of their programmes – the mass of the audience – the ones who would never dream of writing letters.
- CLIVE: No, we didn't. [He smiles.] But I got it right anyway – it seems!

- ROBBIE: [Grins, to ISABEL] So you become one of the masses?! [He mimics in cartoon cockney] ‘Cor blimey, luvly weather we’re ’aving, aren’t we, darling!’ [To ISABEL] Come on, do it for me ... I’d love to see you blending in ... 870
- ISABEL: No, no it’s not like that ... I just give off the right aura. [ROBBIE smiles.] No, I huddle, or bend my head, dress right, I don’t need to talk. [The music changes and she gets up.] Do you want to dance? Clive doesn’t dance. 875
- ROBBIE: No. I just dance professionally. [He drinks some more, looking at them both.] But I feel I’m being recruited for something. You are spies, the two of you! And you have targeted me ... we should be on a night train, going somewhere, with the blinds drawn! – shouldn’t we! 880
- CLIVE: Of course I have recruited you, [He smiles.] it goes without saying.
- ROBBIE: [Facing them] The thing is I don’t think it can possibly be just English apples, it’s not just apples. 885
- CLIVE: We’ll do the apples first, nice and simple –
- ROBBIE: No. I’m not that big a fool ... there is something else. You’re such a pure practitioner ... eight months on Friesian cows! – Using somebody like me ... it must be because you can’t do whatever it is you want to do any other way. [He gets up.] Oh, let it be more, Clive ... I want it to be more... [He moves to the music, dancing with ISABEL, but not holding her close.] I’m not dancing ... not in front of him ... this isn’t dancing. Let it be about America – because I know America well. Never been there but I think about America all the time ... let it be about America, Clive! You’ve been there lots, haven’t you? 890
- CLIVE: Yes ... I have paid fairly frequent visits. In fact, I wrote one of my first reports there on the harmful effects of advertising on broadcasting. 900
- ROBBIE: I can see you striding around New York, lecturing the Americans! Telling them ‘you’re too commercial!’ [He turns.] What is our real mission, Clive?
- CLIVE: How much have you been following, week by week, what’s going on in Europe? 905
- ROBBIE: Oh no – please. Not that ...! [He moves.] First apples, now this!
- CLIVE: Answer my question – how much have you been following?
- ROBBIE: Well, I open a newspaper from time to time ... and occasionally I glance at the bits about abroad. 910
- ISABEL: That’s more than most do.
- ROBBIE: And anyway Herr Hitler is too easy to do, everybody can do him. Admittedly he is not portrayed on the wireless – but you just have to click your heels and scream. [Grins] No challenge for somebody with instinctive structure!
- Music playing* 915
- CLIVE: And tell me – what about what’s happening to the Jews there? In Germany?
- ROBBIE: [Puzzled where this is leading] The Jews? Well, there are some restrictions, aren’t there, temporary things going on ... because of the rebuilding of Germany. 920

Pause

- CLIVE: So – this is our project. We will follow a day in the life of a Jewish man, a real day, a real man, though his name is changed. This is who you will be, Robbie. He is middle class, respectable, a lawyer, once a pillar of the community, who has also written some rather beautiful songs. We will follow him during a ‘normal day’ and see how many normal things he is prevented from doing, how many things we accept as our right have been taken away from him. And at the end of the day he is arrested. His liberty is taken away. You will portray this man and sing his songs. 925
- ROBBIE: [Very disappointed] No, Clive, no – that’s absolutely out! Nobody will listen to something like that for a start –
- CLIVE: They will. This is how to make them listen ...
- ROBBIE: They want to forget about any difficulties out there! And I don’t want to be involved in politics either. I’m not allowed to associate myself with that. I knew this would start to happen, the spinning of a left wing web, communism, you’ll have me fighting in Spain soon, and not just on the radio! 930
- ISABEL: Neither of us are communists, Robbie, that isn’t the issue.
- CLIVE: [To ROBBIE] Stop jumping to conclusions –
- ROBBIE: You’re the one who’s jumping to conclusions ... We don’t really know what’s going on in Germany, do we? We don’t! And all their attitudes are different there, anyway, and we can’t tell them what to do, can we?! It’s not for us to lecture them ... And we certainly don’t want to annoy them – ... the whole idea is preposterous. 935
- CLIVE: You’re contradicting yourself, Robbie – you wanted the project to be much much more than apples, and now you’re running away from it.
- ROBBIE: Oh, I am, am I! I’m sorry I’ve had about all I can take from you, I have been patronised from the first moment – informed I do my work by accident, despite myself! I’m encouraged to make a fool of myself on that television experiment, because you’re interested. 940
- ISABEL: That was worth it, wasn’t it, Robbie?
- ROBBIE: [Looking at both of them] Everything is so clear to you two, isn’t it?! – So blindingly obvious ... with your surveys, and all the time you have to spare on just one topic ... Well, I don’t have that time, and I DON’T CARE IF I DISAPPOINT. 945
- CLIVE: But I do.
- ROBBIE: What does that mean – that’s meaningless ... You care if I disappoint you – that’s A LIE. I’m just a crude entertainer, a compère, who sings a bit and dances a bit, and has everything written for him. That’s me ...! And he doesn’t care. And now I’m off. The useful clown, that you found, that you picked for your own purposes, is scampering off – to the rest of his life! Which is looking pretty good at the moment ... Pretty bloody good! 950

BLACKOUT

The Walk to the Station.

The sound of taxis and distant train doors slamming, as if from a mainline railway station. During this scene the sound of trains and whistles growing gradually louder and louder, until they completely surround us. 970

ROBBIE:	You really have to go?
BERNARD:	Yes. I must go. I have to go back – my life is there.
ROBBIE:	Yes, I know. [ He moves. ] In these last few minutes, Bernard – you must tell me what to do about Clive. [ Mimics ] Clive Lynn-Thomas. I can't get rid of him, he is pushing and pushing at me ... attacking my confidence all the time. But there's something so challenging about him as well. And he has such different values, he doesn't care about my show, what stars are on it ... [ Suddenly ] Which reminds me, I haven't heard if the Silver Minstrels are going to be on on Friday...	975
BERNARD:	[ With feeling ] To hell with the Silver Minstrels!
ROBBIE:	You're right. Here you are, going in a few minutes, and I'm talking about the Silver Minstrels!
	Pause for a second; as ROBBIE looks at BERNARD, the sound of the trains and the platform whistles become louder.	980
ROBBIE:	This is a shocking time to ask such a question ... but it is the sort of thing you often can only ask when somebody is about to leave. Not that I've ever asked a question like this before –
BERNARD:	What is it, Robbie?	990
ROBBIE:	The Baron Freier von Brandis ... it's such a fantastic name ...
BERNARD:	It's like something from the book, The Prisoner of Zenda ... I know.
ROBBIE:	Is it your real name? Are you the Baron Freier von Brandis?
BERNARD:	No. I'd like to say it's half my real name ... but it isn't. When I arrived at Woburn House, you know, where most aliens report in London, so many people were passing themselves off to each other with titles and funny names, I did so too. It's very useful for getting invited to parties, all sorts of things.	995
ROBBIE:	You're Jewish, aren't you?	1000
BERNARD:	Yes. [ Smiles ] That's correct.
ROBBIE:	I thought so ... I knew it. [ He looks at BERNARD. ] It's awful to ask this now too –
BERNARD:	Better to ask it, than to think about it after I've gone.
ROBBIE:	How difficult are things for Jewish people, in Germany now?	1005
BERNARD:	There are problems, of course there are. It isn't good. I find it a difficult question to answer in this country. Because a few people ask you ... and you start to tell them – and you quickly realise they really don't want to know ... perhaps only half a sentence at the most ...	1010
ROBBIE:	Yes, I know. I suppose I'm like that ...
BERNARD:	I tell you – I went to a very grand wedding in Buckinghamshire, with lots of people with names like Farquhar-Buzzard and Babbington-Semple, being a Baron was really useful, as you can imagine – 'You must know the von Stauffenbergs?' people kept asking me... .	1015
ROBBIE:	I wish I'd been there. [ He mimics in a foolish upper-class voice. ] As you passed yourself off as a Baron to the Mallenby-Deeleys – Erskine-Mars.
BERNARD:	Yes, you would have been very interested. There was an Italian waiter who shouted at all these upper-class guests [ He mimics an Italian accent. ] 'You're taking the wrong plate! Stop it at once! Stupido! I'm telling you get in the queue and wait for your strawberries.' They were terrified of him! I wanted to support him, to shout out, 'Go on, get after them!'	1020

ROBBIE: I love the idea.
 BERNARD: You were on the wireless, yes, [ROBBIE turns.] the night before, I was staying in this big house and they switched on the wireless and there you were.

ROBBIE: I was! That's a wonderful picture! All of them listening to me ... 1030
 BERNARD: But they switched you off – and went out.
 ROBBIE: [Loud] I really must get off Friday nights! Everybody goes out ...!
 If I was on Monday nights, I'd be coming out of every window, in every street.

Loud, piercing platform whistles 1035

ROBBIE: I'm sorry – I'm being incredibly self-centred ... absorbed in my show.

Another loud whistle

BERNARD: So – this is goodbye then. [He goes.]

ROBBIE: Goodbye ... [As the whistles blow, ROBBIE calls powerfully.] Be careful! Take care of yourself! 1040

BLACKOUT

Scene 6

Broadcasting House.

Clock ticking, after the shrill sound of the whistles. ASSISTANT and CLIVE together above the main set. 1045

ASSISTANT: [Very nervous] 'This is the National Programme, copyright reserved ...' Just clearing my throat.
 CLIVE: It will be all right, just a few slow deep breaths.
 ASSISTANT: I can't believe this has happened already, I've only just got the standby job, and now here I am ... and all those people listening ... 1050

CLIVE: They just hear the news, they don't see a face. That reassuring voice is what matters, be careful not to get too involved, that's all, too urgent – they don't want any immediacy. You're going into their living-rooms, they may even be eating ... they're used to the news being something far away. 1055

ASSISTANT: That's right. I know ... you think I can do it?
 CLIVE: Of course you can.
 ASSISTANT: I will always be grateful for this, Mr Lynn-Thomas. I shan't forget it.

Red light flicks on, above the main stage. ASSISTANT now alone, starts reading the news in perfect young BBC voice. 1060

ASSISTANT: 'This is the National Programme, copyright reserved. Here is the news summary and sports bulletins. They are followed by 'Friday Night at Eight', and then you will hear some stories of adventures at sea and on land. [Pause] Important changes in the German Cabinet are announced tonight, they affect principally two departments, that of War and Foreign Affairs.' 1065

- On stage MABS, DREDGE and the DANCING GIRLS stand waiting. DAPHNE and ROBBIE close to each other downstage.*
- ROBBIE: Promise me you are not upset. 1070
- DAPHNE: Why should I be upset?
- ROBBIE: Because I talked to him, I discussed things with him, without you present.
- DAPHNE: Why shouldn't you discuss things with him? He is a very rude man – but he's also highly intelligent and interesting. 1075
- ROBBIE: There's no question of me working with him ... spending days and days with him.
- DAPHNE: Well, I guessed you might feel like that.
- ROBBIE: And there's absolutely no question of me ever discussing things with him again – without you being there. 1080
- DAPHNE: That's good. That's reassuring.
- ROBBIE: We're a partnership. You are the structure of my whole life. [Holding her, warm smile] Aren't you, Daphne?! ... A partnership made in broadcasting heaven.
- DAPHNE: [Warm laugh] Speak for yourself! But I'm glad there will be no secrets between us. Nothing going on behind my back ... Everything involving us will be completely honest ... ? 1085
- ROBBIE: No secrets, ever. I swear –
- MILLY comes running on.
- DAPHNE: Enough chatting, forty-five seconds everybody! [She exits.] 1090
- ROBBIE: [Indicating DREDGE and the DANCING GIRLS] Don't they look beautiful?
- DREDGE: We always look beautiful! Fat lot of good it does.
- ROBBIE: [Grins] People can sense it, I'm sure, they can feel you breathing, you exude through the air. 1095
- MABS: [Studying his script] Inspector Bonnington is going to Windsor Great Park today ... to solve the Gravel Path murder. And Sergeant Ostler goes fishing ... [He mimics Bonnington.] 'Windsor Great Park, not an area I know particularly well ... why can't the local chaps see to it, Ostler?' [To ROBBIE] I catch two brown trout – and have to cook them for you! ... And you are jolly polite to a duke ... 1100
- ASSISTANT: [Reading the news above them] 'In an important speech in the Czechoslovak Parliament today, the Prime Minister Hodza refers to Herr Hitler's speech and to that of Field Marshall Goering ... 1105
- MILLY: [Looking up from her script] So it's Amsterdam today. And my tulip song!
- ROBBIE: [Listening to the news] His protégé is reading the news, and I'm going to be talking to Milly about tulips!
- MILLY: [Twittering on] I've had an approach, I have to tell you, from 'Monday Night at Eight'. You wouldn't mind me going on there, would you? Of course it's a great honour to be on your show, but they have a hook up to America once every six months ... if it was one of those shows, I couldn't turn it down – not broadcasting to America! 1110
- ROBBIE: You must accept, Milly, of course. [To himself, wistfully] A hook up to America ... 1115

The red light goes on, the music intro starts.

- ROBBIE: [Suddenly] What if we tear up this tulip chatter, and talk about something completely different, Milly, just see what happens. 1120
Where the mood takes us?
- MILLY: Don't play jokes like that, Robbie, please.
- The other red light flicks on.*
- ROBBIE: [Sings] It's 'Friday Night at Eight', and these are the delights we 1125 have in store. Milly Dews is here again.
- MILLY: [Reading] Hello, everyone. Hello, I'm back again from my travels.
- ROBBIE: [Improvising] Could be the last time, folks, Milly is here!
- MILLY looks startled.*
- ROBBIE: [Back on script] You've been to Amsterdam among the canals 1130 and the tulips?
- MILLY: [Reading] Well, Robbie, I was singing, if not in the tulips, then about the tulips. Red, red tulips. [She bursts into a couple of lines of the tulip song.] That's just one of the songs I brought back – for all of you – from old Amsterdam!
- BLACKOUT 1135
- MILLY continues to sing the tulip song during the scene change.*

Paper 1

May/June 2016

COPY OF PRE-RELEASE MATERIAL

2 hours 30 minutes

---

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

The questions in Paper 1 will be based on the stimuli and on the extract from Stephen Poliakoff's play Talk of the City provided in this booklet.

This clean copy of the material is for you to use in your responses.

This document consists of 28 printed pages.

STIMULI

Choose one of the following three stimuli and devise a piece of drama based on it. You should work in groups of between two and six performers. Your piece should last approximately 15 minutes.

In the Written examination, you will be asked questions about your piece that will cover both practical and theoretical issues.

Stimulus 1

Quotation: 'Neither a borrower nor a lender be'
From William Shakespeare's Hamlet [Act 1, Scene 3]

Stimulus 2

Poem: Me and My Work by Maya Angelou

I got a piece of a job on the waterfront.
Three days ain't hardly a grind.
It buys some beans and collard greens and pays the rent on time.
  'Course the wife works too.

Got three big children to keep in school,
need clothes and shoes on their feet, give them enough of the things they want and keep them out of the street.
  They've always been good.

My story ain't news and it ain't all sad.
There's plenty worse off than me.
Yet the only thing I really don't need is strangers' sympathy.
That's someone else's word for caring.

Stimulus 3

Photograph: Port Authority (Mystery No. 12), by Mac Adams (1975)

EXTRACT*Taken from Talk of the City by Stephen Poliakoff

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

Stephen Poliakoff's play Talk of the City was first performed by the Royal Shakespeare Company at Stratford-upon-Avon, England, in 1998.

The play is set in 1937, just before the start of the Second World War. It depicts the early years of broadcasting at the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC). On a lighthearted note, it shows the way that performers and announcers used to dress formally, even though they could not be seen on radio. There are also some more serious underlying historical themes. These include the rise of Hitler and the Nazis in Germany, the Spanish Civil War against fascism, and the constitutional crisis in Britain caused by the abdication of King Edward VIII. The play also hints at the reluctance of the BBC to report the mistreatment of Jews by the Nazis.

At that time, the BBC broadcast from its headquarters at Broadcasting House and also from Alexandra Palace (an exhibition centre), both in London.

The play is in two Acts, and the extract consists of a slightly shortened version of the first six scenes of Act 1.

Characters

Robbie	a radio-show host in his mid-thirties

Bernard	a Jewish actor from Germany, in his early twenties
Assistant	a trainee newsreader, in his twenties
Arnos (Arnold Grove)	Head of the Spoken Word at the BBC, aged about 50.
Dancing Girls

Act 1

The play opens in February 1937.

The Radio Show.

The back wall of the sound studio is flecked with Art Deco pieces that can shine at various stages in the play. The floor has a severely beautiful pattern on it, evocative and formal.

The bells. The Big Ben chimes before the news broadcast. We hear an educated voice, who starts to read the news. 5

VOICE-OVER: 'This is the National Programme. Copyright reserved.'
'Here is the news summary and sports bulletins. They are followed by 'Friday Night at Eight'. You will then hear something about an event in British air travel.' 10

The lights come up. The musicians come on and take their place followed by DREDGE – a young London woman in her early twenties – and two DANCING GIRLS. All three of them are in full costume. They stand waiting as other news items follow.

VOICE-OVER: 'Barcelona is reported to have been shelled by an unknown vessel today, very little damage was done and when the shore batteries opened fire the vessel went away.' 15

MABS enters, a man in his late fifties, large appearance with a soft, self-deprecating manner. He is holding a leather binder, and a small yellow suitcase. He stands waiting, taking his position at his microphone. The news continues. 20

VOICE-OVER: 'The insurgents claimed today to have captured various places near Malaga and to have taken prisoner some thousands of militiamen.'

ROBBIE enters. He is in his mid-thirties, dressed in full evening dress, his energetic appearance trapped in his immaculate radio clothes. He is also holding a leather folder. He stands with authority by the microphone. 25

ROBBIE: Turn down the news please ... [He turns to the musicians.]
Gentlemen, I have a new signal, watch, please. [He does a hand signal like a conductor.] It is for a slow dark tempo ... I'll show it to you once more ... you too, Dredge ... I'm calling it the skimmer. [He grins at DREDGE in her costume.] You look glorious. 30

DREDGE: [Laughs] Do I? Pity nobody else can see it, isn't it! 35

ROBBIE: But I can. [He grins.] Isn't that enough?

The news continues, half heard. DAPHNE enters, in her thirties, sharp, rather strict appearance but with a hint of something more playful underneath.

ROBBIE:	Seen the new sign?	40
DAPHNE:	I certainly have ... in moderation only please. Now, [ Tapping his script ] the words of your Parisian interview with Milly are quite complicated, I hope you've studied them – careful of trips, and no deviation.
ROBBIE:	[ Smiles ] Deviation, forbidden! Absolutely.	45
DAPHNE:	[ Handing him a folded note ] But there is a note for you – since I know you love last-minute surprises. Thirty seconds everybody.
	ROBBIE is reading the note.
DAPHNE:	It's rather aggressive, and self-important, isn't it?
ROBBIE:	It certainly is. [ Reading aloud ] 'I need to see you. Might be able to fit you in on Wednesday.' Who is he? I have never heard of him.	50
DAPHNE:	He's second or third down from Arnold Grove, Head of the Spoken Word.
ROBBIE:	Oh, he's from 'TALKS'! Of course – explains the deadly tone. [ He looks up. ] Is he here, do you think? Tucked away somewhere up there?	55
	MILLY DEWS comes running on to take her position, fragile, rather nervous manner, she stands near ROBBIE at the microphone.	60
DAPHNE:	There you are, Milly. Fifteen seconds everybody. [ Glancing round ] Mabs, remember.
MABS:	Yes, don't get my pages stuck together this time. My hands are nice and dry today. [ Places yellow suitcase at his feet ]
DAPHNE:	And the suitcase is the wrong colour [ She smiles. ] I don't like 'wireless lies', you know that. [ As she moves off, to ROBBIE ] To the back of your mind now ... the note.	65
	One of the big red lights on the set springs on. They are standing waiting, staring around and up, very respectful, well-behaved and formal, in their evening dress and costumes as the news swirls around them.	70
MABS:	It seems to get longer and longer the news, these days.
	The other red light flicks on. ROBBIE begins to sing, the girls dance when ROBBIE makes signs, the whole atmosphere is of people well-practised, at home in their world.	75
ROBBIE:	[ Singing ] IT'S 'FRIDAY NIGHT AT EIGHT', AND HERE WE ARE AGAIN.
MILLY:	[ Singing ] Here we are again.
ROBBIE:	And these are some of the delights we have in store.
	The musicians play, the girls dance. As ROBBIE alters the tempo with hand signals, there is a sharp dramatic change.	80
ROBBIE:	[ Spoken ] We have of course Inspector Bonnington of Scotland Yard, with a new mystery to solve. [ Assuming upper-class, understated, throwaway voice ] So Sergeant Ostler, where are you dragging me off to today?	85

MABS:	[ As Sergeant Ostler ] Well, sir, news has come in of a baffling murder ... in south London ... it's being called 'The Blue Suitcase Murder'.
ROBBIE:	[ As Bonnington ] You sure the local chaps can't handle it?
MABS:	[ As Ostler ] No, they're completely stumped ... it's definitely a case for our top detectives.	90
ROBBIE:	[ As Bonnington ] 'The Blue Suitcase Murder' ... Sounds a little over-dramatic to me. I suppose we better go over there and nose around. [ Sings ] IT'S 'FRIDAY NIGHT AT EIGHT', AND THESE ARE SOME OF THE DELIGHTS WE HAVE IN STORE.	95
	[ Spoken ] The girls are dancing, the music changes because we are delighted to welcome back Milly Dews.
MILLY:	Hello, hello, everyone.
ROBBIE:	Milly, you've been very busy, haven't you?
MILLY:	[ Reading from script ] Very busy, Robbie.	100
ROBBIE:	[ Reading ] You've been to Paris since we last saw you?
MILLY:	[ Reading ] That's right. Wonderful Paris, croissants, a trip down the Seine, and some marvellous music. [ She sings a lyric in French. ] [ Spoken ] I brought back a song or two for those at home to enjoy.	105
ROBBIE:	Milly has been collecting songs like she collects hats. She brings a whiff of the continent to our shows, a taste of WHAT'S ABROAD. [ Sings ] It's 'Friday Night at Eight' and these are some of the delights we have in store. [ He looks up, makes his hand signals, the music darkens, he speaks with surprising intensity. ]	110
	And Mr Tudor Baines will be here to give us an extract from his current success here in London, 'Dark Waters'. The scene is a rusty old cargo boat, moored in a dangerous port, bobbing slowly on dark waters. [ The music plays, ROBBIE connects with the mystery, with feeling. ] The water is thick with debris, foul smelling and full of secrets. You may wake up still thinking about these chilling events tomorrow morning.	115
ALL:	[ Singing loudly ] IT'S 'FRIDAY NIGHT AT EIGHT', AND THESE ARE THE DELIGHTS WE HAVE IN STORE.
	The music continues as MABS, DREDGE, the DANCING GIRLS and MILLY exit. ROBBIE stops the music abruptly with a hand signal, the red lights snap off, the musicians leave, the lights change on stage. ROBBIE sits in the middle of the stage and starts taking his shoes and socks off.	120
ROBBIE:	[ Muttering intensely to himself ] The rhythm wasn't right.	125
	DAPHNE enters.
DAPHNE:	A taste of the continent. [ ROBBIE looks up. ] It should have been just a taste of the continent, not a whiff . And you plopped in that phrase about abroad – it came from nowhere.
ROBBIE:	[ Smiles ] Unforgivable.	130
DAPHNE:	Of course. The approved text is paramount – as you well know.
ROBBIE:	[ Amused but respectful ] Don't worry – it will always be paramount.
	The DANCING GIRLS and DREDGE come back on, still in costume but soaked with sweat. MABS follows them, looking like he's given his all.	135

- ROBBIE: [To DAPHNE] But what about THE SHOW?
 DAPHNE: The broadcast ... it was not bad.
 ROBBIE: It's never the show – she always calls it the broadcast!
 DAPHNE: And you should be pleased I do. But there were lapses. The 'Dark Waters' introduction was a little intense. 140
- ROBBIE: I didn't deviate!
 DAPHNE: No – but you dwelt ... things got a little disorganised around there –
 CLIVE: I noticed. 145
- They turn. CLIVE has entered and is standing on the edge of the area. He has sharp features, natural authority and is elegantly dressed. He is in his thirties.*
- ROBBIE: You noticed did you? And who might you be?
 DAPHNE: I think this must be the author of your note, Robbie. 150
 CLIVE: Clive Lynn-Thomas and yes, I sent you a note. I need to see you.
 ROBBIE: [Startled by his confident manner] You wanted an appointment, did you? We'll have to look in the book and see where I can fit you in. [Indicating DAPHNE who's holding a ledger] It will be at least a fortnight. 155
- DAPHNE: At least ...
 CLIVE: I think it would be much better if it was right now.
 ROBBIE: You do, do you! Well, that's impossible.
 CLIVE: [Indicating ledger] Then keep looking.
 DAPHNE: The only possibility I can see in the next three weeks, is the day they've asked you to appear on television ... you know this television enterprise. 160
- ROBBIE: No, I'm not doing that. Nobody who's anybody appears on that! But I have other plans for that time. [DAPHNE turns page, ROBBIE looking at CLIVE] I told you it wouldn't be easy ... [He moves.] So what else did you 'notice' while you were up there ... did you have a good time?
 CLIVE: A good time? No. It's not the expression I'd use.
 DREDGE: It's not, is it!
 ROBBIE: [Dangerous grin] I think certain expressions are occurring to us, aren't they. Obviously we don't draw the great stars like those that appear on 'Monday Night at Eight' we all know that – but this was a good show – 165
- MABS: You must have got wrapped up in Inspector Bonnington's investigation, surely? 175
 CLIVE: [Calmly] No, that was embarrassing.
- ROBBIE turns startled.
- CLIVE: I've never understood why all wireless detectives have to talk out of the corners of their mouths like that – and never get excited.
 ROBBIE: [Dangerous smile] Because that's what they do. And I always get my man, don't I, as you may have noticed. 180
 DREDGE: [Pugnacious] He always gets the murderer.
 ROBBIE: [Moving] Now I think you've already overstayed your welcome ... so if you'd excuse us ...
- CLIVE: [Calmly] But you do something unique in your show. 185
 ROBBIE: Unique! Do I? And what is that?
 CLIVE: You have a medley at the start telling the audience what is coming up – which nobody else does. A totally novel feature,

- something unique. The show itself is mere fluff of course, the usual variety items and Victorian melodrama – and that tedious Bonnington. But the medley is interesting. You move from light to dark, and you stay on the dark longer than expected, not afraid to linger. 190
You show an instinctive sense of structure.
- They are all staring at him.* 195
- CLIVE: Yes, really.
I call it ‘instinctive’, because I have no idea if you realise you are doing it or not. [He smiles.] But there we are. [To DAPHNE] Found a time yet?
- ROBBIE: I’m off. It’s incredible, isn’t it! Can you believe this character! Get him out of here. [He exits.] 200
- DAPHNE: I rather feel you’re going to have to wait to see us. [She exits with MABS.]
- CLIVE calmly takes out cigarette case.
- DREDGE: [Astonished] You can’t smoke here. Nobody can smoke in this building. Ever. You know that. 205
- CLIVE: Don’t worry.
- DREDGE: You mean you’re above the rules! Are they all as bad as you in TALKS?
- CLIVE: Oh, most of them are far worse. No they are. [He smiles at her.] Hard to believe, I know. 210
- ROBBIE re-enters, standing barefoot.
- ROBBIE: I forgot my shoes. [He walks over slowly to get them.] ‘Instinctive sense of structure’, indeed!
- CLIVE: You may think it’s ridiculous. But you do have it. 215
- ROBBIE picks up his shoes.
- CLIVE: You should go and do this television experiment you know.
- ROBBIE: Really? What on earth for?
- CLIVE: Because it’ll be interesting. It’s a terrible journey of course, miles away in north London, but it can’t fail to be worth a look. 220
- ROBBIE: I can’t go.
- CLIVE: Why not?
- ROBBIE: I have things to do – I’m buying an umbrella, for the Coronation.
- CLIVE: The Coronation isn’t till May.
- ROBBIE: It’s important I’m prepared. I missed the Abdication speech, that great moment. When everybody, the whole nation was sitting round the wireless set. And you know why, why I wasn’t listening? Because I had to study my script for my interview with Milly Dews the next day. I had to study for our ‘spontaneous’ chat. [He looks at CLIVE.] Did you hear it? 225
- CLIVE: [Smoking] Your interview with Milly?
- ROBBIE: No, the Abdication speech.
- CLIVE: Well, I sort of had to ... I helped draft the speech.
- ROBBIE: You did what!
- CLIVE: I gave my notes to our Director-General, Sir John Reith, and he incorporated them into the text with the King. 235

ROBBIE:	[ Truly startled ] You helped write the speech!?
CLIVE:	I'm afraid so.
ROBBIE:	[ Recovering ] Well, no wonder this world here ... the world of variety is a bit of a shock to you! If that's how you spend your time!	240
CLIVE:	No, no, no shock. It's been fascinating. [ Moving to exit, he turns. ] And we will definitely have that time together.
	ROBBIE looks at DREDGE.
DREDGE:	What a snob!	245
ROBBIE:	[ Moving ] Yes ... he dares give me advice ...! Instinctive structure ... we don't realise what we're doing ... it's all an accident ... he gives me instructions! [ He stops in the middle of the stage. ] I'm definitely going to buy the umbrella.
	BLACKOUT	250

Alexandra Palace.

In the blackout, the screams of a trumpeting young elephant, and the deeper urgent, throaty grunts of a young rhino.

ISABEL standing alone for a second as the sounds fade away. She is in her thirties, fashionably dressed. She has a witty, unpredictable manner. She is drinking tea out of a badly chipped cup. The floor is sprinkled with animal droppings.

Upstage the only prop is a single, rather sinister-looking original television camera.

HONKER, a very enthusiastic rather innocent man in his mid-twenties, comes rushing on with a broom.

260

HONKER: Just got to get rid of these last traces ... then the smell will go as well [He starts sweeping the droppings up.] or at least nobody will know what it is, which is just as good.

ISABEL: I rather like the smell. It's most unexpected – like being at the circus.

HONKER: Well, you know radio people, they can be a little grand.

ISABEL: I certainly do know – and you're right, I'm not sure they're used to performing surrounded by rhino droppings.

HONKER: [Sweeping dung] Rhino and elephant droppings in this case.

270

ISABEL: They're late, aren't they?

HONKER: Oh, everyone is always late coming here! Which is useful today! [He rushes off to get dustpan.]

ISABEL: [Amused, staring at droppings which are now in a pile] I won't offer to do anything – because you seem to have it under control.

275

ROBBIE sweeps in, in a good suit, fine new shoes and overcoat.

ROBBIE: I'm late. I hate being late. The others are just coming. It's miles,

- it's like travelling to the moon getting here! [Moving around] And I can't believe the smell – that has got to go.
- ISABEL: They had a baby elephant and a baby rhino here. They both got stuck in the lift apparently, poor things. 280
- ROBBIE: Snakes, they didn't have any snakes, did they?
- ISABEL: I believe they had one or two snakes yes.
- ROBBIE: That could be it! I can see the camera staring at a dead snake for half an hour for one of those interludes they're so fond of! 285
Anyway now show me to our dressing rooms please ...
- ISABEL: No. [ROBBIE turns, surprised] I'm sorry I don't work here. I'm a friend of Clive Lynn-Thomas, I'm meeting him here.
- ROBBIE: So there are two of you now! Popping up to watch me perform. [He looks across at her standing by the droppings.] You know I never thought I'd meet a friend of Clive's standing next to a pile of dung. 290
- ISABEL: You know Clive well?
- ROBBIE: I met him once – for a few minutes.
- ISABEL: [Lightly] I see. Well, first impressions are pretty accurate when talking about Clive. [She smiles.] But I'm not sure you really know him yet. 295
- HONKER enters, greeting ROBBIE.
- HONKER: There you are! Hello, I'm Harry Wallace. People, I'm afraid, call me Honker ... so feel free ... [ROBBIE about to speak] It's because I honk out all the time apparently, 'marvellous, marvellous, marvellous'. So ... [He gets down on his knees, sweeping up dung.] It's marvellous to see you. 300
- ROBBIE: It's ... interesting to be here.
- The whole entourage enter. DREDGE, and the DANCING GIRLS, all three dressed in fur coats, and their finest show costumes. MABS is in a splendid coat, top hat and cane as if for a wedding. DAPHNE is in her working clothes and holding a large notebook.* 305
- ROBBIE: We're complete. 310
- HONKER: [HONKER turns and stares at the stunningly dressed group, the women looking gorgeous.] What a wonderful sight!
- DREDGE: We thought so ... [Showing off her costume, under her coat] we made a real effort.
- HONKER: It's marvellous to see you. It's a feast ... for the eyes. Clearly. But I just want to say, and I say this very reluctantly, and I realise the stupidity of it all, but we can't allow wireless costumes on television. We're not permitted to do that. 315
- Silence*
- ISABEL: That's idiotic. 320
- DREDGE: We can't be seen like this?! We haven't got anything else to wear.
- MABS: It doesn't seem to me, to make total sense ...
- ROBBIE: But nobody has ever seen them when they dress up on the radio! These girls have never been seen by anybody. They're totally unknown, completely fresh. You must make an exception. 325
- DREDGE: Nobody has ever seen us dance.

- HONKER: I know I know, it's senseless. But there's trouble for me if I break these regulations. It's all to do with budgets and departments and money – and other ludicrous things. 330
- DREDGE and the other girls stare back at him.
- DREDGE: [Very quiet] You mean there's no possibility at all that we can be seen?
- HONKER is rushing off.
- DAPHNE: [To ROBBIE] I told you they probably couldn't appear. I warned you. You can be seen, because you're being yourself. 335
- ROBBIE: [Startled] I'm being myself?
- HONKER comes back with a small table.
- HONKER: But there are freedoms here. Other freedoms, I like to think. Our show, 'Trafalgar Square', that's what we call it, has real people. People we found in Trafalgar Square, normal people, like the man who cleans Nelson's Column. And a typical tourist, a foreigner's impression of London. [Breezily to ROBBIE] You've seen the scripts? They're simple, aren't they. When you read the interviews, look up every other sentence, up down, up down, and look at the interviewee. You'll get the knack! Ready? [He exits.] 340
- ROBBIE: [Taking scripts out of pocket, nervous laugh] Ought to be able to do this, meeting everyday folk, good working-class boy like me. 345
- DREDGE, MABS, the DANCING GIRLS and ISABEL move towards exit. 350
- DREDGE: We could have appeared as ourselves.
- ISABEL: [Lightly] You will. Somewhere. And without the smell.
- DAPHNE takes ROBBIE's overcoat off and exits. HONKER re-enters with two chairs. 355
- HONKER: It'll soon be seven o'clock. Hang on tight. [He exits.]
- The lights changing, focus on the small table and the camera.*
- ROBBIE: At least I managed to bring my own musicians. [He does his hand signals. Music starts. He moves to table, puts the scripts in front of him. Stands for a second alone. To himself] Remember you're appearing as yourself ... [He sits facing us.] 360
- HONKER: [Voice from above, hushed.] Ten, marvellous, nine, marvellous, eight, marvellous, seven six five, marvellous, four incredible, three two terrific, one, marvellous. Zero. [His voice booms out as ROBBIE prepares himself in front of us.] Ladies and gentlemen we welcome you to the British Broadcasting television service, broadcasting from Alexandra Palace, London, and it is our pleasure to present 'Trafalgar Square'. 365
- ROBBIE: [ROBBIE looks up.] Hello I'm ... [He hesitates for a second.] I'm Robbie Penacourt ... and this is 'Trafalgar Square' ... [ROBBIE does his hand signals, the music drops and changes.] 370

- HONKER: [From above] Oh dear – I forgot to warn him about his hand signals.
- ROBBIE: [Does signal, music stops] And the first person we're going to meet this evening is Mr Robin Tucker who is the person that cleans Nelson's Column. [Pause, nobody enters, ROBBIE glances around at the script.] I think he cleans Nelson himself, the actual figure of Nelson, right at the top of the column. [Nobody enters.] 375
- HONKER: [Off] Go on, go on, go on. We're having a problem with Tucker. Do the paragraph about where we are. 380
- ROBBIE: So ... while we're waiting for Mr Tucker. [He shuffles papers.] I'm Robbie Penacourt ... I'm appearing tonight as myself. [He does hand signal, low music, and finds the right page] Maybe you'd like to picture where we are, we're in the great crumbling Alexandra Palace, a vast old building of exhibition halls, high above London. [He improvises.] And it's absolutely miles from the centre! 385
- HONKER: [Off] Back on to script two ... we have the next person, script two! Everything is back on track. 390
- BERNARD enters, heads for the table and the pool of light. ROBBIE holds up his hand very formally and stops BERNARD. ROBBIE is shuffling his papers wildly. He stands up, starting the music again with signals, and then beckons to the camera, instinctively responding to the technology. 395
- ROBBIE: Bring the camera forward ... closer, closer ... point it at the chair! [To audience] We're having a moment's Interlude now, ladies and gentlemen ... THE CHAIR.
- He walks up to BERNARD in the shadows. BERNARD is a dark-haired, short, good-looking young man in his early twenties. 400
- ROBBIE: [Lowering his voice] Who are you?
BERNARD: I'm the Baron Freiher von Brandis.
ROBBIE: You're the typical tourist? ... I don't think – I don't think I can find your script. For the interview. And it may not look good if we share. 405
- BERNARD: [Confident, unfazed] That's all right, is it not? [He slips his script in his pocket.] We could just try to talk.
- ROBBIE: Without a script? How would we? We wouldn't know what's going to happen ... [He looks at BERNARD.] If we do ... what about?
- BERNARD: About the city, this great English city that I'm in. That's why I'm here. 410
- ROBBIE moves back to table and into light with BERNARD. ROBBIE stops the music with signals, sits in chair.
- ROBBIE: This is the end of the interlude now. You're watching 'Trafalgar Square'. And now we meet, this is the Baron Frei ... Frei – 415
- BERNARD: The Baron Freiher von Brandis.
- ROBBIE: He is a tourist ... a foreign eye. [He looks at BERNARD, smiles] and we're trying to talk ... about ... London, the centre of this country and the Empire ... [Suddenly] So was it much grubbier than you expected, when you first saw it? 420
- BERNARD: [Unfazed] Yes, it is a dirty city, quite quite dirty, but also, I tell you

- what I think, it is a great warren, a city afraid to show itself, to declare itself.
- ROBBIE: You mean it's full of secrets? That's right, you're right, Baron. [To audience] In fact, in a few weeks, maybe here in 'Trafalgar Square' there will be the secrets of London ... who knows, look out for it! Right here on 'Trafalgar Square'. 425
- BERNARD: And I will tell you something else, and this is very interesting – the day I arrived, just a few months ago, on a train coming from the white cliffs of Dover, and I'm from Leipzig, a quite dark city at the depth of winter, and it is night now, and I'm looking out of the window of my train, as we enter London – and I couldn't believe my eyes. The whole city is shining! I thought this is the most amazingly bright, well-lit city I've ever seen. All of it is revealed. It is like day! 430
- ROBBIE: [Excited, moving in his seat, jumping in] I know what you're going to say! I know what's coming! ... It was the night the Crystal Palace burnt down, last year wasn't it? When it lit up the whole of London as it burnt. Wasn't it?! 435
- BERNARD: Yes. Correct! 440
- ROBBIE: What an amazing night to arrive, in a foreign city! Your first night fresh from Europe and you're greeted by that!
- BERNARD: Yes, the sky was completely red.
- ROBBIE: It was, and you could see everything and everybody so brightly. All the couples out walking arm in arm, or kissing in corners, every nook was lit up! It was so un-English. [He starts the music with a signal. To audience] I wish I could tell you some of the things I saw that night ... saw people do ... things even I had never seen before! [He lifts hand to make the music louder. He cuts the music dead and the lights change.] 445
- ROBBIE moves around stage incandescent. BERNARD stands. HONKER and DAPHNE run on.
- ROBBIE: I have never, NEVER ever been so embarrassed ... in my whole life. This is one of the worst moments. I cannot believe how amateur this outfit is. [He moves.] I make no apologies for being a radio beast ... I will be monstrous. If I have to. That was a disgrace. 455
- DAPHNE: [Trying to calm him] It wasn't too bad, Robbie – honestly, you survived ... it wasn't that embarrassing.
- ROBBIE: It was a shambles ... no wonder television is a laughing stock. 460
- HONKER: It was a roller coaster. Heart-in-the-mouth stuff, I had no idea what was going to come out next.
- ROBBIE: It was an outrage.
- CLIVE: It was fine.
- CLIVE is entering with ISABEL. He is calm, and elegantly dressed. 465
- ROBBIE: So you are here!
- CLIVE: Absolutely. I told you I would be. [He moves.] No, it was a shock to hear something so unprepared ... probably the only time that's ever happened, either here or at Broadcasting House. 470
- DAPHNE: That may well be true. [DAPHNE makes notes in her large ledger.]
- ROBBIE: [Serious] It really was fine? Are you sure? [Then turns] I don't know why I'm asking him!

CLIVE:	Yes – it was like watching a traffic accident.	475
ROBBIE:	[ Stops ] What? I thought you said it was OK?
CLIVE:	[ Calmly continuing ] In the sense that it's unrepeatable – that element of surprise ... it just happened.
HONKER:	Unrepeatable – an unrepeatable accident. But worth seeing!
CLIVE:	It had danger.	480
ISABEL:	[ Lightly ] And what's more hardly anybody is watching so it doesn't matter what happens here. The rest of the world couldn't care a hoot.
HONKER:	Yes, sadly only two thousand people have televisions ...
BERNARD:	Yes – that is what I am thinking. That is why I enjoyed it so much.	485
	They all turn and look at him.
ROBBIE:	You were very good, Baron, very good indeed. I couldn't have done it without you.
BERNARD:	Thank you. Yes I was thinking the following while it was happening ... For one reason or another, because of charitable work my family is concerned with in Germany, I have been seeing a lot of refugees over there, aliens, you know how they are followed and policed and checked up on. [ He laughs. ] I was thinking – the only place I have felt I wasn't being watched recently, was just now on television! Yes! [ He smiles. ] A very good sense of being free from prying eyes!	490
	ROBBIE watches him, carefully intrigued.
CLIVE:	The other significant feature of course is – there's no record. What happens here has already disappeared into the ether. There's nothing to say it ever took place.	500
ROBBIE:	Thank God for that!
HONKER:	Come on, everybody, let's go to the Dive! [ To ROBBIE ] That's where I put your entourage – it's our little hut, where we're allowed to drink. [ He grins. ] Which is marvellous! Come on, let's celebrate.	505
DAPHNE:	I'm not sure that's the word I'd use – celebrate the fact that Robbie is still in one piece perhaps. [ She exits. ]
BERNARD:	An excellent idea. [ He follows. ]
ROBBIE:	I will join you.
	BERNARD stops. They look at each other.	510
ROBBIE:	Don't run away. You were superb. [ He turns back. ] As for you two ... there's something a bit sinister about you being here. What are you up to?
CLIVE:	What are we up to?
ROBBIE:	Yes. That's right ... Why are you studying me like this?	515
ISABEL:	[ Emollient ] He has something to put to you –
CLIVE:	[ Rather grandly ] Yes. I want you –
ISABEL:	[ Softening it ] He has a request –
CLIVE:	I want you to –
ISABEL:	He would like you –	520
CLIVE:	[ Ignoring this ] I want you to come and work for me.
ROBBIE:	[ Very startled ] Work for you?!
CLIVE:	That's correct.

Silence, ROBBIE staring at CLIVE

ROBBIE: I don't follow. I'm just a song and dance man. 525
 CLIVE: Precisely. [Pause]
 ROBBIE: I don't understand ... [Holds up hand and moves] No! I don't want to hear! I'm going to the Dive. Right now! Where I belong!

BLACKOUT

Scene 3

Broadcasting House. 530

A young man's voice starts reading in the educated BBC tone, but a little over-eager.

VOICE-OVER: 'In the House of Commons this afternoon the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs was asked whether he had seen Herr Hitler's recent assurances about the neutrality of Holland and Belgium. 535
 Lord Cranbourne replied that he did not think that the position resulting from Herr Hitler's statement a week ago was clear enough for him to say anything on the matter.'

*We see the ASSISTANT, a young man in his twenties dressed in similar suit to CLIVE, modelling his appearance on him. The ASSISTANT is reading the news sitting on a chair, while CLIVE
 moves around him listening.* 540

ASSISTANT: [Looks up at Clive] Was that all right?
 CLIVE: It was excellent ... but if you want to sound exactly like the original, you need the slight reassurance in the voice – that 545
 everything is all right in the world really, that these great matters
 are in careful hands.

ASSISTANT: Oh yes of course, I should do that.
 CLIVE: [Reassuring tones] 'The meeting with Herr von Ribbentrop, the German Ambassador, was merely routine ...' or those wonderful 550
 words when the old King died ... 'the King's life is moving peacefully towards its close ...'

ASSISTANT: 'The King's life is moving peacefully towards its close ...'
 CLIVE: Once more 'the King's life is moving peacefully towards its close ...' 555

ASSISTANT: [More effortless gravitas] 'The King's life is moving peacefully towards its close ...' That's nearer, isn't it?
 CLIVE: Yes, it was tinged with the tone, it was good.

ROBBIE enters.

ROBBIE: Well, I'm here. Don't ask me why. 560
 CLIVE: I think the other six news items can wait.
 ASSISTANT: [Jumping up] Absolutely, Mr Lynn-Thomas. I will go back to my normal duties now. That was a very good observation, thank you.

ROBBIE: Yes, he's good at observations! 565
 ASSISTANT: I'm sure Arnos will be impressed.
 CLIVE: Arnos?

- ASSISTANT: Oh, I mean Mr Grove. You know everybody calls him Arnos Grove, after the stop on the Piccadilly line, on the Underground. [Embarrassed] Sorry, shouldn't have mentioned that. (Very respectful] Thank you again. [He exits.] 570
- ROBBIE moving warily, a little closer.
- CLIVE: My assistant. They are selecting some standby newsreaders ... in case of problems ... he's having a go.
- ROBBIE: Will he have to dress up in the full garb, you know evening dress, stiff collar, even for the audition? 575
- CLIVE: Of course ... [Watching ROBBIE.] It's amazing, isn't it – the way this organisation behaves. It is only fifteen years old, and yet it has become an instant cathedral of broadcasting, managed to create all this sham venerability – so people have difficulty remembering a time when it didn't exist. 580
- ROBBIE: In reality it is so young, but in spirit – It's never been young?!
- Slight pause*
- CLIVE: Good. 585
- ROBBIE: [Grins] I get a 'good' ... [Moves] I got a 'good'! I've survived the first round.
- CLIVE looks across at him.
- CLIVE: At the start of any enterprise, between two comparative strangers, this is really one of the most difficult moments – this now ... isn't it? 590
- ROBBIE: Absolutely, I agree.
- CLIVE: When one doesn't know each other's tastes, opinions. [Slight pause] If I was to say for instance Henry James is the most compulsive story teller there has ever been, bar none, bar absolute none. Dickens is sentimental claptrap, not fit for grown-up consumption, and J.M.W. Turner couldn't paint for toffees ... [He turns.] What would be your reaction? 595
- Silence*
- ROBBIE: [Swallows] If you were to say that – I'd play for time definitely! [He moves.] Obviously. [Looks at CLIVE] But eventually I'd say – that remark you made, that was the most absolute complete rubbish I've ever heard. 600
- CLIVE: Right. I see. Good.
- ROBBIE: Another 'good' ...? Not quite such a big one. 605
- Pause*
- CLIVE: [Fingering the records carefully] Did you get that recording of my programme ... those records?
- ROBBIE: Yes.
- CLIVE: Did you listen to them? 610
- ROBBIE: Yes.
- CLIVE: Tell me absolutely frankly what you thought ... Holding back nothing.

- ROBBIE: I thought, without doubt ... it was the best programme that I'd ever heard about Friesian cows. 615
- CLIVE smiles.
- CLIVE: Good. I'm glad you thought so.
- ROBBIE: If you don't mind me asking – how much time did you spend on it?
- CLIVE: Oh, it was not too bad. About eight and a half months. 620
- ROBBIE: Eight and a half MONTHS! You're not serious – in that time –
- CLIVE: You've done a thousand medleys, I know. [He smiles.] The programme should have been at least twice as long of course.
- ROBBIE: But it was an hour long already!
- CLIVE: It would have been better at about two and a half hours. I 625 would have been able to include all the history. [Forcefully] And listeners would have stayed with it. I assure you.
- ROBBIE: Well I would have stayed. [Grins] I think.
- CLIVE: But you liked the form? The real farmers, going on location as they say – the shape, beginning with the sound of a calf 630 being born, the dark, surprisingly prolonged section in the slaughterhouse.
- ROBBIE: [Amused, but impressed] The form was good.
- CLIVE moves with records over to where gramophone is built into the wall. 635
- ROBBIE: Is that more of it there?
- CLIVE: No, [He smiles.] something even more interesting. [He turns, having put on record.] You know I said how little time all this has been here.
- The record starts, a woman's voice talking softly. 'I can't remember where it was, or when it was, but it went like this ...' She begins to sing a ballad.* 640
- ROBBIE: Yes. Why is this woman's voice important? Who is she? Was she here at the beginning? The very start of this place?
- CLIVE: No. It doesn't matter who she is – the fact is, she's already dead. 645
This person here is singing to us, not from beyond the grave, but while she's in her grave. Until very recently we couldn't hear people's voices after they were dead. Nothing remained. Their sound, their voices, had gone for ever. And now, in this very building – there is a whole room of the voices of the dead. 650
- ROBBIE: [Moves] I hadn't thought of it like that.
- CLIVE: We tend to forget how quickly we get used to ideas like that. [He stops the record.] And now, with the Abdication of the King, which the whole nation – apart from you – listened to. And with the Coronation about to happen – 655
- ROBBIE: [Suddenly] This is an essay in power you're giving me? ... Isn't it! An essay in the power of the instrument – It's an essay, with demonstrations!
- CLIVE: I'm not lecturing you, I hope.
- ROBBIE: No, no no. [Urgent] Tell me why I'm here, Clive! 660
- Pause*

- CLIVE: I had a radical thought while doing the Friesians ... that project was pure, of course. But –
- ROBBIE: Yes?
- CLIVE: I had an unprecedented thought for the next project – 665
- ROBBIE: Yes?!
- CLIVE: To use somebody from Entertainment, in a 'Talk'. Somebody who can sing and play many parts – to help both dramatise and document the world we're living in. Instead of doing a straightforward documentary or talk, we engage the listener from an unexpected direction. 670
- ROBBIE: That is a startling thought!
- CLIVE is about to continue.
- ROBBIE: Wait a moment, wait ...! [He moves, thinking] Entertainment colliding with the world of Talks! Me in a documentary! That is revolutionary! [He looks at CLIVE.] What is the subject? 675
- CLIVE: I thought the subject would be English apples.
- ROBBIE: [Stunned] English apples? Why?
- CLIVE: [Breezily] Evocative subject, moving from orchard to orchard, there are some wonderful stories behind certain kinds of apples, there's the Egremont Russet, the Laxton's Fortune, the Ellison's Orange. We take something seemingly simple and reveal its mysterious history – [He stops.] Does the principle appeal to you? 680
- ROBBIE: The principle certainly ... but – 685
- CLIVE: The principle appeals. Good! It will need careful handling through the bureaucracy here, of course. I will need to write a very lengthy proposal document.
- ROBBIE: Maybe the subject matter ... we could discuss a little further? Find an alternative ... ? 690
- ARNOS enters. He is a man of about fifty, with a large blustery manner, but flashes of beadiness coming through.
- ARNOS: Clive, just dropping by ... nothing formal.
- CLIVE: [Surprised] Mr Grove ...
- ARNOS: [Quick nod in the direction of ROBBIE, then back to CLIVE] I wanted to let you know – as soon as I heard – the paper, the one I asked you to write about the Empire Service, well, the Director-General is very pleased, very pleased indeed. 695
- CLIVE: [Carefully watching ARNOS] That's excellent news ...
- ARNOS: 'Elegant' and 'incisive' – those were some of the words being used, I believe. You usually come up trumps, don't you! 700
- CLIVE: [Sharp smile] That's very gratifying ... and all those reservations you had, were those noted and discussed?
- ARNOS: My reservations? ... [Blustery laugh] They can't have been very serious, can they – because they've already slipped the memory! Now – the Coronation. Got to help me out there, Clive – what we broadcast surrounding the Coronation ... many countries listening, got to be judged perfectly. New task, new paper! 705
- ARNOS: Splendid. [He moves over to radio in wall and switches it on. Dance music pours out of it.] Just watch this – I want you to watch ... It's my party trick at the moment ... it's made an

- impression on everybody I've done it to so far. Are you listening carefully? ... It may not work today, of course. [He slowly starts twiddling the knob on radio.] So you move the dial – through all those squeaks and bumps ... never know what they are ... we're going into France now, we're in France. [The same dance music pours out.] You see ... and now we move the dial again – and here we are, not sure where we go next, I think this is Belgium ... and what do we have? ... [Same dance music pouring out] And then again with Germany ... and if we're lucky, if we're very lucky – [A snatch of German talk comes out of radio. ARNOS disappointed] No ... [A moment later, the same tune, but different arrangement bursts out. ARNOS turns, triumphant.] There! [Music playing] Isn't that interesting? – the same music everywhere! It's American of course, the tune –
- ROBBIE: It's called 'Laughing in the Night', [ARNOS turns.] the tune.
- ARNOS: Yes. Is it? Who are you? I don't think I know who you are.
- CLIVE: I'm sorry, I should have –
- ROBBIE: I'm Robbie Penacourt ... [ARNOS looks blank.] Robbie Penacourt ... from 'Friday Night At Eight'.
- ARNOS: Oh yes of course, of course.
- CLIVE: And this is Arnold Grove.
- ARNOS: Head of the Spoken Word. Pleased to meet you. Forgive me not recognising you ... but this is a very unusual encounter for me, somebody from the Entertainment Side.
- ROBBIE: Don't worry about it. [Grins] I'm used to it.
- ARNOS: [Staring at Robbie] I'm afraid I'm usually out on Friday nights ... Occasionally, I catch Inspector Bonnington, isn't it? Yes. I think that's good value, not quite as good as Inspector Hornleigh on Mondays, but you're right on his tail! [Moving off] Keep at it, keep it all going ...
- ROBBIE: [Suddenly] Can I ask you something?
- ARNOS turns, surprised.
- ARNOS: Yes. What is it?
- ROBBIE: If Mr Lynn-Thomas here – this is a revolutionary thought, Mr Grove ... But if he was to ask me to perform in a talk, to help dramatise that particular subject, either a historical matter or something happening now, if I was to sing songs and play people ... doing voices –
- CLIVE: In the documentary – to help people understand the topic.
- ROBBIE: To engage them from another direction! Would that be acceptable? In principle?
- Silence
- ARNOS: What a truly extraordinary notion.
- CLIVE: It is, yes – but that doesn't make it necessarily unwise.
- ARNOS: It's so radical – it goes beyond the revolutionary.
- ROBBIE: That's why it's exciting.
- ARNOS: [Moves] What would one call it? It's a very complicated idea for the listener, they could get confused between what is proper fact and what is entertainment.
- ROBBIE: Depends how one does it! But the principle is not ruled out? [He smiles.] Is it?
- ARNOS: It's an amazing proposal. [He moves.] I'll have to consider all

- aspects ... and of course refer it to others as well. [To CLIVE]
Further discussion will follow ... [He exits.]
- ROBBIE: He didn't rule it out!
- CLIVE: No.
- ROBBIE: I hope you don't mind ... that I did that. 770
- CLIVE: It took me by surprise ... [He moves thoughtfully.] but it was an excellent move.
- ROBBIE: I thought I'd cut through everything. Smack him with it, when he was totally unprepared. You really don't mind?
- CLIVE: [Smiles] No. It was very bold. You grabbed the chance. I approve. 775

BLACKOUT

Scene 4

Nightclub. The Night Out.

Dance music playing, as in a fashionable nightclub.

- ISABEL in a rich evening gown, sitting on a high stool, holding a drink. ROBBIE sitting next to her a little distance between them, on another high stool. He also has a drink and is a little unsteady. He is in a dinner jacket, his bow tie askew. 780
- ROBBIE: I think he's angry with me. I interfered when I shouldn't have.
- ISABEL: He doesn't get angry easily...
- ROBBIE: Why do I mind? I've only just met this man – and already I seem to want his approval. It's crazy! [He drinks.] I DON'T CARE [He drinks.] He forces you to care what he thinks, doesn't he ... he even gave me a sort of cultural test – which I failed miserably! ... And then I found myself worrying about it afterwards, all down the street ... ! 790
- ISABEL: The Dickens versus Henry James test?
- ROBBIE: That's the one.
- ISABEL: He hates Henry James – [She smiles.] I expect you passed.
- ROBBIE: Really? He talked to me about apples as well.
- ISABEL: Now that I've never heard him do. 795
- ROBBIE: And the funny thing is I'm from the country. I know all about apples. He thinks I'm a factory worker originally, I'm sure he does ... with machine oil coming out of my ears. Or a coal miner. All intellectuals think like that – if they know you're working class.
- ISABEL: [Drinking] When in fact you were brought up in a field of cabbages? 800
- ROBBIE: Nearly. Turnips. Near Swaffham, in Norfolk. My parents were farm labourers. As a boy I ran up and down behind them as they worked the fields. [Holds up hands] Horny hands of the soil.
- ISABEL: [Warm, teasing smile] So you're a peasant really? 805
- ROBBIE: Yes. I'm a country boy who came to the big city ... [He turns towards the music.] I hate this tune ... [He does one of his hand signals, towards the musicians, self-mocking smile.]
- ISABEL: You're not on your show now – they're beyond your control.
- ROBBIE: I have no influence now, away from my variety studio! [Staring at ISABEL in her evening dress] And what about you? I know nothing about you? 810
- ISABEL: I thought you'd never ask!
- ROBBIE: [Grins] Been waiting for my chance. What's your relationship with Clive ... been longing to ask that! 815

- ISABEL: That's not difficult. I love him.
- ROBBIE: Yes. Yes. I thought so. Are you going to get married?
- ISABEL: Maybe ... who knows.
- ROBBIE: And do you do anything else? I have a feeling you work at something. 820
- ISABEL: I observe.
- ROBBIE: Yes, I'd noticed that! I do too – when I remember.
- ISABEL: No, I observe professionally. When the King abdicated, various people got very interested in the reaction of the masses, in 'primitive reactions' as they were called. In measuring them scientifically. 825
- ROBBIE: Primitive reactions – I know all about those!
- ISABEL: Yes – so they recruited people to conduct surveys, into what the masses were really thinking – by sitting in pubs, standing in bus queues, being amongst them at the races. Mass observation. Noting everything down they saw and heard. [She smiles.] I do that. 830
- ROBBIE: Wait a minute – you're studying the masses by sitting in pubs, and listening to what they're saying as they play darts?!
- ISABEL: I write down what I see. 835
- ROBBIE: And then you draw conclusions! From what's happened in this one pub?! Those are their typical primitive reactions to such and such a subject? You can't be serious.
- ISABEL: I just collect evidence, I don't interpret it. [Smiles] Not yet anyway. 840
- ROBBIE: But I might walk into this pub ... and sing a burst of one of my medleys. Tell some jokes. What would that signify?
- ISABEL: [Laughs] No, you wouldn't be a very good subject ... No.
- ROBBIE: Why not?
- ISABEL: Because you make these ... these rather surprising leaps of thought ... between subjects. 845
- ROBBIE: How do you know that isn't typical? I may be a perfect example of a farm labourer's son ... [He drinks.] The whole thing's rubbish –
- ISABEL: It's not rubbish to try to work out for the first time what the mass of people are thinking, rather than just guessing – or not caring. 850
- ROBBIE: And all the time you're doing this, you have to blend in – don't you? In each pub, each bus stop ... [Staring at her in her splendid dress and her posh manner] That must be a little difficult for you.
- CLIVE enters with a drink, he is also in evening dress. 855
- CLIVE: No, she's very good at that ... she has chameleon-like qualities [Touching her briefly] – haven't you – that come as a real surprise.
- ISABEL: There you are ... [She smiles.] Tell Mr Penacourt what I do isn't rubbish. 860
- CLIVE: It certainly is not ...
- ISABEL: [To ROBBIE] He's using it for his work too.
- CLIVE: Yes ... she feeds me little pieces from time to time ... when she picks up something relevant ... And they're surprisingly interested in it at Broadcasting House. 865
- ISABEL: Before, they had absolutely no idea what their listeners thought of their programmes – the mass of the audience – the ones who would never dream of writing letters.
- CLIVE: No, we didn't. [He smiles.] But I got it right anyway – it seems!

- ROBBIE: [Grins, to ISABEL] So you become one of the masses?! [He mimics in cartoon cockney] ‘Cor blimey, luvly weather we’re ’aving, aren’t we, darling!’ [To ISABEL] Come on, do it for me ... I’d love to see you blending in ... 870
- ISABEL: No, no it’s not like that ... I just give off the right aura. [ROBBIE smiles.] No, I huddle, or bend my head, dress right, I don’t need to talk. [The music changes and she gets up.] Do you want to dance? Clive doesn’t dance. 875
- ROBBIE: No. I just dance professionally. [He drinks some more, looking at them both.] But I feel I’m being recruited for something. You are spies, the two of you! And you have targeted me ... we should be on a night train, going somewhere, with the blinds drawn! – shouldn’t we! 880
- CLIVE: Of course I have recruited you, [He smiles.] it goes without saying.
- ROBBIE: [Facing them] The thing is I don’t think it can possibly be just English apples, it’s not just apples. 885
- CLIVE: We’ll do the apples first, nice and simple –
- ROBBIE: No. I’m not that big a fool ... there is something else. You’re such a pure practitioner ... eight months on Friesian cows! – Using somebody like me ... it must be because you can’t do whatever it is you want to do any other way. [He gets up.] Oh, let it be more, Clive ... I want it to be more... [He moves to the music, dancing with ISABEL, but not holding her close.] I’m not dancing ... not in front of him ... this isn’t dancing. Let it be about America – because I know America well. Never been there but I think about America all the time ... let it be about America, Clive! You’ve been there lots, haven’t you? 890
- CLIVE: Yes ... I have paid fairly frequent visits. In fact, I wrote one of my first reports there on the harmful effects of advertising on broadcasting. 900
- ROBBIE: I can see you striding around New York, lecturing the Americans! Telling them ‘you’re too commercial!’ [He turns.] What is our real mission, Clive?
- CLIVE: How much have you been following, week by week, what’s going on in Europe? 905
- ROBBIE: Oh no – please. Not that ...! [He moves.] First apples, now this!
- CLIVE: Answer my question – how much have you been following?
- ROBBIE: Well, I open a newspaper from time to time ... and occasionally I glance at the bits about abroad. 910
- ISABEL: That’s more than most do.
- ROBBIE: And anyway Herr Hitler is too easy to do, everybody can do him. Admittedly he is not portrayed on the wireless – but you just have to click your heels and scream. [Grins] No challenge for somebody with instinctive structure!
- Music playing* 915
- CLIVE: And tell me – what about what’s happening to the Jews there? In Germany?
- ROBBIE: [Puzzled where this is leading] The Jews? Well, there are some restrictions, aren’t there, temporary things going on ... because of the rebuilding of Germany. 920

Pause

- CLIVE: So – this is our project. We will follow a day in the life of a Jewish man, a real day, a real man, though his name is changed. This is who you will be, Robbie. He is middle class, respectable, a lawyer, once a pillar of the community, who has also written some rather beautiful songs. We will follow him during a ‘normal day’ and see how many normal things he is prevented from doing, how many things we accept as our right have been taken away from him. And at the end of the day he is arrested. His liberty is taken away. You will portray this man and sing his songs. 925
- ROBBIE: [Very disappointed] No, Clive, no – that’s absolutely out! Nobody will listen to something like that for a start –
- CLIVE: They will. This is how to make them listen ...
- ROBBIE: They want to forget about any difficulties out there! And I don’t want to be involved in politics either. I’m not allowed to associate myself with that. I knew this would start to happen, the spinning of a left wing web, communism, you’ll have me fighting in Spain soon, and not just on the radio! 930
- ISABEL: Neither of us are communists, Robbie, that isn’t the issue.
- CLIVE: [To ROBBIE] Stop jumping to conclusions –
- ROBBIE: You’re the one who’s jumping to conclusions ... We don’t really know what’s going on in Germany, do we? We don’t! And all their attitudes are different there, anyway, and we can’t tell them what to do, can we?! It’s not for us to lecture them ... And we certainly don’t want to annoy them – ... the whole idea is preposterous. 935
- CLIVE: You’re contradicting yourself, Robbie – you wanted the project to be much much more than apples, and now you’re running away from it.
- ROBBIE: Oh, I am, am I! I’m sorry I’ve had about all I can take from you, I have been patronised from the first moment – informed I do my work by accident, despite myself! I’m encouraged to make a fool of myself on that television experiment, because you’re interested. 940
- ISABEL: That was worth it, wasn’t it, Robbie?
- ROBBIE: [Looking at both of them] Everything is so clear to you two, isn’t it?! – So blindingly obvious ... with your surveys, and all the time you have to spare on just one topic ... Well, I don’t have that time, and I DON’T CARE IF I DISAPPOINT. 945
- CLIVE: But I do.
- ROBBIE: What does that mean – that’s meaningless ... You care if I disappoint you – that’s A LIE. I’m just a crude entertainer, a compère, who sings a bit and dances a bit, and has everything written for him. That’s me ...! And he doesn’t care. And now I’m off. The useful clown, that you found, that you picked for your own purposes, is scampering off – to the rest of his life! Which is looking pretty good at the moment ... Pretty bloody good! 950

BLACKOUT

The Walk to the Station.

The sound of taxis and distant train doors slamming, as if from a mainline railway station. During this scene the sound of trains and whistles growing gradually louder and louder, until they completely surround us. 970

ROBBIE:	You really have to go?
BERNARD:	Yes. I must go. I have to go back – my life is there.
ROBBIE:	Yes, I know. [ He moves. ] In these last few minutes, Bernard – you must tell me what to do about Clive. [ Mimics ] Clive Lynn-Thomas. I can't get rid of him, he is pushing and pushing at me ... attacking my confidence all the time. But there's something so challenging about him as well. And he has such different values, he doesn't care about my show, what stars are on it ... [ Suddenly ] Which reminds me, I haven't heard if the Silver Minstrels are going to be on on Friday...	975 980
BERNARD:	[ With feeling ] To hell with the Silver Minstrels!
ROBBIE:	You're right. Here you are, going in a few minutes, and I'm talking about the Silver Minstrels!
	Pause for a second; as ROBBIE looks at BERNARD, the sound of the trains and the platform whistles become louder.	985
ROBBIE:	This is a shocking time to ask such a question ... but it is the sort of thing you often can only ask when somebody is about to leave. Not that I've ever asked a question like this before –
BERNARD:	What is it, Robbie?	990
ROBBIE:	The Baron Freiher von Brandis ... it's such a fantastic name ...
BERNARD:	It's like something from the book, The Prisoner of Zenda ... I know.
ROBBIE:	Is it your real name? Are you the Baron Freiher von Brandis?
BERNARD:	No. I'd like to say it's half my real name ... but it isn't. When I arrived at Woburn House, you know, where most aliens report in London, so many people were passing themselves off to each other with titles and funny names, I did so too. It's very useful for getting invited to parties, all sorts of things.	995
ROBBIE:	You're Jewish, aren't you?	1000
BERNARD:	Yes. [ Smiles ] That's correct.
ROBBIE:	I thought so ... I knew it. [ He looks at BERNARD. ] It's awful to ask this now too –
BERNARD:	Better to ask it, than to think about it after I've gone.
ROBBIE:	How difficult are things for Jewish people, in Germany now?	1005
BERNARD:	There are problems, of course there are. It isn't good. I find it a difficult question to answer in this country. Because a few people ask you ... and you start to tell them – and you quickly realise they really don't want to know ... perhaps only half a sentence at the most ...	1010
ROBBIE:	Yes, I know. I suppose I'm like that ...
BERNARD:	I tell you – I went to a very grand wedding in Buckinghamshire, with lots of people with names like Farquhar-Buzzard and Babbington-Semple, being a Baron was really useful, as you can imagine – 'You must know the von Stauffenbergs?' people kept asking me... .	1015
ROBBIE:	I wish I'd been there. [ He mimics in a foolish upper-class voice. ] As you passed yourself off as a Baron to the Mallenby-Deeleys – Erskine-Mars.
BERNARD:	Yes, you would have been very interested. There was an Italian waiter who shouted at all these upper-class guests [ He mimics an Italian accent. ] 'You're taking the wrong plate! Stop it at once! Stupido! I'm telling you get in the queue and wait for your strawberries.' They were terrified of him! I wanted to support him, to shout out, 'Go on, get after them!'	1020 1025

ROBBIE: I love the idea.
 BERNARD: You were on the wireless, yes, [ROBBIE turns.] the night before, I was staying in this big house and they switched on the wireless and there you were.

ROBBIE: I was! That's a wonderful picture! All of them listening to me ... 1030
 BERNARD: But they switched you off – and went out.
 ROBBIE: [Loud] I really must get off Friday nights! Everybody goes out ...!
 If I was on Monday nights, I'd be coming out of every window, in every street.

Loud, piercing platform whistles 1035

ROBBIE: I'm sorry – I'm being incredibly self-centred ... absorbed in my show.

Another loud whistle

BERNARD: So – this is goodbye then. [He goes.]

ROBBIE: Goodbye ... [As the whistles blow, ROBBIE calls powerfully.] Be careful! Take care of yourself! 1040

BLACKOUT

Scene 6

Broadcasting House.

Clock ticking, after the shrill sound of the whistles. ASSISTANT and CLIVE together above the main set. 1045

ASSISTANT: [Very nervous] 'This is the National Programme, copyright reserved ...' Just clearing my throat.
 CLIVE: It will be all right, just a few slow deep breaths.
 ASSISTANT: I can't believe this has happened already, I've only just got the standby job, and now here I am ... and all those people listening ... 1050

CLIVE: They just hear the news, they don't see a face. That reassuring voice is what matters, be careful not to get too involved, that's all, too urgent – they don't want any immediacy. You're going into their living-rooms, they may even be eating ... they're used to the news being something far away. 1055

ASSISTANT: That's right. I know ... you think I can do it?
 CLIVE: Of course you can.
 ASSISTANT: I will always be grateful for this, Mr Lynn-Thomas. I shan't forget it.

Red light flicks on, above the main stage. ASSISTANT now alone, starts reading the news in perfect young BBC voice. 1060

ASSISTANT: 'This is the National Programme, copyright reserved. Here is the news summary and sports bulletins. They are followed by 'Friday Night at Eight', and then you will hear some stories of adventures at sea and on land. [Pause] Important changes in the German Cabinet are announced tonight, they affect principally two departments, that of War and Foreign Affairs.' 1065

- On stage MABS, DREDGE and the DANCING GIRLS stand waiting. DAPHNE and ROBBIE close to each other downstage.*
- ROBBIE: Promise me you are not upset. 1070
- DAPHNE: Why should I be upset?
- ROBBIE: Because I talked to him, I discussed things with him, without you present.
- DAPHNE: Why shouldn't you discuss things with him? He is a very rude man – but he's also highly intelligent and interesting. 1075
- ROBBIE: There's no question of me working with him ... spending days and days with him.
- DAPHNE: Well, I guessed you might feel like that.
- ROBBIE: And there's absolutely no question of me ever discussing things with him again – without you being there. 1080
- DAPHNE: That's good. That's reassuring.
- ROBBIE: We're a partnership. You are the structure of my whole life. [Holding her, warm smile] Aren't you, Daphne?! ... A partnership made in broadcasting heaven.
- DAPHNE: [Warm laugh] Speak for yourself! But I'm glad there will be no secrets between us. Nothing going on behind my back ... Everything involving us will be completely honest ... ? 1085
- ROBBIE: No secrets, ever. I swear –
- MILLY comes running on.
- DAPHNE: Enough chatting, forty-five seconds everybody! [She exits.] 1090
- ROBBIE: [Indicating DREDGE and the DANCING GIRLS] Don't they look beautiful?
- DREDGE: We always look beautiful! Fat lot of good it does.
- ROBBIE: [Grins] People can sense it, I'm sure, they can feel you breathing, you exude through the air. 1095
- MABS: [Studying his script] Inspector Bonnington is going to Windsor Great Park today ... to solve the Gravel Path murder. And Sergeant Ostler goes fishing ... [He mimics Bonnington.] 'Windsor Great Park, not an area I know particularly well ... why can't the local chaps see to it, Ostler?' [To ROBBIE] I catch two brown trout – and have to cook them for you! ... And you are jolly polite to a duke ... 1100
- ASSISTANT: [Reading the news above them] 'In an important speech in the Czechoslovak Parliament today, the Prime Minister Hodza refers to Herr Hitler's speech and to that of Field Marshall Goering ... 1105
- MILLY: [Looking up from her script] So it's Amsterdam today. And my tulip song!
- ROBBIE: [Listening to the news] His protégé is reading the news, and I'm going to be talking to Milly about tulips!
- MILLY: [Twittering on] I've had an approach, I have to tell you, from 'Monday Night at Eight'. You wouldn't mind me going on there, would you? Of course it's a great honour to be on your show, but they have a hook up to America once every six months ... if it was one of those shows, I couldn't turn it down – not broadcasting to America! 1110
- ROBBIE: You must accept, Milly, of course. [To himself, wistfully] A hook up to America ... 1115

The red light goes on, the music intro starts.

- ROBBIE: [Suddenly] What if we tear up this tulip chatter, and talk about something completely different, Milly, just see what happens. 1120
Where the mood takes us?
- MILLY: Don't play jokes like that, Robbie, please.
- The other red light flicks on.*
- ROBBIE: [Sings] It's 'Friday Night at Eight', and these are the delights we 1125 have in store. Milly Dews is here again.
- MILLY: [Reading] Hello, everyone. Hello, I'm back again from my travels.
- ROBBIE: [Improvising] Could be the last time, folks, Milly is here!
- MILLY looks startled.*
- ROBBIE: [Back on script] You've been to Amsterdam among the canals 1130 and the tulips?
- MILLY: [Reading] Well, Robbie, I was singing, if not in the tulips, then about the tulips. Red, red tulips. [She bursts into a couple of lines of the tulip song.] That's just one of the songs I brought back – for all of you – from old Amsterdam!
- BLACKOUT 1135
- MILLY continues to sing the tulip song during the scene change.*

Paper 1

May/June 2016

PRE-RELEASE MATERIAL

To be given to candidates on receipt by the Centre.

---

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

The questions in Paper 1 will be based on the stimuli and on the extract from Stephen Poliakoff's play City Sugar provided in this booklet.

You may do any preparatory work that is considered appropriate. It is recommended that you perform the extract, at least informally.

You will not be permitted to take this copy of the material or any other notes or preparation into the examination. A clean copy of the pre-release material will be provided with the Question Paper.

---

This document consists of 27 printed pages and 1 blank page.

STIMULI

Choose one of the following three stimuli and devise a piece of drama based on it. You should work in groups of between two and six performers. Your piece should last approximately 15 minutes.

In the Written examination, you will be asked questions about your piece that will cover both practical and theoretical issues.

Stimulus 1

Quotation: 'Some rise by sin, and some by virtue fall'
From William Shakespeare's Measure for Measure [Act 2, Scene 1]

Stimulus 2

Poem: On Aging by Maya Angelou

When you see me sitting quietly,
Like a sack left on the shelf,
Don't think I need your chattering.
I'm listening to myself.
Hold! Stop! Don't pity me!
Hold! Stop your sympathy!
Understanding if you got it,
Otherwise I'll do without it!

When my bones are stiff and aching,
And my feet won't climb the stair,
I will only ask one favor:
Don't bring me no rocking chair.

When you see me walking, stumbling,
Don't study and get it wrong.
'Cause tired don't mean lazy
And every goodbye ain't gone.
I'm the same person I was back then,
A little less hair, a little less chin,
A lot less lungs and much less wind.
But ain't I lucky I can still breathe in.

EXTRACT*Taken from City Sugar, by Stephen Poliakoff

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

This version of Stephen Poliakoff's play City Sugar was first performed in 1976. The action takes place in three locations: a radio studio at 'Leicester Sound' (a fictional local commercial radio station); at the frozen foods counter of a supermarket called Lipton's; and in Nicola's bedroom. Leicester is an industrial city in the English Midlands, two hours' travel from London.

The central character is Leonard Brazil, a small-town disc-jockey (DJ) with big aspirations. However, he is increasingly disillusioned with his job of trying to create an artificial world of glamour and excitement for his young – and mainly female – audience.

The play is in two Acts. The extract consists of a shortened version of Act 1.

Playwright's note

It is important that Leonard's style as a disc-jockey is not too transatlantic, but his own special blend of relaxed charm, sudden fluent bursts of energy, and barbed comment. He is totally in control of his medium, and his actions round his desk and controls should suggest a master disc-jockey.

The tension inside him which explodes later in the extract should build up gradually, both on and off the microphone – his considerable charm in the first scene, both to his audience and to Rex, getting progressively more and more sour, until eventually it becomes savage.

However, he never allows himself to over-step the mark completely when he is on the air, even in his huge speeches at the end of the first Act.

Characters

Leonard Brazil	A disc-jockey at Leicester Sound. In his mid to late thirties, extremely polished appearance, but dresses stylishly rather than ultra-fashionably. Considerable natural charm, even when being aggressive.
Rex	21 years old, a mixture of eager awkwardness and cockiness. He has a likeable naïve manner.
Nicola Davies	16 years old. Totally flat voice, but a very determined manner underneath the quiet, completely blank exterior.
Susan	16 years old, extremely volatile.
John	A small shiny man, in his late fifties, totally accepting manner; tidy, neat, completely dedicated to his job.
Mick	17 years old, shy, overjoyed to be working where he is.
Angela	Caller to Leonard Brazil's radio show.
Rita	Caller to Leonard Brazil's radio show.
Jim	Caller to Leonard Brazil's radio show.
Ross	Member of pop group.
Fat Man's voice	Supermarket security man.

ACT 1

Scene 1

The studio at Leicester Sound. LEONARD BRAZIL is sitting at the record desk. REX is in the engineer's box. A pop record fades over a blackout.

LEONARD:	[Into the microphone] Welcome back to the LB show ... LB – the two most important initials in the country. LB on five hundred and fifty waves – that's a lot of water. [Loud] Five hundred and fifty medium waves! [Smiles] Sorry. 'You can do better than that, Brazil.' 'Yes Boss.' In a few minutes we have something for you, something special. [Beginning to open letters on the turn-table desk] I have a few letters in front of me – I've been struggling to open. I have one from Mrs Lee, Mrs D. Lee, saying that did I know there was now an excellent restaurant in this fine city of ours, and its name is The Aubergine. And now, the lovely, the scintillating, the mind-expanding Lynsey De Paul. [Over the beginning of the record, which he has switched on] Nobody need fear – Lynsey De Paul is here ... [He turns a switch, after a few bars so that the music now plays silently while the record goes round; he drops his pen onto the desk, pause] That was terrible. [He flicks the intercom to speak to REX in the box.] That was a real stinker. A loosener – and a very loose loosener at that. [Pause, he continues to the intercom] Come in here ... [Pause, louder into the intercom] Get yourself in here, right now! REX enters behind him.	5 10 15 20 25
REX:	I'm here.
LEONARD:	That's better.
REX:	I've brought a drink.
LEONARD:	How kind ... [Slight smile] Trying to placate me are you? ... What is it?	30
REX:	Lime juice; it's a free sample of one of the commercials we're carrying this week.
LEONARD:	It looks like a congealed shampoo. [He puts it to one side. Suddenly staring at REX; loud] Now, why haven't you filled these up?	35
REX:	I was going to.
LEONARD:	Going to! Everybody keeps on telling me how efficient you are, how fortunate I am to have you. I have yet to notice. Go and do these now. [LEONARD hands REX sheets of record titles to be filled in.] I warn you, it's a particularly grisly lot. [Smiles] I seem to have played pap for an entire week – might as well have stuck the stylus into cotton wool. [REX moves slightly] And why hasn't my mail been checked ...	40
REX:	[Embarrassed] Sorry, I ... By the way – I've left an item there – [He indicates the desk.] – you might like.	45
LEONARD:	You have, have you? Worse and worse, Rex ... You're having a good day, aren't you? [Smiles] I don't like suggestions very much, you should know that by now.
REX:	Yeah but I thought – you could ... I wanted ...
LEONARD:	No! [He turns suddenly to the microphone, turns on the record over the monitor speakers and fades it down.] That	50 was Miss De Paul. I'm now struggling with another letter on pink paper – it's from Mrs Joan Parsons saying 'Dear Leonard, Is it true or false that you were a teacher in another life?' Well, now, I don't know about another life, Joan, but I was in this one, yes. I trained as a teacher as it happens, before I slipped into the record business, and when all that went up in a puff of smoke, I slipped back into the classroom, until of course I heard the call of Leicester Sound. I thought that everybody knew that, Joan. [Smiles] A joke. And a note here from a theatre group calling itself the Gracious Players, saying, could I give a free plug to their production of the late Dame Agatha Christie's Towards Zero on Saturday at the Town Hall, Hinckley, which seats one thousand five hundred people. No wonder they wanted their free mention. And I'm now being handed by the ever-dependable Rex, a piece of paper on which is written 'DON'T FORGET'. And if you don't know what that means, I do, and I'll tell you in a moment, for we have a real thriller coming up; but to change the subject – [Putting on a record] – I have lost some weight. In fact I've lost so much weight, I'm floating out of my seat, floating round the studio. [Normal] While our friend Rex is gaining all the time, I'm afraid, he's approaching sixteen stone now, can hardly fit into his box. Enough of this gibberish. 'DON'T FORGET' means competition time. We have a stunner for you in a moment ... till then, let's flash back into the dim, distant past of last week. [He switches on a record; 'It's Gonna Sell A Million'; and turns the sound off after a couple of bars.] That was better – that was very slightly better. He gets up and walks.

REX: [Entering] Why do you keep on doing this?
 LEONARD: Doing what?
 REX: You know ...
 LEONARD: Putting weight on you, you mean – making you an obese lump. It's my rather dismal little joke.

REX: I thought ... you were the one for the truth over the air.
 LEONARD: I allow myself this one slight distortion.
 REX: But people will discover, won't they?
 LEONARD: No they won't, nobody's ever going to publish a picture of you, are they?

REX: Yes. [Pause] The local press might.
 LEONARD: [Smiling] Not with shares in this station they won't. In fact a total wall of silence could be preserved about your real size for evermore. In fact, if I wanted, I could pump you up steadily to twenty-five stone and then burst you. [Pause] Sorry. [Smiles] Don't worry, I do it to everyone that works for me.

REX: So I've heard.
 LEONARD: So there's no need to look injured. You're not, yet.
 REX: [Moves to go, slight smile] By the way, I've got Capital Radio from London on the line.

LEONARD: [Without looking up] You'll have to be more convincing than that. Been listening to jabber and gossip, have you?
 REX: I suppose so, yes.
 LEONARD: Well, don't.
 REX: [Watching him] Everybody knows anyway. Are they going to make an offer then?

- LEONARD: It's just possible. Everything's possible. I shouldn't bank on it.
 REX: For the afternoon show ... [Smiles] They'll be sending spies up here. They'll be sitting in pubs with transistor radios and earplugs, listening away. You'll have to give them the whole works. 110
- LEONARD: [Looking up] Will I? Get it ready.
 REX: It is ready. I –
 LEONARD: [Cutting REX off, he swings round to the microphone and switches on the monitor speakers, fading down the end of the record.] And now, a special competition. You heard me – a mind-tingling competition. And by my side is the ever-dependable Rex, sweating slightly, what have we got as a prize, Rex? 115
- REX: [Nervous, standing by the microphone and speaking into it, putting on an almost BBC voice] We have their latest LP – the Yellow Jacks' latest! 120
- LEONARD: [Brash voice] Tell us the title, Rex – please tell us the title.
 REX: 'High Up There'. 125
 LEONARD: That's a fine title – is it a fine record?
 REX: It's very exciting Leonard, it really is ...
 LEONARD: [To the listeners] And you can have it a whole two or three weeks before it's in the shops, be one of the very first people in the whole country to have it. And what is Rex going to make us do? ... Well, I think he's been fiddling with his audio tapes. 130
- REX: I have indeed –
 LEONARD: And what have you done with your tapes?
 REX: I've slowed them down – rather a lot. 135
 LEONARD: [Loud] Tell me Rex, what effect does this have on the listener?
 REX: What?
 LEONARD: [Very fast] What effect does this have on the listener?
 REX: What ... well it ... [REX dries completely, stands helpless] 140
 I ...
- LEONARD presses the button: a tape of the Leicester Sound jingle cuts off REX's floundering.
- LEONARD: Enough of this gibberish. [Normal voice] OK, sweets – this is it. Rex is going to play one of the songs in the Top Eleven, and it has been slo-o-o-o-owed do-o-o-own, so it sounds a little different. And you're going to give us the singer and the song aren't you ... Double five three zero four is the number to ring ... that's right. [Humphrey Bogart voice] Play it again, Rex. 150
- REX back in his box, switches on a tape of 'The Proud One' by the Osmonds at half speed.
- LEONARD: [After a few bars, LEONARD reduces the volume on the monitor speakers and talks into the intercom to REX; off the air.] Sounds a little more exciting like this doesn't it. I shall always play it like this in future. [Suddenly loud] All records will be played at quarter speed and we'll talk that slowly too. REX has come out of the box. 155

REX:	I'm ... sorry about messing things up, I didn't mean to ...
LEONARD:	Of course you didn't –	160
REX:	You took me by surprise, I didn't think ... I'm sorry, I won't do it again.
LEONARD:	No of course you won't. You won't get another chance to. Now get back into your box where you belong. [ He returns to the microphone and switches it to go live again. Loud ] Rex – what have you done to my favourite song? OK, sweets, who can be the first caller? – race to your phones, dial furiously ... I'm touching the first prize now – all fourteen tracks of it ... we're handling the two of them with rubber gloves up here – and we're keeping them in an incubator at night, in case we can hatch a third. Seriously now – [ He's put his headphones on. ] – we have a caller; and the first caller is ...	165
A GIRL'S VOICE:	[ On the telephone, amplified through the monitors ] Hello? Hello ...
LEONARD:	[ Softly ] Hello there ... what's your name, love?	175
GIRL:	Angela ...
LEONARD:	Lovely. Have we ever talked before?
ANGELA:	No, never –
LEONARD:	Fine. You at home Angela?
ANGELA:	Yeah – I'm at home.	180
LEONARD:	Good – well, let's go straight into it Angela, into the unknown ... [ Signalling to REX, who switches on the slowed-down tape again, in the background ] Who do you think the noise is, this slo-o-ow noise?
ANGELA:	Is it – 'The Proud One' by the Osmonds?	185
LEONARD:	Angela, you're r-r-r-o-o-o-o-ight! Well done! [ REX speeds up the record to the right speed and plays a few bars. LEONARD signals to REX and the volume is reduced. ] There we go – clever girl. I'm dropping your prize into Rex's hand, to be wiped spotless, and posted, jet-propelled towards you Angela. Bye, love. Let's have the next one Rex. [ REX plays a slowed-down version of 'I Can't Give You Anything But My Love' by the Stylistics. LEONARD gets up again. ]	190
REX:	[ Staring at LEONARD ] I really like it, you know – [ Slight smile ] – if I'm allowed to say so, how you always touch something when you're talking about it, even if it's the wrong record, like just now.	195
LEONARD:	Yes. I like that too. It's the actor in me. It's what makes it reasonably good. [ Staring round the studio ] Where is the nauseating object anyway? [ He sees the Yellow Jacks LP and picks it up. ] Have you read the back, with Ross – [ American voice ] – the lead singer speaking his mind . [ Normal voice ] Take an example at random – 'Ross numbers among his favourite things: walnut ice-cream, honeysuckle, genuine people, starfish, and sunburnt bare feet.' [ Loud ] You realise we're going to have to play the utterances of this imbecile all this week. [ He switches on the microphone suddenly. ] Hello – what's your name please?	200
GIRL'S VOICE:	Rita.	205
LEONARD:	You listen often? –
RYTA:	Yes ... yes I do.	210

LEONARD:	[ Smiles, soft ] Good, that's how it should be. Let's go straight into it then love, into the nitty gritty – who do you think it is?
RITA:	I think it's – [ She gives the wrong title. ]
LEONARD:	Well, Rita, you're wrong, I'm afraid.	215
RITA:	No I'm not ... am I?
LEONARD:	I'm afraid so.
RITA:	You sure? ... [ Louder ] I was certain. You –
LEONARD:	[ Cutting her off ] I'm sorry love, you're wrong; keep listening though, for a very important reason ... bye for now. [ TV chat-show host voice ] And let's go straight in to the next contestant! Coming up to Big John with the news at three o'clock. One down, one LP to go – round, crisp and shiny. What's your name please?	220
NICOLA'S VOICE:	[ Extremely flat, unemotional ] Hello.	225
LEONARD:	A little louder please – what's your name?
NICOLA:	[ Very quiet ] Nicola Davies.
LEONARD:	A little louder.
NICOLA:	[ Loud ] Nicola Davies.
LEONARD:	Nicola Davies. That's very formal. Are you at home, Nicola Davies?	230
NICOLA:	Yes.
LEONARD:	A little louder – you've got a very nice voice, Nicola. So, to win this LP, that Rex is just slipping into its beautiful see-through sleeve – who is it, Nicola?	235
NICOLA:	It's the Stylistics and – [ She gives the wrong title ]
LEONARD:	I'm afraid, Nicola ...
NICOLA:	[ Correcting herself ] No, it's 'I Can't Give You Anything But My Love'.
LEONARD:	Well Nicola – I'm afraid your first answer is the only one I can accept ...	240
NICOLA:	Oh ...
LEONARD:	But you were very close – and so, as you've given us all your name, Nicola Davies – I'm going, actually, to give it to you.
NICOLA:	Oh good – thank you.	245
LEONARD:	Just for you, Nicola Davies, but on one condition – and that is –
NICOLA:	[ Nervous ] What is that?
LEONARD:	You listen for just one more moment, because I have something rather extraordinary to announce to everyone ...	250
	I'm going to be running many competitions this week – but one of them is different – for, to tie in with the great Yellow Jacks' concert here in this city on Saturday we're running THE COMPETITION OF THE CENTURY ... and the prize is actually meeting one of the boys. How do you like that, Nicola Davies?	255
NICOLA:	Yes ... what do you do?
LEONARD:	And not only that – the winner will ride to London, after the concert, in their car, sitting with them , and what is more they will then spend four whole days in London, the capital of this fine country, at the expense of Leicester Sound. That's OK, isn't it? – Nicola?	260
NICOLA:	Yes ... what do –
LEONARD:	[ Cutting her off ] So everybody tune in tomorrow, for the first stage – you too Nicola – [ His voice quieter, smiles ] – you never know – what your luck might be – we might even	265

speak again. [He puts down the phone and drops his pen onto the desk, quiet pause]

We're off.

BLACKOUT 270

In the blackout: a radio commercial.

- SHARP TRANSATLANTIC VOICE: We are going DOWN! DOWN! DOWN! Yes, everything's down at Lipton's. Shop at Lipton's where eggs are down – [Echo effect] – DOWN! DOWN! Bacon is down and what's not down's not up. 275
- SONG: LIPTON'S MAKES THE GOING EASY, LIPTON'S MAKES THE GOING GREAT!
As the song continues, there is a sudden explosion of white light. Stage lights come up to show supermarket scene. The music of the commercial breaks into pop music, playing in the background. NICOLA is standing by the fridge, staring ahead, pale-faced. 280
- SUSAN'S VOICE: [Off-stage] Nicola?

NICOLA doesn't react. SUSAN enters and stands at a distance from NICOLA. 285
- SUSAN: Nicola? Here ...

NICOLA glances up. Suddenly SUSAN crosses over to the fridge, very sharply.
- NICOLA: [Surprised, nervous] You shouldn't have come over. You know you're meant to stick to your own counter. [Sharp] You'll be seen any moment, you know. 290
- SUSAN: I won't. [She feels her tunic.] I'm tired after that rush, and it'll soon be starting again. [Pulling at her tunic] I get so hot in this all over. What's that – let's see that ...
- NICOLA: Nothing. 295
- SUSAN: [Making a grab for it] What you got a postcard for, with nothing on it?
- NICOLA: Stop it! You'll get it wet. [She puts the postcard back.] Look, if I'm seen talking to you, by the camera – [They both glance up.] – we'll both get it, won't we? You just have to make a wrong move, and he'll see you, won't he? 300
- SUSAN: Don't worry, I'm watching out. [She smiles.] It's coming now. [SUSAN ducks.] You know what happened yesterday? Something exciting. What do you think – a cat got in here, it did. Just after you'd gone. Came through the stacks of cheese crackers up there, suddenly there it was. In here! You know, spitting and everything. Made a change. Didn't last long – you missed it! 305
- NICOLA: Yes.
- SUSAN: [Loud] I wonder if anything else will get in here soon. 310

- LEONARD BRAZIL'S VOICE: [Suddenly piping up] That was – [Title of record] Don't fear, Leonard Brazil is here. Hello there, wherever you are, whatever you're doing, and a special hello to you. [As if to all the girls, but strangely personal] Yes, you down there, I'm saying hello to you. 315
- NICOLA: He's quite loud today.
- SUSAN: Yes, he is.
- L.B.'S VOICE: [Running on] I've got a lot of goodies coming up, and no bad 'uns. Every sound is freshly picked up here, 'specially for you, that's why they're so ripe and full of flavour. Juicy! You don't believe me, well, it's true. 320
- The music begins.*
- SUSAN: He's talking a lot today, isn't he?
- L.B.'S VOICE: Very soon that special something I promised, Stage One ...
- NICOLA: Yes. 325
- L.B.'S VOICE: Until then, let's move on to the year 2000 and maybe we'll be listening to this. [He plays 'Long Haired Lover From Liverpool'.]
- SUSAN: [Looking into the fridge] I'm so hungry, aren't you? Can't stop feeling hungry ... 330
- NICOLA: Careful, what you're doing. He'll kill us if he sees.
- SUSAN: [Her hand inside the fridge] It's horrible inside here. We could fuse this fridge, you know – just have to get the right thing. [She pulls at something inside the fridge.] Once saw it happen, all the food melts slowly, goes soggy and bad, and it all floats in a big kind of mush, you can pour the whole lot out like a lot of soup. [She pushes the fridge.] It moves too, you see! 335
- NICOLA: [Shouts] Mind! [SUSAN springs back as the camera pauses. Nervous] He's seen us now. Think. You're going to get us sacked at any moment now. 340
- SUSAN: I wouldn't mind that – I wouldn't. Anyway, he's asleep most of the time, the guy who watches it. Up in the office. I saw him through the door once. He's very fat. I've heard all about him, he sits there all day, with one of his socks off, picking his toes, and eating the stuff, while he watches. 345
- NICOLA: He doesn't do that, does he?
- SUSAN: Yes – he used to be a policeman, you know. So, have you stopped taking things, then?
- NICOLA: No, but they've started searching us, haven't they? 350
- SUSAN: Yes. [She puts her hand into the fridge.]
- NICOLA: It's coming round again. Careful!
- SUSAN: Nicola ... let's take something now, right now.
- NICOLA: [Astonished] What?
- SUSAN: Come on – take that! [She throws NICOLA some food.] 355
- And that ... and that ... [Throwing a huge bundle of food at NICOLA]
- NICOLA: Look, stop it, Susan. Stop it, it's coming ...

A large can drops out of her hands and rolls along the floor. At the same moment, the music cuts off. 360

Silence

NICOLA turns, frightened and bewildered, and rushes out in front of the fridge to pick up the can.

ROSS'S VOICE: [On the radio] Don't move, folks, stay right where you are, because yes, it's me. See you Saturday. 365

L.B.'S VOICE: Those few words were spoken by you know who, Ross. I'll be playing some more of his dulcet tones tomorrow.

NICOLA: Shhh! I want to really listen now.

L.B.'S VOICE: [Strangely gentle, as if half-aimed at her] So have you got a pencil ready – is it in your hand? We've come to that moment you've been waiting for since yesterday ... 370

SUSAN: [Loud] You're not going in for that competition, are you, you can't ...

NICOLA: Sssh! Be quiet.

L.B.'S VOICE: Come on, now then, are you ready, because I'm only going to say it once, so pin back those ears of yours, and listen ... ready... 375

Sudden silence

NICOLA: [Loud] What's that ... [Just silence.] They've switched it off. 380

SUSAN: [Smiles, teasing] Yes – they must have known what you were going to do.

NICOLA: They would switch it off then!

FAT MAN'S VOICE: [Silky, nauseating, menacing] Can Miss Lyle come into the office please ... Could Miss Lyle come here immediately, please ... immediately ... 385

SUSAN: [Loud, defiant] It's not us ... it's that old woman, seen her thieving ...

NICOLA: [Moving backwards and forwards] They were only going to say it once, weren't they? How can I find it out? 390

SUSAN: You can't go in for that competition. You won the record yesterday. They wouldn't even let you start.

NICOLA: I must find it out, probably won't be something like this for ages – where's the building that it comes from?

SUSAN: No idea. They'd never let you in, either. 395

NICOLA: No. [She turns.] I'll phone them up then. I know the number.

SUSAN: [Smiling] Can't use that phone. Only for supervisors.

NICOLA: I don't care. [She moves.]

SUSAN: [Loud] Mind! Nicola! [The camera stops ... the camera pauses ...] You'll never get over there without being seen. He's watching now. [NICOLA stares across at the phone] 400

FAT MAN'S VOICE: Miss Lyle ...

NICOLA: It's worth a try. I'm going to. [She moves in front of the fridge, sideways, crouches, dashes furiously for the phone; one second pause, then she immediately starts dialling furiously, bending to keep her head down.] 405

We hear a very loud 'engaged' tone. NICOLA slams the phone down and immediately starts dialling again. This happens repeatedly.

SUSAN: You're going to get seen! [NICOLA glances up, freezes as the camera passes] It's on you! 410

NICOLA: [Staring up] Go away ... [She finishes dialling: very, very loud 'engaged' pips] I hate that noise. [She moves back to the fridge, not caring if she's seen or not.]

SUSAN: There you are. I told you. 415

L.B.'S VOICE: [Suddenly piping up] What about that, then? What did you think of that. Super, dooper as they say in Russia. That was only the start, remember, wasn't it?

NICOLA: It would happen, wouldn't it?

L.B.'S VOICE: Of course I've been asked to repeat it, say it again for you that weren't listening, yes – I mean you. Which is against the rules, and I'll probably be fined an enormous sum of money and get banned for life, but I'm going to, just for you. 420

NICOLA: Hear that?

L.B.'S VOICE: OK, sweets. Here's Stage One again. The First Great Stage, and it is: if you could go anywhere in the world you can think of, with one of the Yellow Jacks, which one would you choose, where would you go, and why. [Jokey voice] You're not allowed to choose me, and the thirty best ones get through to Stage Two. That's not so difficult is it? In fact it's the easiest I could make it for you – isn't it? 425

And now ... [Music starts. He cues the record.]

SUSAN: Now you know, don't you?

NICOLA: Yes, leave me alone now.

SUSAN: Your postcard's filthy, you know. 435

NICOLA: Yes, but I can still write on it, can't I?

L.B.'S VOICE: Are you OK then? It's over to you. [The music coming up loud] I'm waiting for you, aren't I? [Music loud]

BLACKOUT

Scene 3

The studio. LEONARD BRAZIL is standing by his desk. A record is playing silently. A spool of tape is going round – and we hear LEONARD's personal jingle over the speakers. 440

JINGLE: LB ... LB ... LB ... LB ... LB ... [He turns the volume up]
LB ... LB ...

Behind him, MICK, 17 years old, nervous manner, is dragging in four large sacks bulging with postcards. 445

LEONARD: [Flicks off the jingle, swings round] What are you doing with those?

MICK: [Nervous] I ... I'm carrying them in here ... Mr Brazil.

LEONARD: Nothing is allowed in here, you know that. 450

MICK: Yes ... Mr Brazil.

LEONARD: [Staring] What are they?

MICK: [Very nervous] They're bags ... I ...

LEONARD: Yes?

MICK: Replies from the listeners. Rex is finishing sorting them ... 455 you see ... and there're so many we thought you'd like to see them.

LEONARD: [Casually] Did you? [He puts his hand into one of the bags and pulls out postcards.] All these are replies, are they?

MICK: You really got them to write in all right, didn't you ... 460
Mr Brazil?

LEONARD: Come on, take these all out again – the whole lot at once.

- MICK: [Struggling to pick them up] Yes, of course.
LEONARD: This place is meant to be the nerve centre of the city, isn't it? And you fill it with all this stuff. Go on, we have very little time. 465
- He brings up the record volume and goes on the air. As he does so, REX enters, stops MICK picking up the bags, and they both stand and watch LEONARD from the side. At the end of LEONARD's piece over the air MICK leaves silently.* 470
- LEONARD: That was Peters and Lee and 'Welcome Home'. And now I've got something to say, folks. [Tone changes] Very soon on this Wonderful Wednesday we have Big John with all the News In The World – till then, let's explode with a raving cataclysmic ditty from 1968, the Rolling Stones and 'Street Fighting Man'. [Explosion of sound. LEONARD listens for a moment, sees REX and cuts it out suddenly.] What you doing? 475
- REX: [Standing staring] I was watching you.
LEONARD: That's not permitted, especially the amount you do. Your ogling is getting on my nerves. Why do you do it? 480
REX: Because it really interests me, doesn't it? [Smiles] Have you heard anything from Capital? [Fast] Do you think they're listening now and going to ...
LEONARD: [Sharp] That, Rex, is a forbidden subject, and you know it is. Come on, we have three minutes to go. 485
REX: [Still standing there] Yes, Leonard ... I wondered if ... I just happen to have an item here I thought you might like or perhaps even ...
LEONARD: You could have a quick spot and read it yourself? That's what you were going to say, wasn't it? You're pushing, aren't you lad. 490
- BIG JOHN enters; a shiny, red-faced man.
- JOHN: Hello there, everyone. [Smiles] Two minutes to go.
LEONARD: The lad's being pushy. 495
JOHN: Is he? That's no surprise.
REX: [Nervous suddenly] I'm sorry, I didn't mean ...
LEONARD: We've got to go on to Stage Two in two minutes, go on ... get out! [He switches onto the air without a break, fading down the record] Hello sweets – stand by. Very soon now you'll have 'you-know-what' – till then, here's ... [He plays something very cheap and nasty. As soon as he's faded out, he swings round and cuts back like lightning into his talk with REX, who has left the studio.] 500
LEONARD: [Loud] And you make one mistake, Rex, and you're fired – do you hear that? [Quieter] That boy makes me nervous. 505
JOHN: I didn't know that was possible.
LEONARD: [Flicks round, stares at JOHN] You look particularly cheerful today, don't you, John?
JOHN: Thank you. I'm in very good form, yes. 510
LEONARD: As usual, you've probably got a train disaster and a couple of mass murders there – [Tapping JOHN's file] – and your cheeks are positively glistening – bright and rosy.

JOHN: Thank you. [Smiles] But I haven't got anything really spectacular now – maybe by tea-time something will come in. 515

LEONARD: [Slight teasing smile] Good.

JOHN: What's this I've just heard about approaches from the Big Wide World, from the actual Capital Radio. Are they going to ... 520

LEONARD: You didn't hear anything of the kind. [Loud] Nothing of the kind.

JOHN: [Startled] I'm sorry, I didn't realize ...

LEONARD: No, you don't, John. You see this. [He picks it up.] This piece of paper – that is the COMPETITION OF THE CENTURY. [He holds it up.] 525

JOHN: [Looking at it] Yes, it's a real cash box week, this week, isn't it? One minute, fifteen seconds to go ...

LEONARD: And you know what ... [He pauses] I've done something which I've never done before, John. I've picked out an average girl for this competition. Yes, I picked out her voice. I home in on her each time I go on the air, home in on that voice. And I imagine her face. It would be funny if she knew, wouldn't it? 530

JOHN: [Hardly looking up] Really? 535

LEONARD: In fact, each time I pass by the window, I half expect to see her – a small dot standing right down there, staring up towards here, her spectacles flashing – if she wears spectacles. [He glances at JOHN, who is not listening.] You're the only one that knows that yet, John. 540

JOHN: Yes. I've got no tongue-twisters today, luckily. One minute to zero. Peppermint? [He sucks one himself]

LEONARD: [He taps JOHN's file.] Got any earthquakes locked in there?

JOHN: No thank goodness. Nothing like that.

LEONARD: Perhaps you should have. 545

JOHN: [Suddenly looks up] You must be enjoying all this anyway – it's your greatest week ever, isn't it?

LEONARD: Oh, I am. I am.

JOHN: After all, you've always been wonderful at whipping people up, getting them to TUNE IN. You only have to say the word ... 550

LEONARD: Yes?

JOHN: Just have to breathe over the air. They're all waiting for you now.

LEONARD: [Standing over controls] That's right, John. Got your little furry mascot ready, have you? Go on, hold it up! 555

JOHN: [Holds it so that LEONARD can see] Yes, of course I have. Ten seconds to zero ...

LEONARD: You dropped it yesterday in mid-sentence. Hold on to it very tightly, John. [He flicks on the switch, fades out the music] 560

That was the cuddly sound of – [He gives the name of the record. His tone changes, becoming personal.] We're coming to you very soon now, love, so don't fret, don't worry ... It's three o'clock and here's Big John with all the News In The World. 565

BIG JOHN starts reading the News, world items of extreme unrest, mingled with local items. As he reads, LEONARD

crosses to the far end of the studio, out of microphone range, and calls out remarks to him, trying to put him off.

- LEONARD: [Smiling] You know, John, I don't seem to be able to believe anything you say today ... I'm talking through the News, John ... I think your mascot's going to fall ... [He begins to cross over towards him.] Perhaps you need a tickle. 570
- LEONARD crosses to JOHN who's reading the News unwaveringly and begins to tickle him under the chin, and then under the arms, in the ribs. JOHN shifts in his chair, but keeps reading. LEONARD crosses to his desk. 575
- JOHN: [On the air] And now back to Leonard, and that Competition of the Century.
- LEONARD: Our thanks to Big John for reading the News so nicely and so firmly. Stand by, love, any moment. [Music plays. He fades it down.] 580
- JOHN: Somebody'll hear you one day, Leonard. Always jealous of people taking away your microphone, aren't you ... even for a moment. Always trying to put them off ... 585
- LEONARD: Rubbish! Anyway, I never manage to ... [Suddenly really abusive] Competitions have an effect on me.
- REX: [Entering loudly and suddenly with a trolley completely smothered in objects] Here you are!
- LEONARD: [Facing him] What are those? 590
- REX: They're your bribes.
- LEONARD: [Sharp] My what?
- REX: Your bribes, Leonard – from the girls.
- LEONARD: [Completely surprised] They sent all those? Why?
- REX: [Scrambling over the trolley] There're hundreds of them. A watch – nicked from her dad, probably. A T-shirt with your initials on it, some cheese, some socks with toes, a whole cake with you on it, and lots of photos of themselves. 595
- LEONARD: [Staring at them, quiet] All for me ... ? [He picks up the photos and stares at them.] 600
- JOHN: [Moving over to the huge stack of bribes] You're doing very well out of this, aren't you? I don't know what you're worrying about. [Feeling objects, poring over them] We've never had a response like this. Could live off this for a month. [Casually] I wonder if there's anything there for me. [He picks up the watch, or the cheese.] I could do with this. [He pockets it.] 605
- LEONARD: John! Go and find some more News. Something worth listening to, for once.
JOHN goes.
- REX: [Urgent] We're very late now. [He glances down at the photos, then throws them on his desk.] 610
- REX: [Looking at the photos] What were you looking for?
- LEONARD: [Sharp] Nothing. I wasn't looking for anything. [Slight smile] What am I going to make them do next, then?
- REX: [Astonished] I don't know. They will do absolutely anything, those kids. They're desperate just to get into the studio and meet you, and then the Yellow Jacks and everything as well!! The last concert the Yellow Jacks did here, a girl asked Ross, begged him to sign her lip. I saw it, and he did and I wondered if she was going to cut that bit off and keep it in a 615
620

- jam jar, so the signature wouldn't come off.
- LEONARD: Stop that – you're not going to talk like that in here – understand! I don't like it. [He switches on music, goes onto the air]
- REX: [As LEONARD does so] I'm sorry, Leonard. 625
- LEONARD: Hello, sweet. How are you then? Good. I wish you could see the sight up here. The studio is brimming with your answers, they're hanging everywhere. Rex is just handing me the postcards – perhaps your postcard, enabling you to get through to Stage Two. Hurry, Rex! Had a hard job sorting them, have you, Rex? 630
- REX: [Entering into the double act] Yes, Leonard. We've been simply wading through entries.
- LEONARD: You nearly drowned our Rex, love. Pity you didn't send a few more. [He begins to read the cards briskly] Diane Williams of 30 Sutton Road says she'd like to go to Scotland with Peter and climb mountains with him because he's afraid of heights. Quite a sadist, aren't you, Diane. Thank you for that. Pam Lawrence of 10 Rosendale Avenue says she'd like to go to London with Ross, because that's what the real prize is. I like that, a real realist, there. Pam will go far, won't she. And Nicola Davies of 35 Poole's Road – rather a grubby postcard isn't it, Nicola – says she'd like to go to Kenya with Ken, that's a Nicola-type joke, and go on safari because Ken looks so good in a suntan and so I'm sure, would you, Nicola. You're through all the way to Stage Two now. Get your lead pencil ready ... [Music is playing]
- REX: [Nervously] What happens if we don't think of something, Leonard?
- LEONARD: What indeed, Rex. [Slight smile] Disaster. 650
- REX: Perhaps some sort of race ...
- LEONARD: There is of course something staring us in the eyeballs right at this moment! Isn't there?
- REX: [Staring at the desk] What?
- LEONARD: It isn't original. It's been used in America several times. [He picks up the T-shirt]
- REX: [Excited] What is it?
- LEONARD: They might just enjoy it. Just.
- REX: What is it, Leonard?
- LEONARD: [Swings round] And it is: they have to make a portrait dummy of Ross, or any of the others, life size. 660
- REX: What?
- LEONARD: A model, effigy. A dummy of one of the Jacks, out of old clothes, like a guy, stuffed full and life size. That's the idea, Rex. 665
- REX: That's ... that's pretty good, in fact, it's brilliant. [Loud] It is.
- LEONARD: It's not at all. It's not even good, but it'll just do.
- REX: [Quiet] It's great.
- LEONARD: [By the controls] Just listen to that.
- REX: What? 670
- LEONARD: You can almost hear all their small ears pressed against the radio waiting for it. The Competition of the Century. [He brings up the theme music really loud.]
- REX: You knew the answer all the time, Leonard, didn't you?
- LEONARD: Rex is coming over with all of Stage Two in his hands. 675
- REX: Here it is, Leonard – all of it. [He hands him nothing.]

LEONARD: Thank you, Rex. [His tone is suddenly personal, almost gentle.] OK, what we want – what I want you to do is very simple and a little special, for the next stage of our remarkable obstacle race to get to the Yellow Jacks and London Town, where everything is still possible. I want you to make, in the next two days, a model of one of the boys – [Laughs] – one of the great Yellow Jacks, a model of Ross, or Dave, or Ken, or Pete. ‘What do you mean, Leonard? Make a model? A dummy? How on earth do I do that, Leonard? – That’s impossible!’ Well, what you do is you get some old clothes, and stuff them with paper, and copy his face from a picture, and use some wool for his hair, or go to a gentlemen’s hairdresser, or even a ladies’. [Gentle voice] ‘Please could I borrow your shavings?’ No, seriously, don’t spend any money on it, and get it to me at Leicester Sound by five o’clock Friday. Do you understand now? And the two who make the most wondrous accurate models will become the finalists, and come up here. That can’t be bad. It’s not. So do your best, and hurry, won’t you. Good hunting. 680
695

A blast of music, as he brings in a record.

LEONARD: [Very abrasive] I DON’T LIKE COMPETITIONS!

Music up again.

BLACKOUT

Scene 4

NICOLA’s room. Radio playing in the background. NICOLA pulling out a pile of magazines methodically from under the bed and from the side of the room, and a pile of cans, packets, etc. that she’s taken from the Supermarket. SUSAN watching. 700

SUSAN: What you doing with all of this? 705

NICOLA: There’s not much time.

SUSAN: [Suddenly grabbing a poster from the pile] Hey! you’ve got one of these. Who’s it of? [She unfolds an enormous pin-up poster of a star, holds it up and looks at it.] Oh, him!

LEONARD BRAZIL’S VOICE: [On the radio] That was – [Name of record] How are you doing then? Yes, I mean you, whoever you are, wherever you are, you with the sticking-out ears. That’s right, keep it up, you haven’t got long. 710

NICOLA: Yes. [She works even faster collecting all the objects together.] 715

SUSAN: He’s hurrying you now.

L.B.’S VOICE: [Continuing straight on] Rex’s bulky shape is beside me here in the studio as always. [Sudden mock surprise] Hey, he’s moving away now, don’t leave me, Rex, don’t leave me. I’m alone and afraid that raindrops might start falling on my head – [Tone changes] – and yours too. 720

Music begins. 'Raindrops Keep Falling On My Head.'

- NICOLA: You know, I think he liked me a bit or something when I rang in ... He spoke to me longer than the others, different.
- SUSAN: He only spoke to you different from the others because he was waiting for the News to come up. 725
- NICOLA: [To herself] Ready now! [Worried] I'm running out of time, come on! [She suddenly pulls the dummy out from under the bed, all in pieces, the huge torso, the decapitated head, the hands, the feet, the arms, etc.] 730
- SUSAN: Look at it! You'll never finish that in time.
- NICOLA: Got to. Got to fill it up, make it stiff.
- SUSAN: [Picking up some of the supermarket objects] What are these?
- NICOLA: Things I've taken from the shop. They're all going inside. No use to me. I'm sending them all in this. 735
- SUSAN: [Picking up a pot of paint] How did you get all this paint?
- NICOLA: Saved lunch money.
- SUSAN: [Startled] What have you been eating?
- NICOLA: Haven't. Don't need to. So I go for days without eating if I have to. And can. 740
- SUSAN: You'll starve to death, you will. [Suddenly, she picks up the head and a foot.] Is this Ross?
- NICOLA: Yes. He's the easiest to do, his face is very simple.
- SUSAN: [Suddenly loud] He's very big. 745
- NICOLA: Yes, I made him big. So he'd notice it.
- SUSAN: We can do anything we want with him, now all his bits are here. We can stand on his face. [She stands on it.] Can't we? Pull his tongue out. [She picks up the torso.] Pull his shirt off ... 750
- NICOLA: [Loud] Don't do that, Susan. You'll tear him – it'll tear.
- SUSAN: Yes! [Firm] You're really stupid, do you know that? Even if you get this ready and Leonard just happens to pick it out, which he won't, even then you haven't really started. He can go on forever with you if he likes, on and on and on. 755
- NICOLA: [Determined] I know that ...
- L.B.'S VOICE: [Suddenly piping up] Hello, how are you doing. Yes, I mean you, yes you, with the popping eyes and sticking-out ears.
- They both suddenly stop and stare at the radio.*
- L.B.'S VOICE: I hope I'm not interrupting you, am I, because a lady wrote to me to say she had the radio on when, lucky lady, she was giving birth to a baby son, Dominic, and the first sound Baby Dominic heard on this earth was yours truly's ugly grating tones pouring out. I'm getting worse and worse, aren't I? 760
- During this speech, SUSAN has crossed to the wireless and picked it up right at the beginning of LEONARD's speech and turned the volume down. Then she sings loudly above it.* 765
- SUSAN: Hear him. [She holds the radio up with LEONARD's voice pouring out of it.] That's the nearest you'll get to him ... this! It is not any nearer than that! [She puts the radio down next to NICOLA, having turned the volume up.] 770

L.B.'S VOICE:	And now you, you down there who have entered the Competition of the Century, time is running out. Here's some music for you. [ Music begins ]
NICOLA:	Yes! Quick. [ She speeds up the stuffing of the dummy with the Supermarket objects. ] You're going to help now.	775
SUSAN:	[ Loud ] Why?
NICOLA:	Because I'm going to get there. Into the building and see him.
SUSAN:	[ Quiet ] You won't ...	780
NICOLA:	Come on, there's no time at all now. Paint that yellow, quick!
SUSAN:	If I have to ... [ She takes a big brush and splashes huge dollops of yellow paint on the dummy's body. NICOLA stuffs the legs. ]
NICOLA:	Good. Hurry ... paint.	785
SUSAN:	[ Sploshing bright yellow paint on the torso. Gradually her paint strokes get faster and faster. ] When they played at Coventry, Ken had a blue belt, the others had yellow as usual. I don't like this colour, sort of sick-looking. They ought to change it. You know I had to get back after the concert – it was twelve or after in the night.	790
NICOLA:	[ To herself ] Come on ... [ She stuffs the legs and the head. ]
SUSAN:	I didn't think I could get back. It was raining really hard, straight in your eyes. I got onto the road, started hitching – all these huge lorries went past, enormous. And you know, they all had their radios on. Yes! I could hear. It was Leonard Brazil. It was. He was coming from every single lorry. But none of them stopped.	795
NICOLA:	[ Quiet, determined ] Come on, quick.
SUSAN:	[ Painting fast ] So I stood straight in front of one of them and waved, and he had to stop, or flatten me, and he stopped all right, and he opened his door, all smiling and everything, and I got in, and you know what, the seat next to him was still warm, it was all covered with chocolate. Somebody had been sitting there just a moment before – a girl .	800
NICOLA:	[ To herself ] Faster.
SUSAN:	I knew he was going to try to kill me then, yes, on the motorway, in the dark, on the side, where nobody could see. And I'd hear Leonard Brazil on the radio, and suddenly it'd stop, and I'd be dead, and they'd find me in pieces like this – [ Indicating the dummy as she paints ] But nothing did happen. Nothing at all. [ Pause, she stops painting. Lightly ] I wanted it to.	805
NICOLA:	[ Suddenly very loud ] Oh! Look Susan, it's still not nearly full. [ She stares at the legs and then into the torso. ] We've got to fill it up now ... [ Moving about, agitated ] Now!	815
SUSAN:	Put this in anyway. [ She crumbles the huge centrefold picture of the pop star. As she does so, they both suddenly look up with a jolt and stare at all the posters and ornaments in the room. The same idea hits them both. ]	820
NICOLA:	[ Loud ] Yes! Come on. Everything ...
	They suddenly tear down all the posters and ornaments – everything in the room – and throw it into the stomach of Ross. The action begins swiftly and ends furiously. It lasts under a minute. NICOLA takes everything off the chest of drawers, all her furry ornaments ... everything.	825

NICOLA:	He's got to be full.
SUSAN:	[ Loud ] Yes.
	SUSAN's pent-up violence comes out in her attack on the posters, whereas NICOLA is more methodical, but also very fast. The music on the radio ends. They strip the room.	830
L.B.'S VOICE:	[ His tone very personal ] Hello there how's it going, then ... Yes, you? You down there. Keeping at it, are you, love , that's good. [ He brings up more music or a commercial ]
NICOLA:	[ Throwing in objects ] Go on ... in ... in ... in ...	835
SUSAN:	Come on down. [ She pulls the lightshade off and throws it in. ]
	They are both exhausted. The outburst ends, the torso is full. NICOLA lifts it up. They both stare at it.
NICOLA:	It's finished.
		BLACKOUT 840

Scene 5

	The studio. Night. A phone-in programme. The voice of a caller, JIM, about forty, on the telephone, coming out of the monitor speakers. The receiver of the telephone is off, lying on the desk. LEONARD BRAZIL is standing some distance away, at the back of the studio, smiling and listening.	845
JIM'S VOICE:	[ Heard first in the blackout ] I mean, don't you agree with me Leonard, about these vandals, hooligans, whatever you like to call them, I mean, everywhere I go I actually see things being smashed up, I see them doing it, and writing things on walls and everything. I mean, I saw some young thugs – I don't want to use abusive terms, especially on your programme, Leonard, and I certainly won't do so, but these men – they weren't just boys, they were grown men, and they were standing round this flower bed of red tulips, and they pulled up every single one, they were pulling them out, by the roots, and treading them into the ground ... the whole lot ...	850
LEONARD:	[ He flicks off the switch to cut off the caller in mid-sentence, silence, he smiles. ] Why do they ring me, explain me that, why don't they phone each other ...? [ He flicks the switch on again. ]	860
JIM'S VOICE:	... and even more. And apart from that, I don't know if you find this, I mean as an important person, and obviously on the air – but I mean – these filthy phone calls – people ringing me up.	865
LEONARD:	[ Turns the volume down, speaks to REX again through the intercom ] Is he going to start being rude – I think he is. Thank goodness I only have to do this twice a week – [ He turns the volume up again. ]
JIM'S VOICE:	... you see what I mean, I don't want to mention anything filthy over the air of course – [ LEONARD holds his finger ready to press the cut-off button ] – and I'm not going to,	870

- but I'm always getting wrong phone calls, people talking to me about things I don't know anything about! You know the feeling of course, being a famous person Leonard – 875
 somebody rang me the other day, started talking about my horse, how he wanted to buy it, get hold of it, I mean I don't have a horse. [Loud] What would I do with a horse? [Suddenly very loud] WHAT would I do with a –? [LEONARD cuts him off] 880
- LEONARD: [Smiling, very calm] I'd like to say goodnight now, Jim, thanks for that call, it was a Jim-type call. The time is 9.23 on the LB night show on this Competition Friday in Competition Week, so hold on tight, love. It's raining up here, raining black buckets just outside, so let's take a dip into the soft inside of Nostalgia Corner, go back to the golden days of 1967. 885
- Music: 'See Emily Play' by Pink Floyd. The volume is turned down after a few bars. LEONARD takes off his headphones.*
- LEONARD: That's enough. I don't want any more calls – you've already put through too many. [He gets up] I hate that smell of new paint from the corridors. 890
- REX enters from the box.
- LEONARD: [Loud] And also I've decided I'm not going to do my spot tonight.
- REX: What do you mean? Why not? 895
- LEONARD: I have reasons. Got to cope with Stage Three. [Loud] I'm not doing it. That's final!
- REX: Some people tune in specially for it. I mean you must do it this week of all weeks ... we've never had so many calls, so many entries ... if you would ... it would ... 900
- LEONARD: I should, should I? No. I've always hated phone-ins. [Pausing, he suddenly stares at REX.] You realise we're almost alone in this building, we're surrounded by empty corridors. You and me. That's a terrifying thought. I usually have my rest from you at this time. 905
- REX: I know. I asked to do extra time specially.
- LEONARD: Did you? [Staring at him] You know, you're the most ambitious thing on legs I've ever seen.
- REX: That's not true. I only want to hang on to my job, don't I? I only want to become good at it. 910
- LEONARD: Only that? I don't believe it.
- REX: And I enjoy working on your show, of course.
- LEONARD: Don't try to tell me that's the only reason for this fantastic obsessional attempt at efficiency.
- REX: Yes, of course. 915
- LEONARD: [Smiles] No it's not.
- REX: [Quiet] Of course, eventually I want to get on ... that's natural, isn't it? [Smiles] I want my voice up in lights, eventually.
- LEONARD: [Quiet] That's very good, Rex ... for you.
- REX: [Unblinking] It's your expression. 920
- LEONARD: [Surprised] Is it?
- REX: I heard it over the air, before I was working here. I still listen to you all the time. I even sit and listen to you at home, on my days off, when you're on.

- LEONARD: [Astonished] You don't really do that, do you? 925
 REX: Yes. [Smiles lightly] There's nothing you've said that I don't remember, nothing! I'm sort of photocopying you really – all the time.
- LEONARD: [Slight smile] So that's what you're doing. I wish you'd stop it. [Moving away from him] You know what you are, Rex, you're reptilian. You ought to get yourself another job – I mean that – and quick. 930
- REX: Why should I? This is better than anything else I could be doing. And after all, you're good aren't you? You are. In fact, Leonard, you could actually be the greatest, the best DJ there's ever been. I wonder what the people from Capital Radio are thinking. You must have got it. 935
- LEONARD: [Loud] I told you not to. [He flicks a switch.] 9.26 on the LB night show in Competition Week. We all had a great time at the open air concert last week, didn't we – it was a true festival, a celebration if ever there was one – the greatest. But I've been asked to point out by the po-lice – we did leave rather a mess, didn't we. It was six feet high in some places; the farmer couldn't find his sheep. Seriously, friends, let's try to be cleaner next time, it'll save a lot of hassle. It's black and soaking wet out now, pelting towards us. Next, the results of Stage Three – stand by, love, this is it, now, after something from the summer of '67 when all those young things bounced down the hot streets of our glorious London. 940
- Music: 'A Whiter Shade of Pale' by Procol Harum. It continues to play under dialogue, quietly.* 950
- LEONARD: Come on. Bring them in. We'd better get this over.
 REX: Yes. [He doesn't move.] You're playing a lot of oldies tonight.
 LEONARD: Yes. [Abrasive] I'm in a sentimental mood, aren't I? You're much too young to remember, of course. I know exactly what it was like. [Loud] Exactly. 955
- REX: Yes.
 LEONARD: [Staring straight at him] But it's undeniable, Rex, that the music we were producing seven or eight years ago, was alive. That is incontestable. It had gut, it was felt, and it kicked, sometimes savagely. [He smiles.] Because, of course, everything seemed possible. [Pause. He smiles.] I was even quite militant in a quiet way. [Smiles] We thought things were changing and all that romantic crap. 960
- REX: [Smiles] Of course you did. 965
 LEONARD: Don't stand there with that idiotic grin on your face!
 REX: [Doesn't move] No.
 LEONARD: [Smiles] You'd better get on with it, hadn't you, before I decide to take revenge.
- REX goes. LEONARD talks to him as REX prepares offstage. 970
- LEONARD: You should have been at the open air concert at the weekend. It was vile. It was a perfect example. [Smiles, slightly mocking] A grey shabby echo of the time when festivals really were celebrations.

	LEONARD puts on another record in the current top ten. The sound of the record explodes through the speakers as the dummies are brought in.	975
REX:	[Enters, smiling, with twenty-five dummies on a trolley, piled high.] You've got to make the final choice.
LEONARD:	I don't believe it. [Pause] I just don't believe it!	980
REX:	[Smiling unconcerned] What's the matter?
LEONARD:	You mean they did it – they actually made them?
REX:	Yes, of course.
LEONARD:	[Picks one up] We could be in Los Angeles, couldn't we – except it's even worse. Look, they've even painted fingernails on them, bound to be toenails under that. [He pulls at their shoes and hair.] Probably their own new clothes too – or their little brother's. They must have worked all through the night on these obscenities. Why do they do it – tell me, why?	985
REX:	Because you told them to do it.	990
LEONARD:	You could drop anything over the air into that pool and they'd gobble it up. [He feels one.] What have they got inside them? Feel this – feels as if it's stuffed with cans, and packets of frozen food! And all their magazines – clogged with them! How many of these ghastly objects are there?	995
REX:	Twenty-eight.
LEONARD:	[Has picked up another] This is rapidly becoming a madhouse. We're being invaded by all these. Are they all there?
REX:	All the best ones. I put some in the canteen – they're propped up in chairs – as a joke when people come in tomorrow.	1000
LEONARD:	As a joke? [LEONARD looks at the labels on the dummies, looking for NICOLA's]
REX:	Which two are you going to choose ... ?
LEONARD:	These two'll have to do.	1005
REX:	[Looks at the cards] Louise Prentiss and Jane Harris. A good choice.
LEONARD:	All right, get hold of them quickly, get this dealt with and ... [He suddenly looks up] Whose is that one?
REX:	[Looks at the card] Nicola Davies.	1010
LEONARD:	Really – Nicola Davies. I thought so. Well let's have her instead shall we. Scrub that one.
REX:	Why? You chose the other one.
LEONARD:	Do as you're told.
	Pause	1015
REX:	But why Nicola Davies?
LEONARD:	[Looks up] I picked her voice out, that's all. I've been using it. [He looks at the dummy] They look more and more like home made corpses – take them away.
REX:	They'll make pretty good photos in the paper tomorrow, anyway.	1020
LEONARD:	[Looks up] I don't like that.
REX:	[Looks up] What?
LEONARD:	I don't like it do you hear? You ought to have stopped me thinking of it.	1025
REX:	I should have ...

- LEONARD: [Really working himself up] What do you think you're paid for? I mean this idea was trash. It was unpleasant! Incompetent, lazy – [He throws the dummy down.] – it's trash.
- REX: Why? It was your idea Leonard. 1030
- LEONARD: You're a disaster really, aren't you – with absolutely no imagination. Nothing! A complete catastrophe.
- REX: [Loud] I didn't think of it, Leonard, did I – it wasn't me –
- LEONARD: [Cutting him off] You're an idiot aren't you?
- REX: It wasn't me, Leonard – was it? 1035
- LEONARD: Get out of here, go on.
- REX doesn't move.
- LEONARD: Go on, get out.
- REX moves out quickly.
- LEONARD: [Shouting] You're fired. Fired! You really are this time. I don't want to see you in this room again. You leave tomorrow. [Complete silence for a moment. He faces the record desk and fades out the record.] That was the Loving Spoonful and 'Summer in the City', and this is the Competition of the Century. And now we have come to that solemn moment – the finalists – the two people who are going to come all the way up here. Rex has written the two names out in red ink – you all did so well – showed enormous determination – the greatest in England. But the two who got through – the two names on the card are – Jane Harris and Nicola Davies. Jane and Nicola have won through to the Final. [Fanfare. It fades down] 1040
- REX: [Quiet, matter-of-fact, over the intercom] I can only get one of them, Mr Brazil, the other one has gone to bed, she must have been very confident ... I've got Nicola Davies for you. 1045
- LEONARD: Put her through then, Rex. [He fades out the fanfare.] Hello there Nicola Davies. 1050
- NICOLA'S VOICE: [Over the monitor, quiet] Yes, hello.
- LEONARD: Hello there Nicola – I don't know if you've been listening to your radio – but I've rung to tell you, in front of the listening thousands, that you have reached the Final, the final round, of Competition of the Century – 1060
- Pause*
- NICOLA: [Flat, unsurprised] Have I ... Oh good.
- LEONARD: [Louder] Did you ever think you could make it, Nicola? 1065
- NICOLA: [Matter-of-fact] No.
- LEONARD: Are you tall or short, Nicola?
- NICOLA: Not tall, quite short.
- LEONARD: That's funny. Rex said you were tall, I said you were short – you've got a short voice. Ross'll like that. I'm looking forward to meeting you, Nicola Davies, tremendously. Aren't you? 1070
- NICOLA: Yes, I am. I am, Leonard ... [Flat] ... very much.
- LEONARD: Good ... that's good. Nicola's going to be coming up here – I'm sure we'll get on. Tomorrow's going to be an extraordinarily good day, isn't it? There'll be some big surprises, I'm sure, and there's a big surprise now – do you usually stay to listen 1075 to the LB spot?

 NICOLA: Oh, yes.
 LEONARD: Well, Nicola, I have news for you. You are in it, you are in the LB spot. For each week, for those of you who have never listened before, and if there are any they'll be hung, drawn, and fined – LB has his spot, when he unleashes a few things. Are you still there, Nicola? 1080

NICOLA: Yes. I'm here.
 LEONARD: Well, you're high up, high up in the LB spot – high in the clouds. And the first – the first LB moment is, it's my birthday today, so I'm told, which is a lie because it's at least two years until my next birthday, and our friend Rex – who is definitely getting ideas – has made a cake. A cake out of melted down records. Seriously, folks I've been thinking about London, for a number of enormous reasons – London, capital of this fine country of ours. And of course it's the prize in the Competition of the Century. [Fast] I was walking along Carnaby Street the other day, Nicola, it shows how old I am, I can pronounce that name correctly – the street that made the world swing – you should see what it looks like now – it looks like a museum street, it needs its glass case – especially as half of it has been knocked down. [Smiles] We mustn't get bitter! [Funny voice] Your mouth tastes bitter, Brazil, it's going black round the edges. Remember where you are. You can't let the side down like this, Brazil. It's an important moment. Brazil, what are you doing? [Quieter] What does he think he's doing? No ... seriously, everybody, London's still an exciting place – the most exciting place. The only place to be. Mustn't get obsessed by all our yesterdays, they're gone thank goodness, must get obsessed by all our tomorrows. [Like a machine] Hear hear. Hear hear. Don't spit on the animals. I said, don't spit on the animals – where's Nicola Davies – where is she? Still there, Nicola? 1090

NICOLA: Yes, Leonard, I'm still here. 1095
 LEONARD: [Smiles] The rain is slashing at the window. I'm afraid, Nicola, if it gets to me I may melt ... I'm afraid. Hear that, Nicola? 1100

NICOLA: Yes. I heard.
 LEONARD: No need to fear, Nicola is here. I have a note here, what do DJs really do while they're playing records? That's a good question. I hate to tell you. Some read the papers, some play the stock-market, call up their stock-brokers between records – that's true, folks – some call up their lady friends. [Smiles] And some long to scream obscenities over the air! The mad DJ. And they all use words so sumptuously for your pleasure. Do you ever listen to your words, Brazil? Never, thank goodness, but never mind. Everybody needs us, after all – [Lightly] – we're the new jokers of the pack, we're the new clowns, we tell it how it should be. And we're going to lick the blues. Each week I try to lick the blues – this time with a flysprayer, I have it out, I'm spraying it, I'm spraying them now, they're falling to the ground, curling up black and dead, legs in the air – we've done it. Don't spit on the animals. We're going to make it aren't we, get through to the other side, of course we are – and if you've just seen some horrible things, on the television, bomb blasts, unemployment, politicians, and all that part of our good old England, and you've switched it off to 1110
 1130

listen to me, sensibly! Then remember, no need to fear, we're going to lick it, so Shout it out! Things can only get better and better – so Shout it out! We have the greatest day of the century tomorrow, so there's something to look forward to, so let's Shout it out! Yes, you, madam, get out of the bath, and Shout it out! And you, love, Shout it out! Throw that away, lad, and SHOUT IT OUT! Come on Grandad, SHOUT IT OUT! You too, Nicola Davies, SHOUT IT OUT! Let's have some real music. I said SHOUT IT OUT! LOUDER! I can't hear you, don't spit on the animals – this is nineteen hundred and seventy eight, this is Len Brazil – this is Crazy Competition Week – be there tomorrow – and once more SHOUT IT OUT!

Music stops after crescendo. REX has entered, stares at LEONARD. Total silence, long pause.

1145

LEONARD:

Oh hell. I wasn't going to do that. [He flicks a switch. A record comes on, incredibly loud. The lights fade.]

STIMULI

Choose one of the following three stimuli and devise a piece of drama based on it. You should work in groups of between two and six performers. Your piece should last approximately 15 minutes.

In the Written examination, you will be asked questions about your piece that will cover both practical and theoretical issues.

Stimulus 1

Quotation: 'Some rise by sin, and some by virtue fall'
From William Shakespeare's Measure for Measure [Act 2, Scene 1]

Stimulus 2

Poem: On Aging by Maya Angelou

When you see me sitting quietly,
Like a sack left on the shelf,
Don't think I need your chattering.
I'm listening to myself.
Hold! Stop! Don't pity me!
Hold! Stop your sympathy!
Understanding if you got it,
Otherwise I'll do without it!

When my bones are stiff and aching,
And my feet won't climb the stair,
I will only ask one favor:
Don't bring me no rocking chair.

When you see me walking, stumbling,
Don't study and get it wrong.
'Cause tired don't mean lazy
And every goodbye ain't gone.
I'm the same person I was back then,
A little less hair, a little less chin,
A lot less lungs and much less wind.
But ain't I lucky I can still breathe in.

EXTRACT*Taken from City Sugar, by Stephen Poliakoff

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

This version of Stephen Poliakoff's play City Sugar was first performed in 1976. The action takes place in three locations: a radio studio at 'Leicester Sound' (a fictional local commercial radio station); at the frozen foods counter of a supermarket called Lipton's; and in Nicola's bedroom. Leicester is an industrial city in the English Midlands, two hours' travel from London.

The central character is Leonard Brazil, a small-town disc-jockey (DJ) with big aspirations. However, he is increasingly disillusioned with his job of trying to create an artificial world of glamour and excitement for his young – and mainly female – audience.

The play is in two Acts. The extract consists of a shortened version of Act 1.

Playwright's note

It is important that Leonard's style as a disc-jockey is not too transatlantic, but his own special blend of relaxed charm, sudden fluent bursts of energy, and barbed comment. He is totally in control of his medium, and his actions round his desk and controls should suggest a master disc-jockey.

The tension inside him which explodes later in the extract should build up gradually, both on and off the microphone – his considerable charm in the first scene, both to his audience and to Rex, getting progressively more and more sour, until eventually it becomes savage.

However, he never allows himself to over-step the mark completely when he is on the air, even in his huge speeches at the end of the first Act.

Characters

Leonard Brazil	A disc-jockey at Leicester Sound. In his mid to late thirties, extremely polished appearance, but dresses stylishly rather than ultra-fashionably. Considerable natural charm, even when being aggressive.
Rex	21 years old, a mixture of eager awkwardness and cockiness. He has a likeable naïve manner.
Nicola Davies	16 years old. Totally flat voice, but a very determined manner underneath the quiet, completely blank exterior.
Susan	16 years old, extremely volatile.
John	A small shiny man, in his late fifties, totally accepting manner; tidy, neat, completely dedicated to his job.
Mick	17 years old, shy, overjoyed to be working where he is.
Angela	Caller to Leonard Brazil's radio show.
Rita	Caller to Leonard Brazil's radio show.
Jim	Caller to Leonard Brazil's radio show.
Ross	Member of pop group.
Fat Man's voice	Supermarket security man.

ACT 1

Scene 1

The studio at Leicester Sound. LEONARD BRAZIL is sitting at the record desk. REX is in the engineer's box. A pop record fades over a blackout.

LEONARD: [Into the microphone] Welcome back to the LB show ...
 LB – the two most important initials in the country. LB on 5 five hundred and fifty waves – that's a lot of water. [Loud]
 Five hundred and fifty medium waves! [Smiles] Sorry.
 'You can do better than that, Brazil.' 'Yes Boss.' In a few minutes we have something for you, something special.
[Beginning to open letters on the turn-table desk] I have 10 a few letters in front of me – I've been struggling to open.
 I have one from Mrs Lee, Mrs D. Lee, saying that did I know there was now an excellent restaurant in this fine city of ours, and its name is The Aubergine. And now, the 15 lovely, the scintillating, the mind-expanding Lynsey De Paul.
[Over the beginning of the record, which he has switched on] Nobody need fear – Lynsey De Paul is here ... [He turns a switch, after a few bars so that the music now plays silently while the record goes round; he drops his pen onto the desk, pause] That was terrible. [He flicks the intercom to speak to REX in the box.] That was a real stinker.
 A loosener – and a very loose loosener at that. [Pause, he continues to the intercom] Come in here ... [Pause, louder into the intercom] Get yourself in here, right now!
 REX enters behind him. 25

REX: I'm here.

LEONARD: That's better.

REX: I've brought a drink.

LEONARD: How kind ... [Slight smile] Trying to placate me are you? ...
 What is it? 30

REX: Lime juice; it's a free sample of one of the commercials we're carrying this week.

LEONARD: It looks like a congealed shampoo. *[He puts it to one side.
 Suddenly staring at REX; loud]* Now, why haven't you filled these up? 35

REX: I was going to.

LEONARD: Going to! Everybody keeps on telling me how efficient you are, how fortunate I am to have you. I have yet to notice. Go and do these now. [LEONARD hands REX sheets of record titles to be filled in.] I warn you, it's a particularly grisly lot. [Smiles]
 I seem to have played pap for an entire week – might as well have stuck the stylus into cotton wool. [REX moves slightly]
 And why hasn't my mail been checked ... 40

REX: [Embarrassed] Sorry, I ... By the way – I've left an item there
 – [He indicates the desk.] – you might like. 45

LEONARD: You have, have you? Worse and worse, Rex ... You're having a good day, aren't you? [Smiles] I don't like suggestions very much, you should know that by now.

REX: Yeah but I thought – you could ... I wanted ...

LEONARD: No! [He turns suddenly to the microphone, turns on the record over the monitor speakers and fades it down.] That 50

was Miss De Paul. I'm now struggling with another letter on pink paper – it's from Mrs Joan Parsons saying 'Dear Leonard, Is it true or false that you were a teacher in another life?' Well, now, I don't know about another life, Joan, but I was in this one, yes. I trained as a teacher as it happens, before I slipped into the record business, and when all that went up in a puff of smoke, I slipped back into the classroom, until of course I heard the call of Leicester Sound. I thought that everybody knew that, Joan. [Smiles] A joke. And a note here from a theatre group calling itself the Gracious Players, saying, could I give a free plug to their production of the late Dame Agatha Christie's Towards Zero on Saturday at the Town Hall, Hinckley, which seats one thousand five hundred people. No wonder they wanted their free mention. And I'm now being handed by the ever-dependable Rex, a piece of paper on which is written 'DON'T FORGET'. And if you don't know what that means, I do, and I'll tell you in a moment, for we have a real thriller coming up; but to change the subject – [Putting on a record] – I have lost some weight. In fact I've lost so much weight, I'm floating out of my seat, floating round the studio. [Normal] While our friend Rex is gaining all the time, I'm afraid, he's approaching sixteen stone now, can hardly fit into his box. Enough of this gibberish. 'DON'T FORGET' means competition time. We have a stunner for you in a moment ... till then, let's flash back into the dim, distant past of last week. [He switches on a record; 'It's Gonna Sell A Million'; and turns the sound off after a couple of bars.] That was better – that was very slightly better. He gets up and walks. 55

REX: [Entering] Why do you keep on doing this? 60

LEONARD: Doing what?

REX: You know ...

LEONARD: Putting weight on you, you mean – making you an obese lump. It's my rather dismal little joke. 65

REX: I thought ... you were the one for the truth over the air.

LEONARD: I allow myself this one slight distortion.

REX: But people will discover, won't they?

LEONARD: No they won't, nobody's ever going to publish a picture of you, are they? 70

REX: Yes. [Pause] The local press might.

LEONARD: [Smiling] Not with shares in this station they won't. In fact a total wall of silence could be preserved about your real size for evermore. In fact, if I wanted, I could pump you up steadily to twenty-five stone and then burst you. [Pause] Sorry. [Smiles] Don't worry, I do it to everyone that works for me. 75

REX: So I've heard.

LEONARD: So there's no need to look injured. You're not, yet.

REX: [Moves to go, slight smile] By the way, I've got Capital Radio from London on the line. 80

LEONARD: [Without looking up] You'll have to be more convincing than that. Been listening to jabber and gossip, have you?

REX: I suppose so, yes.

LEONARD: Well, don't. 85

REX: [Watching him] Everybody knows anyway. Are they going to make an offer then? 90

95

- LEONARD: It's just possible. Everything's possible. I shouldn't bank on it.
 REX: For the afternoon show ... [Smiles] They'll be sending spies up here. They'll be sitting in pubs with transistor radios and earplugs, listening away. You'll have to give them the whole works. 110
- LEONARD: [Looking up] Will I? Get it ready.
 REX: It is ready. I –
 LEONARD: [Cutting REX off, he swings round to the microphone and switches on the monitor speakers, fading down the end of the record.] And now, a special competition. You heard me – a mind-tingling competition. And by my side is the ever-dependable Rex, sweating slightly, what have we got as a prize, Rex? 115
- REX: [Nervous, standing by the microphone and speaking into it, putting on an almost BBC voice] We have their latest LP – the Yellow Jacks' latest! 120
- LEONARD: [Brash voice] Tell us the title, Rex – please tell us the title.
 REX: 'High Up There'. 125
 LEONARD: That's a fine title – is it a fine record?
 REX: It's very exciting Leonard, it really is ...
 LEONARD: [To the listeners] And you can have it a whole two or three weeks before it's in the shops, be one of the very first people in the whole country to have it. And what is Rex going to make us do? ... Well, I think he's been fiddling with his audio tapes. 130
- REX: I have indeed –
 LEONARD: And what have you done with your tapes?
 REX: I've slowed them down – rather a lot. 135
 LEONARD: [Loud] Tell me Rex, what effect does this have on the listener?
 REX: What?
 LEONARD: [Very fast] What effect does this have on the listener?
 REX: What ... well it ... [REX dries completely, stands helpless] I ... 140
- LEONARD presses the button: a tape of the Leicester Sound jingle cuts off REX's floundering.
- LEONARD: Enough of this gibberish. [Normal voice] OK, sweets – this is it. Rex is going to play one of the songs in the Top Eleven, and it has been slo-o-o-o-owed do-o-o-own, so it sounds a little different. And you're going to give us the singer and the song aren't you ... Double five three zero four is the number to ring ... that's right. [Humphrey Bogart voice] Play it again, Rex. 150
- REX back in his box, switches on a tape of 'The Proud One' by the Osmonds at half speed.
- LEONARD: [After a few bars, LEONARD reduces the volume on the monitor speakers and talks into the intercom to REX; off the air.] Sounds a little more exciting like this doesn't it. I shall always play it like this in future. [Suddenly loud] All records will be played at quarter speed and we'll talk that slowly too. REX has come out of the box. 155

REX:	I'm ... sorry about messing things up, I didn't mean to ...
LEONARD:	Of course you didn't –	160
REX:	You took me by surprise, I didn't think ... I'm sorry, I won't do it again.
LEONARD:	No of course you won't. You won't get another chance to. Now get back into your box where you belong. [ He returns to the microphone and switches it to go live again. Loud ] Rex – what have you done to my favourite song? OK, sweets, who can be the first caller? – race to your phones, dial furiously ... I'm touching the first prize now – all fourteen tracks of it ... we're handling the two of them with rubber gloves up here – and we're keeping them in an incubator at night, in case we can hatch a third. Seriously now – [ He's put his headphones on. ] – we have a caller; and the first caller is ...	165
A GIRL'S VOICE:	[ On the telephone, amplified through the monitors ] Hello? Hello ...
LEONARD:	[ Softly ] Hello there ... what's your name, love?	175
GIRL:	Angela ...
LEONARD:	Lovely. Have we ever talked before?
ANGELA:	No, never –
LEONARD:	Fine. You at home Angela?
ANGELA:	Yeah – I'm at home.	180
LEONARD:	Good – well, let's go straight into it Angela, into the unknown ... [ Signalling to REX, who switches on the slowed-down tape again, in the background ] Who do you think the noise is, this slo-o-ow noise?
ANGELA:	Is it – 'The Proud One' by the Osmonds?	185
LEONARD:	Angela, you're r-r-r-o-o-o-o-ight! Well done! [ REX speeds up the record to the right speed and plays a few bars. LEONARD signals to REX and the volume is reduced. ] There we go – clever girl. I'm dropping your prize into Rex's hand, to be wiped spotless, and posted, jet-propelled towards you Angela. Bye, love. Let's have the next one Rex. [ REX plays a slowed-down version of 'I Can't Give You Anything But My Love' by the Stylistics. LEONARD gets up again. ]	190
REX:	[ Staring at LEONARD ] I really like it, you know – [ Slight smile ] – if I'm allowed to say so, how you always touch something when you're talking about it, even if it's the wrong record, like just now.	195
LEONARD:	Yes. I like that too. It's the actor in me. It's what makes it reasonably good. [ Staring round the studio ] Where is the nauseating object anyway? [ He sees the Yellow Jacks LP and picks it up. ] Have you read the back, with Ross – [ American voice ] – the lead singer speaking his mind . [ Normal voice ] Take an example at random – 'Ross numbers among his favourite things: walnut ice-cream, honeysuckle, genuine people, starfish, and sunburnt bare feet.' [ Loud ] You realise we're going to have to play the utterances of this imbecile all this week. [ He switches on the microphone suddenly. ] Hello – what's your name please?	200
LEONARD:	You listen often? –
RITA:	Yes ... yes I do.	210

LEONARD:	[ Smiles, soft ] Good, that's how it should be. Let's go straight into it then love, into the nitty gritty – who do you think it is?
RITA:	I think it's – [ She gives the wrong title. ]
LEONARD:	Well, Rita, you're wrong, I'm afraid.	215
RITA:	No I'm not ... am I?
LEONARD:	I'm afraid so.
RITA:	You sure? ... [ Louder ] I was certain. You –
LEONARD:	[ Cutting her off ] I'm sorry love, you're wrong; keep listening though, for a very important reason ... bye for now. [ TV chat-show host voice ] And let's go straight in to the next contestant! Coming up to Big John with the news at three o'clock. One down, one LP to go – round, crisp and shiny. What's your name please?	220
NICOLA'S VOICE:	[ Extremely flat, unemotional ] Hello.	225
LEONARD:	A little louder please – what's your name?
NICOLA:	[ Very quiet ] Nicola Davies.
LEONARD:	A little louder.
NICOLA:	[ Loud ] Nicola Davies.
LEONARD:	Nicola Davies. That's very formal. Are you at home, Nicola Davies?	230
NICOLA:	Yes.
LEONARD:	A little louder – you've got a very nice voice, Nicola. So, to win this LP, that Rex is just slipping into its beautiful see-through sleeve – who is it, Nicola?	235
NICOLA:	It's the Stylistics and – [ She gives the wrong title ]
LEONARD:	I'm afraid, Nicola ...
NICOLA:	[ Correcting herself ] No, it's 'I Can't Give You Anything But My Love'.
LEONARD:	Well Nicola – I'm afraid your first answer is the only one I can accept ...	240
NICOLA:	Oh ...
LEONARD:	But you were very close – and so, as you've given us all your name, Nicola Davies – I'm going, actually, to give it to you.
NICOLA:	Oh good – thank you.	245
LEONARD:	Just for you, Nicola Davies, but on one condition – and that is –
NICOLA:	[ Nervous ] What is that?
LEONARD:	You listen for just one more moment, because I have something rather extraordinary to announce to everyone ... I'm going to be running many competitions this week – but one of them is different – for, to tie in with the great Yellow Jacks' concert here in this city on Saturday we're running THE COMPETITION OF THE CENTURY ... and the prize is actually meeting one of the boys. How do you like that, Nicola Davies?	250
NICOLA:	Yes ... what do you do?
LEONARD:	And not only that – the winner will ride to London, after the concert, in their car, sitting with them , and what is more they will then spend four whole days in London, the capital of this fine country, at the expense of Leicester Sound. That's OK, isn't it? – Nicola?	260
NICOLA:	Yes ... what do –
LEONARD:	[ Cutting her off ] So everybody tune in tomorrow, for the first stage – you too Nicola – [ His voice quieter, smiles ] – you never know – what your luck might be – we might even	265

Speak again. [He puts down the phone and drops his pen onto the desk, quiet pause]

We're off.

BLACKOUT 270

In the blackout: a radio commercial.

- SHARP TRANSATLANTIC VOICE: We are going DOWN! DOWN! DOWN! Yes, everything's down at Lipton's. Shop at Lipton's where eggs are down – [Echo effect] – DOWN! DOWN! Bacon is down and what's not down's not up. 275
- SONG: LIPTON'S MAKES THE GOING EASY, LIPTON'S MAKES THE GOING GREAT!
As the song continues, there is a sudden explosion of white light. Stage lights come up to show supermarket scene. The music of the commercial breaks into pop music, playing in the background. NICOLA is standing by the fridge, staring ahead, pale-faced. 280
- SUSAN'S VOICE: [Off-stage] Nicola?

NICOLA doesn't react. SUSAN enters and stands at a distance from NICOLA. 285
- SUSAN: Nicola? Here ...

NICOLA glances up. Suddenly SUSAN crosses over to the fridge, very sharply.
- NICOLA: [Surprised, nervous] You shouldn't have come over. You know you're meant to stick to your own counter. [Sharp] You'll be seen any moment, you know. 290
- SUSAN: I won't. [She feels her tunic.] I'm tired after that rush, and it'll soon be starting again. [Pulling at her tunic] I get so hot in this all over. What's that – let's see that ...
- NICOLA: Nothing. 295
- SUSAN: [Making a grab for it] What you got a postcard for, with nothing on it?
- NICOLA: Stop it! You'll get it wet. [She puts the postcard back.] Look, if I'm seen talking to you, by the camera – [They both glance up.] – we'll both get it, won't we? You just have to make a wrong move, and he'll see you, won't he? 300
- SUSAN: Don't worry, I'm watching out. [She smiles.] It's coming now. [SUSAN ducks.] You know what happened yesterday? Something exciting. What do you think – a cat got in here, it did. Just after you'd gone. Came through the stacks of cheese crackers up there, suddenly there it was. In here! You know, spitting and everything. Made a change. Didn't last long – you missed it! 305
- NICOLA: Yes.
- SUSAN: [Loud] I wonder if anything else will get in here soon. 310

- LEONARD BRAZIL'S VOICE: [Suddenly piping up] That was – [Title of record] Don't fear, Leonard Brazil is here. Hello there, wherever you are, whatever you're doing, and a special hello to you. [As if to all the girls, but strangely personal] Yes, you down there, I'm saying hello to you. 315
- NICOLA: He's quite loud today.
- SUSAN: Yes, he is.
- L.B.'S VOICE: [Running on] I've got a lot of goodies coming up, and no bad 'uns. Every sound is freshly picked up here, 'specially for you, that's why they're so ripe and full of flavour. Juicy! You don't believe me, well, it's true. 320
- The music begins.*
- SUSAN: He's talking a lot today, isn't he?
- L.B.'S VOICE: Very soon that special something I promised, Stage One ...
- NICOLA: Yes. 325
- L.B.'S VOICE: Until then, let's move on to the year 2000 and maybe we'll be listening to this. [He plays 'Long Haired Lover From Liverpool'.]
- SUSAN: [Looking into the fridge] I'm so hungry, aren't you? Can't stop feeling hungry ... 330
- NICOLA: Careful, what you're doing. He'll kill us if he sees.
- SUSAN: [Her hand inside the fridge] It's horrible inside here. We could fuse this fridge, you know – just have to get the right thing. [She pulls at something inside the fridge.] Once saw it happen, all the food melts slowly, goes soggy and bad, and it all floats in a big kind of mush, you can pour the whole lot out like a lot of soup. [She pushes the fridge.] It moves too, you see! 335
- NICOLA: [Shouts] Mind! [SUSAN springs back as the camera pauses. Nervous] He's seen us now. Think. You're going to get us sacked at any moment now. 340
- SUSAN: I wouldn't mind that – I wouldn't. Anyway, he's asleep most of the time, the guy who watches it. Up in the office. I saw him through the door once. He's very fat. I've heard all about him, he sits there all day, with one of his socks off, picking his toes, and eating the stuff, while he watches. 345
- NICOLA: He doesn't do that, does he?
- SUSAN: Yes – he used to be a policeman, you know. So, have you stopped taking things, then?
- NICOLA: No, but they've started searching us, haven't they? 350
- SUSAN: Yes. [She puts her hand into the fridge.]
- NICOLA: It's coming round again. Careful!
- SUSAN: Nicola ... let's take something now, right now.
- NICOLA: [Astonished] What?
- SUSAN: Come on – take that! [She throws NICOLA some food.] 355
- SUSAN: And that ... and that ... [Throwing a huge bundle of food at NICOLA]
- NICOLA: Look, stop it, Susan. Stop it, it's coming ...

A large can drops out of her hands and rolls along the floor. At the same moment, the music cuts off. 360

Silence

NICOLA turns, frightened and bewildered, and rushes out in front of the fridge to pick up the can.

ROSS'S VOICE: [On the radio] Don't move, folks, stay right where you are, because yes, it's me. See you Saturday. 365

L.B.'S VOICE: Those few words were spoken by you know who, Ross. I'll be playing some more of his dulcet tones tomorrow.

NICOLA: Shhh! I want to really listen now.

L.B.'S VOICE: [Strangely gentle, as if half-aimed at her] So have you got a pencil ready – is it in your hand? We've come to that moment you've been waiting for since yesterday ... 370

SUSAN: [Loud] You're not going in for that competition, are you, you can't ...

NICOLA: Sssh! Be quiet.

L.B.'S VOICE: Come on, now then, are you ready, because I'm only going to say it once, so pin back those ears of yours, and listen ... ready... 375

Sudden silence

NICOLA: [Loud] What's that ... [Just silence.] They've switched it off. 380

SUSAN: [Smiles, teasing] Yes – they must have known what you were going to do.

NICOLA: They would switch it off then!

FAT MAN'S VOICE: [Silky, nauseating, menacing] Can Miss Lyle come into the office please ... Could Miss Lyle come here immediately, please ... immediately ... 385

SUSAN: [Loud, defiant] It's not us ... it's that old woman, seen her thieving ...

NICOLA: [Moving backwards and forwards] They were only going to say it once, weren't they? How can I find it out? 390

SUSAN: You can't go in for that competition. You won the record yesterday. They wouldn't even let you start.

NICOLA: I must find it out, probably won't be something like this for ages – where's the building that it comes from?

SUSAN: No idea. They'd never let you in, either. 395

NICOLA: No. [She turns.] I'll phone them up then. I know the number.

SUSAN: [Smiling] Can't use that phone. Only for supervisors.

NICOLA: I don't care. [She moves.]

SUSAN: [Loud] Mind! Nicola! [The camera stops ... the camera pauses ...] You'll never get over there without being seen. He's watching now. [NICOLA stares across at the phone] 400

FAT MAN'S VOICE: Miss Lyle ...

NICOLA: It's worth a try. I'm going to. [She moves in front of the fridge, sideways, crouches, dashes furiously for the phone; one second pause, then she immediately starts dialling furiously, bending to keep her head down.] 405

We hear a very loud 'engaged' tone. NICOLA slams the phone down and immediately starts dialling again. This happens repeatedly.

SUSAN: You're going to get seen! [NICOLA glances up, freezes as the camera passes] It's on you! 410

NICOLA: [Staring up] Go away ... [She finishes dialling: very, very loud 'engaged' pips] I hate that noise. [She moves back to the fridge, not caring if she's seen or not.]

SUSAN: There you are. I told you. 415

L.B.'S VOICE: [Suddenly piping up] What about that, then? What did you think of that. Super, dooper as they say in Russia. That was only the start, remember, wasn't it?

NICOLA: It would happen, wouldn't it?

L.B.'S VOICE: Of course I've been asked to repeat it, say it again for you that weren't listening, yes – I mean you. Which is against the rules, and I'll probably be fined an enormous sum of money and get banned for life, but I'm going to, just for you. 420

NICOLA: Hear that?

L.B.'S VOICE: OK, sweets. Here's Stage One again. The First Great Stage, and it is: if you could go anywhere in the world you can think of, with one of the Yellow Jacks, which one would you choose, where would you go, and why. [Jokey voice] You're not allowed to choose me, and the thirty best ones get through to Stage Two. That's not so difficult is it? In fact it's the easiest I could make it for you – isn't it? 425

And now ... [Music starts. He cues the record.]

SUSAN: Now you know, don't you?

NICOLA: Yes, leave me alone now.

SUSAN: Your postcard's filthy, you know. 435

NICOLA: Yes, but I can still write on it, can't I?

L.B.'S VOICE: Are you OK then? It's over to you. [The music coming up loud] I'm waiting for you, aren't I? [Music loud]

BLACKOUT

Scene 3

The studio. LEONARD BRAZIL is standing by his desk. A record is playing silently. A spool of tape is going round – and we hear LEONARD's personal jingle over the speakers. 440

JINGLE: LB ... LB ... LB ... LB ... LB ... [He turns the volume up]
LB ... LB ...

Behind him, MICK, 17 years old, nervous manner, is dragging in four large sacks bulging with postcards. 445

LEONARD: [Flicks off the jingle, swings round] What are you doing with those?

MICK: [Nervous] I ... I'm carrying them in here ... Mr Brazil.

LEONARD: Nothing is allowed in here, you know that. 450

MICK: Yes ... Mr Brazil.

LEONARD: [Staring] What are they?

MICK: [Very nervous] They're bags ... I ...

LEONARD: Yes?

MICK: Replies from the listeners. Rex is finishing sorting them ... 455 you see ... and there're so many we thought you'd like to see them.

LEONARD: [Casually] Did you? [He puts his hand into one of the bags and pulls out postcards.] All these are replies, are they?

MICK: You really got them to write in all right, didn't you ... 460
Mr Brazil?

LEONARD: Come on, take these all out again – the whole lot at once.

- MICK: [Struggling to pick them up] Yes, of course.
LEONARD: This place is meant to be the nerve centre of the city, isn't it? And you fill it with all this stuff. Go on, we have very little time. 465
- He brings up the record volume and goes on the air. As he does so, REX enters, stops MICK picking up the bags, and they both stand and watch LEONARD from the side. At the end of LEONARD's piece over the air MICK leaves silently.* 470
- LEONARD: That was Peters and Lee and 'Welcome Home'. And now I've got something to say, folks. [Tone changes] Very soon on this Wonderful Wednesday we have Big John with all the News In The World – till then, let's explode with a raving cataclysmic ditty from 1968, the Rolling Stones and 'Street Fighting Man'. [Explosion of sound. LEONARD listens for a moment, sees REX and cuts it out suddenly.] What you doing? 475
- REX: [Standing staring] I was watching you.
LEONARD: That's not permitted, especially the amount you do. Your ogling is getting on my nerves. Why do you do it? 480
REX: Because it really interests me, doesn't it? [Smiles] Have you heard anything from Capital? [Fast] Do you think they're listening now and going to ...
LEONARD: [Sharp] That, Rex, is a forbidden subject, and you know it is. Come on, we have three minutes to go. 485
REX: [Still standing there] Yes, Leonard ... I wondered if ... I just happen to have an item here I thought you might like or perhaps even ...
LEONARD: You could have a quick spot and read it yourself? That's what you were going to say, wasn't it? You're pushing, aren't you lad. 490
- BIG JOHN enters; a shiny, red-faced man.
- JOHN: Hello there, everyone. [Smiles] Two minutes to go.
LEONARD: The lad's being pushy. 495
JOHN: Is he? That's no surprise.
REX: [Nervous suddenly] I'm sorry, I didn't mean ...
LEONARD: We've got to go on to Stage Two in two minutes, go on ... get out! [He switches onto the air without a break, fading down the record] Hello sweets – stand by. Very soon now you'll have 'you-know-what' – till then, here's ... [He plays something very cheap and nasty. As soon as he's faded out, he swings round and cuts back like lightning into his talk with REX, who has left the studio.] 500
- LEONARD: [Loud] And you make one mistake, Rex, and you're fired – do you hear that? [Quieter] That boy makes me nervous. 505
JOHN: I didn't know that was possible.
LEONARD: [Flicks round, stares at JOHN] You look particularly cheerful today, don't you, John?
JOHN: Thank you. I'm in very good form, yes. 510
LEONARD: As usual, you've probably got a train disaster and a couple of mass murders there – [Tapping JOHN's file] – and your cheeks are positively glistening – bright and rosy.

JOHN: Thank you. [Smiles] But I haven't got anything really spectacular now – maybe by tea-time something will come in. 515

LEONARD: [Slight teasing smile] Good.

JOHN: What's this I've just heard about approaches from the Big Wide World, from the actual Capital Radio. Are they going to ... 520

LEONARD: You didn't hear anything of the kind. [Loud] Nothing of the kind.

JOHN: [Startled] I'm sorry, I didn't realize ...

LEONARD: No, you don't, John. You see this. [He picks it up.] This piece of paper – that is the COMPETITION OF THE CENTURY. [He holds it up.] 525

JOHN: [Looking at it] Yes, it's a real cash box week, this week, isn't it? One minute, fifteen seconds to go ...

LEONARD: And you know what ... [He pauses] I've done something which I've never done before, John. I've picked out an average girl for this competition. Yes, I picked out her voice. I home in on her each time I go on the air, home in on that voice. And I imagine her face. It would be funny if she knew, wouldn't it? 530

JOHN: [Hardly looking up] Really?

LEONARD: In fact, each time I pass by the window, I half expect to see her – a small dot standing right down there, staring up towards here, her spectacles flashing – if she wears spectacles. [He glances at JOHN, who is not listening.] You're the only one that knows that yet, John. 535

JOHN: Yes. I've got no tongue-twisters today, luckily. One minute to zero. Peppermint? [He sucks one himself]

LEONARD: [He taps JOHN's file.] Got any earthquakes locked in there?

JOHN: No thank goodness. Nothing like that.

LEONARD: Perhaps you should have. 545

JOHN: [Suddenly looks up] You must be enjoying all this anyway – it's your greatest week ever, isn't it?

LEONARD: Oh, I am. I am.

JOHN: After all, you've always been wonderful at whipping people up, getting them to TUNE IN. You only have to say the word ... 550

LEONARD: Yes?

JOHN: Just have to breathe over the air. They're all waiting for you now.

LEONARD: [Standing over controls] That's right, John. Got your little furry mascot ready, have you? Go on, hold it up! 555

JOHN: [Holds it so that LEONARD can see] Yes, of course I have. Ten seconds to zero ...

LEONARD: You dropped it yesterday in mid-sentence. Hold on to it very tightly, John. [He flicks on the switch, fades out the music] 560

That was the cuddly sound of – [He gives the name of the record. His tone changes, becoming personal.] We're coming to you very soon now, love, so don't fret, don't worry ... It's three o'clock and here's Big John with all the News In The World. 565

BIG JOHN starts reading the News, world items of extreme unrest, mingled with local items. As he reads, LEONARD

crosses to the far end of the studio, out of microphone range, and calls out remarks to him, trying to put him off.

- LEONARD: [Smiling] You know, John, I don't seem to be able to believe anything you say today ... I'm talking through the News, John ... I think your mascot's going to fall ... [He begins to cross over towards him.] Perhaps you need a tickle. 570
- LEONARD crosses to JOHN who's reading the News unwaveringly and begins to tickle him under the chin, and then under the arms, in the ribs. JOHN shifts in his chair, but keeps reading. LEONARD crosses to his desk. 575
- JOHN: [On the air] And now back to Leonard, and that Competition of the Century.
- LEONARD: Our thanks to Big John for reading the News so nicely and so firmly. Stand by, love, any moment. [Music plays. He fades it down.] 580
- JOHN: Somebody'll hear you one day, Leonard. Always jealous of people taking away your microphone, aren't you ... even for a moment. Always trying to put them off ... 585
- LEONARD: Rubbish! Anyway, I never manage to ... [Suddenly really abusive] Competitions have an effect on me.
- REX: [Entering loudly and suddenly with a trolley completely smothered in objects] Here you are!
- LEONARD: [Facing him] What are those? 590
- REX: They're your bribes.
- LEONARD: [Sharp] My what?
- REX: Your bribes, Leonard – from the girls.
- LEONARD: [Completely surprised] They sent all those? Why?
- REX: [Scrambling over the trolley] There're hundreds of them. A watch – nicked from her dad, probably. A T-shirt with your initials on it, some cheese, some socks with toes, a whole cake with you on it, and lots of photos of themselves. 595
- LEONARD: [Staring at them, quiet] All for me ... ? [He picks up the photos and stares at them.] 600
- JOHN: [Moving over to the huge stack of bribes] You're doing very well out of this, aren't you? I don't know what you're worrying about. [Feeling objects, poring over them] We've never had a response like this. Could live off this for a month. [Casually] I wonder if there's anything there for me. [He picks up the watch, or the cheese.] I could do with this. [He pockets it.] 605
- LEONARD: John! Go and find some more News. Something worth listening to, for once.
JOHN goes.
- REX: [Urgent] We're very late now. [He glances down at the photos, then throws them on his desk.] 610
- REX: [Looking at the photos] What were you looking for?
- LEONARD: [Sharp] Nothing. I wasn't looking for anything. [Slight smile] What am I going to make them do next, then?
- REX: [Astonished] I don't know. They will do absolutely anything, those kids. They're desperate just to get into the studio and meet you, and then the Yellow Jacks and everything as well!! The last concert the Yellow Jacks did here, a girl asked Ross, begged him to sign her lip. I saw it, and he did and I wondered if she was going to cut that bit off and keep it in a 615
620

- jam jar, so the signature wouldn't come off.
- LEONARD: Stop that – you're not going to talk like that in here – understand! I don't like it. [He switches on music, goes onto the air]
- REX: [As LEONARD does so] I'm sorry, Leonard. 625
- LEONARD: Hello, sweet. How are you then? Good. I wish you could see the sight up here. The studio is brimming with your answers, they're hanging everywhere. Rex is just handing me the postcards – perhaps your postcard, enabling you to get through to Stage Two. Hurry, Rex! Had a hard job sorting them, have you, Rex? 630
- REX: [Entering into the double act] Yes, Leonard. We've been simply wading through entries.
- LEONARD: You nearly drowned our Rex, love. Pity you didn't send a few more. [He begins to read the cards briskly] Diane Williams of 30 Sutton Road says she'd like to go to Scotland with Peter and climb mountains with him because he's afraid of heights. Quite a sadist, aren't you, Diane. Thank you for that. Pam Lawrence of 10 Rosendale Avenue says she'd like to go to London with Ross, because that's what the real prize is. I like that, a real realist, there. Pam will go far, won't she. And Nicola Davies of 35 Poole's Road – rather a grubby postcard isn't it, Nicola – says she'd like to go to Kenya with Ken, that's a Nicola-type joke, and go on safari because Ken looks so good in a suntan and so I'm sure, would you, Nicola. You're through all the way to Stage Two now. Get your lead pencil ready ... [Music is playing]
- REX: [Nervously] What happens if we don't think of something, Leonard?
- LEONARD: What indeed, Rex. [Slight smile] Disaster. 650
- REX: Perhaps some sort of race ...
- LEONARD: There is of course something staring us in the eyeballs right at this moment! Isn't there?
- REX: [Staring at the desk] What?
- LEONARD: It isn't original. It's been used in America several times. [He picks up the T-shirt]
- REX: [Excited] What is it?
- LEONARD: They might just enjoy it. Just.
- REX: What is it, Leonard?
- LEONARD: [Swings round] And it is: they have to make a portrait dummy of Ross, or any of the others, life size. 660
- REX: What?
- LEONARD: A model, effigy. A dummy of one of the Jacks, out of old clothes, like a guy, stuffed full and life size. That's the idea, Rex. 665
- REX: That's ... that's pretty good, in fact, it's brilliant. [Loud] It is.
- LEONARD: It's not at all. It's not even good, but it'll just do.
- REX: [Quiet] It's great.
- LEONARD: [By the controls] Just listen to that.
- REX: What? 670
- LEONARD: You can almost hear all their small ears pressed against the radio waiting for it. The Competition of the Century. [He brings up the theme music really loud.]
- REX: You knew the answer all the time, Leonard, didn't you?
- LEONARD: Rex is coming over with all of Stage Two in his hands. 675
- REX: Here it is, Leonard – all of it. [He hands him nothing.]

LEONARD: Thank you, Rex. [His tone is suddenly personal, almost gentle.] OK, what we want – what I want you to do is very simple and a little special, for the next stage of our remarkable obstacle race to get to the Yellow Jacks and London Town, where everything is still possible. I want you to make, in the next two days, a model of one of the boys – [Laughs] – one of the great Yellow Jacks, a model of Ross, or Dave, or Ken, or Pete. ‘What do you mean, Leonard? Make a model? A dummy? How on earth do I do that, Leonard? – That’s impossible!’ Well, what you do is you get some old clothes, and stuff them with paper, and copy his face from a picture, and use some wool for his hair, or go to a gentlemen’s hairdresser, or even a ladies’. [Gentle voice] ‘Please could I borrow your shavings?’ No, seriously, don’t spend any money on it, and get it to me at Leicester Sound by five o’clock Friday. Do you understand now? And the two who make the most wondrous accurate models will become the finalists, and come up here. That can’t be bad. It’s not. So do your best, and hurry, won’t you. Good hunting. 680

A blast of music, as he brings in a record.

LEONARD: [Very abrasive] I DON’T LIKE COMPETITIONS!

Music up again.

BLACKOUT

Scene 4

NICOLA’s room. Radio playing in the background. NICOLA pulling out a pile of magazines methodically from under the bed and from the side of the room, and a pile of cans, packets, etc. that she’s taken from the Supermarket. SUSAN watching. 700

SUSAN: What you doing with all of this? 705

NICOLA: There’s not much time.

SUSAN: [Suddenly grabbing a poster from the pile] Hey! you’ve got one of these. Who’s it of? [She unfolds an enormous pin-up poster of a star, holds it up and looks at it.] Oh, him!

LEONARD BRAZIL’S VOICE: [On the radio] That was – [Name of record] How are you doing then? Yes, I mean you, whoever you are, wherever you are, you with the sticking-out ears. That’s right, keep it up, you haven’t got long. 710

NICOLA: Yes. [She works even faster collecting all the objects together.] 715

SUSAN: He’s hurrying you now.

L.B.’S VOICE: [Continuing straight on] Rex’s bulky shape is beside me here in the studio as always. [Sudden mock surprise] Hey, he’s moving away now, don’t leave me, Rex, don’t leave me. I’m alone and afraid that raindrops might start falling on my head – [Tone changes] – and yours too. 720

Music begins. 'Raindrops Keep Falling On My Head.'

- NICOLA: You know, I think he liked me a bit or something when I rang in ... He spoke to me longer than the others, different.
- SUSAN: He only spoke to you different from the others because he was waiting for the News to come up. 725
- NICOLA: [To herself] Ready now! [Worried] I'm running out of time, come on! [She suddenly pulls the dummy out from under the bed, all in pieces, the huge torso, the decapitated head, the hands, the feet, the arms, etc.] 730
- SUSAN: Look at it! You'll never finish that in time.
- NICOLA: Got to. Got to fill it up, make it stiff.
- SUSAN: [Picking up some of the supermarket objects] What are these?
- NICOLA: Things I've taken from the shop. They're all going inside. No use to me. I'm sending them all in this. 735
- SUSAN: [Picking up a pot of paint] How did you get all this paint?
- NICOLA: Saved lunch money.
- SUSAN: [Startled] What have you been eating?
- NICOLA: Haven't. Don't need to. So I go for days without eating if I have to. And can. 740
- SUSAN: You'll starve to death, you will. [Suddenly, she picks up the head and a foot.] Is this Ross?
- NICOLA: Yes. He's the easiest to do, his face is very simple.
- SUSAN: [Suddenly loud] He's very big. 745
- NICOLA: Yes, I made him big. So he'd notice it.
- SUSAN: We can do anything we want with him, now all his bits are here. We can stand on his face. [She stands on it.] Can't we? Pull his tongue out. [She picks up the torso.] Pull his shirt off ... 750
- NICOLA: [Loud] Don't do that, Susan. You'll tear him – it'll tear.
- SUSAN: Yes! [Firm] You're really stupid, do you know that? Even if you get this ready and Leonard just happens to pick it out, which he won't, even then you haven't really started. He can go on forever with you if he likes, on and on and on. 755
- NICOLA: [Determined] I know that ...
- L.B.'S VOICE: [Suddenly piping up] Hello, how are you doing. Yes, I mean you, yes you, with the popping eyes and sticking-out ears.
- They both suddenly stop and stare at the radio.*
- L.B.'S VOICE: I hope I'm not interrupting you, am I, because a lady wrote to me to say she had the radio on when, lucky lady, she was giving birth to a baby son, Dominic, and the first sound Baby Dominic heard on this earth was yours truly's ugly grating tones pouring out. I'm getting worse and worse, aren't I? 760
- During this speech, SUSAN has crossed to the wireless and picked it up right at the beginning of LEONARD's speech and turned the volume down. Then she sings loudly above it.* 765
- SUSAN: Hear him. [She holds the radio up with LEONARD's voice pouring out of it.] That's the nearest you'll get to him ... this! It is not any nearer than that! [She puts the radio down next to NICOLA, having turned the volume up.] 770

- L.B.'S VOICE: And now you, you down there who have entered the Competition of the Century, time is running out. Here's some music for you. [Music begins]
- NICOLA: Yes! Quick. [She speeds up the stuffing of the dummy with the Supermarket objects.] You're going to help now. 775
- SUSAN: [Loud] Why?
- NICOLA: Because I'm going to get there. Into the building and see him.
- SUSAN: [Quiet] You won't ... 780
- NICOLA: Come on, there's no time at all now. Paint that yellow, quick!
- SUSAN: If I have to ... [She takes a big brush and splashes huge dollops of yellow paint on the dummy's body. NICOLA stuffs the legs.]
- NICOLA: Good. Hurry ... paint. 785
- SUSAN: [Sploshing bright yellow paint on the torso. Gradually her paint strokes get faster and faster.] When they played at Coventry, Ken had a blue belt, the others had yellow as usual. I don't like this colour, sort of sick-looking. They ought to change it. You know I had to get back after the concert – it was twelve or after in the night. 790
- NICOLA: [To herself] Come on ... [She stuffs the legs and the head.]
- SUSAN: I didn't think I could get back. It was raining really hard, straight in your eyes. I got onto the road, started hitching – all these huge lorries went past, enormous. And you know, they all had their radios on. Yes! I could hear. It was Leonard Brazil. It was. He was coming from every single lorry. But none of them stopped. 795
- NICOLA: [Quiet, determined] Come on, quick.
- SUSAN: [Painting fast] So I stood straight in front of one of them and waved, and he had to stop, or flatten me, and he stopped all right, and he opened his door, all smiling and everything, and I got in, and you know what, the seat next to him was still warm, it was all covered with chocolate. Somebody had been sitting there just a moment before – a girl. 800
- NICOLA: [To herself] Faster.
- SUSAN: I knew he was going to try to kill me then, yes, on the motorway, in the dark, on the side, where nobody could see. And I'd hear Leonard Brazil on the radio, and suddenly it'd stop, and I'd be dead, and they'd find me in pieces like this – [Indicating the dummy as she paints] But nothing did happen. Nothing at all. [Pause, she stops painting. Lightly] I wanted it to. 805
- NICOLA: [Suddenly very loud] Oh! Look Susan, it's still not nearly full. [She stares at the legs and then into the torso.] We've got to fill it up now ... [Moving about, agitated] Now! 815
- SUSAN: Put this in anyway. [She crumbles the huge centrefold picture of the pop star. As she does so, they both suddenly look up with a jolt and stare at all the posters and ornaments in the room. The same idea hits them both.] 820
- NICOLA: [Loud] Yes! Come on. Everything ...
- They suddenly tear down all the posters and ornaments – everything in the room – and throw it into the stomach of Ross. The action begins swiftly and ends furiously. It lasts under a minute. NICOLA takes everything off the chest of drawers, all her furry ornaments ... everything.* 825

NICOLA:	He's got to be full.
SUSAN:	[ Loud ] Yes.
	SUSAN's pent-up violence comes out in her attack on the posters, whereas NICOLA is more methodical, but also very fast. The music on the radio ends. They strip the room.	830
L.B.'S VOICE:	[ His tone very personal ] Hello there how's it going, then ... Yes, you? You down there. Keeping at it, are you, love , that's good. [ He brings up more music or a commercial ]
NICOLA:	[ Throwing in objects ] Go on ... in ... in ... in ...	835
SUSAN:	Come on down. [ She pulls the lightshade off and throws it in. ]
	They are both exhausted. The outburst ends, the torso is full. NICOLA lifts it up. They both stare at it.
NICOLA:	It's finished.
		BLACKOUT 840

Scene 5

	The studio. Night. A phone-in programme. The voice of a caller, JIM, about forty, on the telephone, coming out of the monitor speakers. The receiver of the telephone is off, lying on the desk. LEONARD BRAZIL is standing some distance away, at the back of the studio, smiling and listening.	845
JIM'S VOICE:	[ Heard first in the blackout ] I mean, don't you agree with me Leonard, about these vandals, hooligans, whatever you like to call them, I mean, everywhere I go I actually see things being smashed up, I see them doing it, and writing things on walls and everything. I mean, I saw some young thugs – I don't want to use abusive terms, especially on your programme, Leonard, and I certainly won't do so, but these men – they weren't just boys, they were grown men, and they were standing round this flower bed of red tulips, and they pulled up every single one, they were pulling them out, by the roots, and treading them into the ground ... the whole lot ...	850
LEONARD:	[ He flicks off the switch to cut off the caller in mid-sentence, silence, he smiles. ] Why do they ring me, explain me that, why don't they phone each other ...? [ He flicks the switch on again. ]	860
JIM'S VOICE:	... and even more. And apart from that, I don't know if you find this, I mean as an important person, and obviously on the air – but I mean – these filthy phone calls – people ringing me up.	865
LEONARD:	[ Turns the volume down, speaks to REX again through the intercom ] Is he going to start being rude – I think he is. Thank goodness I only have to do this twice a week – [ He turns the volume up again. ]
JIM'S VOICE:	... you see what I mean, I don't want to mention anything filthy over the air of course – [ LEONARD holds his finger ready to press the cut-off button ] – and I'm not going to,	870

- but I'm always getting wrong phone calls, people talking to me about things I don't know anything about! You know the feeling of course, being a famous person Leonard – 875
 somebody rang me the other day, started talking about my horse, how he wanted to buy it, get hold of it, I mean I don't have a horse. [Loud] What would I do with a horse? [Suddenly very loud] WHAT would I do with a –? [LEONARD cuts him off] 880
- LEONARD: [Smiling, very calm] I'd like to say goodnight now, Jim, thanks for that call, it was a Jim-type call. The time is 9.23 on the LB night show on this Competition Friday in Competition Week, so hold on tight, love. It's raining up here, raining black buckets just outside, so let's take a dip into the soft inside of Nostalgia Corner, go back to the golden days of 1967. 885
- Music: 'See Emily Play' by Pink Floyd. The volume is turned down after a few bars. LEONARD takes off his headphones.*
- LEONARD: That's enough. I don't want any more calls – you've already put through too many. [He gets up] I hate that smell of new paint from the corridors. 890
- REX enters from the box.
- LEONARD: [Loud] And also I've decided I'm not going to do my spot tonight.
- REX: What do you mean? Why not? 895
- LEONARD: I have reasons. Got to cope with Stage Three. [Loud] I'm not doing it. That's final!
- REX: Some people tune in specially for it. I mean you must do it this week of all weeks ... we've never had so many calls, so many entries ... if you would ... it would ... 900
- LEONARD: I should, should I? No. I've always hated phone-ins. [Pausing, he suddenly stares at REX.] You realise we're almost alone in this building, we're surrounded by empty corridors. You and me. That's a terrifying thought. I usually have my rest from you at this time. 905
- REX: I know. I asked to do extra time specially.
- LEONARD: Did you? [Staring at him] You know, you're the most ambitious thing on legs I've ever seen.
- REX: That's not true. I only want to hang on to my job, don't I? I only want to become good at it. 910
- LEONARD: Only that? I don't believe it.
- REX: And I enjoy working on your show, of course.
- LEONARD: Don't try to tell me that's the only reason for this fantastic obsessional attempt at efficiency.
- REX: Yes, of course. 915
- LEONARD: [Smiles] No it's not.
- REX: [Quiet] Of course, eventually I want to get on ... that's natural, isn't it? [Smiles] I want my voice up in lights, eventually.
- LEONARD: [Quiet] That's very good, Rex ... for you.
- REX: [Unblinking] It's your expression. 920
- LEONARD: [Surprised] Is it?
- REX: I heard it over the air, before I was working here. I still listen to you all the time. I even sit and listen to you at home, on my days off, when you're on.

- LEONARD: [Astonished] You don't really do that, do you? 925
 REX: Yes. [Smiles lightly] There's nothing you've said that I don't remember, nothing! I'm sort of photocopying you really – all the time.
- LEONARD: [Slight smile] So that's what you're doing. I wish you'd stop it. [Moving away from him] You know what you are, Rex, you're reptilian. You ought to get yourself another job – I mean that – and quick. 930
- REX: Why should I? This is better than anything else I could be doing. And after all, you're good aren't you? You are. In fact, Leonard, you could actually be the greatest, the best DJ there's ever been. I wonder what the people from Capital Radio are thinking. You must have got it. 935
- LEONARD: [Loud] I told you not to. [He flicks a switch.] 9.26 on the LB night show in Competition Week. We all had a great time at the open air concert last week, didn't we – it was a true festival, a celebration if ever there was one – the greatest. But I've been asked to point out by the po-lice – we did leave rather a mess, didn't we. It was six feet high in some places; the farmer couldn't find his sheep. Seriously, friends, let's try to be cleaner next time, it'll save a lot of hassle. It's black and soaking wet out now, pelting towards us. Next, the results of Stage Three – stand by, love, this is it, now, after something from the summer of '67 when all those young things bounced down the hot streets of our glorious London. 940
- Music: 'A Whiter Shade of Pale' by Procol Harum. It continues to play under dialogue, quietly.* 950
- LEONARD: Come on. Bring them in. We'd better get this over.
 REX: Yes. [He doesn't move.] You're playing a lot of oldies tonight.
 LEONARD: Yes. [Abrasive] I'm in a sentimental mood, aren't I? You're much too young to remember, of course. I know exactly what it was like. [Loud] Exactly. 955
- REX: Yes.
 LEONARD: [Staring straight at him] But it's undeniable, Rex, that the music we were producing seven or eight years ago, was alive. That is incontestable. It had gut, it was felt, and it kicked, sometimes savagely. [He smiles.] Because, of course, everything seemed possible. [Pause. He smiles.] I was even quite militant in a quiet way. [Smiles] We thought things were changing and all that romantic crap. 960
- REX: [Smiles] Of course you did. 965
 LEONARD: Don't stand there with that idiotic grin on your face!
 REX: [Doesn't move] No.
 LEONARD: [Smiles] You'd better get on with it, hadn't you, before I decide to take revenge.
- REX goes. LEONARD talks to him as REX prepares offstage. 970
- LEONARD: You should have been at the open air concert at the weekend. It was vile. It was a perfect example. [Smiles, slightly mocking] A grey shabby echo of the time when festivals really were celebrations.

	LEONARD puts on another record in the current top ten. The sound of the record explodes through the speakers as the dummies are brought in.	975
REX:	[Enters, smiling, with twenty-five dummies on a trolley, piled high.] You've got to make the final choice.
LEONARD:	I don't believe it. [Pause] I just don't believe it!	980
REX:	[Smiling unconcerned] What's the matter?
LEONARD:	You mean they did it – they actually made them?
REX:	Yes, of course.
LEONARD:	[Picks one up] We could be in Los Angeles, couldn't we – except it's even worse. Look, they've even painted fingernails on them, bound to be toenails under that. [He pulls at their shoes and hair.] Probably their own new clothes too – or their little brother's. They must have worked all through the night on these obscenities. Why do they do it – tell me, why?	985
REX:	Because you told them to do it.	990
LEONARD:	You could drop anything over the air into that pool and they'd gobble it up. [He feels one.] What have they got inside them? Feel this – feels as if it's stuffed with cans, and packets of frozen food! And all their magazines – clogged with them! How many of these ghastly objects are there?	995
REX:	Twenty-eight.
LEONARD:	[Has picked up another] This is rapidly becoming a madhouse. We're being invaded by all these. Are they all there?
REX:	All the best ones. I put some in the canteen – they're propped up in chairs – as a joke when people come in tomorrow.	1000
LEONARD:	As a joke? [LEONARD looks at the labels on the dummies, looking for NICOLA's]
REX:	Which two are you going to choose ... ?
LEONARD:	These two'll have to do.	1005
REX:	[Looks at the cards] Louise Prentiss and Jane Harris. A good choice.
LEONARD:	All right, get hold of them quickly, get this dealt with and ... [He suddenly looks up] Whose is that one?
REX:	[Looks at the card] Nicola Davies.	1010
LEONARD:	Really – Nicola Davies. I thought so. Well let's have her instead shall we. Scrub that one.
REX:	Why? You chose the other one.
LEONARD:	Do as you're told.
	Pause	1015
REX:	But why Nicola Davies?
LEONARD:	[Looks up] I picked her voice out, that's all. I've been using it. [He looks at the dummy] They look more and more like home made corpses – take them away.
REX:	They'll make pretty good photos in the paper tomorrow, anyway.	1020
LEONARD:	[Looks up] I don't like that.
REX:	[Looks up] What?
LEONARD:	I don't like it do you hear? You ought to have stopped me thinking of it.	1025
REX:	I should have ...

- LEONARD: [Really working himself up] What do you think you're paid for? I mean this idea was trash. It was unpleasant! Incompetent, lazy – [He throws the dummy down.] – it's trash.
- REX: Why? It was your idea Leonard. 1030
- LEONARD: You're a disaster really, aren't you – with absolutely no imagination. Nothing! A complete catastrophe.
- REX: [Loud] I didn't think of it, Leonard, did I – it wasn't me –
- LEONARD: [Cutting him off] You're an idiot aren't you?
- REX: It wasn't me, Leonard – was it? 1035
- LEONARD: Get out of here, go on.
- REX doesn't move.
- LEONARD: Go on, get out.
- REX moves out quickly.
- LEONARD: [Shouting] You're fired. Fired! You really are this time. I don't want to see you in this room again. You leave tomorrow. [Complete silence for a moment. He faces the record desk and fades out the record.] That was the Loving Spoonful and 'Summer in the City', and this is the Competition of the Century. And now we have come to that solemn moment – the finalists – the two people who are going to come all the way up here. Rex has written the two names out in red ink – you all did so well – showed enormous determination – the greatest in England. But the two who got through – the two names on the card are – Jane Harris and Nicola Davies. Jane and Nicola have won through to the Final. [Fanfare. It fades down] 1040
- REX: [Quiet, matter-of-fact, over the intercom] I can only get one of them, Mr Brazil, the other one has gone to bed, she must have been very confident ... I've got Nicola Davies for you. 1045
- LEONARD: Put her through then, Rex. [He fades out the fanfare.] Hello there Nicola Davies. 1050
- NICOLA'S VOICE: [Over the monitor, quiet] Yes, hello.
- LEONARD: Hello there Nicola – I don't know if you've been listening to your radio – but I've rung to tell you, in front of the listening thousands, that you have reached the Final, the final round, of Competition of the Century – 1060
- Pause*
- NICOLA: [Flat, unsurprised] Have I ... Oh good.
- LEONARD: [Louder] Did you ever think you could make it, Nicola? 1065
- NICOLA: [Matter-of-fact] No.
- LEONARD: Are you tall or short, Nicola?
- NICOLA: Not tall, quite short.
- LEONARD: That's funny. Rex said you were tall, I said you were short – you've got a short voice. Ross'll like that. I'm looking forward to meeting you, Nicola Davies, tremendously. Aren't you? 1070
- NICOLA: Yes, I am. I am, Leonard ... [Flat] ... very much.
- LEONARD: Good ... that's good. Nicola's going to be coming up here – I'm sure we'll get on. Tomorrow's going to be an extraordinarily good day, isn't it? There'll be some big surprises, I'm sure, and there's a big surprise now – do you usually stay to listen 1075 to the LB spot?

 NICOLA: Oh, yes.
 LEONARD: Well, Nicola, I have news for you. You are in it, you are in the LB spot. For each week, for those of you who have never listened before, and if there are any they'll be hung, drawn, and fined – LB has his spot, when he unleashes a few things. Are you still there, Nicola? 1080

NICOLA: Yes. I'm here.
 LEONARD: Well, you're high up, high up in the LB spot – high in the clouds. And the first – the first LB moment is, it's my birthday today, so I'm told, which is a lie because it's at least two years until my next birthday, and our friend Rex – who is definitely getting ideas – has made a cake. A cake out of melted down records. Seriously, folks I've been thinking about London, for a number of enormous reasons – London, capital of this fine country of ours. And of course it's the prize in the Competition of the Century. [Fast] I was walking along Carnaby Street the other day, Nicola, it shows how old I am, I can pronounce that name correctly – the street that made the world swing – you should see what it looks like now – it looks like a museum street, it needs its glass case – especially as half of it has been knocked down. [Smiles] We mustn't get bitter! [Funny voice] Your mouth tastes bitter, Brazil, it's going black round the edges. Remember where you are. You can't let the side down like this, Brazil. It's an important moment. Brazil, what are you doing? [Quieter] What does he think he's doing? No ... seriously, everybody, London's still an exciting place – the most exciting place. The only place to be. Mustn't get obsessed by all our yesterdays, they're gone thank goodness, must get obsessed by all our tomorrows. [Like a machine] Hear hear. Hear hear. Don't spit on the animals. I said, don't spit on the animals – where's Nicola Davies – where is she? Still there, Nicola? 1090

NICOLA: Yes, Leonard, I'm still here. 1095
 LEONARD: [Smiles] The rain is slashing at the window. I'm afraid, Nicola, if it gets to me I may melt ... I'm afraid. Hear that, Nicola? 1100

NICOLA: Yes. I heard.
 LEONARD: No need to fear, Nicola is here. I have a note here, what do DJs really do while they're playing records? That's a good question. I hate to tell you. Some read the papers, some play the stock-market, call up their stock-brokers between records – that's true, folks – some call up their lady friends. [Smiles] And some long to scream obscenities over the air! The mad DJ. And they all use words so sumptuously for your pleasure. Do you ever listen to your words, Brazil? Never, thank goodness, but never mind. Everybody needs us, after all – [Lightly] – we're the new jokers of the pack, we're the new clowns, we tell it how it should be. And we're going to lick the blues. Each week I try to lick the blues – this time with a flysprayer, I have it out, I'm spraying it, I'm spraying them now, they're falling to the ground, curling up black and dead, legs in the air – we've done it. Don't spit on the animals. We're going to make it aren't we, get through to the other side, of course we are – and if you've just seen some horrible things, on the television, bomb blasts, unemployment, politicians, and all that part of our good old England, and you've switched it off to 1110
 1130

listen to me, sensibly! Then remember, no need to fear, we're going to lick it, so Shout it out! Things can only get better and better – so Shout it out! We have the greatest day of the century tomorrow, so there's something to look forward to, so let's Shout it out! Yes, you, madam, get out of the bath, and Shout it out! And you, love, Shout it out! Throw that away, lad, and SHOUT IT OUT! Come on Grandad, SHOUT IT OUT! You too, Nicola Davies, SHOUT IT OUT! Let's have some real music. I said SHOUT IT OUT! LOUDER! I can't hear you, don't spit on the animals – this is nineteen hundred and seventy eight, this is Len Brazil – this is Crazy Competition Week – be there tomorrow – and once more SHOUT IT OUT!

1135

Music stops after crescendo. REX has entered, stares at LEONARD. Total silence, long pause.

1145

LEONARD:

Oh hell. I wasn't going to do that. [He flicks a switch. A record comes on, incredibly loud. The lights fade.]

STIMULI

Choose one of the following three stimuli and devise a piece of drama based on it. You should work in groups of between two and six performers. Your piece should last approximately 15 minutes.

In the Written examination, you will be asked questions about your piece that will cover both practical and theoretical issues.

Stimulus 1

Quotation: 'Better three hours too soon than a minute too late'
From William Shakespeare's The Merry Wives of Windsor [Act 2, Scene 2]

Stimulus 2

Poem: When I Think About Myself by Maya Angelou

When I think about myself,
I almost laugh myself to death,
My life has been one great big joke,
A dance that's walked,
A song that's spoke,
I laugh so hard I almost choke,
When I think about myself.

Sixty years in these folks' world,
The child I works for calls me girl,
I say "Yes ma'am" for working's sake.
Too proud to bend,
Too poor to break,
I laugh until my stomach ache,
When I think about myself.

My folks can make me split my side,
I laughed so hard I nearly died,
The tales they tell sound just like lying,
They grow the fruit,
But eat the rind,
I laugh until I start to crying,
When I think about my folks.

EXTRACT*Taken from American Days, by Stephen Poliakoff

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

Stephen Poliakoff's play American Days was first performed in London, in 1974. The play is set in London on a day and night in July.

The location is the Listening Room of IBC, an international record company in London. The Listening Room is a large, very plush room, used for auditioning and entertaining artists, and covered from wall to wall in blue carpet. Among the features of the room are a piano, a fridge and an aquarium.

Three teenagers have travelled to the IBC offices from various places around the UK, hoping for an audition and a record deal. The drama explores the ruthless and inaccessible world of the music industry and the way in which young people can be manipulated as they attempt to enter it.

The play is in two Acts. The extract consists of the whole of Act 1.

Characters

Tallulah	17 years old, her hair is dyed a bright orange. Broad intelligent face, loud laugh.
Gary	18 years old, medium height, thin. Mercurial manner, a charming smile.
Lorraine	17 years old, about five feet high. Very pale sharp face, dark intelligent eyes.
Ian	29 years old, short hair. Fashionable well-cut suit, bright green shoes. Educated accent, laconic self-mocking smile.
Sherman	Late thirties, small stocky figure. Enormous energy, dark piercing eyes, a very strong presence. His accent is classless.
American (Moss)	Talks to Sherman on the phone from the USA.

ACT 1

Scene 1

The large Listening Room of IBC, an international record company in London. Blue carpet. Gold discs on the walls. A sleek, long room with plants and an aquarium.

TALLULAH, aged seventeen, is sitting at the piano. As the lights come up, she's plonking down on one note and then a second note, idly doodling on the piano. For a long moment we watch her bent over the piano. GARY enters, carrying a guitar. 5

GARY: Don't mind me.

TALLULAH: [Glances round at him, then back at the piano] I wasn't.

GARY: Are you here for the same reason I am? 10

TALLULAH: I expect so. I don't know. [She plays a note.]

GARY: [Sees fridge.] Why is there a fridge here? [He pulls the fridge's door.] It's locked. Wonder what's inside. [Looks into aquarium] They've got snails in here. They must have eaten all the fish. [Taps glass, pause] Have you felt this carpet? It sort of oozes under your feet, doesn't it, feel it. It's down all the corridors, it's on the walls of some rooms. 15

Pause

TALLULAH: I was shown right in here.

GARY: I've come to see this important guy – I got an invitation.

IAN enters. He is in his late twenties, fashionably dressed, he smiles a pleasant, professional smile. 20

IAN: There you are. Now, one of you is either very early or extremely late. In fact it's quite possible you're both late. [He smiles.] Which, in the circumstances, is quite helpful. So we'll forgive you. Anyway, welcome to IBC – glad you could visit us, to sound a formal note for a moment. Hope it will prove profitable for all of us. This is what we call the Listening Room, newly decorated as you can see, which we use for all our interviews and discussions [He smiles.] and the odd midnight session. [Slight pause] You must be Gary and Tallulah then. 25

GARY: Yes, I'm Gary. 30

LORRAINE enters.

IAN: [Calm, but quite sharp] Now what the hell are you doing here?

LORRAINE: I have an appointment.

IAN: Not any longer. You're Lorraine, right?

LORRAINE: Yes. 35

IAN: Didn't you get the telegram we sent? Your interview's been cancelled. [Pause] We've had to cancel it.

LORRAINE: What, you mean you didn't want me to come after all?

IAN: Because time is shorter than I anticipated. Why didn't you get the telegram? I sent it personally. 40

LORRAINE: [Quiet] So you want me to go again.

Slight pause

- IAN: No – now you're here, you're here. Some squeezing will have to go on. [Looking at them all] So first, here are some name badges if you can just fill them in, with your first name. [Smiles] In capitals if possible, that saves us a lot of time. 45
- GARY: [Taking badge, quite polite tone] Right, OK, are you him, then, the guy we're meeting?
- IAN: [Smiles] Not quite, no. I'm the guy who spotted you. [Looking at GARY] I tried to meet you for a drink afterwards I remember, but I don't think you showed. Now you're being seen by Don Sherman, which means you're in luck, because he's the top guy you can see. 50
- TALLULAH: Good ... great.
- IAN: [Carrying on] I just hope he'll have time to see all of you – properly.
- TALLULAH's face immediately falls. 55
- IAN: I'm sure he will. People have waited five years to see him, and I'm not joking, but fortunately you're not in that position. He will have heard your tapes, so he's prepared, he knows something of your music. [He smiles.] When you see him it's important to keep him here, not waste his time, answer his questions, because once he leaves he just doesn't come back. Not a chance. You remember that – OK? 60
- TALLULAH: I'm beginning to feel a bit peculiar.
- IAN: There's no need for any of you to feel hostile about being here because though you may find the surroundings a bit alienating, we're very used to that. [He smiles.] And know how to handle it. So don't worry. [Slight pause] Now if those of you that haven't done so could check in at security, picking your way over the alsatians, you can get your identity cards, then you'll be able to use our full facilities. Our restaurant – visitors' section – squash courts, television room and the bar, free of charge. [He smiles.] If you don't do that, you'll have to pay through the teeth. [The loudspeaker telephone rings.] 65
- SHERMAN: [Off stage, speaking via the telephone] Ian ... Ian.
- IAN: Yes, I'm here.
- SHERMAN: There you are. I've tried every room in the building. What on earth are you doing down there? 75
- IAN: I didn't know you'd arrived.
- SHERMAN: No, we just got in – come on up. It's rather nice and empty up here.
- IAN: No, Don – I'm here with these kids, Don – the ones you're going to see, remember?
- SHERMAN: What kids? I have no intention of seeing any kids. 80
- IAN looks embarrassed but keeps his cool.
- SHERMAN: [His voice continuing] I have no kids on my schedule – Ian!
- IAN: [To kids] If you could all check in now with security.
- GARY: [Looking at telephone, grins] Does that mean five years of our lives are going to go? 85
- IAN: Go on.
- GARY exits with LORRAINE, both looking worried.
- TALLULAH: [Not moving, she stands across the room looking at Ian.] I've already done that, checked in.
- SHERMAN: [His voice has been continuing.] Ian, are you there? ... What are you doing? 90
- IAN: Yes, I'm here. You remember the kids I wanted you to see, there are three of them.

SHERMAN: Three of them! I haven't conceivably got time to see three of them.
 IAN: I know it's a bit difficult – and you've just got in. [His voice suddenly sharp] But you've got to see them. [He smiles.] And it would be a real help to me, for obvious reasons. 95

SHERMAN: Not that again. I keep on telling you not to worry.
 IAN: I know and I hope you're right – but you must see them, Don. [Silence] Are you still there? 100

TALLULAH: [Into loudspeaker telephone, right over it] Come on – come on down here, we're waiting.

SHERMAN: Who's that?
 TALLULAH: Me.
 IAN: That was one of the kids. 105

SHERMAN: Really. And you're waiting to see me?
 TALLULAH: Yes – I'm here – in this Listening Room.
 SHERMAN: And you want me to come down? [Pause]
 TALLULAH: Yeah. [She is right up to telephone.] Quickly. [Pause]
 SHERMAN: Good. Good. Fine. I shall try to make it. 110
 TALLULAH: [Standing by loudspeaker telephone] Hello? Have you gone? [Silence] He's coming now.
 IAN: [Leaning against wall, smiles] That was close.

BLACKOUT

Scene 2

GARY is standing by the door, staring down the passage. 115

GARY: He's coming. I can see him ... [He moves sharply away from the door and across the room.] He's coming right now.

Pause, nobody enters

TALLULAH: Well, where is he then?
 GARY: [Remains across the room away from the door] He must have stopped. 120
 Got stuck in the passage. [Pause, watching the door] Maybe he caught himself on the radiator.

TALLULAH: Maybe he turned back.
 LORRAINE: I don't believe he's out there. [Glancing over to door] What does he look like? 125
 GARY: Look like ...? He's sort of squat looking. A bit misshapen. Little chubby legs.

SHERMAN moves into the room as GARY is saying this last line. LORRAINE is standing against the far wall. Strong sunlight across room. SHERMAN stops for a split second as he enters the room and glances round, hardly seeming to register the kids. He moves into the room. He is holding a bundle of letters, two of which he has already opened. He does not look at the kids at all, but moves across the room and puts the letters down on a small table. He stands looking down at the table, silence. 130

SHERMAN: [Not looking at them] What day of the week is it? 135
The kids look at each other. He doesn't look at them.

GARY: Friday.

- SHERMAN: [Quiet] Friday. [He undoes letter with paper knife, making sharp movements. Smiling to himself in a matter-of-fact way] I can't get people here to understand that I like opening my own letters. [He is working his way through mail, summing up the contents of each letter with a very quick glance.] If you try to pick a single envelope up, your secretaries grab it back at once. And they just won't let go. You have to tear it out of their hands. [Flick of paper knife – fast] So I hijack my post on its way down the passage. [He undoes letter, a wadge of bank notes comes out, he pushes it to one side.] More wasted money. [He opens another letter.] During the worst of the bomb scares, this company had a special American come over to open all our mail. He was about nine feet tall. Blond. He opened every letter for a year. He used to wear white gloves. Artists get sent a lot of strange things. He's doing the same job now in our Rome office. He'll lose a hand soon. [He looks up, but hardly seems to take in the kids.] Terrific. [He smiles.] Smell of the new carpet – if anything it's stronger than last week. 140
- TALLULAH: [Quite loud] Does he know we're here do you think? 145
- Silence. SHERMAN ignores this, he moves over to the fridge.* 155
- GARY: He's got a key. [He grins.] They must be a group of special people that are allowed to get in.
- The fridge is empty except for a bottle of milk.*
- SHERMAN: [Suddenly loud] I don't believe this! It's empty! It always happens in London. That's the second time in ten days! Each time I come back. They are meant to fill them up at the beginning of each week. I cannot believe that that is beyond them. [Sharp smile] I can only operate with a full fridge. It makes anything I have to do in here bearable. [He smiles.] I have lived off the contents of one of these for a month. [He smiles.] Never needed to go out of the building. [He picks up the phone and speaks into it.] No, which one are you? Sharon? Genista? Well, which are you? There's nothing in the fridge down here you realise. Yes, in the Listening Room. Except for a bottle of milk. No. I've just got in. Yes. Well do something now. And give me the new New York number. [Smiles] No, you just have to say it once. [He punches the number out on the phone.] Hello, it's DS here. No, I just got in. Is Moss there? No, no. I'll let him finish, for once. I'll hold. [He puts down the receiver and lets it lie on the table. He has poured milk into a glass and is sipping it. Moving from table sipping milk] I met three Germans on the plane. Young Germans. One of them was incredibly overweight. And you know what they were doing? They were going round the world without a break in fifty-six hours! They'd taken a bet to go round the world without stopping. Rushing from one plane to another. They'd flown to Tokyo, then to Sydney, then across to Brazil, then to Los Angeles, and now they were coming back to Frankfurt via London. The last leg of their trip. They were really extraordinary, they'd become completely hysterical. Giggling and bouncing up and down in their seats and leaning across and tugging at my arm. They were wearing little party hats, coloured paper hats, and they had no control over their actions at all. Tickling each other furiously and rolling out into the middle of the gangway and they were all red round the eyes – totally gummed up. [He smiles.] It was fantastic. All for a bet! They were going to win it too. [He drinks the glass of milk.] 160
- GARY: Are we allowed to talk amongst ourselves while you're speaking? 165
- 170
- 175
- 180
- 185

Silence

- SHERMAN: [Looks at them] Two girls and a boy. 190
 GARY: [Half to himself] At least he isn't blind.
 TALLULAH: Do you know who we are? [Pause] Have you listened to our tapes?
 LORRAINE: [Quiet] We were asked here you know. Sent for.
 GARY: Has he forgotten he's on the phone? [Grins] You're on the phone to New York! [Pause] 195
 SHERMAN: Have you got name badges?

They have all taken theirs off.

 GARY: You want to know our names?
 SHERMAN: No, I want to see your name badges. I don't remember names. Could you put them on? 200
 TALLULAH: [As she pins her name label on] I'm Tallulah.
 SHERMAN: [Reads off LORRAINE's badge] Lorraine.
 GARY: I'm Gary.
 SHERMAN: [As if he hasn't heard] Have you got a name badge?

 GARY puts it on. 205

 SHERMAN: [Reads] Gary. I need to see names.
 GARY: [Suddenly] I wish you'd finish your phone call.
 TALLULAH: I don't think it really is to New York. [Pause] Are those noises from New York? [Noises over telephone] You've had it lying there for five minutes
 you know. You'll get your phone cut off. 210
 GARY: They probably get cheap rates because they use it so much – probably have their own private phone cable running under the Atlantic.
 LORRAINE: Have you listened to our tapes yet? [Pause] I don't think he knows why
 we're here.
 TALLULAH: He doesn't seem to answer any questions at all. 215
 SHERMAN: [He has been staring at them for the first time. He turns away.] I've listened to a lot of tapes today, already. And I've only been in the building forty-five minutes. We get 200 tapes a week. People who have sent in little brown parcels of themselves singing. Often they're singing in the bath. [Sharp] I mean it. That's because that's where they sing best. We hear the water sloshing around in the background and the tape often smells of bath foam. They're all listened to. 220

*AMERICAN VOICE comes stabbing out of the telephone and during SHERMAN's telephone conversation it often mumbles in the background.
 SHERMAN moves round the room as he talks very fast, his manner quickening, speedy, professional, a totally different tone from the one for the kids. He raises his voice when he is far from the phone, drops it lower when he is close.* 225

 AMERICAN: Hello ... are you there? ... hello ...
 SHERMAN: Moss, it's me. Yes ... I just got in. [AMERICAN VOICE mumbles] No –
 I arrived here just now – and there is nothing in the fridge! [Smiling]
 Nothing! No, a great yawning hole. Not even any ice, which takes some doing.
 AMERICAN: It's different in Chicago.
 SHERMAN: [Speedy, laughing] No, the best one is in Michigan. [Straight on] You seen about Zat's single? As I said, it topped quarter of a million in a week. [He moves abruptly.] No, it's peaked. It won't do more. No, there'll be the usual slight wobble in and out for the next month. He's definitely broken Europe now. I thought this would be the one. Even Holland. Holland was really holding out, but he's broken that too. Only Australia. He seems to be out to lunch in Australia. Out to lunch completely. Only 25,000. I know ... three warehouses full of the single over there, it's pouring out of the windows apparently – they'll have to melt them. The promotion was wrong over there – they didn't listen as usual. [His tone changes and becomes harder.] Now Moss, are you listening to me? I have recommended ... on my recommendation ... we are going to terminate that contract. Yes, the artist we discussed last week, subject X, since I'm being observed as I talk ... No, it's been drying up for years for him. No, he was trailing badly even then. We have no reason to renew, I fall asleep when I hear anything of his now, we don't dare tour the idiot any more. [Louder, firmer] WE HAVE NO REASON TO RENEW. Yes, I remember that tour, of course. He looked wonderful. Yes, it's been settled. Now about the sleeve I was talking about – Yes – No, I phoned from the airport – the sleeve was rubbish. I didn't know what it was! No, I really didn't. I thought it was a lawnmower. I had to be told what it was. And the way she looked. She looked like a shoplifter – incredibly shift. Also if you hold it the wrong way up, upside down, it looks as if she's been cut in half. No, they should put her hands on the cover sleeve – no, I'm serious, the only bit of her that the camera likes, long bony hands, very white, very long fingers, like they belong to a dead person. Quite eerie. You should ask to see them next time. Yes – they can be holding something interesting ... Right, no I'll phone Zurich myself. I'm catching the last flight out tonight. Maybe earlier. [He suddenly glares up at the kids.] It depends. Goodbye. [He slams down the phone.]

The kids have been watching this fast performance in stunned silence. They continue to look at him in silence.

SHERMAN: [Smiles] There's no need to be nervous.

TALLULAH: We're not.

SHERMAN: It seems to be a nice day. [He draws the blinds and curtains. The sunlight is entirely shut out, and the room is plunged into darkness.] These curtains are already getting old.

TALLULAH: What are you doing?

The room is in almost total darkness.

SHERMAN: [As he finishes drawing the curtains] I spoke to one of you before I came down.

TALLULAH is about to speak. SHERMAN has his back to them, he snaps.

SHERMAN: I don't want to know which one it was. [He turns.] It's no secret that I didn't want to see any of you today – so if you would rather leave ...

TALLULAH: [Loud] No. [Slight pause] We wouldn't.

SHERMAN: [Steely] Now, when I ask you to do something, whatever it happens to be, I want your co-operation.

GARY: [Grinning] Do we have to be careful what we say and do, from now on?

SHERMAN: [Suddenly] I'm afraid before I go any further, you'll have to take those boots off.

TALLULAH: Who are you talking to ... !

SHERMAN: Could you please take those boots off?

- GARY: He can't be serious can he?
- TALLULAH is wearing black gumboots.
- SHERMAN: They are just distracting – I'm afraid I can't work with them – they'll have to come off. They confuse me. 290
- TALLULAH: [Slowly takes boots off] You get a kick out of this do you?
- SHERMAN: [Sharp] Small black gumboots, just like the Queen Mother; whenever people think of the Queen Mother, they think of her gumboots. [He smiles.] I have seen statistics. 295
- TALLULAH: [Looking straight at him] Is that all right or do you want me to take anything else off?
- Pause*
- SHERMAN: [Matter-of-fact] No. No, don't leave them where I can see them – put them in the fridge. [Very sharp] What was your name? 300
- GARY: [He has just taken his badge off.] Gary.
- SHERMAN: Then put it back on. [He stares at them for a brief moment, then moves away.]
- GARY: [Half to himself] Sadist.
- SHERMAN: [Swings round] Who said that? 305
- Slight pause*
- GARY: Me. It was me.
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] You're quite wrong. That is not something I am.
- GARY: [Straight back] That's all right then, they told us you just walk out without warning. Just like that. Bang. They said we've got to keep you here somehow otherwise we've blown it. Because you never come back ever. 310
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] You may get a warning.
- Uneasy pause for a second*
- LORRAINE: He's got yellow socks on – you know.
- TALLULAH: [Nervous smile] Yellow socks – what does that mean about him? 315
- SHERMAN: Could you go and stand against the far wall? All of you. Just go and stand against it ... Look at me.
- They line up on the far side of the stage against the wall. He looks across at them in a group, long pause*
- SHERMAN: Have any of you got a police record? 320
- LORRAINE: What do you want to know that for?
- GARY: [Sharp grin] Do we have to consider our answer carefully?
- SHERMAN: I need to know. It makes a difference to the company attitude. Have any of you?
- GARY: [Half under his breath] What the hell is he doing? 325
- LORRAINE: [Quiet] No – I have not.
- TALLULAH: No, I have not. [Mock] I swear on whatever you've got to swear on.
- Pause, SHERMAN looks at GARY.*
- GARY: [Deliberately slowly] I do ... not have one! He's giving us a shrewd look ... see, a piercing look. [Nervous grin] How are we doing so far then? 330

- TALLULAH: [With mouth spray, raising it to her mouth] I'm going to use this if I'm allowed to, it's for my throat, my voice. If I'm ever 'lucky' enough to perform for you. It contains eucalyptus.
- GARY: [To SHERMAN] That's not a criminal drug.
- Slight pause, SHERMAN turns. TALLULAH is holding her arm. LORRAINE has looked away. SHERMAN feels telephone receiver restlessly.* 335
- SHERMAN: [His tone alters, business like] Tallulah, come here, please.
- He is in the middle of the stage; she has to cross to get to him. She hesitates.* 340
- SHERMAN: No, come here.
- TALLULAH: Come where?
- SHERMAN: [Staring at her] Just here. Don't worry, just come here. Nothing is going to happen to you. I'm not going to do anything.
- GARY: Don't get too close. 345
- TALLULAH stands in the middle of the floor, opposite him.*
- LORRAINE: He's going to interrogate you.
- SHERMAN: Don't worry about the others. [He is standing over her, staring at her hair.] Have you ever dyed your hair a different colour?
- TALLULAH: Yes. Bright red. 350
- SHERMAN: Bright red.
- TALLULAH: Yes. [Pause] I like violent colours.
- SHERMAN: And what's its natural colour?
- TALLULAH: [Straight back at him] It doesn't have one. I've forgotten what colour it was. Maybe it was white. 355
- GARY: You have to be careful. It's the getting-to-know-you stage. [He grins.] Remember, people have waited five years to see him.
- SHERMAN: [He moves her head sideways.] What would you look like with your hair long?
- TALLULAH: Different probably ... worse. 360
- SHERMAN: Where did the name Tallulah come from? It's not your real name, is it?
- TALLULAH: Off a railway bridge. It said 'Tallulah Lives' in letters thirty feet high. I thought if I called myself that people would think it was about me – like an enormous free advertisement.
- GARY: [Grinning] Careful, don't talk too long, he may get restless. 365
- SHERMAN: Where do you come from?
- TALLULAH: I come from Yardley. [Sharp smile] Heard of it?
- SHERMAN: Birmingham.
- TALLULAH: Right first time.
- SHERMAN: You live with your parents? 370
- TALLULAH: You telling me or asking me?
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] Telling you. [Pause] Do you work?
- TALLULAH: In the evenings. In a pub. Washing up mugs.
- SHERMAN: Mugs?
- TALLULAH: [More out of nervousness than aggressiveness] What else do you want to know? I've never sung in public – I've never performed live. I paid for my own tape out of my own money. When I perform live, I want to have a few really loud explosions go off and a light show. 375
- GARY: What's he grinning for? Did you see his small grin; he made a sort of little sideways grin. 380

- TALLULAH: [Small smile] Can I go back against the wall, please?
 SHERMAN: Certainly.
 GARY: [As she moves, jokingly] How did she do then?
 SHERMAN: [Looking across at LORRAINE's name badge] You've got it upside down.
 I can't read it. 385
- LORRAINE: Lorraine. [Quiet] It's my real name.
 SHERMAN: Lorraine – could you come here, please?
- LORRAINE comes up to him and stands by him.
- SHERMAN: How old are you?
 LORRAINE: I'm seventeen. 390
 SHERMAN: Really? You don't look seventeen.
 LORRAINE: So people tell me, all the time.
 SHERMAN: How seventeen are you?
 LORRAINE: Five months – and quite a few days.
- Slight pause* 395
- SHERMAN: If you're under sixteen – it doesn't matter you know. Particularly.
 GARY: Yes it does, doesn't it?
 SHERMAN: Just don't lie to me.
 LORRAINE: [Genuine] I'm not lying to you ... Why should I lie to you?
 SHERMAN: [Slight smile] To make sure I don't throw you out. 400
 LORRAINE: [Quiet, a little nervous] I didn't think you were going to. You didn't ask her age.
 SHERMAN: No. [Not unpleasantly] Your teeth are pretty dirty. You should get somebody to clean them up for you.
- LORRAINE: [Quiet] I'll remember. 405
 SHERMAN: Where do you come from?
 LORRAINE: Sheffield.
 SHERMAN: Have you ever been in London before?
 LORRAINE: No.
 SHERMAN: How tall are you? 410
 LORRAINE: [She is uncertain how to answer, because he can see she's very short.] Quite tall. Very tall ... What do you expect me to say? You can see, can't you?
 SHERMAN: Yes. You're not very substantial.
 LORRAINE: That's right. 415
 SHERMAN: Can you take that off?
- She is wearing a coat over a T-shirt.*
- LORRAINE: What, now?
 SHERMAN: Now, yes.
- LORRAINE slowly takes the coat off, quite embarrassed being watched by the other kids. 420
- SHERMAN: [Watching her with total detachment; the coat comes off] That's better.
 [He turns sharply, speedily] Fine. [Has back to them, with finality] Right.
- GARY: What about me then? [Realising he isn't going to get called] Aren't I going to get asked into the middle? 425
- SHERMAN has moved across the room.

- GARY: Hey! I haven't had my turn – my personal questions – you've missed me out.
- SHERMAN: [Quietly, pouring more milk] I haven't missed anything out. 430
- GARY: [Charming smile] I come from Isleworth ...
- SHERMAN: Isleworth?
- GARY: I started wanting to be a musician during Mr Skinner's classes. He was completely bald, rather ugly in fact ...
- SHERMAN: [Suddenly turns, loud, cutting him off] What is all this talk about being a musician? It's completely ludicrous. None of you are musicians. You're just raw, totally inexperienced. 435
- GARY: But we're here aren't we? [Slight pause] You must want some young artists – fresh talent. You must need to sign some because you're seeing us aren't you? 440
- Pause*
- TALLULAH: You were careful, weren't you?
- GARY: It's all right. He's not edging towards the door; we're OK.
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] What's your name?
- GARY: Not this again, I don't believe it. [He moves across.] Here. Why don't you keep it in front of you, then you can keep checking, can't you? [GARY is by the telephone as he puts his name tag down in front of SHERMAN.] 445
- Can I call New York? I said I'd call about this time. Let them know how it's going.
- TALLULAH: [Worried at his boldness] Ssssh ... 450
- SHERMAN: [Tiny smile] Would you like to go to New York?
- GARY: [Grins] Are you making an offer?
- TALLULAH: [Grins] He won't do, like that!
- GARY: I've been already, anyway, to America, to New York.
- SHERMAN: [Smiles] You've been? Good. When? 455
- GARY: [Surprised] When? A few months ago.
- SHERMAN: [Still smiling] And what was it like?
- GARY: What do you mean?
- SHERMAN: What's it like? Tell me about it. I want to know.
- Slight pause* 460
- GARY: [Decisive] You want to know? OK. Everything ... everything's open really late for a start. And I mean everything ... opticians, all-night opticians, vets, dentists – they only start to really get going about midnight! ... Patisseries, agricultural machinery shops, piano-tuners, all-night window cleaning classes, that's when they teach you how to clean skyscrapers, they do! You can go and look up your birth certificate at two o'clock in the morning. Yes! And you can book in and have plastic surgery done, all-night zoos, double-glazing ... You can go bathing in this department store at one o'clock in the morning. There's all-night ballet in the parks – heliports – you can go into any café in the centre at three o'clock in the morning and it's full of helicopter pilots! [GARY stops.] 465
- SHERMAN: [Unblinking] Yes?
- GARY: Yeah!
- SHERMAN: Yes. And ...
- GARY: And the garbage disposal lorries are enormous, with red lights all over them. They're fantastic ... they ... they have cigarettes this long – really long cigarettes about ten inches, and ... tennis rackets, really hard metal tennis rackets. Can't buy any wooden tennis rackets any more – can cut people's heads open with them if you lose a point. 475

- They're very bad losers, over there ... er ... the police are all really crude ... 480
- TALLULAH: [Helping him out] People making films in the streets all the time.
- GARY: Yeah – and the hospitals. Got giant hospitals – which have their own cinemas. [Carrying on fast] And you get houses with trees growing on their roofs, and of course pet alligators swimming in the baths and up your trouser leg. 485
- TALLULAH: And you can get green chocolate now in the drug stores.
- GARY: [Sideways glance] Have you been there? [Looks back] And you pass old women of about seventy or eighty out in the street wearing Kaftans, just walking along the pavement. You see, I have been! And when it rains there, these really heavy drops come down – this big – the size of boiled sweets. They're quite dangerous! And there're dead people in the rubbish bins in the park of course, just dropped in there amongst the soda cans, with their legs hanging over the edge. [He smiles.] It's great there. Electric! 490
- 495
- Silence*
- SHERMAN: It would have been simpler, and saved time, if you had just said, no I haven't been.
- 500
- The phone rings. SHERMAN answers phone immediately, a voice only half audible blurts out occasionally during the following conversation.*
- SHERMAN: [Tone changes, indicating surprise for a fraction of a second as he is caught off his guard.] Hello – Dave? ... It was clever of you to track me down ... Yes, I've heard. Yes. No, I'm afraid that is what is happening. We cannot renew – we cannot renew your contract ... . There is nothing we can discuss really. No, it wasn't – no – it was on my recommendation. 505
- [Pause as he listens, SHERMAN's tone is direct and unsoftened] I felt that you and the company hadn't got anything to offer each other any more. Or to put it more brutally, we cannot afford you. Sales just haven't been good enough. No, I know ... but, overall, they've been on a continuous slide, for as long as I can remember ... And that's how it works. [Pause] No, I don't think we can see each other. No, I wouldn't like to meet, no. Because there is nothing we can talk about any more. No. If I thought a change in the image would work I would have suggested it. No, I had ideas. But you're just not that sort of artist. [Sharp] What do you want me to say? I could say how sorry I am, but that wouldn't be true. I am not pleased of course, but I am not going to mess you around. I think it just had to be done ... No, I'm drinking milk ... You wanted to talk to me and I'm telling you the truth. Yes, that's why I don't talk to people afterwards because I just upset them. No, I'm afraid it has to be final. My regards to your wife. [Puts down phone, immediately picks it up again – tone very animated, but not upset] Genista! I do not want anybody to be told where I am, and there are no exceptions. Is that clear? And I do not want any calls put through here, no matter what they are about. [He glances up at the kids.] Until I say otherwise ... 510
- 520
- The kids are uneasy, a bit nervous about what they've just seen.* 525
- LORRAINE: [Quiet] He's just chopped somebody off.

SHERMAN moves away from the phone. He moves across the room to the window seat and sits down. During the following exchange

- between the kids, his head suddenly goes back, his eyes close, his body completely still.* 530
- TALLULAH: How much do you get paid? [She turns.] How much do you think he gets paid?
- GARY: About a quarter of a million ... to start with.
- LORRAINE: Look ...
- They look at him. He is sitting in the chair, his head back, eyes closed, totally still. Silence – they stare at SHERMAN.* 535
- TALLULAH: What's the matter? What's happened to him?
- No reaction from SHERMAN*
- LORRAINE: He must be faking it – mustn't he?
- GARY: [Looking at him] Faking what? 540
- TALLULAH: Hello. [Calls out to SHERMAN – uneasy smile] Hello?
- GARY: Do you think he's still watching us – even though his eyes are shut?
- TALLULAH: [Moves up to him cautiously – looks at SHERMAN's face stretched back] He'll look like that when he's dead.
- LORRAINE: [Uneasy smile] Let's hope he hasn't had a heart attack. 545
- TALLULAH: He's very well shaved – must have done it on the plane. [She picks up the milk.] Shall I splash some of this over him, bring him round?
- TALLULAH is standing by SHERMAN with milk about to flick some across his face – but as she moves to do so, his head jerks forward, and a second later he gets up sharply.* 550
- SHERMAN: [Totally ignoring her, makes straight for the phone] Right. [He lifts receiver and bursts into confident and reasonably fluent French, ordering coffee and saying which room he is in. He is well into his third sentence and speaking fast, when he stops abruptly.] Of course ... 555
I'm sorry – I thought I was in our Paris office for a moment, yes, the carpet is the same colour blue – and the furniture is in exactly the same position. [Smiles] No, I think the aquarium may be different. No, some black coffee – for one. Thank you. [He puts down phone sharply. He smiles.] I feel terrific. [Suddenly remembers he didn't ask on the phone.] Which place is this anyway? [Indicates phone] That girl had an American accent. 560
- LORRAINE: I don't believe you don't know where you are.
- GARY: He knows.
- TALLULAH: [Intrigued] Yes – what city is out of the window?
- SHERMAN: [Swings round and stops by the closed blinds] Out there ... [He stares for a second trying to think.] It must be London – each city smells different. [Pause, he focuses on them as if remembering. Very deliberately, with a smile on his face, he says their names.] Lorraine ... and Tallulah ... and Gary. 565
- GARY: [His eyes meet SHERMAN's, loud] I've just realised something! [To SHERMAN] What you're doing ... I don't know what I've been thinking all this time – [Straight at SHERMAN] You're only going to take one of us, aren't you ... at the most. We're all in competition with one another, aren't we? [Pause, sharp] Aren't we? 570
- SHERMAN: [Surprised for a split second at Gary] Not necessarily. 575
- GARY: [Sideways to LORRAINE] Did you hear that! 'Not necessarily.' [To SHERMAN] What sort of answer is that?

- TALLULAH: Is that right, what he says?
- GARY: He probably thought, right at the start, of maybe putting us together, seeing if there was the possibility of a group, he was making 'visual comparisons' or whatever they call it, but he's decided against it already – haven't you – when you put us up against the wall? 580
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] Are you asking me or telling me?
- GARY: You're not meant to see us like this you know – you're meant to have us in one at a time, totally separate, and interview us. 585
- SHERMAN: [Loud, but with slight smile] 'Meant to'! What on earth is this 'meant to'? There are no methods in this business, there's no green handbook with rules in it. Anybody telling you different is lying. I meet people from time to time – though I do my best to avoid them – who talk about 'nudging' artists and 'coaxing' artists. [Straight at them, quiet] Well, I don't. 590
- GARY: You want us to compete with one another, he really does, that's what he's setting up, you can't do that. [To LORRAINE] He's exploiting us, isn't he?
- SHERMAN: [Suddenly loud, speedy] Exploiting you! I'm exploiting you! Should have witnesses shouldn't I? I should ring for one of the five lawyers in this building. You're free to go whenever you like, aren't you? I don't believe you're being kept here by force. If you don't like the way we work here, go to another label. Be one of the eight thousand other kids or whatever number it is each week, pestering people with their tapes, pushing them into one's face as one is trying to drink a cup of coffee. [He moves, his voice changes.] Exploiting ... [Dangerous] I don't want to hear the word again. [Slight pause, he is by the window] If one was choosing athletes it would be simple. You just have to see which one runs the fastest – jumps the highest, but this is a little more complicated. 600
- LORRAINE: [Watching him] So we are competing against each other. 605
- No reaction*
- TALLULAH: Have we got your assurance that we aren't going ...
- SHERMAN: I don't give assurances.
- LORRAINE: Of course he's not going to give us an assurance. 610
- SHERMAN: Any of you are free to leave this room now – if you are not happy. [Slight smile] Taking on a large company isn't easy – nor should it be. I don't sign very many artists. [Pause] A contract with us could obviously transform your lives. [Pause]
- GARY: [Looking at TALLULAH and LORRAINE] I don't think we should go along with this – being made to compete against each other. I really don't. [Nervous grin] I think we should consult amongst ourselves. I mean for a start, what I'm doing is a lot different from what they're doing. [To TALLULAH] I'm sure it's good – but with me, standing me up against walls you can't really tell ... [GARY leans against the wall, close to SHERMAN.] 620
- SHERMAN: [By window] You worry too much.
- GARY: Who?
- SHERMAN: You. You're worrying too much about how you're doing.
- GARY: [Sharp grin] I think it's a really mad – absurd way of doing things ... if you ask me. [SHERMAN turns, pause. GARY, a little surprised at himself, grins.] So you want me to leave now? Right. Do you ...? [Pause] I expect you want me to go now. 625
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] No. [Pause] You're wrong. [SHERMAN exits slowly]
- TALLULAH: [Calls after him] Wait... [TALLULAH turns, furious] You've done it. That's 630

- it isn't it! He'll disappear now. We'll never get him back, won't even get near him again. You've blown it.
- GARY: No I haven't. [He moves.] I don't think I have. [Looks around him] They've probably got a few hidden microphones, we're being studied on our own.
- TALLULAH: You handled him completely wrong, you know. You were really clumsy – really crude the way you did it. 635
- LORRAINE: Yes, I don't think you did it at all right.
- GARY: I don't trust him.
- LORRAINE: I think he'll be all right. We don't know if he's only going to take one of us.
- GARY: Of course he is. [Smiles] Only one. Really weird – the way he went into that coma or whatever it was. 640
- LORRAINE: If he comes back we've got to make him stay here.
- TALLULAH: [Loud] He never comes back, remember. [To GARY] Go and have a look for him.
- GARY: Why me? [Slight grin] I'll get lost! You go. [He begins to sing few bars of a song, as he moves nervously. It is one of his own songs, with strange, wistful lyrics.] 645
- TALLULAH: Shut up.
- GARY continues to sing. SHERMAN re-enters with IAN. SHERMAN is holding paper cup of coffee that he drains completely with one abrupt movement during the next exchange. IAN is standing in a well-cut suit with notebook. 650
- TALLULAH: What's he doing here?
- IAN smiles, standing next to SHERMAN.
- LORRAINE: Where've you been? 655
- SHERMAN: That needn't concern you.
- GARY: He's got reinforcements. [To SHERMAN, indicating IAN] What's he going to do?
- IAN: I have merely come to hover, and to help out if necessary ... make a few notes. 660
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] He is here for your protection.
- The kids are surprised.*
- LORRAINE: Or yours.
- GARY: [Mocking] Come to help him choose.
- IAN: Of course not. 665
- SHERMAN: He is quite concerned you do well.
- IAN: [Slight smile] Naturally. It is because of me that you are here.
- GARY: [To IAN] And if you want my opinion, I think he likes her [Indicates TALLULAH], half likes her [Indicates LORRAINE] and really loathes the sight of me. 670
- They all look at SHERMAN, he just smiles a slight smile, then moves sharply, his manner is flowing, moving back into top gear. More competitive feel between the kids.*
- SHERMAN: [Straight at GARY] You play the guitar.
- GARY: Yeah, that's right. 675
- SHERMAN: Do you play the guitar?
- TALLULAH: No. [Then more competitive] I have played it once, one day last year I ...
- SHERMAN: Right. [He looks at LORRAINE.]

LORRAINE:	No.
SHERMAN:	Just checking. [ He moves, sharp ] And the piano, do you play the piano?	680
GARY:	No.
TALLULAH:	No.
LORRAINE:	Yes.
SHERMAN:	Right. [ He moves away, as if about to ask something else, then he suddenly turns and looks straight at LORRAINE. ] OK, play it now. Play me a tune. You can play me anything you like. [ Moment's silence ]	685
LORRAINE:	[ Glances over ] On that piano?
SHERMAN:	Where else?
LORRAINE:	OK. [ She moves over to piano and briskly sits down at piano, TALLULAH and GARY are watching, fascinated. ]	690
IAN:	You can take your time.
LORRAINE:	[ Tenses herself by the piano ] This stool's a bit low for me ... but I think I can manage. [ LORRAINE looks at the keyboard. ] The keys are dirty. [ She tries a note, a single note, presses it down. ] It's not in tune.
IAN:	[ Watching her ] It's always kept in tune. [ He smiles. ] One of the rules of the house.	695
LORRAINE:	You ought to get it fixed.
SHERMAN:	[ Louder ] Play me a tune.
	LORRAINE, who has been behaving confidently up to this moment, is poised over the keyboard. For a second she sits there, and then plonks on the piano, a terrible racket, patently unable to play properly.	700
IAN:	[ Spontaneous exasperation ] She can't play.
	LORRAINE continues for a second after this, then stops. She sits by piano, waiting for the onslaught.
SHERMAN:	[ Steely, quiet ] You shouldn't lie to me – what is the point if you're going to lie? You might as well leave right now.	705
LORRAINE:	[ Uncertain whether this means she's been sacked ] Do I ...
SHERMAN:	[ Loud ] Do you what?
	There is a moment's pause. LORRAINE is a small figure standing by the piano.	710
LORRAINE:	[ Very quiet ] Do you want me to go?
SHERMAN:	[ After a slight pause ] Go back and stand over there. [ Watching her ] No – right back!
TALLULAH:	[ Quiet as she rejoins them ] You shouldn't take risks.
IAN:	[ To LORRAINE, his voice sharp, exasperated by her ] That was a silly thing to do, if I may say so – wasn't it? How on earth did you think you were going to get away with that? It was obvious we'd ask you to play sooner or later. You don't want to waste Mr Sherman's time you realise. His time is worth more than anybody's in the building! You're quite lucky to be here at all.	715
SHERMAN:	[ Swinging round ] He wants you to do well. [ He smiles. ] And he has his reasons.	720
IAN:	[ Slight smile, trying to sound cool in front of the kids ] One or two, certainly.
SHERMAN:	[ Slight smile ] He was willing you on just now.	725
TALLULAH:	We're trying.

SHERMAN is standing by IAN.

SHERMAN: [To IAN in a quieter personal tone, not unpleasant, with a smile.] You shouldn't worry – you can usually tell if they are planning to do something, make a change – they stop replacing the equipment in your office. You don't get those large red drawing pins delivered to you any more, you just get given the plain ordinary ones and recycled envelopes. They start giving you the dregs. 730

The kids are watching, uncertain what they're talking about.

IAN: That's not happening yet – I don't think it is ... 735

SHERMAN: [Moving, his adrenalin flowing] Good, good ... [Suddenly to kids, indicating IAN] You know what this man used to do – he used to tear up lawns with pneumatic drills, yes, at college and scrawl his name on chapel walls didn't you – and he wore his hair really long and walked barefoot over electric railway lines. 740

IAN: [Brazening it out, trying not to look embarrassed] Yes – and he's now wearing a suit that fits almost too well.

SHERMAN: And eagerly interested in how you're doing.

GARY: [To IAN] You must be really worried then mustn't you?

IAN: [Quiet] Why? 745

GARY: [Indicating SHERMAN] Because he hasn't found out anything about us at all – or about what we want to do.

SHERMAN: [By the window] Hasn't he? [He stares at GARY.] Take you for example. I know almost everything I need to know already. [Slight pause] I've also listened to your very muddy tape. [Slight pause] 750

GARY: Yes ... [He glances at LORRAINE, half jokey] Is this it? [Pause] Is he going to do it?

SHERMAN: [Tone direct, but not sneering] You want to sing songs that are 'relevant' ... the social angle ... the lay-off-the-kids category. [Matter-of-fact] That is what you want to do. [He turns.] I saw a group somewhere, some city, they were singing an anti-fascist song, and in the middle they completely forgot what they were singing about and started strutting around the stage playing with their microphones. That's how much they were concentrating. Two lots of twins they were, with very pale, baby-like faces. [Quiet, to himself] They were almost interesting. 760

GARY: I thought we were talking about me.

SHERMAN: [Staring straight at him again, sharp] And to make that stuff sell now, it has to be really unexpected, done with a difference.

GARY: But I can. You have no idea what I'm like. When I play I can be all sorts of things, different things, can be really quiet, really subtle, so you hear every word, and I can be LOUD, really outrageous, I can shock ... 765

SHERMAN: You can shock can you? [Pause] How?

GARY: How? I just do.

SHERMAN: [Suddenly] OK. Do it – do the most outrageous thing you can think of. Shock us. 770

GARY: [Startled grin] Shock you – in here. No – I'm not going to start playing party games.

SHERMAN: I'm not asking you to. [Slight smile] I thought you'd welcome the chance.

TALLULAH: Yeah.

GARY: You did – did you? [He glances round.] You serious? 775

SHERMAN: Of course. When I first arrived in London, I was amazed to see three little girls smoking on the underground. But you'll find it more difficult to shock me now.

GARY: [Mocking, not believing him] You want me to do something really

- outrageous – and then I’m going to get marks for it afterwards! [Suddenly to IAN] What you think of this then? You think it’s a good idea of his? 780
- IAN: [Smiles, stares straight back at him] I’m looking forward to it.
- GARY: He’s looking forward to it! [Suddenly] OK.
- SHERMAN: But no nudity.
- GARY: What do you mean? 785
- SHERMAN: Because it’s so predictable.
- TALLULAH: Could get him into trouble couldn’t it?
- GARY: You better give me a list of all the ‘shocking’ things I’m allowed to do then.
- SHERMAN: [Quiet] Everything else. 790
- GARY: [Suddenly realises from his tone he is serious] Really? [He moves purposely – grinning.] You mean I’m allowed to wreck the furniture and everything. Right. [He is grinning, looking for something. He picks up a chair and tosses it on to floor.] How shocking do you want it to be, medium shocking – or really very shocking? [He moves round room, he smiles.] You really are a git, do you know that? You’ve been waiting to do this haven’t you? 795
- SHERMAN: You’re not going to reduce us to quivering heaps like that. In fact I really doubt you’ll manage it.
- GARY: [Fast, moving] I could kill a few snails for a start. [Taps aquarium hard] Melt a few of these down. [He takes gold disc off wall and drops it on floor.] And make you drink it. [He moves a chair sharply, grins at them all as he moves.] What are you hoping for? What’s the favourite? [He stops.] I think I’ll cut one of my fingers off, do a bit of bleeding, that’s always a good one, wounds, especially self-inflicted ones. [Flicks out matches] I’ll set light to the carpet ... he thinks he knows what I’m going to do. [He gently touches LORRAINE’s face, looking at SHERMAN, aggressive towards him, not LORRAINE.] If I hurt her, damaged her, that would be really shocking because she hasn’t done anything wrong. But I’m not going to. [He moves near IAN. He flicks IAN’s pen out of his hand and smiles.] Or I could inconvenience him. [Pause] Do you want to be? This’ll all be in the company magazine you know. 800
- TALLULAH: What you going to do, Gary? Because don’t.
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] You really think those are still outrageous things to do? You seriously thought they would shock me? 805
- GARY: Yeah.
- Silence, SHERMAN smiles to himself, turns, and moves.*
- GARY: Did you see him do that? Give a tiny smile.
- LORRAINE’s head goes down, as if she’s about to faint.*
- SHERMAN: What’s the matter with you? 820
- Pause*
- LORRAINE: [Very quiet] I just feel ...
- SHERMAN: Are you ill?
- LORRAINE: [Very quiet] No ... no, I don’t think so.
- SHERMAN: [Stares at LORRAINE, trying to decide if she’s just trying to get his attention.] Are you unwell or not? 825

Pause

- LORRAINE: [Looks at him straight in the face] No, I'm not.
- SHERMAN: [Moves briskly to the piano, his tone business-like] Ian, could you come here and work this thing? [Indicating piano] 830
- IAN: [Self-mocking smile] What I've been waiting for!
- SHERMAN: [Carrying on, business-like] Lorraine, come here. [LORRAINE moves.] That's enough. [She stops.] Stay there. You're going to sing for me now. Just with the piano – so we'll be able to see the raw article. You know the words of 'Yesterday', I hope? [Without waiting for her answer, although LORRAINE nods, he recites the lyrics of the first verse in a totally matter-of-fact voice, the words crisply distinct. He pulls a microphone from side and laying it down in front of him.] If I think it would be worth it I may want one of you to use this. 835
- IAN: [At piano, his manner professional] Now you know what to do – take your time, I'm going to set a medium fast tempo – the key's 'f' – and I advise you to try. 840
- IAN plays opening bars, LORRAINE turns face away.
- SHERMAN: [Loud] What's the matter? Maybe it wasn't your voice on the tape you gave us. Maybe you can't do anything. 845
- LORRAINE: [Quiet back at him] It was my voice. [Pause] You just haven't given us any warning.
- SHERMAN: Warning! Why should I give you a warning? What the hell are you here for?
- LORRAINE stands still, silence 850
- SHERMAN: Right now.
- IAN: This speed OK?
- IAN plays and LORRAINE sings 'Yesterday', trying extremely hard, standing still, compact, a small sharp figure. Her voice is adequate. She finishes singing after the first verse; it hasn't taken long. Complete silence, everybody looking at SHERMAN, who is by window. 855
- LORRAINE: He was going a little fast for me. [Slight pause – SHERMAN doesn't look at her.] Can I start again?
- SHERMAN: No. [He turns.] Please just go back against the wall. Now you, please. [Indicating GARY] 860
- GARY stands where LORRAINE was standing. The girls stand in silence next to each other, TALLULAH is tense.
- GARY: Can I not sing that song? – it's not the sort of thing I'm into.
- IAN: [Cutting him off] No, just sing the same song, and try to relax, you sure you know the words? 865
- GARY: We'll see won't we?
- He starts to sing the song as IAN plays – a nervous but rather beautiful voice comes out, and putting everything he's got into it. SHERMAN turns and looks at him to interrupt him after a very short time.*
- SHERMAN: Can you stop moving around so much? 870
- GARY: I usually have something in my hands. [Glancing at microphone] Maybe if ...
- SHERMAN: No.

- IAN starts playing again, GARY misses his entrance.
 GARY: Wait a minute – I can't remember it. [He becomes tense.] 875
- SHERMAN repeats the opening two lines sharply, piano starts.
- GARY: Aargh! ... it's gone. Why did you interrupt ... I can't do it at the moment. [With real passion] You really shouldn't have stopped me. [He looks up.] Go on, you better say next please, like they're meant to. [Moment's silence, GARY moves] 880
- SHERMAN: I hope you're watching this, Ian.
 IAN: I don't know what's the matter with them.
 TALLULAH: I'm waiting.
 SHERMAN: Tallulah, would you stand where Gary was standing?
 IAN: Are you ready – are you really concentrating? Try to concentrate. 885
- TALLULAH opens her mouth, she sings about a line and a half of 'Yesterday'.
- SHERMAN: Stop! [She stops.] Just stop.
- TALLULAH stares at him in disbelief and resentment.
- SHERMAN: Here. Will you use this, please? 890
- TALLULAH takes the microphone. She begins 'Yesterday', but suddenly switches into a contemporary song. She has a very good, strong voice, she moves round away from the central position as her confidence grows – she puts everything she can into it, not looking at him in case he stops her, using her voice, both loud and quiet, her face determined and eager, really exerts energy. She sings for about a minute and a half, growing really loud towards the end. She stops, panting and sweating. Silence, they all look at her. 895
- SHERMAN: I said 'Yesterday'.
 TALLULAH: You didn't stop me. [She hands him the microphone.] 900
 SHERMAN: Here's a handkerchief – wipe your face. You shouldn't wear clothes like that.
 IAN: [Quietly] Well done.
 GARY: [Suddenly] It must be really late – night-time by now.
 SHERMAN: [Moves over to the window with an abrupt movement] You think so do you? 905
- He lets up the window blind, sun pours into the room, bright evening sun. They look startled and blink in it. SHERMAN is by the window.*
- SHERMAN: When I accept people they don't usually say anything, not at first, just stand there chewing. [Slight pause] When I turn people down sometimes they giggle and say 'I'm sorry, I didn't hear what you said, could you say it again', sometimes they thank you, taking so long they'll hope you'll change your mind. And sometimes they are abusive and shout and spit and kick chairs over. 910
- LORRAINE: That's very helpful. 915
 SHERMAN: [Briskly exiting] I'll see you tonight. [He exits.]
 GARY: [Looks round] That means we're staying. We've all survived, that can't be right. [Nervous] Have we all survived?

- IAN: Thank you – that was good, excellent – you did well in the end ... great ... well done. [He smiles.] Good. 920
- GARY: [Not unpleasantly] He's really pleased, look. How many of us is he going to take?
- IAN: [Looking round] Just try to relax now.
- GARY: [Not unpleasantly] Go on – run after him if you want to, we don't mind.
- IAN: I'm not in the habit of running after people. 925
- GARY: [He smiles at him.] Then we'll go together – because I'm going too! Come on. [He catches LORRAINE's arm.] You ought to come too. I'm going to have a real look round. [He exits.]
- IAN: I'll see you tonight. [He exits.]
- TALLULAH and LORRAINE alone on stage together, the evening light. 930
- TALLULAH: [Excited, smiling] I feel sore all over. And really stiff. [Lightly] I don't think he likes me, he looked sideways like that, when he saw me looking at him. I couldn't see what he was thinking.
- LORRAINE: [Quietly] You did very well. He likes you ... you're OK.
- TALLULAH: [Excited] What the hell anyway! We're here. I've missed my job tonight, you know. I only did half the shopping this morning. I always do it for the whole family on Fridays. [Loud, by the window] We should go out shouldn't we? It's so warm now! [Smiling] What place is out there! [Mimics SHERMAN] Where are we – which city? [Moment's silence] I bet he knew all the time. We should go and see London, paint the town green. Startle people in bus queues – hijack a taxi. [She looks at LORRAINE.] And all the other things people do here, should go together. 940
- LORRAINE: Yeah, we could. Probably wouldn't let us back in here again though if we were late.
- TALLULAH: Walking along with my hair like this, you and me, watching people think about picking us up, and we just walking straight past them. 945
- LORRAINE: Yeah, we could.
- TALLULAH: [Grins, excited] Some other time though.
- Music – classical music suddenly wells up, somewhere in the distance, but quite loud. TALLULAH looks around.* 950
- TALLULAH: [Loud] What the hell is that?
- Music continues, welling up from somewhere in the building.*
- LORRAINE: It must be their classical record division. [She looks towards the door, slight pause.] It's a big place.
- They look at each other across the big room.* 955

Paper 1

May/June 2016

COPY OF PRE-RELEASE MATERIAL

2 hours 30 minutes

---

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

The questions in Paper 1 will be based on the stimuli and on the extract from Stephen Poliakoff's play American Days provided in this booklet.

This clean copy of the material is for you to use in your responses.

---

This document consists of 24 printed pages.

STIMULI

Choose one of the following three stimuli and devise a piece of drama based on it. You should work in groups of between two and six performers. Your piece should last approximately 15 minutes.

In the Written examination, you will be asked questions about your piece that will cover both practical and theoretical issues.

Stimulus 1

Quotation: 'Better three hours too soon than a minute too late'
From William Shakespeare's The Merry Wives of Windsor [Act 2, Scene 2]

Stimulus 2

Poem: When I Think About Myself by Maya Angelou

When I think about myself,
I almost laugh myself to death,
My life has been one great big joke,
A dance that's walked,
A song that's spoke,
I laugh so hard I almost choke,
When I think about myself.

Sixty years in these folks' world,
The child I works for calls me girl,
I say "Yes ma'am" for working's sake.
Too proud to bend,
Too poor to break,
I laugh until my stomach ache,
When I think about myself.

My folks can make me split my side,
I laughed so hard I nearly died,
The tales they tell sound just like lying,
They grow the fruit,
But eat the rind,
I laugh until I start to crying,
When I think about my folks.

EXTRACT*Taken from American Days, by Stephen Poliakoff

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

Stephen Poliakoff's play American Days was first performed in London, in 1974. The play is set in London on a day and night in July.

The location is the Listening Room of IBC, an international record company in London. The Listening Room is a large, very plush room, used for auditioning and entertaining artists, and covered from wall to wall in blue carpet. Among the features of the room are a piano, a fridge and an aquarium.

Three teenagers have travelled to the IBC offices from various places around the UK, hoping for an audition and a record deal. The drama explores the ruthless and inaccessible world of the music industry and the way in which young people can be manipulated as they attempt to enter it.

The play is in two Acts. The extract consists of the whole of Act 1.

Characters

Tallulah	17 years old, her hair is dyed a bright orange. Broad intelligent face, loud laugh.
Gary	18 years old, medium height, thin. Mercurial manner, a charming smile.
Lorraine	17 years old, about five feet high. Very pale sharp face, dark intelligent eyes.
Ian	29 years old, short hair. Fashionable well-cut suit, bright green shoes. Educated accent, laconic self-mocking smile.
Sherman	Late thirties, small stocky figure. Enormous energy, dark piercing eyes, a very strong presence. His accent is classless.
American (Moss)	Talks to Sherman on the phone from the USA.

ACT 1

Scene 1

The large Listening Room of IBC, an international record company in London. Blue carpet. Gold discs on the walls. A sleek, long room with plants and an aquarium.

TALLULAH, aged seventeen, is sitting at the piano. As the lights come up, she's plonking down on one note and then a second note, idly doodling on the piano. For a long moment we watch her bent over the piano. GARY enters, carrying a guitar. 5

GARY: Don't mind me.

TALLULAH: [Glances round at him, then back at the piano] I wasn't.

GARY: Are you here for the same reason I am? 10

TALLULAH: I expect so. I don't know. [She plays a note.]

GARY: [Sees fridge.] Why is there a fridge here? [He pulls the fridge's door.] It's locked. Wonder what's inside. [Looks into aquarium] They've got snails in here. They must have eaten all the fish. [Taps glass, pause] Have you felt this carpet? It sort of oozes under your feet, doesn't it, feel it. It's down all the corridors, it's on the walls of some rooms. 15

Pause

TALLULAH: I was shown right in here.

GARY: I've come to see this important guy – I got an invitation.

IAN enters. He is in his late twenties, fashionably dressed, he smiles a pleasant, professional smile. 20

IAN: There you are. Now, one of you is either very early or extremely late. In fact it's quite possible you're both late. [He smiles.] Which, in the circumstances, is quite helpful. So we'll forgive you. Anyway, welcome to IBC – glad you could visit us, to sound a formal note for a moment. Hope it will prove profitable for all of us. This is what we call the Listening Room, newly decorated as you can see, which we use for all our interviews and discussions [He smiles.] and the odd midnight session. [Slight pause] You must be Gary and Tallulah then. 25

GARY: Yes, I'm Gary. 30

LORRAINE enters.

IAN: [Calm, but quite sharp] Now what the hell are you doing here?

LORRAINE: I have an appointment.

IAN: Not any longer. You're Lorraine, right?

LORRAINE: Yes. 35

IAN: Didn't you get the telegram we sent? Your interview's been cancelled. [Pause] We've had to cancel it.

LORRAINE: What, you mean you didn't want me to come after all?

IAN: Because time is shorter than I anticipated. Why didn't you get the telegram? I sent it personally. 40

LORRAINE: [Quiet] So you want me to go again.

Slight pause

- IAN: No – now you're here, you're here. Some squeezing will have to go on. [Looking at them all] So first, here are some name badges if you can just fill them in, with your first name. [Smiles] In capitals if possible, that saves us a lot of time. 45
- GARY: [Taking badge, quite polite tone] Right, OK, are you him, then, the guy we're meeting?
- IAN: [Smiles] Not quite, no. I'm the guy who spotted you. [Looking at GARY] I tried to meet you for a drink afterwards I remember, but I don't think you showed. Now you're being seen by Don Sherman, which means you're in luck, because he's the top guy you can see. 50
- TALLULAH: Good ... great.
- IAN: [Carrying on] I just hope he'll have time to see all of you – properly.
- TALLULAH's face immediately falls. 55
- IAN: I'm sure he will. People have waited five years to see him, and I'm not joking, but fortunately you're not in that position. He will have heard your tapes, so he's prepared, he knows something of your music. [He smiles.] When you see him it's important to keep him here, not waste his time, answer his questions, because once he leaves he just doesn't come back. Not a chance. You remember that – OK? 60
- TALLULAH: I'm beginning to feel a bit peculiar.
- IAN: There's no need for any of you to feel hostile about being here because though you may find the surroundings a bit alienating, we're very used to that. [He smiles.] And know how to handle it. So don't worry. [Slight pause] Now if those of you that haven't done so could check in at security, picking your way over the alsatians, you can get your identity cards, then you'll be able to use our full facilities. Our restaurant – visitors' section – squash courts, television room and the bar, free of charge. [He smiles.] If you don't do that, you'll have to pay through the teeth. [The loudspeaker telephone rings.] 65
- SHERMAN: [Off stage, speaking via the telephone] Ian ... Ian.
- IAN: Yes, I'm here.
- SHERMAN: There you are. I've tried every room in the building. What on earth are you doing down there? 75
- IAN: I didn't know you'd arrived.
- SHERMAN: No, we just got in – come on up. It's rather nice and empty up here.
- IAN: No, Don – I'm here with these kids, Don – the ones you're going to see, remember?
- SHERMAN: What kids? I have no intention of seeing any kids. 80
- IAN looks embarrassed but keeps his cool.
- SHERMAN: [His voice continuing] I have no kids on my schedule – Ian!
- IAN: [To kids] If you could all check in now with security.
- GARY: [Looking at telephone, grins] Does that mean five years of our lives are going to go? 85
- IAN: Go on.
- GARY exits with LORRAINE, both looking worried.
- TALLULAH: [Not moving, she stands across the room looking at Ian.] I've already done that, checked in.
- SHERMAN: [His voice has been continuing.] Ian, are you there? ... What are you doing? 90
- IAN: Yes, I'm here. You remember the kids I wanted you to see, there are three of them.

SHERMAN: Three of them! I haven't conceivably got time to see three of them.
 IAN: I know it's a bit difficult – and you've just got in. [His voice suddenly sharp] But you've got to see them. [He smiles.] And it would be a real help to me, for obvious reasons. 95

SHERMAN: Not that again. I keep on telling you not to worry.
 IAN: I know and I hope you're right – but you must see them, Don. [Silence] Are you still there? 100

TALLULAH: [Into loudspeaker telephone, right over it] Come on – come on down here, we're waiting.

SHERMAN: Who's that?
 TALLULAH: Me.
 IAN: That was one of the kids. 105

SHERMAN: Really. And you're waiting to see me?
 TALLULAH: Yes – I'm here – in this Listening Room.
 SHERMAN: And you want me to come down? [Pause]
 TALLULAH: Yeah. [She is right up to telephone.] Quickly. [Pause]
 SHERMAN: Good. Good. Fine. I shall try to make it. 110
 TALLULAH: [Standing by loudspeaker telephone] Hello? Have you gone? [Silence] He's coming now.
 IAN: [Leaning against wall, smiles] That was close.

BLACKOUT

Scene 2

GARY is standing by the door, staring down the passage. 115

GARY: He's coming. I can see him ... [He moves sharply away from the door and across the room.] He's coming right now.

Pause, nobody enters

TALLULAH: Well, where is he then?
 GARY: [Remains across the room away from the door] He must have stopped. 120
 Got stuck in the passage. [Pause, watching the door] Maybe he caught himself on the radiator.

TALLULAH: Maybe he turned back.
 LORRAINE: I don't believe he's out there. [Glancing over to door] What does he look like? 125

GARY: Look like ...? He's sort of squat looking. A bit misshapen. Little chubby legs.

SHERMAN moves into the room as GARY is saying this last line. LORRAINE is standing against the far wall. Strong sunlight across room. SHERMAN stops for a split second as he enters the room and glances round, hardly seeming to register the kids. He moves into the room. He is holding a bundle of letters, two of which he has already opened. He does not look at the kids at all, but moves across the room and puts the letters down on a small table. He stands looking down at the table, silence. 130

SHERMAN: [Not looking at them] What day of the week is it? 135

The kids look at each other. He doesn't look at them.

GARY: Friday.

- SHERMAN: [Quiet] Friday. [He undoes letter with paper knife, making sharp movements. Smiling to himself in a matter-of-fact way] I can't get people here to understand that I like opening my own letters. [He is working his way through mail, summing up the contents of each letter with a very quick glance.] If you try to pick a single envelope up, your secretaries grab it back at once. And they just won't let go. You have to tear it out of their hands. [Flick of paper knife – fast] So I hijack my post on its way down the passage. [He undoes letter, a wadge of bank notes comes out, he pushes it to one side.] More wasted money. [He opens another letter.] During the worst of the bomb scares, this company had a special American come over to open all our mail. He was about nine feet tall. Blond. He opened every letter for a year. He used to wear white gloves. Artists get sent a lot of strange things. He's doing the same job now in our Rome office. He'll lose a hand soon. [He looks up, but hardly seems to take in the kids.] Terrific. [He smiles.] Smell of the new carpet – if anything it's stronger than last week. 140
- TALLULAH: [Quite loud] Does he know we're here do you think? 145
- Silence. SHERMAN ignores this, he moves over to the fridge.* 155
- GARY: He's got a key. [He grins.] They must be a group of special people that are allowed to get in.
- The fridge is empty except for a bottle of milk.*
- SHERMAN: [Suddenly loud] I don't believe this! It's empty! It always happens in London. That's the second time in ten days! Each time I come back. They are meant to fill them up at the beginning of each week. I cannot believe that that is beyond them. [Sharp smile] I can only operate with a full fridge. It makes anything I have to do in here bearable. [He smiles.] I have lived off the contents of one of these for a month. [He smiles.] Never needed to go out of the building. [He picks up the phone and speaks into it.] No, which one are you? Sharon? Genista? Well, which are you? There's nothing in the fridge down here you realise. Yes, in the Listening Room. Except for a bottle of milk. No. I've just got in. Yes. Well do something now. And give me the new New York number. [Smiles] No, you just have to say it once. [He punches the number out on the phone.] Hello, it's DS here. No, I just got in. Is Moss there? No, no. I'll let him finish, for once. I'll hold. [He puts down the receiver and lets it lie on the table. He has poured milk into a glass and is sipping it. Moving from table sipping milk] I met three Germans on the plane. Young Germans. One of them was incredibly overweight. And you know what they were doing? They were going round the world without a break in fifty-six hours! They'd taken a bet to go round the world without stopping. Rushing from one plane to another. They'd flown to Tokyo, then to Sydney, then across to Brazil, then to Los Angeles, and now they were coming back to Frankfurt via London. The last leg of their trip. They were really extraordinary, they'd become completely hysterical. Giggling and bouncing up and down in their seats and leaning across and tugging at my arm. They were wearing little party hats, coloured paper hats, and they had no control over their actions at all. Tickling each other furiously and rolling out into the middle of the gangway and they were all red round the eyes – totally gummed up. [He smiles.] It was fantastic. All for a bet! They were going to win it too. [He drinks the glass of milk.] 160
- GARY: Are we allowed to talk amongst ourselves while you're speaking? 165
- 170
- 175
- 180
- 185

Silence

- SHERMAN: [Looks at them] Two girls and a boy. 190
 GARY: [Half to himself] At least he isn't blind.
 TALLULAH: Do you know who we are? [Pause] Have you listened to our tapes?
 LORRAINE: [Quiet] We were asked here you know. Sent for.
 GARY: Has he forgotten he's on the phone? [Grins] You're on the phone to New York! [Pause] 195
 SHERMAN: Have you got name badges?

They have all taken theirs off.

 GARY: You want to know our names?
 SHERMAN: No, I want to see your name badges. I don't remember names. Could you put them on? 200
 TALLULAH: [As she pins her name label on] I'm Tallulah.
 SHERMAN: [Reads off LORRAINE's badge] Lorraine.
 GARY: I'm Gary.
 SHERMAN: [As if he hasn't heard] Have you got a name badge?

 GARY puts it on. 205

 SHERMAN: [Reads] Gary. I need to see names.
 GARY: [Suddenly] I wish you'd finish your phone call.
 TALLULAH: I don't think it really is to New York. [Pause] Are those noises from New York? [Noises over telephone] You've had it lying there for five minutes
 you know. You'll get your phone cut off. 210
 GARY: They probably get cheap rates because they use it so much – probably have their own private phone cable running under the Atlantic.
 LORRAINE: Have you listened to our tapes yet? [Pause] I don't think he knows why
 we're here.
 TALLULAH: He doesn't seem to answer any questions at all. 215
 SHERMAN: [He has been staring at them for the first time. He turns away.] I've listened to a lot of tapes today, already. And I've only been in the building forty-five minutes. We get 200 tapes a week. People who have sent in little brown parcels of themselves singing. Often they're singing in the bath. [Sharp] I mean it. That's because that's where they sing best. We hear the water sloshing around in the background and the tape often smells of bath foam. They're all listened to. 220

*AMERICAN VOICE comes stabbing out of the telephone and during SHERMAN's telephone conversation it often mumbles in the background.
 SHERMAN moves round the room as he talks very fast, his manner quickening, speedy, professional, a totally different tone from the one for the kids. He raises his voice when he is far from the phone, drops it lower when he is close.* 225

 AMERICAN: Hello ... are you there? ... hello ...
 SHERMAN: Moss, it's me. Yes ... I just got in. [AMERICAN VOICE mumbles] No –
 I arrived here just now – and there is nothing in the fridge! [Smiling]
 Nothing! No, a great yawning hole. Not even any ice, which takes some doing.
 AMERICAN: It's different in Chicago.
 SHERMAN: [Speedy, laughing] No, the best one is in Michigan. [Straight on] You seen about Zat's single? As I said, it topped quarter of a million in a week. [He moves abruptly.] No, it's peaked. It won't do more. No, there'll be the usual slight wobble in and out for the next month. He's definitely broken Europe now. I thought this would be the one. Even Holland. Holland was really holding out, but he's broken that too. Only Australia. He seems to be out to lunch in Australia. Out to lunch completely. Only 25,000. I know ... three warehouses full of the single over there, it's pouring out of the windows apparently – they'll have to melt them. The promotion was wrong over there – they didn't listen as usual. [His tone changes and becomes harder.] Now Moss, are you listening to me? I have recommended ... on my recommendation ... we are going to terminate that contract. Yes, the artist we discussed last week, subject X, since I'm being observed as I talk ... No, it's been drying up for years for him. No, he was trailing badly even then. We have no reason to renew, I fall asleep when I hear anything of his now, we don't dare tour the idiot any more. [Louder, firmer] WE HAVE NO REASON TO RENEW. Yes, I remember that tour, of course. He looked wonderful. Yes, it's been settled. Now about the sleeve I was talking about – Yes – No, I phoned from the airport – the sleeve was rubbish. I didn't know what it was! No, I really didn't. I thought it was a lawnmower. I had to be told what it was. And the way she looked. She looked like a shoplifter – incredibly shift. Also if you hold it the wrong way up, upside down, it looks as if she's been cut in half. No, they should put her hands on the cover sleeve – no, I'm serious, the only bit of her that the camera likes, long bony hands, very white, very long fingers, like they belong to a dead person. Quite eerie. You should ask to see them next time. Yes – they can be holding something interesting ... Right, no I'll phone Zurich myself. I'm catching the last flight out tonight. Maybe earlier. [He suddenly glares up at the kids.] It depends. Goodbye. [He slams down the phone.]

The kids have been watching this fast performance in stunned silence. They continue to look at him in silence.

SHERMAN: [Smiles] There's no need to be nervous.

TALLULAH: We're not.

SHERMAN: It seems to be a nice day. [He draws the blinds and curtains. The sunlight is entirely shut out, and the room is plunged into darkness.] These curtains are already getting old.

TALLULAH: What are you doing?

The room is in almost total darkness.

SHERMAN: [As he finishes drawing the curtains] I spoke to one of you before I came down.

TALLULAH is about to speak. SHERMAN has his back to them, he snaps.

SHERMAN: I don't want to know which one it was. [He turns.] It's no secret that I didn't want to see any of you today – so if you would rather leave ...

TALLULAH: [Loud] No. [Slight pause] We wouldn't.

SHERMAN: [Steely] Now, when I ask you to do something, whatever it happens to be, I want your co-operation.

GARY: [Grinning] Do we have to be careful what we say and do, from now on?

SHERMAN: [Suddenly] I'm afraid before I go any further, you'll have to take those boots off.

TALLULAH: Who are you talking to ... !

SHERMAN: Could you please take those boots off?

- GARY: He can't be serious can he?
- TALLULAH is wearing black gumboots.
- SHERMAN: They are just distracting – I'm afraid I can't work with them – they'll have to come off. They confuse me. 290
- TALLULAH: [Slowly takes boots off] You get a kick out of this do you?
- SHERMAN: [Sharp] Small black gumboots, just like the Queen Mother; whenever people think of the Queen Mother, they think of her gumboots. [He smiles.] I have seen statistics. 295
- TALLULAH: [Looking straight at him] Is that all right or do you want me to take anything else off?
- Pause*
- SHERMAN: [Matter-of-fact] No. No, don't leave them where I can see them – put them in the fridge. [Very sharp] What was your name? 300
- GARY: [He has just taken his badge off.] Gary.
- SHERMAN: Then put it back on. [He stares at them for a brief moment, then moves away.]
- GARY: [Half to himself] Sadist.
- SHERMAN: [Swings round] Who said that? 305
- Slight pause*
- GARY: Me. It was me.
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] You're quite wrong. That is not something I am.
- GARY: [Straight back] That's all right then, they told us you just walk out without warning. Just like that. Bang. They said we've got to keep you here somehow otherwise we've blown it. Because you never come back ever. 310
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] You may get a warning.
- Uneasy pause for a second*
- LORRAINE: He's got yellow socks on – you know.
- TALLULAH: [Nervous smile] Yellow socks – what does that mean about him? 315
- SHERMAN: Could you go and stand against the far wall? All of you. Just go and stand against it ... Look at me.
- They line up on the far side of the stage against the wall. He looks across at them in a group, long pause*
- SHERMAN: Have any of you got a police record? 320
- LORRAINE: What do you want to know that for?
- GARY: [Sharp grin] Do we have to consider our answer carefully?
- SHERMAN: I need to know. It makes a difference to the company attitude. Have any of you?
- GARY: [Half under his breath] What the hell is he doing? 325
- LORRAINE: [Quiet] No – I have not.
- TALLULAH: No, I have not. [Mock] I swear on whatever you've got to swear on.
- Pause, SHERMAN looks at GARY.*
- GARY: [Deliberately slowly] I do ... not have one! He's giving us a shrewd look ... see, a piercing look. [Nervous grin] How are we doing so far then? 330

- TALLULAH: [With mouth spray, raising it to her mouth] I'm going to use this if I'm allowed to, it's for my throat, my voice. If I'm ever 'lucky' enough to perform for you. It contains eucalyptus.
- GARY: [To SHERMAN] That's not a criminal drug.
- Slight pause, SHERMAN turns. TALLULAH is holding her arm. LORRAINE has looked away. SHERMAN feels telephone receiver restlessly.* 335
- SHERMAN: [His tone alters, business like] Tallulah, come here, please.
- He is in the middle of the stage; she has to cross to get to him. She hesitates.* 340
- SHERMAN: No, come here.
- TALLULAH: Come where?
- SHERMAN: [Staring at her] Just here. Don't worry, just come here. Nothing is going to happen to you. I'm not going to do anything.
- GARY: Don't get too close. 345
- TALLULAH stands in the middle of the floor, opposite him.*
- LORRAINE: He's going to interrogate you.
- SHERMAN: Don't worry about the others. [He is standing over her, staring at her hair.] Have you ever dyed your hair a different colour?
- TALLULAH: Yes. Bright red. 350
- SHERMAN: Bright red.
- TALLULAH: Yes. [Pause] I like violent colours.
- SHERMAN: And what's its natural colour?
- TALLULAH: [Straight back at him] It doesn't have one. I've forgotten what colour it was. Maybe it was white. 355
- GARY: You have to be careful. It's the getting-to-know-you stage. [He grins.] Remember, people have waited five years to see him.
- SHERMAN: [He moves her head sideways.] What would you look like with your hair long?
- TALLULAH: Different probably ... worse. 360
- SHERMAN: Where did the name Tallulah come from? It's not your real name, is it?
- TALLULAH: Off a railway bridge. It said 'Tallulah Lives' in letters thirty feet high. I thought if I called myself that people would think it was about me – like an enormous free advertisement.
- GARY: [Grinning] Careful, don't talk too long, he may get restless. 365
- SHERMAN: Where do you come from?
- TALLULAH: I come from Yardley. [Sharp smile] Heard of it?
- SHERMAN: Birmingham.
- TALLULAH: Right first time.
- SHERMAN: You live with your parents? 370
- TALLULAH: You telling me or asking me?
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] Telling you. [Pause] Do you work?
- TALLULAH: In the evenings. In a pub. Washing up mugs.
- SHERMAN: Mugs?
- TALLULAH: [More out of nervousness than aggressiveness] What else do you want to know? I've never sung in public – I've never performed live. I paid for my own tape out of my own money. When I perform live, I want to have a few really loud explosions go off and a light show. 375
- GARY: What's he grinning for? Did you see his small grin; he made a sort of little sideways grin. 380

- TALLULAH: [Small smile] Can I go back against the wall, please?
 SHERMAN: Certainly.
 GARY: [As she moves, jokingly] How did she do then?
 SHERMAN: [Looking across at LORRAINE's name badge] You've got it upside down. I can't read it. 385
- LORRAINE: Lorraine. [Quiet] It's my real name.
 SHERMAN: Lorraine – could you come here, please?
- LORRAINE comes up to him and stands by him.
- SHERMAN: How old are you?
 LORRAINE: I'm seventeen. 390
 SHERMAN: Really? You don't look seventeen.
 LORRAINE: So people tell me, all the time.
 SHERMAN: How seventeen are you?
 LORRAINE: Five months – and quite a few days.
- Slight pause* 395
- SHERMAN: If you're under sixteen – it doesn't matter you know. Particularly.
 GARY: Yes it does, doesn't it?
 SHERMAN: Just don't lie to me.
 LORRAINE: [Genuine] I'm not lying to you ... Why should I lie to you?
 SHERMAN: [Slight smile] To make sure I don't throw you out. 400
 LORRAINE: [Quiet, a little nervous] I didn't think you were going to. You didn't ask her age.
 SHERMAN: No. [Not unpleasantly] Your teeth are pretty dirty. You should get somebody to clean them up for you.
- LORRAINE: [Quiet] I'll remember. 405
 SHERMAN: Where do you come from?
 LORRAINE: Sheffield.
 SHERMAN: Have you ever been in London before?
 LORRAINE: No.
 SHERMAN: How tall are you? 410
 LORRAINE: [She is uncertain how to answer, because he can see she's very short.] Quite tall. Very tall ... What do you expect me to say? You can see, can't you?
 SHERMAN: Yes. You're not very substantial.
 LORRAINE: That's right. 415
 SHERMAN: Can you take that off?
- She is wearing a coat over a T-shirt.*
- LORRAINE: What, now?
 SHERMAN: Now, yes.
- LORRAINE slowly takes the coat off, quite embarrassed being watched by the other kids. 420
- SHERMAN: [Watching her with total detachment; the coat comes off] That's better. [He turns sharply, speedily] Fine. [Has back to them, with finality] Right.
- GARY: What about me then? [Realising he isn't going to get called] Aren't I going to get asked into the middle? 425
- SHERMAN has moved across the room.

- GARY: Hey! I haven't had my turn – my personal questions – you've missed me out.
- SHERMAN: [Quietly, pouring more milk] I haven't missed anything out. 430
- GARY: [Charming smile] I come from Isleworth ...
- SHERMAN: Isleworth?
- GARY: I started wanting to be a musician during Mr Skinner's classes. He was completely bald, rather ugly in fact ...
- SHERMAN: [Suddenly turns, loud, cutting him off] What is all this talk about being a musician? It's completely ludicrous. None of you are musicians. You're just raw, totally inexperienced. 435
- GARY: But we're here aren't we? [Slight pause] You must want some young artists – fresh talent. You must need to sign some because you're seeing us aren't you? 440
- Pause*
- TALLULAH: You were careful, weren't you?
- GARY: It's all right. He's not edging towards the door; we're OK.
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] What's your name?
- GARY: Not this again, I don't believe it. [He moves across.] Here. Why don't you keep it in front of you, then you can keep checking, can't you? [GARY is by the telephone as he puts his name tag down in front of SHERMAN.] 445
Can I call New York? I said I'd call about this time. Let them know how it's going.
- TALLULAH: [Worried at his boldness] Ssssh ... 450
- SHERMAN: [Tiny smile] Would you like to go to New York?
- GARY: [Grins] Are you making an offer?
- TALLULAH: [Grins] He won't do, like that!
- GARY: I've been already, anyway, to America, to New York.
- SHERMAN: [Smiles] You've been? Good. When? 455
- GARY: [Surprised] When? A few months ago.
- SHERMAN: [Still smiling] And what was it like?
- GARY: What do you mean?
- SHERMAN: What's it like? Tell me about it. I want to know.
- Slight pause* 460
- GARY: [Decisive] You want to know? OK. Everything ... everything's open really late for a start. And I mean everything ... opticians, all-night opticians, vets, dentists – they only start to really get going about midnight! ... Patisseries, agricultural machinery shops, piano-tuners, all-night window cleaning classes, that's when they teach you how to clean skyscrapers, they do! You can go and look up your birth certificate at two o'clock in the morning. Yes! And you can book in and have plastic surgery done, all-night zoos, double-glazing ... You can go bathing in this department store at one o'clock in the morning. There's all-night ballet in the parks – heliports – you can go into any café in the centre at three o'clock in the morning and it's full of helicopter pilots! [GARY stops.] 465
- SHERMAN: [Unblinking] Yes?
- GARY: Yeah!
- SHERMAN: Yes. And ...
- GARY: And the garbage disposal lorries are enormous, with red lights all over them. They're fantastic ... they ... they have cigarettes this long – really long cigarettes about ten inches, and ... tennis rackets, really hard metal tennis rackets. Can't buy any wooden tennis rackets any more – can cut people's heads open with them if you lose a point. 475

- They're very bad losers, over there ... er ... the police are all really crude ... 480
- TALLULAH: [Helping him out] People making films in the streets all the time.
- GARY: Yeah – and the hospitals. Got giant hospitals – which have their own cinemas. [Carrying on fast] And you get houses with trees growing on their roofs, and of course pet alligators swimming in the baths and up your trouser leg. 485
- TALLULAH: And you can get green chocolate now in the drug stores.
- GARY: [Sideways glance] Have you been there? [Looks back] And you pass old women of about seventy or eighty out in the street wearing Kaftans, just walking along the pavement. You see, I have been! And when it rains there, these really heavy drops come down – this big – the size of boiled sweets. They're quite dangerous! And there're dead people in the rubbish bins in the park of course, just dropped in there amongst the soda cans, with their legs hanging over the edge. [He smiles.] It's great there. Electric! 490
- 495
- Silence*
- SHERMAN: It would have been simpler, and saved time, if you had just said, no I haven't been.
- 500
- The phone rings. SHERMAN answers phone immediately, a voice only half audible blurts out occasionally during the following conversation.*
- SHERMAN: [Tone changes, indicating surprise for a fraction of a second as he is caught off his guard.] Hello – Dave? ... It was clever of you to track me down ... Yes, I've heard. Yes. No, I'm afraid that is what is happening. We cannot renew – we cannot renew your contract ... . There is nothing we can discuss really. No, it wasn't – no – it was on my recommendation. [Pause as he listens, SHERMAN's tone is direct and unsoftened] I felt that you and the company hadn't got anything to offer each other any more. Or to put it more brutally, we cannot afford you. Sales just haven't been good enough. No, I know ... but, overall, they've been on a continuous slide, for as long as I can remember ... And that's how it works. [Pause] No, I don't think we can see each other. No, I wouldn't like to meet, no. Because there is nothing we can talk about any more. No. If I thought a change in the image would work I would have suggested it. No, I had ideas. But you're just not that sort of artist. [Sharp] What do you want me to say? I could say how sorry I am, but that wouldn't be true. I am not pleased of course, but I am not going to mess you around. I think it just had to be done ... No, I'm drinking milk ... You wanted to talk to me and I'm telling you the truth. Yes, that's why I don't talk to people afterwards because I just upset them. No, I'm afraid it has to be final. My regards to your wife. [Puts down phone, immediately picks it up again – tone very animated, but not upset] Genista! I do not want anybody to be told where I am, and there are no exceptions. Is that clear? And I do not want any calls put through here, no matter what they are about. [He glances up at the kids.] Until I say otherwise ... 505
- 510
- 515
- 520
- 525
- The kids are uneasy, a bit nervous about what they've just seen.*
- LORRAINE: [Quiet] He's just chopped somebody off.

SHERMAN moves away from the phone. He moves across the room to the window seat and sits down. During the following exchange

- between the kids, his head suddenly goes back, his eyes close, his body completely still.* 530
- TALLULAH: How much do you get paid? [She turns.] How much do you think he gets paid?
- GARY: About a quarter of a million ... to start with.
- LORRAINE: Look ...
- They look at him. He is sitting in the chair, his head back, eyes closed, totally still. Silence – they stare at SHERMAN.* 535
- TALLULAH: What's the matter? What's happened to him?
- No reaction from SHERMAN*
- LORRAINE: He must be faking it – mustn't he?
- GARY: [Looking at him] Faking what? 540
- TALLULAH: Hello. [Calls out to SHERMAN – uneasy smile] Hello?
- GARY: Do you think he's still watching us – even though his eyes are shut?
- TALLULAH: [Moves up to him cautiously – looks at SHERMAN's face stretched back] He'll look like that when he's dead.
- LORRAINE: [Uneasy smile] Let's hope he hasn't had a heart attack. 545
- TALLULAH: He's very well shaved – must have done it on the plane. [She picks up the milk.] Shall I splash some of this over him, bring him round?
- TALLULAH is standing by SHERMAN with milk about to flick some across his face – but as she moves to do so, his head jerks forward, and a second later he gets up sharply.* 550
- SHERMAN: [Totally ignoring her, makes straight for the phone] Right. [He lifts receiver and bursts into confident and reasonably fluent French, ordering coffee and saying which room he is in. He is well into his third sentence and speaking fast, when he stops abruptly.] Of course ... 555
I'm sorry – I thought I was in our Paris office for a moment, yes, the carpet is the same colour blue – and the furniture is in exactly the same position. [Smiles] No, I think the aquarium may be different. No, some black coffee – for one. Thank you. [He puts down phone sharply. He smiles.] I feel terrific. [Suddenly remembers he didn't ask on the phone.] Which place is this anyway? [Indicates phone] That girl had an American accent. 560
- LORRAINE: I don't believe you don't know where you are.
- GARY: He knows.
- TALLULAH: [Intrigued] Yes – what city is out of the window?
- SHERMAN: [Swings round and stops by the closed blinds] Out there ... [He stares for a second trying to think.] It must be London – each city smells different. [Pause, he focuses on them as if remembering. Very deliberately, with a smile on his face, he says their names.] Lorraine ... and Tallulah ... and Gary. 565
- GARY: [His eyes meet SHERMAN's, loud] I've just realised something! [To SHERMAN] What you're doing ... I don't know what I've been thinking all this time – [Straight at SHERMAN] You're only going to take one of us, aren't you ... at the most. We're all in competition with one another, aren't we? [Pause, sharp] Aren't we? 570
- SHERMAN: [Surprised for a split second at Gary] Not necessarily. 575
- GARY: [Sideways to LORRAINE] Did you hear that! 'Not necessarily.' [To SHERMAN] What sort of answer is that?

SHERMAN smiles slightly.

- TALLULAH: Is that right, what he says?
- GARY: He probably thought, right at the start, of maybe putting us together, seeing if there was the possibility of a group, he was making 'visual comparisons' or whatever they call it, but he's decided against it already – haven't you – when you put us up against the wall? 580
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] Are you asking me or telling me?
- GARY: You're not meant to see us like this you know – you're meant to have us in one at a time, totally separate, and interview us. 585
- SHERMAN: [Loud, but with slight smile] 'Meant to'! What on earth is this 'meant to'? There are no methods in this business, there's no green handbook with rules in it. Anybody telling you different is lying. I meet people from time to time – though I do my best to avoid them – who talk about 'nudging' artists and 'coaxing' artists. [Straight at them, quiet] Well, I don't. 590
- GARY: You want us to compete with one another, he really does, that's what he's setting up, you can't do that. [To LORRAINE] He's exploiting us, isn't he?
- SHERMAN: [Suddenly loud, speedy] Exploiting you! I'm exploiting you! Should have witnesses shouldn't I? I should ring for one of the five lawyers in this building. You're free to go whenever you like, aren't you? I don't believe you're being kept here by force. If you don't like the way we work here, go to another label. Be one of the eight thousand other kids or whatever number it is each week, pestering people with their tapes, pushing them into one's face as one is trying to drink a cup of coffee. [He moves, his voice changes.] Exploiting ... [Dangerous] I don't want to hear the word again. [Slight pause, he is by the window] If one was choosing athletes it would be simple. You just have to see which one runs the fastest – jumps the highest, but this is a little more complicated. 600
- LORRAINE: [Watching him] So we are competing against each other. 605
- No reaction*
- TALLULAH: Have we got your assurance that we aren't going ...
- SHERMAN: I don't give assurances.
- LORRAINE: Of course he's not going to give us an assurance. 610
- SHERMAN: Any of you are free to leave this room now – if you are not happy. [Slight smile] Taking on a large company isn't easy – nor should it be. I don't sign very many artists. [Pause] A contract with us could obviously transform your lives. [Pause]
- GARY: [Looking at TALLULAH and LORRAINE] I don't think we should go along with this – being made to compete against each other. I really don't. [Nervous grin] I think we should consult amongst ourselves. I mean for a start, what I'm doing is a lot different from what they're doing. [To TALLULAH] I'm sure it's good – but with me, standing me up against walls you can't really tell ... [GARY leans against the wall, close to SHERMAN.] 620
- SHERMAN: [By window] You worry too much.
- GARY: Who?
- SHERMAN: You. You're worrying too much about how you're doing.
- GARY: [Sharp grin] I think it's a really mad – absurd way of doing things ... if you ask me. [SHERMAN turns, pause. GARY, a little surprised at himself, grins.] So you want me to leave now? Right. Do you ...? [Pause] I expect you want me to go now. 625
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] No. [Pause] You're wrong. [SHERMAN exits slowly]
- TALLULAH: [Calls after him] Wait... [TALLULAH turns, furious] You've done it. That's 630

- it isn't it! He'll disappear now. We'll never get him back, won't even get near him again. You've blown it.
- GARY: No I haven't. [He moves.] I don't think I have. [Looks around him] They've probably got a few hidden microphones, we're being studied on our own.
- TALLULAH: You handled him completely wrong, you know. You were really clumsy – really crude the way you did it. 635
- LORRAINE: Yes, I don't think you did it at all right.
- GARY: I don't trust him.
- LORRAINE: I think he'll be all right. We don't know if he's only going to take one of us.
- GARY: Of course he is. [Smiles] Only one. Really weird – the way he went into that coma or whatever it was. 640
- LORRAINE: If he comes back we've got to make him stay here.
- TALLULAH: [Loud] He never comes back, remember. [To GARY] Go and have a look for him.
- GARY: Why me? [Slight grin] I'll get lost! You go. [He begins to sing few bars of a song, as he moves nervously. It is one of his own songs, with strange, wistful lyrics.] 645
- TALLULAH: Shut up.
- GARY continues to sing. SHERMAN re-enters with IAN. SHERMAN is holding paper cup of coffee that he drains completely with one abrupt movement during the next exchange. IAN is standing in a well-cut suit with notebook. 650
- TALLULAH: What's he doing here?
- IAN smiles, standing next to SHERMAN.
- LORRAINE: Where've you been? 655
- SHERMAN: That needn't concern you.
- GARY: He's got reinforcements. [To SHERMAN, indicating IAN] What's he going to do?
- IAN: I have merely come to hover, and to help out if necessary ... make a few notes. 660
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] He is here for your protection.
- The kids are surprised.*
- LORRAINE: Or yours.
- GARY: [Mocking] Come to help him choose.
- IAN: Of course not. 665
- SHERMAN: He is quite concerned you do well.
- IAN: [Slight smile] Naturally. It is because of me that you are here.
- GARY: [To IAN] And if you want my opinion, I think he likes her [Indicates TALLULAH], half likes her [Indicates LORRAINE] and really loathes the sight of me. 670
- They all look at SHERMAN, he just smiles a slight smile, then moves sharply, his manner is flowing, moving back into top gear. More competitive feel between the kids.*
- SHERMAN: [Straight at GARY] You play the guitar.
- GARY: Yeah, that's right. 675
- SHERMAN: Do you play the guitar?
- TALLULAH: No. [Then more competitive] I have played it once, one day last year I ...
- SHERMAN: Right. [He looks at LORRAINE.]

LORRAINE:	No.
SHERMAN:	Just checking. [ He moves, sharp ] And the piano, do you play the piano?	680
GARY:	No.
TALLULAH:	No.
LORRAINE:	Yes.
SHERMAN:	Right. [ He moves away, as if about to ask something else, then he suddenly turns and looks straight at LORRAINE. ] OK, play it now. Play me a tune. You can play me anything you like. [ Moment's silence ]	685
LORRAINE:	[ Glances over ] On that piano?
SHERMAN:	Where else?
LORRAINE:	OK. [ She moves over to piano and briskly sits down at piano, TALLULAH and GARY are watching, fascinated. ]	690
IAN:	You can take your time.
LORRAINE:	[ Tenses herself by the piano ] This stool's a bit low for me ... but I think I can manage. [ LORRAINE looks at the keyboard. ] The keys are dirty. [ She tries a note, a single note, presses it down. ] It's not in tune.
IAN:	[ Watching her ] It's always kept in tune. [ He smiles. ] One of the rules of the house.	695
LORRAINE:	You ought to get it fixed.
SHERMAN:	[ Louder ] Play me a tune.
	LORRAINE, who has been behaving confidently up to this moment, is poised over the keyboard. For a second she sits there, and then plonks on the piano, a terrible racket, patently unable to play properly.	700
IAN:	[ Spontaneous exasperation ] She can't play.
	LORRAINE continues for a second after this, then stops. She sits by piano, waiting for the onslaught.
SHERMAN:	[ Steely, quiet ] You shouldn't lie to me – what is the point if you're going to lie? You might as well leave right now.	705
LORRAINE:	[ Uncertain whether this means she's been sacked ] Do I ...
SHERMAN:	[ Loud ] Do you what?
	There is a moment's pause. LORRAINE is a small figure standing by the piano.	710
LORRAINE:	[ Very quiet ] Do you want me to go?
SHERMAN:	[ After a slight pause ] Go back and stand over there. [ Watching her ] No – right back!
TALLULAH:	[ Quiet as she rejoins them ] You shouldn't take risks.
IAN:	[ To LORRAINE, his voice sharp, exasperated by her ] That was a silly thing to do, if I may say so – wasn't it? How on earth did you think you were going to get away with that? It was obvious we'd ask you to play sooner or later. You don't want to waste Mr Sherman's time you realise. His time is worth more than anybody's in the building! You're quite lucky to be here at all.	715
SHERMAN:	[ Swinging round ] He wants you to do well. [ He smiles. ] And he has his reasons.	720
IAN:	[ Slight smile, trying to sound cool in front of the kids ] One or two, certainly.
SHERMAN:	[ Slight smile ] He was willing you on just now.	725
TALLULAH:	We're trying.

SHERMAN is standing by IAN.

SHERMAN: [To IAN in a quieter personal tone, not unpleasant, with a smile.] You shouldn't worry – you can usually tell if they are planning to do something, make a change – they stop replacing the equipment in your office. You don't get those large red drawing pins delivered to you any more, you just get given the plain ordinary ones and recycled envelopes. They start giving you the dregs. 730

The kids are watching, uncertain what they're talking about.

IAN: That's not happening yet – I don't think it is ... 735

SHERMAN: [Moving, his adrenalin flowing] Good, good ... [Suddenly to kids, indicating IAN] You know what this man used to do – he used to tear up lawns with pneumatic drills, yes, at college and scrawl his name on chapel walls didn't you – and he wore his hair really long and walked barefoot over electric railway lines. 740

IAN: [Brazening it out, trying not to look embarrassed] Yes – and he's now wearing a suit that fits almost too well.

SHERMAN: And eagerly interested in how you're doing.

GARY: [To IAN] You must be really worried then mustn't you?

IAN: [Quiet] Why? 745

GARY: [Indicating SHERMAN] Because he hasn't found out anything about us at all – or about what we want to do.

SHERMAN: [By the window] Hasn't he? [He stares at GARY.] Take you for example. I know almost everything I need to know already. [Slight pause] I've also listened to your very muddy tape. [Slight pause] 750

GARY: Yes ... [He glances at LORRAINE, half jokey] Is this it? [Pause] Is he going to do it?

SHERMAN: [Tone direct, but not sneering] You want to sing songs that are 'relevant' ... the social angle ... the lay-off-the-kids category. [Matter-of-fact] That is what you want to do. [He turns.] I saw a group somewhere, some city, they were singing an anti-fascist song, and in the middle they completely forgot what they were singing about and started strutting around the stage playing with their microphones. That's how much they were concentrating. Two lots of twins they were, with very pale, baby-like faces. [Quiet, to himself] They were almost interesting. 760

GARY: I thought we were talking about me.

SHERMAN: [Staring straight at him again, sharp] And to make that stuff sell now, it has to be really unexpected, done with a difference.

GARY: But I can. You have no idea what I'm like. When I play I can be all sorts of things, different things, can be really quiet, really subtle, so you hear every word, and I can be LOUD, really outrageous, I can shock ... 765

SHERMAN: You can shock can you? [Pause] How?

GARY: How? I just do.

SHERMAN: [Suddenly] OK. Do it – do the most outrageous thing you can think of. Shock us. 770

GARY: [Startled grin] Shock you – in here. No – I'm not going to start playing party games.

SHERMAN: I'm not asking you to. [Slight smile] I thought you'd welcome the chance.

TALLULAH: Yeah.

GARY: You did – did you? [He glances round.] You serious? 775

SHERMAN: Of course. When I first arrived in London, I was amazed to see three little girls smoking on the underground. But you'll find it more difficult to shock me now.

GARY: [Mocking, not believing him] You want me to do something really

- outrageous – and then I’m going to get marks for it afterwards! [Suddenly to IAN] What you think of this then? You think it’s a good idea of his? 780
- IAN: [Smiles, stares straight back at him] I’m looking forward to it.
- GARY: He’s looking forward to it! [Suddenly] OK.
- SHERMAN: But no nudity.
- GARY: What do you mean? 785
- SHERMAN: Because it’s so predictable.
- TALLULAH: Could get him into trouble couldn’t it?
- GARY: You better give me a list of all the ‘shocking’ things I’m allowed to do then.
- SHERMAN: [Quiet] Everything else. 790
- GARY: [Suddenly realises from his tone he is serious] Really? [He moves purposely – grinning.] You mean I’m allowed to wreck the furniture and everything. Right. [He is grinning, looking for something. He picks up a chair and tosses it on to floor.] How shocking do you want it to be, medium shocking – or really very shocking? [He moves round room, he smiles.] You really are a git, do you know that? You’ve been waiting to do this haven’t you? 795
- SHERMAN: You’re not going to reduce us to quivering heaps like that. In fact I really doubt you’ll manage it.
- GARY: [Fast, moving] I could kill a few snails for a start. [Taps aquarium hard] Melt a few of these down. [He takes gold disc off wall and drops it on floor.] And make you drink it. [He moves a chair sharply, grins at them all as he moves.] What are you hoping for? What’s the favourite? [He stops.] I think I’ll cut one of my fingers off, do a bit of bleeding, that’s always a good one, wounds, especially self-inflicted ones. [Flicks out matches] I’ll set light to the carpet ... he thinks he knows what I’m going to do. [He gently touches LORRAINE’s face, looking at SHERMAN, aggressive towards him, not LORRAINE.] If I hurt her, damaged her, that would be really shocking because she hasn’t done anything wrong. But I’m not going to. [He moves near IAN. He flicks IAN’s pen out of his hand and smiles.] Or I could inconvenience him. [Pause] Do you want to be? This’ll all be in the company magazine you know. 800
- TALLULAH: What you going to do, Gary? Because don’t.
- SHERMAN: [Slight smile] You really think those are still outrageous things to do? You seriously thought they would shock me? 805
- GARY: Yeah.
- Silence, SHERMAN smiles to himself, turns, and moves.*
- GARY: Did you see him do that? Give a tiny smile.
- LORRAINE’s head goes down, as if she’s about to faint.*
- SHERMAN: What’s the matter with you? 820
- Pause*
- LORRAINE: [Very quiet] I just feel ...
- SHERMAN: Are you ill?
- LORRAINE: [Very quiet] No ... no, I don’t think so.
- SHERMAN: [Stares at LORRAINE, trying to decide if she’s just trying to get his attention.] Are you unwell or not? 825

Pause

- LORRAINE: [Looks at him straight in the face] No, I'm not.
- SHERMAN: [Moves briskly to the piano, his tone business-like] Ian, could you come here and work this thing? [Indicating piano] 830
- IAN: [Self-mocking smile] What I've been waiting for!
- SHERMAN: [Carrying on, business-like] Lorraine, come here. [LORRAINE moves.] That's enough. [She stops.] Stay there. You're going to sing for me now. Just with the piano – so we'll be able to see the raw article. You know the words of 'Yesterday', I hope? [Without waiting for her answer, although LORRAINE nods, he recites the lyrics of the first verse in a totally matter-of-fact voice, the words crisply distinct. He pulls a microphone from side and laying it down in front of him.] If I think it would be worth it I may want one of you to use this. 835
- IAN: [At piano, his manner professional] Now you know what to do – take your time, I'm going to set a medium fast tempo – the key's 'f' – and I advise you to try. 840
- IAN plays opening bars, LORRAINE turns face away.
- SHERMAN: [Loud] What's the matter? Maybe it wasn't your voice on the tape you gave us. Maybe you can't do anything. 845
- LORRAINE: [Quiet back at him] It was my voice. [Pause] You just haven't given us any warning.
- SHERMAN: Warning! Why should I give you a warning? What the hell are you here for?
- LORRAINE stands still, silence 850
- SHERMAN: Right now.
- IAN: This speed OK?
- IAN plays and LORRAINE sings 'Yesterday', trying extremely hard, standing still, compact, a small sharp figure. Her voice is adequate. She finishes singing after the first verse; it hasn't taken long. Complete silence, everybody looking at SHERMAN, who is by window. 855
- LORRAINE: He was going a little fast for me. [Slight pause – SHERMAN doesn't look at her.] Can I start again?
- SHERMAN: No. [He turns.] Please just go back against the wall. Now you, please. [Indicating GARY] 860
- GARY stands where LORRAINE was standing. The girls stand in silence next to each other, TALLULAH is tense.
- GARY: Can I not sing that song? – it's not the sort of thing I'm into.
- IAN: [Cutting him off] No, just sing the same song, and try to relax, you sure you know the words? 865
- GARY: We'll see won't we?
- He starts to sing the song as IAN plays – a nervous but rather beautiful voice comes out, and putting everything he's got into it. SHERMAN turns and looks at him to interrupt him after a very short time.*
- SHERMAN: Can you stop moving around so much? 870
- GARY: I usually have something in my hands. [Glancing at microphone] Maybe if ...
- SHERMAN: No.

- IAN starts playing again, GARY misses his entrance.
 GARY: Wait a minute – I can't remember it. [He becomes tense.] 875
- SHERMAN repeats the opening two lines sharply, piano starts.
- GARY: Aargh! ... it's gone. Why did you interrupt ... I can't do it at the moment. [With real passion] You really shouldn't have stopped me. [He looks up.] Go on, you better say next please, like they're meant to. [Moment's silence, GARY moves] 880
- SHERMAN: I hope you're watching this, Ian.
 IAN: I don't know what's the matter with them.
 TALLULAH: I'm waiting.
 SHERMAN: Tallulah, would you stand where Gary was standing?
 IAN: Are you ready – are you really concentrating? Try to concentrate. 885
- TALLULAH opens her mouth, she sings about a line and a half of 'Yesterday'.
- SHERMAN: Stop! [She stops.] Just stop.
- TALLULAH stares at him in disbelief and resentment.
- SHERMAN: Here. Will you use this, please? 890
- TALLULAH takes the microphone. She begins 'Yesterday', but suddenly switches into a contemporary song. She has a very good, strong voice, she moves round away from the central position as her confidence grows – she puts everything she can into it, not looking at him in case he stops her, using her voice, both loud and quiet, her face determined and eager, really exerts energy. She sings for about a minute and a half, growing really loud towards the end. She stops, panting and sweating. Silence, they all look at her. 895
- SHERMAN: I said 'Yesterday'.
 TALLULAH: You didn't stop me. [She hands him the microphone.] 900
 SHERMAN: Here's a handkerchief – wipe your face. You shouldn't wear clothes like that.
 IAN: [Quietly] Well done.
 GARY: [Suddenly] It must be really late – night-time by now.
 SHERMAN: [Moves over to the window with an abrupt movement] You think so do you? 905
- He lets up the window blind, sun pours into the room, bright evening sun. They look startled and blink in it. SHERMAN is by the window.*
- SHERMAN: When I accept people they don't usually say anything, not at first, just stand there chewing. [Slight pause] When I turn people down sometimes they giggle and say 'I'm sorry, I didn't hear what you said, could you say it again', sometimes they thank you, taking so long they'll hope you'll change your mind. And sometimes they are abusive and shout and spit and kick chairs over. 910
- LORRAINE: That's very helpful. 915
 SHERMAN: [Briskly exiting] I'll see you tonight. [He exits.]
 GARY: [Looks round] That means we're staying. We've all survived, that can't be right. [Nervous] Have we all survived?

- IAN: Thank you – that was good, excellent – you did well in the end ... great ... well done. [He smiles.] Good. 920
- GARY: [Not unpleasantly] He's really pleased, look. How many of us is he going to take?
- IAN: [Looking round] Just try to relax now.
- GARY: [Not unpleasantly] Go on – run after him if you want to, we don't mind.
- IAN: I'm not in the habit of running after people. 925
- GARY: [He smiles at him.] Then we'll go together – because I'm going too! Come on. [He catches LORRAINE's arm.] You ought to come too. I'm going to have a real look round. [He exits.]
- IAN: I'll see you tonight. [He exits.]
- TALLULAH and LORRAINE alone on stage together, the evening light. 930
- TALLULAH: [Excited, smiling] I feel sore all over. And really stiff. [Lightly] I don't think he likes me, he looked sideways like that, when he saw me looking at him. I couldn't see what he was thinking.
- LORRAINE: [Quietly] You did very well. He likes you ... you're OK.
- TALLULAH: [Excited] What the hell anyway! We're here. I've missed my job tonight, you know. I only did half the shopping this morning. I always do it for the whole family on Fridays. [Loud, by the window] We should go out shouldn't we? It's so warm now! [Smiling] What place is out there! [Mimics SHERMAN] Where are we – which city? [Moment's silence] I bet he knew all the time. We should go and see London, paint the town green. Startle people in bus queues – hijack a taxi. [She looks at LORRAINE.] And all the other things people do here, should go together. 940
- LORRAINE: Yeah, we could. Probably wouldn't let us back in here again though if we were late.
- TALLULAH: Walking along with my hair like this, you and me, watching people think about picking us up, and we just walking straight past them. 945
- LORRAINE: Yeah, we could.
- TALLULAH: [Grins, excited] Some other time though.
- Music – classical music suddenly wells up, somewhere in the distance, but quite loud. TALLULAH looks around.* 950
- TALLULAH: [Loud] What the hell is that?
- Music continues, welling up from somewhere in the building.*
- LORRAINE: It must be their classical record division. [She looks towards the door, slight pause.] It's a big place.
- They look at each other across the big room.* 955
- FADE

This document consists of 3 printed pages, 1 blank page and 1 insert.

Section A

Answer all questions in this section.

Questions 1–6 are based on the extract from Talk of the City, by Stephen Poliakoff, that you have studied.

- 1 Identify a moment where a prop is mentioned in Scene 2. Give one example of how you could make effective use of that prop. [2]
- 2 You are advising the actor playing MILLY DEWS on how to pace her lines in Scene 1 (between lines 98, ‘Hello, hello, everyone’ and 104–5, ‘...for those at home to enjoy’). Give one piece of advice, and say why she should follow it. [2]
- 3 Look at lines 589 (‘At the start of any enterprise, between two comparative...’) to 633 (‘The form was good’). Suggest three ways in which the actors could show how CLIVE and ROBBIE relate to each other. [3]
- 4 You are performing ARNOS’s speech from line 711 (‘Splendid’) to line 727 (‘It’s American of course, the tune –’). Suggest two aspects of his character that you would want to bring out and, for each aspect, say how you would do it. [4]
- 5 You have been given the role of HONKER. How would you control your vocal delivery between line 299 (‘There you are! Hello, I’m Harry Wallace’) and line 346 (‘You’ll get the knack! Ready?’)? [4]
- 6 Look at lines 805 (‘So you’re a peasant really?’) to lines 853–54 (‘That must be a little difficult for you’). As the actor playing ISABEL, what impression would you want to give to the audience, and how would you do it? [5]

Questions 7–8 are based on the piece of drama that you have devised from your chosen stimulus.

At the start of your answer to Question 7, write the title of the stimulus you have used.

- 7 Choose one of the characters in your devised piece and say how that role helped to move the action along. [5]
- 8 How effective was the use of gesture in your devised piece? Give examples to support your answer. [5]

Section B

Answer one question in this section.

Questions 9–11 are based on the extract from Talk of the City, by Stephen Poliakoff, that you have studied.

- 9 You have been asked to design the sound for a performance of this extract. Discuss how your design ideas will enhance the drama. [25]
- 10 You have been cast in the role of BERNARD. How would your performance communicate his character to an audience? [25]
- 11 'Talk of the City explores the tension between the glamorous world of entertainment and the more serious issues of the time.' As a director, how would you bring out this tension in a performance of the extract? [25]

Section C

Answer one question in this section.

Questions 12–14 are based on the piece of drama that you have devised from your chosen stimulus.

At the start of your answer, write the title of the stimulus you have used.

- 12 What challenges did your devised piece present in terms of vocal projection and articulation? How effectively did you deal with these challenges? [25]
- 13 You have been invited to perform your devised piece at a local theatre and have the opportunity to design a set. Discuss the details of your set design and how it would enhance the drama. [25]
- 14 What message did you wish to communicate in your devised piece? How successful were you in achieving this? [25]

Section A

Answer all questions in this section.

Questions 1–6 are based on the extract from American Days, by Stephen Poliakoff, that you have studied.

- 1 Look at the start of Scene 2, as far as line 222 ('They're all listened to'), and identify a moment where a prop is mentioned. Give one example of how you could make effective use of that prop. [2]
- 2 You are advising the actor playing IAN on how to pace his lines in Scene 2 (between lines 691, 'You can take your time ...' and 719–720, 'You're quite lucky to be here at all'). Give one piece of advice, and say why he should follow it. [2]
- 3 Look at lines 72 ('Ian ... Ian') to 100 ('Are you still there?'). Suggest three ways in which the actors could show how SHERMAN and IAN relate to each other. [3]
- 4 Look at lines 235–236 ('You seen about Zat's single?') to 267 ('There's no need to be nervous'). Suggest two aspects of SHERMAN's character that you would want to bring out and, for each aspect, say how you would do it. [4]
- 5 You have been given the role of GARY. How would you control your vocal delivery between lines 461 ('You want to know?') and 480–481 ('... the police are all really crude ...')? [4]
- 6 Look at lines 384 ('You've got it upside down.') to 423–424 ('[Has back to them, with finality] Right')? As the actor playing LORRAINE, what impression would you want to give to the audience, and how would you do it? [5]

Questions 7–8 are based on the piece of drama that you have devised from your chosen stimulus.

At the start of your answer to Question 7, write the title of the stimulus you have used.

- 7 Describe the dramatic moment that seemed to make the most impact in your devised piece, and say why you think this was. [5]
- 8 How did you manage scene changes or transitions from one section to another in your devised piece? How effective were these scene changes or transitions? [5]

MARK SCHEME

Maximum Mark: 80

---

Published

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and candidates, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which Examiners were instructed to award marks. It does not indicate the details of the discussions that took place at an Examiners' meeting before marking began, which would have considered the acceptability of alternative answers.

Mark schemes should be read in conjunction with the question paper and the Principal Examiner Report for Teachers.

Cambridge will not enter into discussions about these mark schemes.

Cambridge is publishing the mark schemes for the May/June 2017 series for most Cambridge IGCSE®, Cambridge International A and AS Level and Cambridge Pre-U components, and some Cambridge O Level components.

Why would this advice be appropriate? JOE WEINBERG has recently joined the University to work with OPPIE [edited line into the text to provide contextual information lost by omitting Scene 3]. He does not know the finer points of who is who at OPPIE’s party and blunders in assuming that JEAN TATLOCK is married to OPPIE. 10	Scenes 1, 11, 16, 19 and 33 are labelled as a ‘lecture series’, which serve to convey information to the audience. As a director, how would you bring out the dramatic potential of any two of these lecture scenes? A significant structural device in the play is the use of ‘mini-lectures’ to the audience to convey scientific information underpinning the development of the atomic bomb. If handled badly, these lectures could also have the unintended effect of sapping the life of the production and so the challenge for the director is how to integrate them in a manner than allows them to function fully in the drama rather than slowing it down. <table border="1" data-bbox="359 683 1272 1563"> <tbody> <tr> <td data-bbox="359 683 475 987">23–25</td> <td data-bbox="475 683 1158 987"> Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of two scenes and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Comprehensive discussion of the director’s intention with sophisticated understanding as to how it can be realised in the chosen scenes.</li> <li>• Excellent ideas with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul> </td> <td data-bbox="1158 683 1272 1563" rowspan="3" style="text-align: center; vertical-align: middle;">Upper band – application</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="359 987 475 1258">20–22</td> <td data-bbox="475 987 1158 1258"> Shows a perceptive practical understanding of two scenes and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An assured discussion of the director’s intention with perceptive understanding of how it can be realised in the chosen scenes.</li> <li>• Insightful ideas with frequent and well-selected references to the extract.</li> </ul> </td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="359 1258 475 1563">17–19</td> <td data-bbox="475 1258 1158 1563"> Shows detailed practical understanding of two scenes <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An effective discussion of the director’s intention with detailed understanding of how it can be realised in the chosen scenes.</li> <li>• Well-formulated ideas although there may be scope for further refinement; consistent and appropriate references to the extract.</li> </ul> </td> </tr> </tbody> </table>	23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of two scenes and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Comprehensive discussion of the director’s intention with sophisticated understanding as to how it can be realised in the chosen scenes.</li> <li>• Excellent ideas with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application	20–22	Shows a perceptive practical understanding of two scenes and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An assured discussion of the director’s intention with perceptive understanding of how it can be realised in the chosen scenes.</li> <li>• Insightful ideas with frequent and well-selected references to the extract.</li> </ul>	17–19	Shows detailed practical understanding of two scenes <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An effective discussion of the director’s intention with detailed understanding of how it can be realised in the chosen scenes.</li> <li>• Well-formulated ideas although there may be scope for further refinement; consistent and appropriate references to the extract.</li> </ul>

MARK SCHEME

Maximum Mark: 80

---

Published

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and candidates, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which Examiners were instructed to award marks. It does not indicate the details of the discussions that took place at an Examiners' meeting before marking began, which would have considered the acceptability of alternative answers.

Mark schemes should be read in conjunction with the question paper and the Principal Examiner Report for Teachers.

Cambridge will not enter into discussions about these mark schemes.

Cambridge is publishing the mark schemes for the May/June 2017 series for most Cambridge IGCSE®, Cambridge International A and AS Level and Cambridge Pre-U components, and some Cambridge O Level components.

1	Suggest a costume for the character of KAY SUMMERSBY, and give a reason to support your suggestion. Kay Summersby's uniform is worn out. (p4) Candidates may make any appropriate suggestion as to how the wear on her uniform is evident. They are not required to know what the 'uniform of the Motor Transport Corps' looks like, but she must be wearing a military uniform. <table border="1"> <tr> <td>A suggestion of an appropriate costume for the actor playing KAY.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> <tr> <td>A reason as to why this costume would be appropriate.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> </table>	A suggestion of an appropriate costume for the actor playing KAY.	1 Mark	A reason as to why this costume would be appropriate.	1 Mark	2

2	What advice would you give to the actor playing the role of DR JAMES STAGG on how to deliver his lines between line 167 ('I thought your voice was familiar') and line 169 ('...more hair than you actually have.'). Why would this advice be appropriate? STAGG lacks social and military etiquette. Although we see a more human image later on in the extract, for the most part he appears to make little attempt to choose his words carefully, as here, blurring something out without thinking of its likely impact. <table border="1"> <tr> <td>An appropriate piece of advice.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> <tr> <td>A reason why this piece of advice would be appropriate.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> </table>	An appropriate piece of advice.	1 Mark	A reason why this piece of advice would be appropriate.	1 Mark	2

10	‘Unpredictable weather, unpredictable human relationships...’. As a director, how would you bring out the tensions in the relationships between leading characters? The title of the play is a metaphor for the unpredictability of the relationships between the characters. Although there are a few stable aspects in the play, such as the trust between IKE and KAY, the focus is predominantly on the pressured nature of the relations between them as a result of the situation in which they find themselves.		25

Maximum Mark: 80

---

Published

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and candidates, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which Examiners were instructed to award marks. It does not indicate the details of the discussions that took place at an Examiners' meeting before marking began, which would have considered the acceptability of alternative answers.

Mark schemes should be read in conjunction with the question paper and the Principal Examiner Report for Teachers.

Cambridge will not enter into discussions about these mark schemes.

Cambridge is publishing the mark schemes for the May/June 2017 series for most Cambridge IGCSE®, Cambridge International A and AS Level and Cambridge Pre-U components, and some Cambridge O Level components.

9	You are preparing to audition for the role of KOROLYOV. Which aspects of his character would you seek to bring out in your interpretation? KOROLYOV is a central character in the play: an ‘enemy of the people’, who is exiled to the Kolyma Gulag, having been denounced by his wife, XENIA, and GLUSHKO, a co-worker. Once restored to favour by KHRUSHCHEV’s intervention, KOROLYOV goes on to become the architect of the Soviet space programme. This gives him a new lease of confidence and the opportunity to lead a new team. DRAMA

0411/11/T/PRE

Paper 1

May/June 2017

PRE-RELEASE MATERIAL

To be given to candidates on receipt by the Centre.

---

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

The questions in Paper 1 will be based on the stimuli and on the extract from Tom Morton-Smith's play Oppenheimer provided in this booklet.

You may do any preparatory work that is considered appropriate. It is recommended that you perform the extract, at least informally.

You will not be permitted to take this copy of the material or any other notes or preparation into the examination. A clean copy of the pre-release material will be provided with the Question Paper.

---

This document consists of 30 printed pages and 2 blank pages.

STIMULI

Choose one of the following three stimuli and devise a piece of drama based on it. You should work in groups of between two and six performers. Your piece should last approximately 15 minutes.

In the Written examination, you will be asked questions about your piece that will cover both practical and theoretical issues.

Stimulus 1*Quotation:

'There is flattery in friendship.'

From William Shakespeare's Henry V [Act 3, Scene 7]

Stimulus 2

Grimms' Fairy Tales: Rumpelstiltskin

Stimulus 3

Photograph: Carnival, Buenos Aires, Argentina

EXTRACT

Taken from Oppenheimer, by Tom Morton-Smith

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

Tom Morton-Smith's play Oppenheimer was first performed by the Royal Shakespeare Company in England in 2015. The play traces the events surrounding one of the most significant scientific developments in the twentieth century, the atomic bomb. The man who led the project was J. Robert Oppenheimer, an American theoretical physicist, who is often referred to as 'the father of the atomic bomb'. Convinced of his own importance, Oppenheimer commanded immense respect from his research students, and also attracted the admiration of several women.

The historical span of the play covers the period from the 1930s into the Second World War. It opens at the time of the Spanish Civil War (1936–1939), which was a period when some American intellectuals held strong left-wing, even communist, beliefs.

The play is in two Acts, and the extract consists of an abridged version of Act 1. The play has been edited to reduce the length of the extract, which means that a number of scenes have been omitted.

Characters in order of appearance. Capitals indicate the name by which the character is identified as a speaker in the text.

J Robert Oppenheimer (OPPIE)	Theoretical physicist and 'father of the atomic bomb'
FRANK Oppenheimer	His younger brother

	Street Crash ... that way no longer works. Robert ... brother of mine ... big brother ... big Robert ... back me up ...	45
OPPIE:	If booze is present in your glass then your argument cannot maintain its structure. It will inevitably collapse.
FRANK:	My glass is empty.
JACKIE:	Frank, will you lay off the sermons?
FRANK:	Hey baby ... hey sweet-cheeks ... how's about I spin you round the floor?	50
LOMANITZ:	Please, Jackie ... take him dancing.
SERBER:	Burn off some of that liquor.
JACKIE:	Show me your moves, mister.
OPPIE:	Frank's not wrong ... the people's eyes are open.	55
LOMANITZ:	To be fair to the guy ... if you're going to air your leftist politics ... where better than a Communist Party fundraiser?
SERBER:	I thought we were raising money for the relief effort in Spain?
OPPIE:	It's getting dispersed ... distributed ... through the Party.
LOMANITZ:	What difference does it make? Sign me up to the union. I'm there.	60
JEAN:	[ Standing on a table, banging on a collection bucket. ] Workers of the world – unite!
	The music and dancing stops and everybody turns their attention to JEAN.	65
JEAN:	For too long the White House has ignored the rise of fascism in Europe. Our government sits impotently by while Franco marches on Barcelona. Civilians fleeing the violence are interned in camps across the French border. I ask you – do you believe, even if there are thousands of miles between you, that your brother is any less your brother? We are not asking for money to fight a war ... we are asking for money to feed children ... to pay for medicines ... to return some dignity to those who fascism has stripped bare. Compare their sacrifice with the dollar bill in your wallet and please give generously. Thank you.	70
	Cheering and applause. Some voices in the crowd start singing 'L'Internationale'. More and more people join in until eventually everyone is singing.	75

	JEAN moves around with a collection bucket in hand.	80
LOMANITZ:	Here she comes ... prepare yourself for a fleecing.
JEAN:	So, gentlemen ... dust off your wallets. [ To SERBER. ] Are you a socialist?
SERBER:	Yes, ma'am.
JEAN:	Then put your money in the pot. [ To LOMANITZ. ] Are you a socialist?	85
LOMANITZ:	Through and through.
JEAN:	In it goes. And you?

WEINBERG:	I might have only just joined Oppie's department, but I'm a fully paid-up member of the Communist Party USA.	90
LOMANITZ:	Comrade!
JEAN:	Robert! Robert, your boys ... you must be a proud Papa Bear.
OPPIE:	Give the nice lady your donation.
JEAN:	I want to see paper money. This nickel and dime crap is weighing me down.	95
WEINBERG:	I just wanted to take this chance to introduce myself properly ...
JEAN:	Oh yes?
WEINBERG:	You have such a lovely home ... and I'm a great admirer of your husband ...
JEAN:	Is that so?	100
WEINBERG:	It's a pleasure to make your acquaintance, Mrs Oppenheimer.
OPPIE:	Joe, Jean and I aren't married.
WEINBERG:	Oh, I ... I'm sorry ... I just assumed ...
OPPIE:	It's quite alright.
WEINBERG:	Oh god.	105
LOMANITZ:	This way, Joe ... there are some folks over here you've yet to embarrass yourself in front of.
JEAN:	Not very smart, your new disciple.
OPPIE:	He's a bright kid. They're all bright kids.
JEAN:	[To SERBER.] How old are you?	110
SERBER:	Thirty.
JEAN:	'Kids'.
OPPIE:	Serber doesn't count. Rossi, how old are you?
LOMANITZ:	Eighteen.
JEAN:	That proves nothing. [ Takes LOMANITZ's drink ] And you ... you should not be drinking.	115
LOMANITZ:	And how old are you?
JEAN:	I don't think I like this one.

OPPIE:	Haakon – thank you so much for coming.
HAAKON:	For the cause and for you – how could I not?	120
OPPIE:	How was France?
HAAKON:	Excellent, excellent. Tout est possible!
OPPIE:	And how is the novel coming?
HAAKON:	Slow.
OPPIE:	Send me what you have.	125
HAAKON:	I have a chapter ... a chapter and a half ...
OPPIE:	Let me read it.
HAAKON:	Thank you. If it's not too much trouble?
OPPIE:	My friend, you bring me poetry. It's no trouble at all.
LOMANITZ:	Oppie ... I wanted to return that book you lent me ...?	130
OPPIE:	On the bookcase is fine.
LOMANITZ:	I wanted to say ... I haven't quite ... I'm still taking notes from it ... wondering if I could ...?
HAAKON:	What's the book?
LOMANITZ:	Henri de Saint-Simon.	135
OPPIE:	It's fine, Rossi. Hang on to it.
LOMANITZ:	Thank you.

HAAKON: You have your students reading socialist philosophy?
 OPPIE: I have them learning about the world.

CHARLOTTE enters. She has lifted the front of her skirt in front of her so that she can carry a large amount of change. 140

SERBER: There she is ... the love of my life. Where have you been hiding yourself?
 CHARLOTTE: There were some pockets unpicked in the kitchen.
 JEAN: In the bucket it goes! 145
 JACKIE: Have any of you seen Frank?
 SERBER: He was headed to the bathroom.
 JACKIE: Oh god.
 JEAN: Lost your dancing partner? Here, let me ... [Pulls JACKIE to the middle of the floor.] 150
 JACKIE: Oh, I ... I couldn't ...
 JEAN: Don't worry your pretty little face ... I'll lead!

JEAN proceeds to dance JACKIE around the floor.

JACKIE: [Nursing a drunk FRANK.] I think it's time we left.
 CHARLOTTE: You're leaving? 155
 JACKIE: I'm going to drive him home.
 CHARLOTTE: It's been so lovely seeing you both.
 JACKIE: Give my apologies to Robert.
 FRANK: I've cleaned up the bathroom as best I can.
 CHARLOTTE: Goodbye, Jackie. 160
 JEAN: Do svidaniya, comrade!
 JACKIE: Goodbye, Jean.
 WILSON: Hey Jean ... how much did you make?
 JEAN: Enough to topple all the fascist regimes of Europe!
 WILSON: That much, huh? 165
 WEINBERG: My brain hurts.
 WILSON: You need a glass of milk ... a glass of milk with a raw egg cracked into it.
 WEINBERG: Why would you say that?
 SERBER: I don't want you vomiting in the back of my car. 170
 LOMANITZ: Any chance of a ride?
 SERBER: Grab your stuff.
 CHARLOTTE: Goodnight, Jean. Goodnight, Oppie.
 SERBER: Wilson, you coming?

LOMANITZ pulls WILSON, SERBER and WEINBERG together and leads them in song. They reprise the chorus of L'Internationale. JEAN, OPPIE and HAAKON applaud as SERBER, WEINBERG, WILSON, LOMANITZ and CHARLOTTE exit. 175

HAAKON: And then there were three. 180
 OPPIE: It's late, Haakon.

HAAKON:	It is. [To JEAN.] Can I offer you a lift?
JEAN:	No.
HAAKON:	Goodnight, then.
OPPIE:	[Ushers HAAKON to the door.] Good night.	185
HAAKON exits. JEAN and OPPIE are alone.
JEAN:	That was a night.
OPPIE:	It was.
JEAN:	What did you make of my speech?
OPPIE:	Your clarion-call to the global proletariat?	190
JEAN:	Yes. Did it stir you? Were you stirred?
OPPIE:	I was worried your shoes might scuff my tabletop.
JEAN:	[Sings.]
	Arise ye workers from your slumber,
	Arise ye prisoners of want ...	195
OPPIE:	It has been two months.
JEAN:	Has it?
OPPIE:	Two months and no word ... no telephone call ...
JEAN:	You sound like my mother.
OPPIE:	What do you expect? Open arms? Where have you been?	200
JEAN:	You are not my only friend.
OPPIE:	I am abundantly aware.
JEAN:	You need to relax. You have nothing to lose but your chains.
OPPIE:	You let yourself in as though you've been to the corner store. You take on the role of hostess. You fling my brother's wife around the floor like ... like ... I don't know what.	205
JEAN:	Jackie was having a great time.
OPPIE:	Jackie doesn't know you like I do. Jackie's a waitress.
JEAN:	Phooey.
OPPIE:	This was a night of charity.	210
JEAN:	You think I don't care for the cause? My heart bleeds for the Spanish ... my soul cracks for them ... to think of their suffering ... it kills me.
OPPIE:	I am sure that the starving and the dispossessed greatly appreciate your drunken behavior.	215
JEAN:	I may be a lush, but I am a sincere one.
OPPIE:	No doubt.
JEAN:	Look at you ... so aloof, so sanctimonious.
OPPIE:	I will throw you out.
JEAN:	You will do no such thing.	220
OPPIE:	You think I'm not capable of ...?
JEAN:	I'm sure you're well versed in the theory.
OPPIE:	[Forcibly grabs JEAN and goes to throw her out.]
JEAN:	Oppie?! Oppie! Get your hands off me!
Silence.
The tension dissolves into laughter.
JEAN:	It's cold out there.
OPPIE:	I know.
JEAN:	You want me to catch cold?
OPPIE:	Can't you leave me alone?	230
JEAN:	I would die without you.

11 – LECTURE SERIES: A LETTER TO A PRESIDENT

Albert EINSTEIN reads from a letter.

EINSTEIN: 'Mr Roosevelt ... Mr President ... Sir. I believe that it may soon become possible to set up a nuclear chain reaction in a large mass of the element uranium ... thus generating a vast amount of power. This phenomenon may lead to the construction of a new type of extremely powerful bomb. A single bomb that may very well flatten a city. I understand that, since her expansion into the Sudetenland, Germany has stopped the sale of uranium from the Czechoslovakian mines that she has taken over. Are the Nazis aware of the potential of uranium? Of course. May I suggest that this situation calls for watchfulness and, if necessary, quick action on the part of your administration. Yours truly ...'

12 – THE LINCOLN BATTALION

A garden party in Pasadena, California. 245

The sun is shining and music is playing. Partygoers are having an excellent time. HAAKON is chatting to a group of people. OPPIE stands to one side.

A band strikes up and sings a jaunty version of 'Jarama Valley', a soldier's song of the Spanish Civil War. KITTY Harrison approaches OPPIE with a drink. 250

KITTY: Here.

OPPIE: What's this?

KITTY: A drink. You look like you need one.

OPPIE: Thank you ... 255

KITTY: Kitty Harrison.

OPPIE: Thank you, Kitty.

KITTY: That's no problem at all.

OPPIE: Are you not joining in with the ...?

KITTY: Discussions ... debates? No. My husband dragged me along. This is very much his sort of thing. 260

OPPIE: It isn't yours?

KITTY: Maybe once. My first husband died pointlessly in Spain. To hear the band sing of the Lincoln Battalion ... of the brave Americans ... volunteers in the noble battle against Franco ... 265

OPPIE: I am sorry.

KITTY: All of his friends ... all of our friends ... and that includes my current husband ... all believe passionately in the Communist ideal. Europe's either becoming a bootcamp or a graveyard ... and these people think they have the answer ... but they only ever talk to each other. 270

OPPIE:	Then why are you here?
KITTY:	There's a free bar.
HAAKON:	[ Waves for OPPIE to come over. ]
OPPIE:	[ Declines. ]	275
KITTY:	A friend of yours? He wants you to go meet some people.
OPPIE:	He wants to wheel me around. I expect he's losing an argument he'd like to win.
KITTY:	You're his secret weapon?
OPPIE:	Hardly.	280
KITTY:	Please. I cannot bear false modesty – my husband is British. [ Beat. ] What is it you do?
OPPIE:	I'm a professor of physics.
KITTY:	You're a smart one then ... you're a thinker.
OPPIE:	It has been known.	285
KITTY:	If we left together now ... where would we go? If we threw off the garbage of the world ... where would you, professor of physics, take me?
OPPIE:	If we were to leave right now?
KITTY:	Right now.	290
OPPIE:	I have a ranch ... up in the mountains of New Mexico. A simple, wooden ranch. A forest glade ... horse riding ... the stars in the sky. A wood burning stove.
KITTY:	It sounds perfect.
OPPIE:	It's a bit of a drive.	295
KITTY:	If we could swing by a drugstore, I could pick up a toothbrush.
OPPIE:	You don't want to stay for the lecture?
KITTY:	Spontaneism and the dialectics of revolutionary yadda yadda yadda ... I would rather eat glass.
	RICHARD Harrison approaches.	300
RICHARD:	Darling ... the talk is about to begin ...
KITTY:	Richard, do you know ...?
OPPIE:	Robert Oppenheimer.
KITTY:	Robert, my husband Richard.
RICHARD:	We should take our seat.	305
KITTY:	Will you not join us?
OPPIE:	Please. I know what will be said.
KITTY:	Yes.
RICHARD:	Darling ... we really must ...
KITTY:	It was a pleasure to meet you, Robert.	310
OPPIE:	And you.
KITTY:	I hope that our paths cross again.
OPPIE:	We should make certain of it.
KITTY:	Yes. We should.

13 – PEAS IN A POD

	Several weeks later. The Oppenheimer residence.	315
HAAKON:	I want your advice ... suggestions ... rewrites if necessary. Will you cast your eye over ...?
OPPIE:	I'm flattered that you would ask, but you're the novelist, not I.
HAAKON:	This isn't the novel, this is ... this is a pamphlet on behalf of the League of American Writers. This is for the College Faculties	320

- Committee of the Communist Party of California. This is a letter to be sent to Soviet Russia Today ... to be published in their September issue.
- OPPIE: And what do these pamphlets say?
 HAAKON: They are petitioning against war. Now more than ever, we have to be vocal. Europe is on a precipice and political discourse in this country is lurching to the right. The politicians are stoking our hate ... stoking our fear ... priming us for violence. 325
- OPPIE: You would have me throw my weight behind the Communist Party?
 HAAKON: The Party's beliefs are your beliefs. 330
 OPPIE: My beliefs would not allow for treaties with fascists.
 HAAKON: That is not ... that is ...
 OPPIE: The Soviets have signed a treaty of Non-Aggression with the Nazis. Is Eastern Europe a carvery now? The carcass of a roasted bird ... stripped for soup ... stripped for stock. People are tearing up their Party cards ... cursing Engels ... cursing Marx ... because the German military machine has no counter ... no balance ... no equal and opposite ... if the Soviet Union does nothing. And this treaty of theirs is formalized nothing. 335
- HAAKON: I cannot claim to understand diplomacy ...
 OPPIE: And the word ... from Russia ... the purges and the show-trials we hear of ... the forced labor camps ... the famine ...
- HAAKON: We all know the rumors.
 OPPIE: And so far we have dismissed them ... 345
 HAAKON: ... as Trotskyite lies and disinformation.
 OPPIE: But in light of the Non-Aggression Pact?
 HAAKON: It's garbage! The capitalists will say anything to discredit ... to harm ... to have us fighting amongst ourselves.
- OPPIE: So it's the Trotskyites and the capitalists ...? 350
 HAAKON: Yes!
 OPPIE: ... and we are to lap this up ... hold our nose ... and believe that water is milk?
- HAAKON: You say the Soviets are the only answer to the black-boots. I believe that. I believe you. 355
- JEAN enters.*
- HAAKON: I didn't realize ...
 JEAN: So good to see you, Haakon ... but Oppie's a little busy right now ... so perhaps some other time? 360
- HAAKON: Sure ... I'll ...
 OPPIE: Leave me your pamphlets.
 HAAKON: You'll look at them?
 OPPIE: I will.
 HAAKON: Comrades?
 OPPIE: Comrades. 365
- HAAKON exits.*
- JEAN: He is such a creep.
 OPPIE: He respects my opinion.
- [Beat]
- JEAN: Fine. I am taking you out to dinner. I am treating you to oysters 370

- across the bay. I have booked us a suite at the Majestic. I have chartered a boat to sail us down the coast. I have booked us on a flight to New York. I have organized tickets to the hottest show in town. I have bought you a new gold watch and a platinum plated cigarette case, inscribed inside in beautiful flowing script: 'Jean and Oppie – two peas in a pod!' [Beat.] Come and hold my hand. Come and kiss my face. [Beat.] I heard you and Haakon talking about purges ... show-trials ... famine. 375
- OPPIE: It's an ugly habit to listen at doors.
JEAN: These stories ... these rumors ... tell me they are lies and I'll believe you. 380
- OPPIE: They are unsubstantiated.
JEAN: I have to believe that everything is better in Russia ... that it is better somewhere ... but that belief is being taken from me in strips. I want to take the world ... shake it ... and scream in its face: 'This is how we live! United! And with love! And with fair pay and the means of production in the hands of the people!' 385
- OPPIE: When was the last time you spoke to ...?
JEAN: I don't need to speak to anyone. I've read those books ... I've studied them ... I can do it myself. And I have you – the smartest man I know. Why would I speak to some dullard? I am not special – everyone is suffering. I feel as though I want to sneeze. I want to look at the sun but it is covered by clouds ... smoke from destroyed Polish towns ... and it blots out the light, but not with a darkness ... not just with a darkness ... it drains the color ... Poland is a newsreel and German tanks gray the landscape. If we cannot rely on Russia ... fascism will swarm over us like ants on a dead bird. 395
- OPPIE: I'm going to drive you home.
JEAN: Let me stay. 400
- OPPIE: That's not going to happen. That isn't how this works anymore.
JEAN: Then tell me how it works.
OPPIE: You are not my only friend.

She leaves. Long pause. OPPIE walks slowly to the telephone.

OPPIE: We met some months ago in Pasadena.
RICHARD: Oh yes?
OPPIE: At a garden party in Pasadena. 410
RICHARD: Oh right.
OPPIE: My name is Robert Oppenheimer.

- RICHARD: Oh yes.
OPPIE: I wish to talk to you about Katherine. 415

RICHARD: Katherine?
 OPPIE: Kitty.
 RICHARD: Yes, I know who Katherine is.
 OPPIE: Of course. [Beat.] She's pregnant.
 RICHARD: I see. 420
 OPPIE: Yes.
 RICHARD: I suppose you'll need me to get divorce proceedings underway.
 OPPIE: I would appreciate that.
 RICHARD: Of course. Congratulations.
 OPPIE: Thank you. 425

16 – LECTURE SERIES: CHAIN REACTION

OPPIE: There was a Maharaja who had a great passion for chess. Travelers ... as they passed through his court ... were invited to his throne room and challenged to a game. One day a visiting sage appeared at the palace gates. He was welcomed and brought before the king. 'Do you know chess?' 'I do.' 'Then let us play.' The sage smiled and politely inquired as to what his prize would be if he were to win. The Maharaja laughed and offered any reward that the old man could name. The sage modestly asked for a few grains of rice. 'How many grains?' enquired the king. 'Place one grain of rice on the first square of the chessboard ... two on the next ... four the next ... then eight ... sixteen ... and keep doubling the number of grains on every following square.' 'Very well.' And so they played. It was a hard fought game, but it did not go the way of the king. Having lost ... and being a man of his word ... the Maharaja ordered for a bag of rice to be brought to the chessboard. He placed one grain on the first square ... two on the second ... then four ... eight ... sixteen ... thirty-two ... sixty-four ... 128 ... 256 ... 512 ... 1,024 ... 2,048 ... 4,096 ... I could do this all day. By the twentieth square the Maharaja required a million grains of rice ... by the final sixty-fourth square he required more rice than had ever existed ... enough to cover all of India with a layer one meter thick. Such an amount would require paddy fields covering twice the surface of the world – oceans included. The Maharaja was astounded. It was at this point that the Lord Krishna shook off the image of the sage, revealing his true identity to the king. 'Now you are humbled before the power of exponential mathematics.' [Beat.] A neutron enters an atom ... splits it ... two further neutrons are released ... and what you have is a chain reaction. 430

17 – NUMBERS

Over a year later.

SERBER: How's Kitty? Taking to motherhood? And Peter is ...?
 OPPIE: Seven months.
 SERBER: I hadn't realized it had been so ... [Beat.] Standing? Crawling? Teething? 460
 OPPIE: Standing. Teething.
 SERBER: We should definitely ... definitely pay a visit ... Charlotte is

- aching to ... we have some things ... we bought some things for the baby ... clothes ... for Peter ...
- OPPIE: Thank you. 465
- SERBER: It's good to see you. Illinois is nothing like you're running at Berkeley ... but the department's good ... the work is good.
- OPPIE: Fission ...
- SERBER: Yes.
- OPPIE: ... as the basis for a bomb. 470
- SERBER: Yeah ... I ... since Pearl Harbor, it's all I can think about. That and signing up. But my eyesight's appalling; I wouldn't make it past the physical. Probably wouldn't make minimum height. And now the Russians have joined the war and I'm ... I'm cheering inside ... like a full-blown warmonger. 475
- OPPIE: How much uranium do you think we'd need?
- SERBER: The minimum amount ...?
- OPPIE: ... for a chain reaction. Yes. How much?
- SERBER: Well ... I don't know ... we've talked ... in my department ... we've talked ... 480
- OPPIE: Can you give me numbers?
- SERBER: The amounts people are throwing around range from six hundred grams to a ton.
- OPPIE: A ton of uranium-235?
- SERBER: It would have to be. 485
- OPPIE: It would take time to separate ... to refine ...
- SERBER: There would have to be a large-scale industrial ...
- OPPIE: It would be easier if I thought it was beyond me. I know it is not. I see it so clearly ... in my mind I can picture a uranium device ... I can picture its components ... sometimes it has stars and stripes stenciled to its casing ... but more often than not it has a swastika. I see it ... it sails down the Hudson river ... or it hangs in the air above the Upper West Side ... I can see it ... and there I am ... a man of inaction ... knowing that I could have built it first ... perhaps quicker ... even by just a day ... [Beat.] So when I ask 'can you give me numbers', what I want to know is: can you give me numbers? 490
- SERBER: I don't have any for you right now, but I'm certain I can get them.
- OPPIE: Do it.
- SERBER: Sure. 500
- OPPIE: There needs to be gathering ... of minds ... there needs to be discussion. I'm bringing together people from Cornell and Chicago ... from Princeton ... Harvard. I need you with me in Berkeley.
- SERBER: Sure ... sure ... 505
- OPPIE: We need to be solid on the theory and we need to consider the practical implications on design. What sort of fissionable material ... what sort of blast radius ... how much energy will be released.
- SERBER: Of course ... of course ... my god ... 510
- OPPIE: Bob ...?
- SERBER: Yes, Oppie?
- OPPIE: The uranium bomb is entirely possible, therefore it is entirely inevitable. It's not a question of 'should'; it's a question of 'when' ... of 'where' ... of 'by whom'. 515

18 – THE FIRST FEASIBILITY DISCUSSIONS

Berkeley campus.

The room is filled with a select group of physicists, including OPPIE, Edward TELLER and Hans BETHE. SERBER, WILSON and WEINBERG are preparing to give a presentation. LOMANITZ enters – he is late.

LOMANITZ: Sorry ... I'm sorry ... I got caught up at a meeting. Gee ... it's like a Nobel longlist in here.

WILSON: Try not to say anything too stupid.

WEINBERG: I haven't pressed my shirt.

LOMANITZ: What are we talking about? Halifax?

SERBER: Halifax.

525

The lights darken.

WEINBERG operates a projector.

Black and white images of the devastated city of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

530

WEINBERG: This is Halifax, Nova Scotia.

WILSON: On December 6th 1917, a French cargo-ship, fully stocked with wartime explosives, collided with a Norwegian vessel inside Halifax harbor.

LOMANITZ: The resulting explosion caused the immediate death of two-thousand people. Nine thousand sustained injury.

535

SERBER: All structures within the one and a half mile blast radius were leveled.

WILSON: The subsequent pressure wave bent iron railings ... snapped trees ... dispersed debris ... up to as much as ten miles.

540

WEINBERG: The ship's anchor ... or a portion of it ... weighing in excess of 1,100 pounds ... was carried a distance of 2.3 miles.

SERBER: One of the gun barrels landed in Dartmouth, a town some 3.4 miles to the east.

LOMANITZ: The force of the blast is estimated to be somewhere in the region of 2.9 kilotons.

545

SERBER: That's the equivalent effect of 2,900 tons of TNT.

OPPIE: Thank you.

The lights are switched back on.

OPPIE: This is the level of destruction that we are hoping to achieve. We are familiar with the physicists the Nazis have at their disposal. We have studied with them ... corresponded with them ... worked with them ... lived with them. Heisenberg. If we are capable of building this bomb, then so are they. Tenfold. And we are behind. The British government have been making great strides and, in the spirit of our mutual struggle, they have agreed to share with us what progress they have made. It's not much, but it's as good a starting point as any. I'll be making those documents available to you.

550

555

BETHE: This British report ... what areas does it concern itself with?

560

OPPIE: Hello, Hans. For those of you who don't know, this is Hans Bethe, who is joining us from Cornell.

- BETHE: Hello.
- OPPIE: As for the report, it mostly deals with the cost estimates and technical specifications for a large uranium enrichment plant ... it also contains some ideas on assembly and some work on efficiency. I would also suggest that you speak with Bob Serber who has been diligently working on critical mass calculations. What I propose we do over these next few weeks is pool our ideas. Collaborate. Bring everything you have ... any epiphanies ... any eureka moment ... however outlandish ... I want to see it. We'll reconvene tomorrow. 565
- The gathered scientists break off into groups. Everyone is chatting. Everyone is excited.*
- WILSON: Professor Bethe? 575
- BETHE: Yes?
- WILSON: I have to say it is an honor to meet you ... and to have the chance to possibly work beside you ... gee ... I mean ...
- BETHE: That is very kind of you to say.
- WILSON: Your work on the subject of nuclear reactions ... cross-sections and atomic nuclei ... I mean it's ... wow ... just wow. 580
- BETHE: It is always nice to meet a fan.
- WILSON: I have a copy of Reviews of Modern Physics ... with your articles ... would you mind signing ...?
- BETHE: Of course. 585
- WEINBERG: Actually, we all have copies ... could you ...?
- BETHE: Of course ... of course ...
- TELLER: Oppie?
- OPPIE: Edward Teller! I am so pleased you could make it.
- TELLER: Hans and I shared a train carriage from Chicago. I hear it is you I have to thank for the change in my status. 590
- OPPIE: Ah, yes.
- TELLER: They denied my clearance for classified work simply because I am Hungarian. As though all Hungarians must support that fascist of an admiral who conspires with Nazis. This study group of yours ... it is a good start. I am pleased that finally something substantial is being done. 595

19 – LECTURE SERIES:
THE MAN WHO BUILT THE PENTAGON

- GROVES: September 17th 1942. I am called to the office of my superior. I know these corridors ... I built these corridors ... Colonel Leslie R Groves of the Army Corps of Engineers ... the man who built the Pentagon. My blood is in this mortar. These hinges are oiled with my sweat. 'You are familiar with the S-1 Committee?' 'I am, sir.' 'What do you know of the S-1 Committee?' 'The S-1 Committee is in charge of investigating the properties and manufacture of uranium, sir.' 'Do you understand the purpose of the S-1 Committee?' 'Not fully, sir. I can't say that I do, sir.' 'It is weapons development.' 'I see, sir. I was hoping for a combat assignment, sir. Overseas, sir.' 'That is not going to happen.' 'I see, sir.' 'The development of this new uranium bomb is to become a military operation.' 'Yes, sir.' 'It is to be instilled with a sense of urgency.' 'Yes, sir.' 'If you do this job right, it will win 600
- 605

us the war.' '...' 'Groves?' 'Yes, sir.' 'I said it will win us the war.' 'We have bombs already, sir.' 'The decision has been made. You will be promoted to the rank of general.' 'Thank you, sir. I was hoping for a combat assignment, sir.' 'Well, you have this instead.' 'Sir, yes, sir.' 'Congratulations, General.' 'Sir, thank you, sir.' I am handed some files. I am appointed a personal aide. If I am ordered to build a wall, I buy bricks. If I am ordered to shoot a man, I count my bullets. If I am ordered to throw myself in front of a train, I consult a timetable. Where to begin ... where to begin ...?

20 – THE OPPENHEIMER HOUSEHOLD

OPPIE in one corner. KITTY in the other, reading. CHARLOTTE holds baby PETER in her arms. SERBER has a ukulele. They sing PETER a lullaby.

CHARLOTTE: Say goodnight to everyone, Peter. Say goodnight to Daddy. 625
 OPPIE: Goodnight, my darling.
 CHARLOTTE: Say goodnight to Mummy. I'll put him to bed. Bob ...?
 SERBER: Sure.

SERBER and CHARLOTTE exit.

KITTY: I smell of sick. I smell of sick, off-milk and baby. 630
 OPPIE: You smell of perfume.
 KITTY: It masks the odor of baby. [Beat.] He has sharp little fingernails and he claws at me ... he's constantly sucking ... sucking and biting and scratching and ...
 OPPIE: Kitty ... 635
 KITTY: I'm chapped. I'm cracked. I'm broken and sore. He doesn't sleep.
 OPPIE: He's sleeping right now.
 KITTY: He doesn't sleep for me. I am falling apart!
 OPPIE: You have Charlotte. You have Bob. And what am I paying the nanny for? Four days a week she comes. 640
 KITTY: I cannot cope.

21 – THE OFFICES AT BERKELEY

The offices at Berkeley.

GROVES and NICHOLS stand before OPPIE and SERBER.

GROVES: The eagle on this man's collar ... do you know what it signifies? 645
 It signifies that this man has risen to the rank of colonel. Quite the achievement. A colonel in the United States army can command up to two thousand men. [Removes his jacket.] My uniform, as you can see, is adorned with three of these here silver stars. [Hands jacket to NICHOLS.] See that this is dry-cleaned. 650
 NICHOLS: Sir. Yes, sir. [Exits.]
 GROVES: Three silver stars, Professor. I am a commander of men. The rank of general puts the fear of a righteous god into the heart of the average serviceman. But I understand that rank alone is not enough to impress you ... not enough to earn your respect. So 655

- let me tell you this ... I am an engineer. I have a degree from the University of Washington in Seattle and a second degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. I graduated fourth in my class at West Point. I am an educated man. I may not be your equal, but I am damn close. And I have these stars. 660
- OPPIE: Bob, would you fetch the General and I some coffee?
SERBER: Sure thing. [Exits.]
OPPIE: I am also a commander of men.
GROVES: Washington has decided to bring all of the governmental committees ... all of the civilian contracted projects ... all of the work on this new form of bomb ... under one banner. A military banner. My banner. 665
- OPPIE: I see.
GROVES: Are you a Communist? It is a yes or no question.
OPPIE: It really isn't. 'Are you a card-carrying member of the Communist Party?' is a yes or no question. 670
- GROVES: Are you?
OPPIE: No.
GROVES: Have you ever been?
OPPIE: No. 675
GROVES: Would you consider yourself a Marxist?
OPPIE: That is a ridiculous question.
GROVES: How so?
OPPIE: I understand gravity. I understand the laws of motion. I understand optics. Do I go around calling myself a Newtonian? 680
- GROVES: This symposium of yours ... this gathering of minds ... it shows initiative. It is proving ... fruitful?
OPPIE: I would say so, yes.
GROVES: It smacks of ambition. I do not disapprove. May I offer you a word of advice, Professor Oppenheimer? 685
- OPPIE: Please.
GROVES: You are, it seems to me, a uniquely useful individual. Your ambition is great and your capability is great. That one does not outstrip the other is something of a marvel. So listen to me as I say: your affiliations and your associations with the Communist Party ... with members of the Communist Party ... [Shakes head.] If you wish to progress, then there must be distance. Do you wish to progress? 690
- OPPIE: Yes.
GROVES: The US military is now the proud owner of 1,200 tons of as yet unrefined uranium ore. I placed that order on my first day. On the second day I purchased a refinement facility in Oak Ridge, Tennessee. That this had not already been done tells me that no one involved in this project is thinking practically. So think practically. If you had resource ... if you were 'the guy' ... what would be our next move? 700

22 – THE OPPENHEIMER BROTHERS

FRANK and JACKIE's house.

- OPPIE: Is he here?
JACKIE: [Calls off.] Frank? [Beat.] He won't be long.

Silence.

705

JACKIE: Hello, Jackie. Good to see you, Jackie. How have you been?
Well, I trust. You're looking well. How's work, Jackie? Have you done something new to your hair?

OPPIE: When did you last meet with your Communist Party unit? 710

JACKIE: Excuse me?

FRANK: [Enters.] Hello, Robert. It's good to see you.

OPPIE: When did you last meet with your street unit?

FRANK: Oh god ... I can't remember ... when was it? Weeks ago ...

OPPIE: When was the last time you held a meeting here? 715

FRANK: Month before last. Why?

OPPIE: You're not to do it again. You're not to host meetings ... you're not to attend. Do you still have your Party card?

FRANK: I guess.

OPPIE: Let me see it. Let me see you tear it up.

FRANK: Now just one second ... 720

OPPIE: Where is it?

JACKIE: In the desk.

OPPIE: Fetch it.

FRANK: What is all this ... ?

OPPIE: Fetch it. 725

JACKIE: No.

OPPIE: You're to destroy your Party cards ... you're to sever all Party
contact ... you're to avoid any and all known Party members ...

JACKIE: They're our friends.

OPPIE: ... you're to resign from the teacher's union. 730

FRANK: Okay ... no.

OPPIE: You need to put away your childish idealism.

FRANK: The Communists are the only answer to fascism ... in Europe
... here ... in Spain ...

OPPIE: To hell with Spain! To hell with the Spanish Cause! I am sick of 735
it! How many martinis ... how many buckets filled with nickels ...
how many ineffective, chattering parties ... how many pamphlets
... how many lectures ... and still the fascists take Spain!

FRANK: The labor movement ... workers rights ... segregation ... tell me
which other party – ? 740

OPPIE: This is not the time for those things.

FRANK: Not the time? Well ... either way ... whatever your thoughts ... whatever your protests ...

OPPIE: Your career ...

FRANK: Let us not kid ourselves that this is in any way about my career. 745

OPPIE: You're a child.

FRANK: No. I am not. And these are my decisions to make.

OPPIE: You have a tendency to make very poor decisions.

FRANK: I'm sorry?

JACKIE: I think it's time you left. 750

FRANK: I'm sorry ... because I married a waitress?

OPPIE: You have to ... you have to ... distance yourself from ...

FRANK: What I should've done ... what I should've done was to find myself a nice, wholesome girl ... someone of a comparable status perhaps ... someone of breeding ... and sleep with her 755 behind her husband's back until she falls pregnant.

23 – THE OPPENHEIMER RESIDENCE

The Oppenheimer residence.

OPPIE, KITTY, SERBER, CHARLOTTE, BETHE, HAAKON
and TELLER are in little groups talking and drinking.

KITTY opens a bottle of champagne and goes to pour some for
BETHE. 760

BETHE: Thank you, no.
KITTY: You don't like champagne, Hans?
BETHE: I was raised on the French-German border. I like champagne
just fine. This – not so much. 765

HAAKON: You're a professor?
TELLER: Indeed.
HAAKON: As am I.
TELLER: I've not heard of you.
HAAKON: Of the Romance Languages. 770
TELLER: Ah.
HAAKON: Do I detect a German accent? I own an 1867 edition of *Das
Kapital*.
TELLER: I am Hungarian. And I have not read Marx.
HAAKON: Oh? 775
TELLER: People might mistake me for a Democrat.
SERBER: What are we celebrating?
KITTY: Can we tell them about it?
SERBER: Tell us about what?
KITTY: They'll know soon enough. 780
OPPIE: I'm not supposed to talk about it.
KITTY: Robert had a visit from the military.
TELLER: Is this about the bomb?
OPPIE: It's all very hush-hush.
BETHE: We are all inside the circle here. 785
SERBER: Well, with the exception of Haakon perhaps.
HAAKON: Do you want me to leave?
OPPIE: No ... I ...
HAAKON: I'm not in your department ... I'm not even the spouse of someone in your department ... it's fine. I need a trip to the little linguist's room anyway, so ... [Exits.] 790

BETHE: Oppie?
OPPIE: You must understand, the details are not yet finalized ...
CHARLOTTE: Tell us!
OPPIE: A laboratory is going to be built. A laboratory dedicated to the building of this bomb ... probably somewhere quite remote. It will be a continuation of our discussions and work at Berkeley, but now ... well ... as a legitimate and sanctioned part of the war effort. 795

TELLER: A central laboratory? 800
KITTY: A national laboratory.
OPPIE: And I will be its director.

24 – LECTURE SERIES – OMITTED

25 – OPPIE AND HAAKON

OPPIE and HAAKON

HAAKON:	Oppie, may I have a word? [ Pause. ] I will never suffer nor ever comprehend the suffering felt by those at the heart of this war ... but don't deny my empathy. The Russians ... Stalingrad ... they're fighting with their teeth and their hands ... with pitchforks and kitchen knives. [ Beat. ] It is clear to everyone on campus that the physics department is involved in ... that you are working on ... something very important. I have a proposition for you ... I think that you will want to hear it. I saw a friend of mine recently ... a man ... you are known to him ... he shares our sympathies. He has a means of getting technical information to the Soviets.	805
OPPIE:	[ Silence. ]	815
HAAKON:	Do you not believe that the Russians have a right to know? Or, indeed, that they may be able to help? I am no physicist ... I have no useful skills here ... but I can do this. So let me do this.

26 – THE BOY WITH A BEAR ON A LEASH – OMITTED

27 – IGNITION

TELLER:	We were discussing Hans' work on the cycle of nuclear fusion in stars ...	820
BETHE:	... stars generate power by fusing elements together ...
TELLER:	... in the case of our sun it fuses the lightest element to make the second lightest ...
BETHE:	... hydrogen plus hydrogen equals helium ...
TELLER:	... it is with the sun's own gravity ... the weight of itself ... the incredible pressure at its core that gives rise to fusion ...	825
BETHE:	... those particles have no place to go and yet are travelling at astonishing speed ... slamming into each other like blind and angry dodgem cars ...
TELLER:	... and it occurred to me that ... in the split second of a uranium device's detonation ... an equivalent heat or pressure may exist ... equal to that found at the core of our sun ... and if you were to surround that fission device with enough fuel ... deuterium – heavy hydrogen ... then maybe ... maybe it would cause a fusion reaction.	830
BETHE:	We could make a star on the surface of the earth.
TELLER:	Why stop at splitting the atom ... why not forge new ones?
OPPIE:	Not just a nuclear device ... but thermonuclear . The energy released would be ...	835
BETHE:	... colossal.	840
TELLER:	A super bomb.
BETHE:	A much higher yield.
TELLER:	Much higher. Thousands of times more powerful ... than a mere fission device ... a mere uranium bomb.
OPPIE:	A hydrogen bomb.	845

TELLER: A blast radius of not just one or two miles ... but ... what? Thirty-five? Forty? Fifty?
 BETHE: A star on the surface of the world.
 OPPIE: A fundamental element of your hydrogen device is a uranium device. 850
 TELLER: Yes.
 OPPIE: So we build that first.
 BETHE: With a uranium device ... even with just a uranium device ... the temperatures and the pressures we are talking about ... what if we were to set fire to the earth's atmosphere? 855

28 – PEEL THAT POTATO – OMITTED

29 – AN ARMY HOSPITAL IN SAN FRANCISCO

OPPIE is being given a physical exam by DOCTORS.

He is made to stand on scales, X-rays of his chest are held up to the light. Blood pressure is taken. A stethoscope is placed against his chest.

GROVES stands nearby. 860

GROVES: So, doc ... does he pass?
 DOCTOR: He's underweight. Eleven pounds short of the minimum required for active duty ... twenty-seven pounds under what would be ideal for a man of his age and height. He's had a chronic cough for some years ... 865
 GROVES: 'Some years'?
 OPPIE: Since 1927.
 DOCTOR: ... and x-rays of his lungs confirm a mild case of tuberculosis. The patient also suffers from lumbosacral strain ... lower back spasms ... and experiences moderate shooting pains down his left leg every two weeks or so. My considered opinion is that this man is not army material and that the physical defects I have mentioned render him permanently incapacitated for active service. 870
 GROVES: You understand all that? 875
 OPPIE: I do.
 GROVES: [Passes OPPIE some forms.] Sign here to acknowledge these pre-existing medical conditions and to request extended active duty.
 OPPIE: [Signs.] Can I ask ... what rank will I receive? 880
 GROVES: You will be commissioned at the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. Stand up, soldier. Welcome to the United States Military.

30 – OPPIE’S OFFICE AT BERKELEY

Alone with a neatly folded pile of clothes – his US Army uniform.

OPPIE gets dressed.

KITTY enters.

885

KITTY: Hello, soldier.
OPPIE: Ma’am.
KITTY: Hello, officer.

They kiss.

KITTY: Everything is packed. Peter is staying behind with Charlotte until they move to Los Alamos next week. I like your uniform. 890
OPPIE: Thank you.
KITTY: Can you order a man to kill?

SERBER enters, also in US Army uniform, that of the rank of sergeant.

895

SERBER: Lieutenant Colonel Oppenheimer, sir ... Sergeant Robert Serber, reporting for duty, sir!
KITTY: Look at you, Bob!
SERBER: Very natty, don’t you think? Very authoritative.
OPPIE: Atten-SHUN! Chin up, chest out, shoulders back, stomach in. Eyes front, soldier! 900
SERBER: Hey now, that’s pretty good.
OPPIE: Drop to the floor and give me twenty. That’s an order soldier!
SERBER: Sir! Yes, sir! [Starts doing press-ups.]
KITTY: Frank called the house. 905
OPPIE: When was this?
KITTY: This morning. I told him not to call again.
OPPIE: Was there a click on the line? Did you hear the click?
KITTY: I don’t know.
OPPIE: How is he? 910
KITTY: I told him not to call again and I hung up.
OPPIE: That was the right thing for you to do.
SERBER: No more ... no more ... I have a body designed for mathematics ... no more ...
KITTY: I’ll leave you boys to play dress-up. Look at you two ... glasses like milk bottle bottoms ... limbs like bamboo ... all dressed up to go to war. [Exits.] 915
SERBER: You heard about Joe Weinberg?
OPPIE: What about Joe Weinberg?
SERBER: He’s been drafted to peel potatoes in Alaska because they think he’s a Communist sympathizer. 920
OPPIE: Yes, I had heard that.
SERBER: Well?
OPPIE: We’re all in the military now.
SERBER: He should be at Los Alamos with the rest of us. 925
OPPIE: What would you have me do?
SERBER: Gee, I don’t know, Oppie ... get him reassigned. You have the stripes now – bark some orders.
OPPIE: And why would I do that?

	BETHE enters.	930
SERBER:	You're out of uniform soldier.
BETHE:	It's not possible ... under these conditions ... to do as you ask. We will never find the manpower ... the grad students ... the PhDs. How am I to recruit them to a project I am not authorized to discuss?	935
OPPIE:	Any scientist worth our time would surely have guessed what it is we are asking of them ...
BETHE:	It is unpalatable to me to coerce men onto this bomb project without the full facts ...
SERBER:	We are not to call it the bomb project.	940
BETHE:	Excuse me?
SERBER:	It is the Manhattan Engineer District ... for reasons of security.
BETHE:	This world of codewords and obfuscation ... it is not my world.
OPPIE:	I'm sorry, but it is.	945
BETHE:	I am already within the circle?
OPPIE:	You are.
BETHE:	These are academics and free-thinkers ... they are perhaps not so eager to be press-ganged into the military.
OPPIE:	Then appeal to their patriotism.	950
BETHE:	Take to the seas when the men start wearing flags ... flags and thick-soled boots. I will build the bomb if I must. But I will do it as me ... as Hans Bethe ... not as ... not as a buzz-cut ... as a broken and rebuilt man. I would feel more comfortable if you were to build it as J Robert Oppenheimer ... as a professor, not as a colonel.	955
OPPIE:	Fascism is tearing Europe apart and you want to argue about the symbolism of our shirts and our pants?
BETHE:	I know of fascism! As a German ... as a man with family still in Germany ... perhaps my understanding is just that little touch sharper. It must be built here ... I cannot fathom the other. But I will not wear a uniform. I suspect I will not be alone.	960
SERBER:	You are a US citizen, Hans.
BETHE:	You think I would wear a German one? The Cult of the Soldier is not for us all ... not even in wartime.	965
OPPIE:	I will talk to the General.
BETHE:	Thank you. And my recruitment drive?
OPPIE:	There is no room for movement on matters of security.
BETHE:	Fine. [ Beat. ] I am sorry to hear of your Joe Weinberg.
OPPIE:	It is what it is.	970
BETHE:	To lose good men when we are trying to recruit ...
OPPIE:	Is that all?
BETHE:	No uniforms?
OPPIE:	No uniforms.
BETHE:	Thank you. Oh, and ... [ Hands OPPIE a folded piece of paper. ]	975
OPPIE:	What is this?
BETHE:	The proof that we are in no danger of igniting the atmosphere. A near zero possibility. Perhaps it slipped your mind between salutes. [ Exits. ]
	Silence.	980
OPPIE:	Get out of that uniform – you look ridiculous.
SERBER:	At least I'll have something to wear for Halloween.

OPPIE:	I need you on a train to Santa Fe in the morning. I need you in Los Alamos as soon as possible.
SERBER:	Charlotte and I ... the plan was to move next week ... we were to look after Peter ...	985
OPPIE:	Then Charlotte stays behind. It's not an inobvious solution.
SERBER:	I can't ask that of her ... you can't ask ... of us.
OPPIE:	You need to take your share of responsibility for what we are doing.	990
SERBER:	Yes, Oppie. [ Exits. ]
	LOMANITZ enters.
LOMANITZ:	Everyone is packing for Los Alamos. Apart from me. I am supposed to remain at Berkeley.
OPPIE:	Yes.	995
LOMANITZ:	Could you explain to me the reasoning behind ...?
OPPIE:	Rossi ... I have a great many things to ...
LOMANITZ:	You want me to join the Rad Lab ... under Professor Lawrence?
OPPIE:	Yes.
LOMANITZ:	The man is a Republican nightmare ... the merest hint that the boys in the lab might form a union and he –	1000
OPPIE:	Giovanni Rossi Lomanitz – that you would even take the idea of a union to Earnest Lawrence ... it boggles the mind.
LOMANITZ:	The radiation laboratory is a workplace ... the boys who work there are workers. The fillings in their teeth have become radioactive. Hold a Geiger counter to their mouths ... the damn thing sings like fat in a pan. You expect me to work in that kind of environment without representation from a union?	1005
OPPIE:	I expect you to acknowledge that there are sacrifices to be made during wartime.	1010
LOMANITZ:	I should not have to throw myself on a spear to prove that I am willing to die for my country.
OPPIE:	You need to be less vocal ... in your politics ... in your dealings with people ...
LOMANITZ:	Are you punishing me? Are you ... for what? Because of the books I have read ... the convictions that I hold? The books you lent me ... the convictions that you instilled. Your lectures ... those first few weeks of lectures ... those discussions ... drinking in the small hours ... science and art ... Niels Bohr and Roosevelt ... social reform ... Engels ... Hindu scripture ... and I find myself in my spare time trying on porkpie hats ... training myself to enjoy pipe tobacco ... reading Marcel Proust. I'm from Oklahoma!	1015 1020
OPPIE:	The Berkeley work will be good work ... essential work ... isotopes ... electromagnetic separation. Professor Lawrence is a good man. You will learn a great deal.	1025
LOMANITZ:	I guess I should be grateful I'm not being shipped off to Alaska to peel potatoes!

33 – LECTURE SERIES: TAMPER MATERIALS

SERBER:	How to Build an Atom Bomb 101.
WILSON:	Get yourself two lumps of uranium ... smack 'em together. Boom.	1030
SERBER:	Here endeth the lesson. Any questions?
WILSON:	'Then why is it so difficult?' I hear you ask.
SERBER:	Ah, well now you're moving out of the theoretical world ... now you want to be practical.	1035
WILSON:	Raw uranium ore won't cut it ... it needs to be enriched ... and the infrastructure you'd need to do that would have to be massive.
SERBER:	I mean, there's a handful of countries with the right level of industry and infrastructure.	1040
WILSON:	And uranium is rare ... and the refined stuff you'd need from it ... the isotope uranium-235 ... makes up maybe 0.72% of the naturally occurring stuff.
SERBER:	There's also plutonium ... but that's a bit too new.
WILSON:	We just don't know that much about it yet.	1045
SERBER:	Well, shoot ... you want to do this quickly, right?
WILSON:	You're in kind of a rush?
SERBER:	Then you're going to need several processing plants ...
WILSON:	... you're going to need about 10% of the national grid of the US to run these plants ...	1050
SERBER:	... and still you'll be lucky if you get a couple of hundred pounds of uranium in a year.
WILSON:	'Well, how much do you need?'
SERBER:	We don't know ...
WILSON:	and this stuff is far too precious for Trial and Error testing...	1055
SERBER:	Getting it together and keeping it together – that's the trick.
WILSON:	You bring it together too slowly ... you bring not enough of it together ...
SERBER:	... and hey, you'll kill everyone in the room ... well done.
WILSON:	But it won't be a bomb.	1060
SERBER:	A billion dollar suicide and the Nazis won't give a damn.
WILSON:	So we've got make the most of every last ounce.
SERBER:	Which brings us to ... tamper materials.
WILSON:	You know on a flashlight how you've got a reflective surface behind the bulb? It's the same deal, only we're putting two flashlights together – face on. No escape.	1065
SERBER:	This diagram represents a mass of uranium that is currently undergoing fission ... but it's wasteful. We are losing quite a lot of neutrons through the surface of the mass.
WILSON:	But surround it with a tamper material ... a material that will reflect those neutrons back into the uranium ...	1070
SERBER:	... a jacket of something reflective and non-reactive ... tungsten, say ...
WILSON:	... and those neutrons attempting to escape can't get out.
SERBER:	They're corralled. They're a pack of wolves in a broom cupboard and they'll tear themselves apart.	1075

35 – MILITARY BASE AT LOS ALAMOS

A MILITARY POLICEMAN enters.

POLICEMAN: Excuse me, Professor Oppenheimer ...?
 OPPIE: Yes?
 POLICEMAN: Professor Teller is here to see you. 1080
 OPPIE: Of course.
 POLICEMAN: Professor Teller isn't wearing his white badge.
 OPPIE: Let him in, for god's sake.
 POLICEMAN: Yes, sir. [exits]
 TELLER: There you have it! Right there! Unbelievable. One cannot visit 1085
 the bathroom without the correct certificate ... the appropriate
 permission slip.
 OPPIE: Hello, Edward.
 TELLER: I am tired. I sleep in a dormitory with ten other men. I shower in a communal shower. When my wife and son join me we will 1090 be given a house. It will not be such as yours ... but as long as there is space for my piano ... [Beat.] My mail is being censored.
 My wife complains in her letters that my correspondence is mostly thick black lines. Any names – redacted. Any mention of the building situation – redacted. Any complaint about my lack 1095 of privacy – redacted.
 OPPIE: You think they would allow them to pass unchecked?
 TELLER: Two more weeks and they will come. Until then there is the work. I am not tired when I work. I am not tired when the work is 1100 interesting.
 OPPIE: No, Edward.
 TELLER: No?
 OPPIE: No, you cannot work on the super bomb.
 TELLER: But a hydrogen bomb! The processes of the stars themselves!
 This is what is fascinating to me ... not lumps of rock ... not 1105
 lumps of degrading rock ...
 OPPIE: There is not the resource to follow up on the super ... not at the moment ...
 TELLER: The numbers you have me working on ... the calculations ...
 any member of Hans' theoretical division ... 1110
 OPPIE: But they would not do it as fast or with as few mistakes as you.
 You will do the work that you are assigned.
 TELLER: No, I will not.
 OPPIE: No?
 TELLER: It is beneath me. 1115
 OPPIE: Beneath you?
 TELLER: It is a nonsense to have someone of my ability scratching out sums that would barely challenge a college freshman.
 OPPIE: Take your offence and your boredom and your ego – I have no
 use for them. 1120
 TELLER: There is opportunity here. The things we are learning about atomic structure – a decade's worth of peacetime research in a handful of years! We have funding ... we have resource ... and you would have me hold back?
 OPPIE: Our enemies are upon us! We have within our reach a blunt 1125 instrument and we will grab it and we will use it and we will win.

TELLER: There is no beauty or elegance in these equations.
 OPPIE: Thousands of people – at Los Alamos, Oak Ridge, Berkeley, Chicago and across the entire country – are working toward a single purpose ... and, contrary to what you may believe, that purpose is to end this war ... not to enable fantasies of a hydrogen bomb. 1130

TELLER: I have not fantasized this science ... it is reality.
 OPPIE: It is not! It is not a reality unless I say it is. It cannot exist unless I say it exists. And I say that there is no resource for a hydrogen bomb ... not here ... not now. Oh ... oh ... but excuse me ... I have forgotten myself ... you are the great Edward Teller ... how remiss of me. Of course you may work on your pet project, Edward. The world will simply all have to tolerate a little more war ... a little more slaughter. How shortsighted of me. You may have an hour. 1135

TELLER: I'm sorry?
 OPPIE: I will give you one hour ... every week ... to come and discuss with me your ideas on the super. That is what you want, isn't it? 1140

TELLER: An hour is no ...
 OPPIE: Edward ... it is all that I will give.
 TELLER: And I am supposed to be grateful?
 OPPIE: It is an hour or it is nothing. 1145

36 – KITTY AND OPPIE'S LOS ALAMOS HOME

KITTY and OPPIE's Los Alamos home.

Nighttime. A party in the distance. 1150

KITTY and OPPIE. KITTY is visibly pregnant.

MILITARY POLICEMAN enters from the bedroom.

POLICEMAN: Peter's tucked up snug as a bug in there, Mrs Oppenheimer.
 KITTY: Thank you.
 POLICEMAN: Just yell out the window if you need anything, sir. 1155

The MILITARY POLICEMAN exits.

OPPIE: Our security detail double as babysitters now?
 KITTY: I may as well make use of them.
 OPPIE: Groves is unhappy that all the women are pregnant ... and that my wife is leading by example. 1160

KITTY: You build a new town in the mountains ... kids running in the street ... tricycles ... jumpropes ... you provide free government funded healthcare for the men and their families ... and you're surprised by the birthrate? It's a boomtown, Robert. You've built a boomtown. 1165

OPPIE: You reek of booze.
 KITTY: It's the chemists' punch. They mix in the alcohol from the lab. Two hundred percent proof. I can still feel it in my throat ... feel it in my blood. Do you begrudge me a social life?

OPPIE: No. 1170
 KITTY: What else is there for me to do?
 OPPIE: No ... go ahead ... besides, we may need some new friends.

KITTY: What does that mean?
 OPPIE: Don't expect a dinner invitation from Edward and Mici Teller.
 KITTY: I can live without the Tellers. I can live without his appalling records ... his awful Beethoven. 1175

OPPIE: He smarts because I made Hans a division leader and not him.
 KITTY: He smarts because Groves gave you Los Alamos ... but he could not build this bomb. He could not rally the men and guide the work. Can you imagine Edward Teller as the Mayor of Boomtown? He has the arrogance ... and there is an arrogance required to build this weapon of yours ... to even consider the idea. What is rare is when arrogance is partnered with sacrifice. 1180

OPPIE: And what have I sacrificed?
 KITTY: Oh Robert ... Robert ... where is your brother? 1185
 OPPIE: There has to be distance.
 KITTY: Yes.
 OPPIE: There has to be distance. [Beat.] Haakon ... before we moved up here ... before work truly began ... Haakon said ... he came to me and said that he had been approached by someone who was in contact with the Soviet consulate in San Francisco. He was asking if I wanted to feed information about the bomb to our Soviet allies. 1190

KITTY: What did you tell him?
 OPPIE: I told him nothing. I may have used the word 'treason'. 1195
 KITTY: You need to tell Groves.
 OPPIE: Yes.
 KITTY: You see that, don't you?
 OPPIE: I do. But Haakon ...
 KITTY: ... should never have come to you. 1200
 OPPIE: He's my friend.
 KITTY: Not if he were to ask that. Cast him off. The bomb will not be built by some spineless weakling.
 OPPIE: No. 1205
 KITTY: The man who builds this bomb will be hailed a hero.
 OPPIE: I have never asked for that.
 KITTY: But you have wanted it. Everyone will know your name. Everyone will want to bask in your light.
 OPPIE: My 'light' ... if I were to show it ... would strike the world blind. 1210
 KITTY: You cannot be scared of your own potential.
 OPPIE: I have it within me to murder every last soul on the planet – should I not be scared?

This document consists of 30 printed pages and 2 blank pages.

STIMULI

Choose one of the following three stimuli and devise a piece of drama based on it. You should work in groups of between two and six performers. Your piece should last approximately 15 minutes.

In the Written examination, you will be asked questions about your piece that will cover both practical and theoretical issues.

Stimulus 1

Quotation: 'There is flattery in friendship.'
From William Shakespeare's Henry V [Act 3, Scene 7]

Stimulus 2

Grimms' Fairy Tales: Rumpelstiltskin

EXTRACT

Taken from Oppenheimer, by Tom Morton-Smith

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

Tom Morton-Smith's play Oppenheimer was first performed by the Royal Shakespeare Company in England in 2015. The play traces the events surrounding one of the most significant scientific developments in the twentieth century, the atomic bomb. The man who led the project was J. Robert Oppenheimer, an American theoretical physicist, who is often referred to as 'the father of the atomic bomb'. Convinced of his own importance, Oppenheimer commanded immense respect from his research students, and also attracted the admiration of several women.

The historical span of the play covers the period from the 1930s into the Second World War. It opens at the time of the Spanish Civil War (1936–1939), which was a period when some American intellectuals held strong left-wing, even communist, beliefs.

The play is in two Acts, and the extract consists of an abridged version of Act 1. The play has been edited to reduce the length of the extract, which means that a number of scenes have been omitted.

Characters in order of appearance. Capitals indicate the name by which the character is identified as a speaker in the text.

ACT 1

1 – LECTURE SERIES: INTRODUCTION

A lecture theatre.

J Robert Oppenheimer [OPPIE] addresses a gathering of students. He reads from a slim, red book: Atomic Theory and the Description of Nature – Niels Bohr, 1934.

OPPIE:	'The task of science is both to extend the range of our experience and to reduce it to order.' So says Niels Bohr. It is only by experience that we can discern the laws that govern our universe. So as we learn ... as we grow ... we must be prepared to alter our methods for ordering our experience ... because we come to surpass those techniques ... those patterns ... that once instructed us. Life is nothing if not a constant re-evaluation of what we believe to be correct, and a constant reassessment of the ways we gauge that correctness. What was true yesterday can be less true today, because we have learnt ... and will learn ... better. My name is J Robert Oppenheimer. You will come to know me as Oppie. I expect you to be attentive. I expect you to be present. And if some aspect of the lecture doesn't make sense, then perhaps we are getting somewhere. There is no negotiation ... no debate ... with the complexity of the universe. If the work eludes you ... if you simply lack the ability ... then take your leave. I can make it clearer, but I cannot make it simpler. Let us begin.	5 10 15 20

2 – A FUNDRAISER FOR THE RELIEF EFFORT IN SPAIN

The Oppenheimer residence – Berkeley, California.

A party is in full swing. Music plays. The room bustles with people – people who are drinking, dancing, laughing and generally having an excellent time.

People present include: OPPIE, FRANK Oppenheimer, Giovanni Rossi LOMANITZ, Bob SERBER, JACKIE Oppenheimer, JEAN Tatlock, Joe WEINBERG, Robert WILSON, HAAKON Chevalier and CHARLOTTE Serber.

FRANK:	Roosevelt!
LOMANITZ:	Ha! Roosevelt!
FRANK:	Franklin Delano Roosevelt!
SERBER:	My goodness, Frank, you've got to give it a rest.
FRANK:	Roosevelt's greatest achievement has been to get people thinking ... about employment ... about economics ... once the working man actually considers employment, economics, race-relations ... that's the start ... that's the route to socialism ... communism.	35
SERBER:	Frank ... you're kicking at an open door!	40
LOMANITZ:	A specter is haunting Frank Oppenheimer.
FRANK:	What the New Deal has done ... the legacy of the New Deal ... it has opened people's eyes ... the Great Depression ... the Wall

	Street Crash ... that way no longer works. Robert ... brother of mine ... big brother ... big Robert ... back me up ...	45
OPPIE:	If booze is present in your glass then your argument cannot maintain its structure. It will inevitably collapse.
FRANK:	My glass is empty.
JACKIE:	Frank, will you lay off the sermons?
FRANK:	Hey baby ... hey sweet-cheeks ... how's about I spin you round the floor?	50
LOMANITZ:	Please, Jackie ... take him dancing.
SERBER:	Burn off some of that liquor.
JACKIE:	Show me your moves, mister.
OPPIE:	Frank's not wrong ... the people's eyes are open.	55
LOMANITZ:	To be fair to the guy ... if you're going to air your leftist politics ... where better than a Communist Party fundraiser?
SERBER:	I thought we were raising money for the relief effort in Spain?
OPPIE:	It's getting dispersed ... distributed ... through the Party.
LOMANITZ:	What difference does it make? Sign me up to the union. I'm there.	60
JEAN:	[ Standing on a table, banging on a collection bucket. ] Workers of the world – unite!
	The music and dancing stops and everybody turns their attention to JEAN.	65
JEAN:	For too long the White House has ignored the rise of fascism in Europe. Our government sits impotently by while Franco marches on Barcelona. Civilians fleeing the violence are interned in camps across the French border. I ask you – do you believe, even if there are thousands of miles between you, that your brother is any less your brother? We are not asking for money to fight a war ... we are asking for money to feed children ... to pay for medicines ... to return some dignity to those who fascism has stripped bare. Compare their sacrifice with the dollar bill in your wallet and please give generously. Thank you.	70
	Cheering and applause. Some voices in the crowd start singing 'L'Internationale'. More and more people join in until eventually everyone is singing.	75

4 – A FUNDRAISER FOR THE RELIEF EFFORT IN SPAIN [continued]

	JEAN moves around with a collection bucket in hand.	80
LOMANITZ:	Here she comes ... prepare yourself for a fleecing.
JEAN:	So, gentlemen ... dust off your wallets. [ To SERBER. ] Are you a socialist?
SERBER:	Yes, ma'am.
JEAN:	Then put your money in the pot. [ To LOMANITZ. ] Are you a socialist?	85
LOMANITZ:	Through and through.
JEAN:	In it goes. And you?

WEINBERG:	I might have only just joined Oppie's department, but I'm a fully paid-up member of the Communist Party USA.	90
LOMANITZ:	Comrade!
JEAN:	Robert! Robert, your boys ... you must be a proud Papa Bear.
OPPIE:	Give the nice lady your donation.
JEAN:	I want to see paper money. This nickel and dime crap is weighing me down.	95
WEINBERG:	I just wanted to take this chance to introduce myself properly ...
JEAN:	Oh yes?
WEINBERG:	You have such a lovely home ... and I'm a great admirer of your husband ...
JEAN:	Is that so?	100
WEINBERG:	It's a pleasure to make your acquaintance, Mrs Oppenheimer.
OPPIE:	Joe, Jean and I aren't married.
WEINBERG:	Oh, I ... I'm sorry ... I just assumed ...
OPPIE:	It's quite alright.
WEINBERG:	Oh god.	105
LOMANITZ:	This way, Joe ... there are some folks over here you've yet to embarrass yourself in front of.
JEAN:	Not very smart, your new disciple.
OPPIE:	He's a bright kid. They're all bright kids.
JEAN:	[To SERBER.] How old are you?	110
SERBER:	Thirty.
JEAN:	'Kids'.
OPPIE:	Serber doesn't count. Rossi, how old are you?
LOMANITZ:	Eighteen.
JEAN:	That proves nothing. [Takes LOMANITZ's drink] And you ... you should not be drinking.	115
LOMANITZ:	And how old are you?
JEAN:	I don't think I like this one.

6 – A FUNDRAISER FOR THE RELIEF EFFORT IN SPAIN [continued]

OPPIE:	Haakon – thank you so much for coming.
HAAKON:	For the cause and for you – how could I not?	120
OPPIE:	How was France?
HAAKON:	Excellent, excellent. Tout est possible!
OPPIE:	And how is the novel coming?
HAAKON:	Slow.
OPPIE:	Send me what you have.	125
HAAKON:	I have a chapter ... a chapter and a half ...
OPPIE:	Let me read it.
HAAKON:	Thank you. If it's not too much trouble?
OPPIE:	My friend, you bring me poetry. It's no trouble at all.
LOMANITZ:	Oppie ... I wanted to return that book you lent me ...?	130
OPPIE:	On the bookcase is fine.
LOMANITZ:	I wanted to say ... I haven't quite ... I'm still taking notes from it ... wondering if I could ...?
HAAKON:	What's the book?
LOMANITZ:	Henri de Saint-Simon.	135
OPPIE:	It's fine, Rossi. Hang on to it.
LOMANITZ:	Thank you.

HAAKON: You have your students reading socialist philosophy?
 OPPIE: I have them learning about the world.

CHARLOTTE enters. She has lifted the front of her skirt in front of her so that she can carry a large amount of change. 140

SERBER: There she is ... the love of my life. Where have you been hiding yourself?

CHARLOTTE: There were some pockets unpicked in the kitchen.
 JEAN: In the bucket it goes! 145
 JACKIE: Have any of you seen Frank?
 SERBER: He was headed to the bathroom.
 JACKIE: Oh god.
 JEAN: Lost your dancing partner? Here, let me ... [Pulls JACKIE to the middle of the floor.] 150
 JACKIE: Oh, I ... I couldn't ...
 JEAN: Don't worry your pretty little face ... I'll lead!

JEAN proceeds to dance JACKIE around the floor.

8 – FUNDRAISER FOR THE RELIEF EFFORT IN SPAIN [continued]

JACKIE: [Nursing a drunk FRANK.] I think it's time we left.
 CHARLOTTE: You're leaving? 155
 JACKIE: I'm going to drive him home.
 CHARLOTTE: It's been so lovely seeing you both.
 JACKIE: Give my apologies to Robert.
 FRANK: I've cleaned up the bathroom as best I can.
 CHARLOTTE: Goodbye, Jackie. 160
 JEAN: Do svidaniya, comrade!
 JACKIE: Goodbye, Jean.
 WILSON: Hey Jean ... how much did you make?
 JEAN: Enough to topple all the fascist regimes of Europe!
 WILSON: That much, huh? 165
 WEINBERG: My brain hurts.
 WILSON: You need a glass of milk ... a glass of milk with a raw egg cracked into it.
 WEINBERG: Why would you say that?
 SERBER: I don't want you vomiting in the back of my car. 170
 LOMANITZ: Any chance of a ride?
 SERBER: Grab your stuff.
 CHARLOTTE: Goodnight, Jean. Goodnight, Oppie.
 SERBER: Wilson, you coming?

LOMANITZ pulls WILSON, SERBER and WEINBERG together and leads them in song. They reprise the chorus of L'Internationale. JEAN, OPPIE and HAAKON applaud as SERBER, WEINBERG, WILSON, LOMANITZ and CHARLOTTE exit. 175

HAAKON: And then there were three. 180
 OPPIE: It's late, Haakon.

HAAKON:	It is. [To JEAN.] Can I offer you a lift?
JEAN:	No.
HAAKON:	Goodnight, then.
OPPIE:	[Ushers HAAKON to the door.] Good night.	185
HAAKON exits. JEAN and OPPIE are alone.
JEAN:	That was a night.
OPPIE:	It was.
JEAN:	What did you make of my speech?
OPPIE:	Your clarion-call to the global proletariat?	190
JEAN:	Yes. Did it stir you? Were you stirred?
OPPIE:	I was worried your shoes might scuff my tabletop.
JEAN:	[Sings.]
	Arise ye workers from your slumber,
	Arise ye prisoners of want ...	195
OPPIE:	It has been two months.
JEAN:	Has it?
OPPIE:	Two months and no word ... no telephone call ...
JEAN:	You sound like my mother.
OPPIE:	What do you expect? Open arms? Where have you been?	200
JEAN:	You are not my only friend.
OPPIE:	I am abundantly aware.
JEAN:	You need to relax. You have nothing to lose but your chains.
OPPIE:	You let yourself in as though you've been to the corner store. You take on the role of hostess. You fling my brother's wife around the floor like ... like ... I don't know what.	205
JEAN:	Jackie was having a great time.
OPPIE:	Jackie doesn't know you like I do. Jackie's a waitress.
JEAN:	Phooey.
OPPIE:	This was a night of charity.	210
JEAN:	You think I don't care for the cause? My heart bleeds for the Spanish ... my soul cracks for them ... to think of their suffering ... it kills me.
OPPIE:	I am sure that the starving and the dispossessed greatly appreciate your drunken behavior.	215
JEAN:	I may be a lush, but I am a sincere one.
OPPIE:	No doubt.
JEAN:	Look at you ... so aloof, so sanctimonious.
OPPIE:	I will throw you out.
JEAN:	You will do no such thing.	220
OPPIE:	You think I'm not capable of ...?
JEAN:	I'm sure you're well versed in the theory.
OPPIE:	[Forcibly grabs JEAN and goes to throw her out.]
JEAN:	Oppie?! Oppie! Get your hands off me!
Silence.
The tension dissolves into laughter.
JEAN:	It's cold out there.
OPPIE:	I know.
JEAN:	You want me to catch cold?
OPPIE:	Can't you leave me alone?	230
JEAN:	I would die without you.

11 – LECTURE SERIES: A LETTER TO A PRESIDENT

Albert EINSTEIN reads from a letter.

EINSTEIN: 'Mr Roosevelt ... Mr President ... Sir. I believe that it may soon become possible to set up a nuclear chain reaction in a large mass of the element uranium ... thus generating a vast amount of power. This phenomenon may lead to the construction of a new type of extremely powerful bomb. A single bomb that may very well flatten a city. I understand that, since her expansion into the Sudetenland, Germany has stopped the sale of uranium from the Czechoslovakian mines that she has taken over. Are the Nazis aware of the potential of uranium? Of course. May I suggest that this situation calls for watchfulness and, if necessary, quick action on the part of your administration. Yours truly ...'

12 – THE LINCOLN BATTALION

A garden party in Pasadena, California. 245

The sun is shining and music is playing. Partygoers are having an excellent time. HAAKON is chatting to a group of people. OPPIE stands to one side.

A band strikes up and sings a jaunty version of 'Jarama Valley', a soldier's song of the Spanish Civil War. KITTY Harrison approaches OPPIE with a drink. 250

KITTY: Here.

OPPIE: What's this?

KITTY: A drink. You look like you need one.

OPPIE: Thank you ... 255

KITTY: Kitty Harrison.

OPPIE: Thank you, Kitty.

KITTY: That's no problem at all.

OPPIE: Are you not joining in with the ...?

KITTY: Discussions ... debates? No. My husband dragged me along. This is very much his sort of thing. 260

OPPIE: It isn't yours?

KITTY: Maybe once. My first husband died pointlessly in Spain. To hear the band sing of the Lincoln Battalion ... of the brave Americans ... volunteers in the noble battle against Franco ... 265

OPPIE: I am sorry.

KITTY: All of his friends ... all of our friends ... and that includes my current husband ... all believe passionately in the Communist ideal. Europe's either becoming a bootcamp or a graveyard ... and these people think they have the answer ... but they only ever talk to each other. 270

OPPIE:	Then why are you here?
KITTY:	There's a free bar.
HAAKON:	[ Waves for OPPIE to come over. ]
OPPIE:	[ Declines. ]	275
KITTY:	A friend of yours? He wants you to go meet some people.
OPPIE:	He wants to wheel me around. I expect he's losing an argument he'd like to win.
KITTY:	You're his secret weapon?
OPPIE:	Hardly.	280
KITTY:	Please. I cannot bear false modesty – my husband is British. [ Beat. ] What is it you do?
OPPIE:	I'm a professor of physics.
KITTY:	You're a smart one then ... you're a thinker.
OPPIE:	It has been known.	285
KITTY:	If we left together now ... where would we go? If we threw off the garbage of the world ... where would you, professor of physics, take me?
OPPIE:	If we were to leave right now?
KITTY:	Right now.	290
OPPIE:	I have a ranch ... up in the mountains of New Mexico. A simple, wooden ranch. A forest glade ... horse riding ... the stars in the sky. A wood burning stove.
KITTY:	It sounds perfect.
OPPIE:	It's a bit of a drive.	295
KITTY:	If we could swing by a drugstore, I could pick up a toothbrush.
OPPIE:	You don't want to stay for the lecture?
KITTY:	Spontaneism and the dialectics of revolutionary yadda yadda yadda ... I would rather eat glass.
	RICHARD Harrison approaches.	300
RICHARD:	Darling ... the talk is about to begin ...
KITTY:	Richard, do you know ...?
OPPIE:	Robert Oppenheimer.
KITTY:	Robert, my husband Richard.
RICHARD:	We should take our seat.	305
KITTY:	Will you not join us?
OPPIE:	Please. I know what will be said.
KITTY:	Yes.
RICHARD:	Darling ... we really must ...
KITTY:	It was a pleasure to meet you, Robert.	310
OPPIE:	And you.
KITTY:	I hope that our paths cross again.
OPPIE:	We should make certain of it.
KITTY:	Yes. We should.

13 – PEAS IN A POD

	Several weeks later. The Oppenheimer residence.	315
HAAKON:	I want your advice ... suggestions ... rewrites if necessary. Will you cast your eye over ...?
OPPIE:	I'm flattered that you would ask, but you're the novelist, not I.
HAAKON:	This isn't the novel, this is ... this is a pamphlet on behalf of the League of American Writers. This is for the College Faculties	320

- Committee of the Communist Party of California. This is a letter to be sent to Soviet Russia Today ... to be published in their September issue.
- OPPIE: And what do these pamphlets say?
- HAAKON: They are petitioning against war. Now more than ever, we have to be vocal. Europe is on a precipice and political discourse in this country is lurching to the right. The politicians are stoking our hate ... stoking our fear ... priming us for violence. 325
- OPPIE: You would have me throw my weight behind the Communist Party? 330
- HAAKON: The Party's beliefs are your beliefs.
- OPPIE: My beliefs would not allow for treaties with fascists.
- HAAKON: That is not ... that is ...
- OPPIE: The Soviets have signed a treaty of Non-Aggression with the Nazis. Is Eastern Europe a carvery now? The carcass of a roasted bird ... stripped for soup ... stripped for stock. People are tearing up their Party cards ... cursing Engels ... cursing Marx ... because the German military machine has no counter ... no balance ... no equal and opposite ... if the Soviet Union does nothing. And this treaty of theirs is formalized nothing. 335
- HAAKON: I cannot claim to understand diplomacy ...
- OPPIE: And the word ... from Russia ... the purges and the show-trials we hear of ... the forced labor camps ... the famine ...
- HAAKON: We all know the rumors.
- OPPIE: And so far we have dismissed them ... 345
- HAAKON: ... as Trotskyite lies and disinformation.
- OPPIE: But in light of the Non-Aggression Pact?
- HAAKON: It's garbage! The capitalists will say anything to discredit ... to harm ... to have us fighting amongst ourselves.
- OPPIE: So it's the Trotskyites and the capitalists ...? 350
- HAAKON: Yes!
- OPPIE: ... and we are to lap this up ... hold our nose ... and believe that water is milk?
- HAAKON: You say the Soviets are the only answer to the black-boots. I believe that. I believe you. 355
- JEAN enters.*
- HAAKON: I didn't realize ...
- JEAN: So good to see you, Haakon ... but Oppie's a little busy right now ... so perhaps some other time? 360
- HAAKON: Sure ... I'll ...
- OPPIE: Leave me your pamphlets.
- HAAKON: You'll look at them?
- OPPIE: I will.
- HAAKON: Comrades?
- OPPIE: Comrades. 365
- HAAKON exits.*
- JEAN: He is such a creep.
- OPPIE: He respects my opinion.
- [Beat]
- JEAN: Fine. I am taking you out to dinner. I am treating you to oysters 370

- across the bay. I have booked us a suite at the Majestic. I have chartered a boat to sail us down the coast. I have booked us on a flight to New York. I have organized tickets to the hottest show in town. I have bought you a new gold watch and a platinum plated cigarette case, inscribed inside in beautiful flowing script: 'Jean and Oppie – two peas in a pod!' [Beat.] Come and hold my hand. Come and kiss my face. [Beat.] I heard you and Haakon talking about purges ... show-trials ... famine. 375
- OPPIE: It's an ugly habit to listen at doors.
JEAN: These stories ... these rumors ... tell me they are lies and I'll believe you. 380
- OPPIE: They are unsubstantiated.
JEAN: I have to believe that everything is better in Russia ... that it is better somewhere ... but that belief is being taken from me in strips. I want to take the world ... shake it ... and scream in its face: 'This is how we live! United! And with love! And with fair pay and the means of production in the hands of the people!' 385
- OPPIE: When was the last time you spoke to ...?
JEAN: I don't need to speak to anyone. I've read those books ... I've studied them ... I can do it myself. And I have you – the smartest man I know. Why would I speak to some dullard? I am not special – everyone is suffering. I feel as though I want to sneeze. I want to look at the sun but it is covered by clouds ... smoke from destroyed Polish towns ... and it blots out the light, but not with a darkness ... not just with a darkness ... it drains the color ... Poland is a newsreel and German tanks gray the landscape. If we cannot rely on Russia ... fascism will swarm over us like ants on a dead bird. 395
- OPPIE: I'm going to drive you home.
JEAN: Let me stay. 400
- OPPIE: That's not going to happen. That isn't how this works anymore.
JEAN: Then tell me how it works.
OPPIE: You are not my only friend.

She leaves. Long pause. OPPIE walks slowly to the telephone.

14 – THE HOT DOG – OMITTED

15 – A PHONECALL TO RICHARD HARRISON

- OPPIE dials a number on the telephone. 405
- OPPIE: Doctor Harrison?
RICHARD: This is Richard Harrison.
OPPIE: We met some months ago in Pasadena.
RICHARD: Oh yes?
OPPIE: At a garden party in Pasadena. 410
RICHARD: Oh right.
OPPIE: My name is Robert Oppenheimer.
- Pause.*
- RICHARD: Oh yes.
OPPIE: I wish to talk to you about Katherine. 415

RICHARD: Katherine?
 OPPIE: Kitty.
 RICHARD: Yes, I know who Katherine is.
 OPPIE: Of course. [Beat.] She's pregnant.
 RICHARD: I see. 420
 OPPIE: Yes.
 RICHARD: I suppose you'll need me to get divorce proceedings underway.
 OPPIE: I would appreciate that.
 RICHARD: Of course. Congratulations.
 OPPIE: Thank you. 425

16 – LECTURE SERIES: CHAIN REACTION

OPPIE: There was a Maharaja who had a great passion for chess. Travelers ... as they passed through his court ... were invited to his throne room and challenged to a game. One day a visiting sage appeared at the palace gates. He was welcomed and brought before the king. 'Do you know chess?' 'I do.' 'Then let us play.' The sage smiled and politely inquired as to what his prize would be if he were to win. The Maharaja laughed and offered any reward that the old man could name. The sage modestly asked for a few grains of rice. 'How many grains?' enquired the king. 'Place one grain of rice on the first square of the chessboard ... two on the next ... four the next ... then eight ... sixteen ... and keep doubling the number of grains on every following square.' 'Very well.' And so they played. It was a hard fought game, but it did not go the way of the king. Having lost ... and being a man of his word ... the Maharaja ordered for a bag of rice to be brought to the chessboard. He placed one grain on the first square ... two on the second ... then four ... eight ... sixteen ... thirty-two ... sixty-four ... 128 ... 256 ... 512 ... 1,024 ... 2,048 ... 4,096 ... I could do this all day. By the twentieth square the Maharaja required a million grains of rice ... by the final sixty-fourth square he required more rice than had ever existed ... enough to cover all of India with a layer one meter thick. Such an amount would require paddy fields covering twice the surface of the world – oceans included. The Maharaja was astounded. It was at this point that the Lord Krishna shook off the image of the sage, revealing his true identity to the king. 'Now you are humbled before the power of exponential mathematics.' [Beat.] A neutron enters an atom ... splits it ... two further neutrons are released ... and what you have is a chain reaction. 430

17 – NUMBERS

Over a year later.

SERBER: How's Kitty? Taking to motherhood? And Peter is ...?
 OPPIE: Seven months.
 SERBER: I hadn't realized it had been so ... [Beat.] Standing? Crawling? Teething? 460
 OPPIE: Standing. Teething.
 SERBER: We should definitely ... definitely pay a visit ... Charlotte is

- aching to ... we have some things ... we bought some things for the baby ... clothes ... for Peter ...
- OPPIE: Thank you. 465
- SERBER: It's good to see you. Illinois is nothing like you're running at Berkeley ... but the department's good ... the work is good.
- OPPIE: Fission ...
- SERBER: Yes.
- OPPIE: ... as the basis for a bomb. 470
- SERBER: Yeah ... I ... since Pearl Harbor, it's all I can think about. That and signing up. But my eyesight's appalling; I wouldn't make it past the physical. Probably wouldn't make minimum height. And now the Russians have joined the war and I'm ... I'm cheering inside ... like a full-blown warmonger. 475
- OPPIE: How much uranium do you think we'd need?
- SERBER: The minimum amount ...?
- OPPIE: ... for a chain reaction. Yes. How much?
- SERBER: Well ... I don't know ... we've talked ... in my department ... we've talked ... 480
- OPPIE: Can you give me numbers?
- SERBER: The amounts people are throwing around range from six hundred grams to a ton.
- OPPIE: A ton of uranium-235?
- SERBER: It would have to be. 485
- OPPIE: It would take time to separate ... to refine ...
- SERBER: There would have to be a large-scale industrial ...
- OPPIE: It would be easier if I thought it was beyond me. I know it is not. I see it so clearly ... in my mind I can picture a uranium device ... I can picture its components ... sometimes it has stars and stripes stenciled to its casing ... but more often than not it has a swastika. I see it ... it sails down the Hudson river ... or it hangs in the air above the Upper West Side ... I can see it ... and there I am ... a man of inaction ... knowing that I could have built it first ... perhaps quicker ... even by just a day ... [Beat.] So when I ask 'can you give me numbers', what I want to know is: can you give me numbers? 490
- SERBER: I don't have any for you right now, but I'm certain I can get them.
- OPPIE: Do it.
- SERBER: Sure. 500
- OPPIE: There needs to be gathering ... of minds ... there needs to be discussion. I'm bringing together people from Cornell and Chicago ... from Princeton ... Harvard. I need you with me in Berkeley.
- SERBER: Sure ... sure ... 505
- OPPIE: We need to be solid on the theory and we need to consider the practical implications on design. What sort of fissionable material ... what sort of blast radius ... how much energy will be released.
- SERBER: Of course ... of course ... my god ... 510
- OPPIE: Bob ...?
- SERBER: Yes, Oppie?
- OPPIE: The uranium bomb is entirely possible, therefore it is entirely inevitable. It's not a question of 'should'; it's a question of 'when' ... of 'where' ... of 'by whom'. 515

18 – THE FIRST FEASIBILITY DISCUSSIONS

Berkeley campus.

The room is filled with a select group of physicists, including OPPIE, Edward TELLER and Hans BETHE. SERBER, WILSON and WEINBERG are preparing to give a presentation. LOMANITZ enters – he is late.

LOMANITZ: Sorry ... I'm sorry ... I got caught up at a meeting. Gee ... it's like a Nobel longlist in here. 520

WILSON: Try not to say anything too stupid.

WEINBERG: I haven't pressed my shirt.

LOMANITZ: What are we talking about? Halifax? 525

SERBER: Halifax.

The lights darken.

WEINBERG operates a projector.

Black and white images of the devastated city of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

530

WEINBERG: This is Halifax, Nova Scotia.

WILSON: On December 6th 1917, a French cargo-ship, fully stocked with wartime explosives, collided with a Norwegian vessel inside Halifax harbor.

LOMANITZ: The resulting explosion caused the immediate death of two-thousand people. Nine thousand sustained injury. 535

SERBER: All structures within the one and a half mile blast radius were leveled.

WILSON: The subsequent pressure wave bent iron railings ... snapped trees ... dispersed debris ... up to as much as ten miles. 540

WEINBERG: The ship's anchor ... or a portion of it ... weighing in excess of 1,100 pounds ... was carried a distance of 2.3 miles.

SERBER: One of the gun barrels landed in Dartmouth, a town some 3.4 miles to the east.

LOMANITZ: The force of the blast is estimated to be somewhere in the region of 2.9 kilotons. 545

SERBER: That's the equivalent effect of 2,900 tons of TNT.

OPPIE: Thank you.

The lights are switched back on.

OPPIE: This is the level of destruction that we are hoping to achieve. We are familiar with the physicists the Nazis have at their disposal. We have studied with them ... corresponded with them ... worked with them ... lived with them. Heisenberg. If we are capable of building this bomb, then so are they. Tenfold. And we are behind. The British government have been making great strides and, in the spirit of our mutual struggle, they have agreed to share with us what progress they have made. It's not much, but it's as good a starting point as any. I'll be making those documents available to you. 555

BETHE: This British report ... what areas does it concern itself with? 560

OPPIE: Hello, Hans. For those of you who don't know, this is Hans Bethe, who is joining us from Cornell.

- BETHE: Hello.
- OPPIE: As for the report, it mostly deals with the cost estimates and technical specifications for a large uranium enrichment plant ... it also contains some ideas on assembly and some work on efficiency. I would also suggest that you speak with Bob Serber who has been diligently working on critical mass calculations. What I propose we do over these next few weeks is pool our ideas. Collaborate. Bring everything you have ... any epiphanies ... any eureka moment ... however outlandish ... I want to see it. We'll reconvene tomorrow. 565
- The gathered scientists break off into groups. Everyone is chatting. Everyone is excited.*
- WILSON: Professor Bethe? 575
- BETHE: Yes?
- WILSON: I have to say it is an honor to meet you ... and to have the chance to possibly work beside you ... gee ... I mean ...
- BETHE: That is very kind of you to say.
- WILSON: Your work on the subject of nuclear reactions ... cross-sections and atomic nuclei ... I mean it's ... wow ... just wow. 580
- BETHE: It is always nice to meet a fan.
- WILSON: I have a copy of Reviews of Modern Physics ... with your articles ... would you mind signing ...?
- BETHE: Of course. 585
- WEINBERG: Actually, we all have copies ... could you ...?
- BETHE: Of course ... of course ...
- TELLER: Oppie?
- OPPIE: Edward Teller! I am so pleased you could make it.
- TELLER: Hans and I shared a train carriage from Chicago. I hear it is you I have to thank for the change in my status. 590
- OPPIE: Ah, yes.
- TELLER: They denied my clearance for classified work simply because I am Hungarian. As though all Hungarians must support that fascist of an admiral who conspires with Nazis. This study group of yours ... it is a good start. I am pleased that finally something substantial is being done. 595

19 – LECTURE SERIES:
THE MAN WHO BUILT THE PENTAGON

- GROVES: September 17th 1942. I am called to the office of my superior. I know these corridors ... I built these corridors ... Colonel Leslie R Groves of the Army Corps of Engineers ... the man who built the Pentagon. My blood is in this mortar. These hinges are oiled with my sweat. 'You are familiar with the S-1 Committee?' 'I am, sir.' 'What do you know of the S-1 Committee?' 'The S-1 Committee is in charge of investigating the properties and manufacture of uranium, sir.' 'Do you understand the purpose of the S-1 Committee?' 'Not fully, sir. I can't say that I do, sir.' 'It is weapons development.' 'I see, sir. I was hoping for a combat assignment, sir. Overseas, sir.' 'That is not going to happen.' 'I see, sir.' 'The development of this new uranium bomb is to become a military operation.' 'Yes, sir.' 'It is to be instilled with a sense of urgency.' 'Yes, sir.' 'If you do this job right, it will win 600
- 605

us the war.' '...' 'Groves?' 'Yes, sir.' 'I said it will win us the war.' 'We have bombs already, sir.' 'The decision has been made. You will be promoted to the rank of general.' 'Thank you, sir. I was hoping for a combat assignment, sir.' 'Well, you have this instead.' 'Sir, yes, sir.' 'Congratulations, General.' 'Sir, thank you, sir.' I am handed some files. I am appointed a personal aide. If I am ordered to build a wall, I buy bricks. If I am ordered to shoot a man, I count my bullets. If I am ordered to throw myself in front of a train, I consult a timetable. Where to begin ... where to begin ...?

20 – THE OPPENHEIMER HOUSEHOLD

OPPIE in one corner. KITTY in the other, reading. CHARLOTTE holds baby PETER in her arms. SERBER has a ukulele. They sing PETER a lullaby.

CHARLOTTE: Say goodnight to everyone, Peter. Say goodnight to Daddy. 625
 OPPIE: Goodnight, my darling.
 CHARLOTTE: Say goodnight to Mummy. I'll put him to bed. Bob ...?
 SERBER: Sure.

SERBER and CHARLOTTE exit.

KITTY: I smell of sick. I smell of sick, off-milk and baby. 630
 OPPIE: You smell of perfume.
 KITTY: It masks the odor of baby. [Beat.] He has sharp little fingernails and he claws at me ... he's constantly sucking ... sucking and biting and scratching and ...
 OPPIE: Kitty ... 635
 KITTY: I'm chapped. I'm cracked. I'm broken and sore. He doesn't sleep.
 OPPIE: He's sleeping right now.
 KITTY: He doesn't sleep for me. I am falling apart!
 OPPIE: You have Charlotte. You have Bob. And what am I paying the nanny for? Four days a week she comes. 640
 KITTY: I cannot cope.

21 – THE OFFICES AT BERKELEY

The offices at Berkeley.

GROVES and NICHOLS stand before OPPIE and SERBER.

GROVES: The eagle on this man's collar ... do you know what it signifies? 645
 It signifies that this man has risen to the rank of colonel. Quite the achievement. A colonel in the United States army can command up to two thousand men. [Removes his jacket.] My uniform, as you can see, is adorned with three of these here silver stars. [Hands jacket to NICHOLS.] See that this is dry-cleaned. 650
 NICHOLS: Sir. Yes, sir. [Exits.]
 GROVES: Three silver stars, Professor. I am a commander of men. The rank of general puts the fear of a righteous god into the heart of the average serviceman. But I understand that rank alone is not enough to impress you ... not enough to earn your respect. So 655

- let me tell you this ... I am an engineer. I have a degree from the University of Washington in Seattle and a second degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. I graduated fourth in my class at West Point. I am an educated man. I may not be your equal, but I am damn close. And I have these stars. 660
- OPPIE: Bob, would you fetch the General and I some coffee?
SERBER: Sure thing. [Exits.]
OPPIE: I am also a commander of men.
GROVES: Washington has decided to bring all of the governmental committees ... all of the civilian contracted projects ... all of the work on this new form of bomb ... under one banner. A military banner. My banner. 665
- OPPIE: I see.
GROVES: Are you a Communist? It is a yes or no question.
OPPIE: It really isn't. 'Are you a card-carrying member of the Communist Party?' is a yes or no question. 670
- GROVES: Are you?
OPPIE: No.
GROVES: Have you ever been?
OPPIE: No. 675
GROVES: Would you consider yourself a Marxist?
OPPIE: That is a ridiculous question.
GROVES: How so?
OPPIE: I understand gravity. I understand the laws of motion. I understand optics. Do I go around calling myself a Newtonian? 680
GROVES: This symposium of yours ... this gathering of minds ... it shows initiative. It is proving ... fruitful?
OPPIE: I would say so, yes.
GROVES: It smacks of ambition. I do not disapprove. May I offer you a word of advice, Professor Oppenheimer? 685
OPPIE: Please.
GROVES: You are, it seems to me, a uniquely useful individual. Your ambition is great and your capability is great. That one does not outstrip the other is something of a marvel. So listen to me as I say: your affiliations and your associations with the Communist Party ... with members of the Communist Party ... [Shakes head.] If you wish to progress, then there must be distance. Do you wish to progress? 690
- OPPIE: Yes.
GROVES: The US military is now the proud owner of 1,200 tons of as yet unrefined uranium ore. I placed that order on my first day. On the second day I purchased a refinement facility in Oak Ridge, Tennessee. That this had not already been done tells me that no one involved in this project is thinking practically. So think practically. If you had resource ... if you were 'the guy' ... what would be our next move? 700

22 – THE OPPENHEIMER BROTHERS

FRANK and JACKIE's house.

- OPPIE: Is he here?
JACKIE: [Calls off.] Frank? [Beat.] He won't be long.

Silence.

705

JACKIE: Hello, Jackie. Good to see you, Jackie. How have you been?
Well, I trust. You're looking well. How's work, Jackie? Have you done something new to your hair?

OPPIE: When did you last meet with your Communist Party unit? 710

JACKIE: Excuse me?

FRANK: [Enters.] Hello, Robert. It's good to see you.

OPPIE: When did you last meet with your street unit?

FRANK: Oh god ... I can't remember ... when was it? Weeks ago ...

OPPIE: When was the last time you held a meeting here?

FRANK: Month before last. Why? 715

OPPIE: You're not to do it again. You're not to host meetings ... you're not to attend. Do you still have your Party card?

FRANK: I guess.

OPPIE: Let me see it. Let me see you tear it up.

FRANK: Now just one second ... 720

OPPIE: Where is it?

JACKIE: In the desk.

OPPIE: Fetch it.

FRANK: What is all this ... ?

OPPIE: Fetch it. 725

JACKIE: No.

OPPIE: You're to destroy your Party cards ... you're to sever all Party
contact ... you're to avoid any and all known Party members ...

JACKIE: They're our friends.

OPPIE: ... you're to resign from the teacher's union. 730

FRANK: Okay ... no.

OPPIE: You need to put away your childish idealism.

FRANK: The Communists are the only answer to fascism ... in Europe
... here ... in Spain ...

OPPIE: To hell with Spain! To hell with the Spanish Cause! I am sick of it! How many martinis ... how many buckets filled with nickels ...
how many ineffective, chattering parties ... how many pamphlets
... how many lectures ... and still the fascists take Spain! 735

FRANK: The labor movement ... workers rights ... segregation ... tell me
which other party – ? 740

OPPIE: This is not the time for those things.

FRANK: Not the time? Well ... either way ... whatever your thoughts ... whatever your protests ...

OPPIE: Your career ...

FRANK: Let us not kid ourselves that this is in any way about my career. 745

OPPIE: You're a child.

FRANK: No. I am not. And these are my decisions to make.

OPPIE: You have a tendency to make very poor decisions.

FRANK: I'm sorry?

JACKIE: I think it's time you left. 750

FRANK: I'm sorry ... because I married a waitress?

OPPIE: You have to ... you have to ... distance yourself from ...

FRANK: What I should've done ... what I should've done was to find myself a nice, wholesome girl ... someone of a comparable status perhaps ... someone of breeding ... and sleep with her behind her husband's back until she falls pregnant. 755

23 – THE OPPENHEIMER RESIDENCE

The Oppenheimer residence.

OPPIE, KITTY, SERBER, CHARLOTTE, BETHE, HAAKON
and TELLER are in little groups talking and drinking.

KITTY opens a bottle of champagne and goes to pour some for
BETHE. 760

BETHE: Thank you, no.
KITTY: You don't like champagne, Hans?
BETHE: I was raised on the French-German border. I like champagne
just fine. This – not so much. 765

HAAKON: You're a professor?
TELLER: Indeed.
HAAKON: As am I.
TELLER: I've not heard of you.
HAAKON: Of the Romance Languages. 770
TELLER: Ah.
HAAKON: Do I detect a German accent? I own an 1867 edition of *Das
Kapital*.
TELLER: I am Hungarian. And I have not read Marx.
HAAKON: Oh? 775
TELLER: People might mistake me for a Democrat.
SERBER: What are we celebrating?
KITTY: Can we tell them about it?
SERBER: Tell us about what?
KITTY: They'll know soon enough. 780
OPPIE: I'm not supposed to talk about it.
KITTY: Robert had a visit from the military.
TELLER: Is this about the bomb?
OPPIE: It's all very hush-hush.
BETHE: We are all inside the circle here. 785
SERBER: Well, with the exception of Haakon perhaps.
HAAKON: Do you want me to leave?
OPPIE: No ... I ...
HAAKON: I'm not in your department ... I'm not even the spouse of someone in your department ... it's fine. I need a trip to the little linguist's room anyway, so ... [Exits.] 790

BETHE: Oppie?
OPPIE: You must understand, the details are not yet finalized ...
CHARLOTTE: Tell us!
OPPIE: A laboratory is going to be built. A laboratory dedicated to the building of this bomb ... probably somewhere quite remote. It will be a continuation of our discussions and work at Berkeley, but now ... well ... as a legitimate and sanctioned part of the war effort. 795

TELLER: A central laboratory? 800
KITTY: A national laboratory.
OPPIE: And I will be its director.

24 – LECTURE SERIES – OMITTED

25 – OPPIE AND HAAKON

OPPIE and HAAKON

HAAKON:	Oppie, may I have a word? [ Pause. ] I will never suffer nor ever comprehend the suffering felt by those at the heart of this war ... but don't deny my empathy. The Russians ... Stalingrad ... they're fighting with their teeth and their hands ... with pitchforks and kitchen knives. [ Beat. ] It is clear to everyone on campus that the physics department is involved in ... that you are working on ... something very important. I have a proposition for you ... I think that you will want to hear it. I saw a friend of mine recently ... a man ... you are known to him ... he shares our sympathies. He has a means of getting technical information to the Soviets.	805
OPPIE:	[ Silence. ]	815
HAAKON:	Do you not believe that the Russians have a right to know? Or, indeed, that they may be able to help? I am no physicist ... I have no useful skills here ... but I can do this. So let me do this.

26 – THE BOY WITH A BEAR ON A LEASH – OMITTED

27 – IGNITION

TELLER:	We were discussing Hans' work on the cycle of nuclear fusion in stars ...	820
BETHE:	... stars generate power by fusing elements together ...
TELLER:	... in the case of our sun it fuses the lightest element to make the second lightest ...
BETHE:	... hydrogen plus hydrogen equals helium ...
TELLER:	... it is with the sun's own gravity ... the weight of itself ... the incredible pressure at its core that gives rise to fusion ...	825
BETHE:	... those particles have no place to go and yet are travelling at astonishing speed ... slamming into each other like blind and angry dodgem cars ...
TELLER:	... and it occurred to me that ... in the split second of a uranium device's detonation ... an equivalent heat or pressure may exist ... equal to that found at the core of our sun ... and if you were to surround that fission device with enough fuel ... deuterium – heavy hydrogen ... then maybe ... maybe it would cause a fusion reaction.	830
BETHE:	We could make a star on the surface of the earth.
TELLER:	Why stop at splitting the atom ... why not forge new ones?
OPPIE:	Not just a nuclear device ... but thermonuclear . The energy released would be ...	835
BETHE:	... colossal.	840
TELLER:	A super bomb.
BETHE:	A much higher yield.
TELLER:	Much higher. Thousands of times more powerful ... than a mere fission device ... a mere uranium bomb.
OPPIE:	A hydrogen bomb.	845

TELLER:	A blast radius of not just one or two miles ... but ... what? Thirty-five? Forty? Fifty?
BETHE:	A star on the surface of the world.
OPPIE:	A fundamental element of your hydrogen device is a uranium device.	850
TELLER:	Yes.
OPPIE:	So we build that first.
BETHE:	With a uranium device ... even with just a uranium device ... the temperatures and the pressures we are talking about ... what if we were to set fire to the earth's atmosphere?	855

28 – PEEL THAT POTATO – OMITTED

29 – AN ARMY HOSPITAL IN SAN FRANCISCO

OPPIE is being given a physical exam by DOCTORS.

He is made to stand on scales, X-rays of his chest are held up to the light. Blood pressure is taken. A stethoscope is placed against his chest.

GROVES stands nearby. 860

GROVES:	So, doc ... does he pass?
DOCTOR:	He's underweight. Eleven pounds short of the minimum required for active duty ... twenty-seven pounds under what would be ideal for a man of his age and height. He's had a chronic cough for some years ...	865
GROVES:	'Some years'?
OPPIE:	Since 1927.
DOCTOR:	... and x-rays of his lungs confirm a mild case of tuberculosis. The patient also suffers from lumbosacral strain ... lower back spasms ... and experiences moderate shooting pains down his left leg every two weeks or so. My considered opinion is that this man is not army material and that the physical defects I have mentioned render him permanently incapacitated for active service.	870
GROVES:	You understand all that?	875
OPPIE:	I do.
GROVES:	[ Passes OPPIE some forms. ] Sign here to acknowledge these pre-existing medical conditions and to request extended active duty.
OPPIE:	[ Signs. ] Can I ask ... what rank will I receive?	880
GROVES:	You will be commissioned at the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. Stand up, soldier. Welcome to the United States Military.

30 – OPPIE’S OFFICE AT BERKELEY

Alone with a neatly folded pile of clothes – his US Army uniform.

OPPIE gets dressed.

KITTY enters.

885

KITTY: Hello, soldier.

OPPIE: Ma’am.

KITTY: Hello, officer.

They kiss.

KITTY: Everything is packed. Peter is staying behind with Charlotte until they move to Los Alamos next week. I like your uniform.

890

OPPIE: Thank you.

KITTY: Can you order a man to kill?

SERBER enters, also in US Army uniform, that of the rank of sergeant.

895

SERBER: Lieutenant Colonel Oppenheimer, sir ... Sergeant Robert Serber, reporting for duty, sir!

KITTY: Look at you, Bob!

SERBER: Very natty, don’t you think? Very authoritative.

OPPIE: Atten-SHUN! Chin up, chest out, shoulders back, stomach in. Eyes front, soldier!

900

SERBER: Hey now, that’s pretty good.

OPPIE: Drop to the floor and give me twenty. That’s an order soldier!

SERBER: Sir! Yes, sir! [Starts doing press-ups.]

KITTY: Frank called the house.

905

OPPIE: When was this?

KITTY: This morning. I told him not to call again.

OPPIE: Was there a click on the line? Did you hear the click?

KITTY: I don’t know.

OPPIE: How is he?

910

KITTY: I told him not to call again and I hung up.

OPPIE: That was the right thing for you to do.

SERBER: No more ... no more ... I have a body designed for mathematics ... no more ...

KITTY: I’ll leave you boys to play dress-up. Look at you two ... glasses like milk bottle bottoms ... limbs like bamboo ... all dressed up to go to war. [Exits.]

915

SERBER: You heard about Joe Weinberg?

OPPIE: What about Joe Weinberg?

SERBER: He’s been drafted to peel potatoes in Alaska because they think he’s a Communist sympathizer.

920

OPPIE: Yes, I had heard that.

SERBER: Well?

OPPIE: We’re all in the military now.

SERBER: He should be at Los Alamos with the rest of us.

925

OPPIE: What would you have me do?

SERBER: Gee, I don’t know, Oppie ... get him reassigned. You have the stripes now – bark some orders.

OPPIE: And why would I do that?

	BETHE enters.	930
SERBER:	You're out of uniform soldier.
BETHE:	It's not possible ... under these conditions ... to do as you ask. We will never find the manpower ... the grad students ... the PhDs. How am I to recruit them to a project I am not authorized to discuss?	935
OPPIE:	Any scientist worth our time would surely have guessed what it is we are asking of them ...
BETHE:	It is unpalatable to me to coerce men onto this bomb project without the full facts ...
SERBER:	We are not to call it the bomb project.	940
BETHE:	Excuse me?
SERBER:	It is the Manhattan Engineer District ... for reasons of security.
BETHE:	This world of codewords and obfuscation ... it is not my world.
OPPIE:	I'm sorry, but it is.	945
BETHE:	I am already within the circle?
OPPIE:	You are.
BETHE:	These are academics and free-thinkers ... they are perhaps not so eager to be press-ganged into the military.
OPPIE:	Then appeal to their patriotism.	950
BETHE:	Take to the seas when the men start wearing flags ... flags and thick-soled boots. I will build the bomb if I must. But I will do it as me ... as Hans Bethe ... not as ... not as a buzz-cut ... as a broken and rebuilt man. I would feel more comfortable if you were to build it as J Robert Oppenheimer ... as a professor, not as a colonel.	955
OPPIE:	Fascism is tearing Europe apart and you want to argue about the symbolism of our shirts and our pants?
BETHE:	I know of fascism! As a German ... as a man with family still in Germany ... perhaps my understanding is just that little touch sharper. It must be built here ... I cannot fathom the other. But I will not wear a uniform. I suspect I will not be alone.	960
SERBER:	You are a US citizen, Hans.
BETHE:	You think I would wear a German one? The Cult of the Soldier is not for us all ... not even in wartime.	965
OPPIE:	I will talk to the General.
BETHE:	Thank you. And my recruitment drive?
OPPIE:	There is no room for movement on matters of security.
BETHE:	Fine. [ Beat. ] I am sorry to hear of your Joe Weinberg.
OPPIE:	It is what it is.	970
BETHE:	To lose good men when we are trying to recruit ...
OPPIE:	Is that all?
BETHE:	No uniforms?
OPPIE:	No uniforms.
BETHE:	Thank you. Oh, and ... [ Hands OPPIE a folded piece of paper. ]	975
OPPIE:	What is this?
BETHE:	The proof that we are in no danger of igniting the atmosphere. A near zero possibility. Perhaps it slipped your mind between salutes. [ Exits. ]
	Silence.	980
OPPIE:	Get out of that uniform – you look ridiculous.
SERBER:	At least I'll have something to wear for Halloween.

OPPIE:	I need you on a train to Santa Fe in the morning. I need you in Los Alamos as soon as possible.
SERBER:	Charlotte and I ... the plan was to move next week ... we were to look after Peter ...	985
OPPIE:	Then Charlotte stays behind. It's not an inobvious solution.
SERBER:	I can't ask that of her ... you can't ask ... of us.
OPPIE:	You need to take your share of responsibility for what we are doing.	990
SERBER:	Yes, Oppie. [ Exits. ]
	LOMANITZ enters.
LOMANITZ:	Everyone is packing for Los Alamos. Apart from me. I am supposed to remain at Berkeley.
OPPIE:	Yes.	995
LOMANITZ:	Could you explain to me the reasoning behind ...?
OPPIE:	Rossi ... I have a great many things to ...
LOMANITZ:	You want me to join the Rad Lab ... under Professor Lawrence?
OPPIE:	Yes.
LOMANITZ:	The man is a Republican nightmare ... the merest hint that the boys in the lab might form a union and he –	1000
OPPIE:	Giovanni Rossi Lomanitz – that you would even take the idea of a union to Earnest Lawrence ... it boggles the mind.
LOMANITZ:	The radiation laboratory is a workplace ... the boys who work there are workers. The fillings in their teeth have become radioactive. Hold a Geiger counter to their mouths ... the damn thing sings like fat in a pan. You expect me to work in that kind of environment without representation from a union?	1005
OPPIE:	I expect you to acknowledge that there are sacrifices to be made during wartime.	1010
LOMANITZ:	I should not have to throw myself on a spear to prove that I am willing to die for my country.
OPPIE:	You need to be less vocal ... in your politics ... in your dealings with people ...
LOMANITZ:	Are you punishing me? Are you ... for what? Because of the books I have read ... the convictions that I hold? The books you lent me ... the convictions that you instilled. Your lectures ... those first few weeks of lectures ... those discussions ... drinking in the small hours ... science and art ... Niels Bohr and Roosevelt ... social reform ... Engels ... Hindu scripture ... and I find myself in my spare time trying on porkpie hats ... training myself to enjoy pipe tobacco ... reading Marcel Proust. I'm from Oklahoma!	1015 1020
OPPIE:	The Berkeley work will be good work ... essential work ... isotopes ... electromagnetic separation. Professor Lawrence is a good man. You will learn a great deal.	1025
LOMANITZ:	I guess I should be grateful I'm not being shipped off to Alaska to peel potatoes!

33 – LECTURE SERIES: TAMPER MATERIALS

SERBER:	How to Build an Atom Bomb 101.
WILSON:	Get yourself two lumps of uranium ... smack 'em together. Boom.	1030
SERBER:	Here endeth the lesson. Any questions?
WILSON:	'Then why is it so difficult?' I hear you ask.
SERBER:	Ah, well now you're moving out of the theoretical world ... now you want to be practical.	1035
WILSON:	Raw uranium ore won't cut it ... it needs to be enriched ... and the infrastructure you'd need to do that would have to be massive.
SERBER:	I mean, there's a handful of countries with the right level of industry and infrastructure.	1040
WILSON:	And uranium is rare ... and the refined stuff you'd need from it ... the isotope uranium-235 ... makes up maybe 0.72% of the naturally occurring stuff.
SERBER:	There's also plutonium ... but that's a bit too new.
WILSON:	We just don't know that much about it yet.	1045
SERBER:	Well, shoot ... you want to do this quickly, right?
WILSON:	You're in kind of a rush?
SERBER:	Then you're going to need several processing plants ...
WILSON:	... you're going to need about 10% of the national grid of the US to run these plants ...	1050
SERBER:	... and still you'll be lucky if you get a couple of hundred pounds of uranium in a year.
WILSON:	'Well, how much do you need?'
SERBER:	We don't know ...
WILSON:	and this stuff is far too precious for Trial and Error testing...	1055
SERBER:	Getting it together and keeping it together – that's the trick.
WILSON:	You bring it together too slowly ... you bring not enough of it together ...
SERBER:	... and hey, you'll kill everyone in the room ... well done.
WILSON:	But it won't be a bomb.	1060
SERBER:	A billion dollar suicide and the Nazis won't give a damn.
WILSON:	So we've got make the most of every last ounce.
SERBER:	Which brings us to ... tamper materials.
WILSON:	You know on a flashlight how you've got a reflective surface behind the bulb? It's the same deal, only we're putting two flashlights together – face on. No escape.	1065
SERBER:	This diagram represents a mass of uranium that is currently undergoing fission ... but it's wasteful. We are losing quite a lot of neutrons through the surface of the mass.
WILSON:	But surround it with a tamper material ... a material that will reflect those neutrons back into the uranium ...	1070
SERBER:	... a jacket of something reflective and non-reactive ... tungsten, say ...
WILSON:	... and those neutrons attempting to escape can't get out.
SERBER:	They're corralled. They're a pack of wolves in a broom cupboard and they'll tear themselves apart.	1075

35 – MILITARY BASE AT LOS ALAMOS

A MILITARY POLICEMAN enters.

POLICEMAN: Excuse me, Professor Oppenheimer ...?
 OPPIE: Yes?
 POLICEMAN: Professor Teller is here to see you. 1080
 OPPIE: Of course.
 POLICEMAN: Professor Teller isn't wearing his white badge.
 OPPIE: Let him in, for god's sake.
 POLICEMAN: Yes, sir. [exits]
 TELLER: There you have it! Right there! Unbelievable. One cannot visit 1085
 the bathroom without the correct certificate ... the appropriate
 permission slip.
 OPPIE: Hello, Edward.
 TELLER: I am tired. I sleep in a dormitory with ten other men. I shower in a communal shower. When my wife and son join me we will 1090 be given a house. It will not be such as yours ... but as long as there is space for my piano ... [Beat.] My mail is being censored.
 My wife complains in her letters that my correspondence is mostly thick black lines. Any names – redacted. Any mention of the building situation – redacted. Any complaint about my lack 1095
 of privacy – redacted.
 OPPIE: You think they would allow them to pass unchecked?
 TELLER: Two more weeks and they will come. Until then there is the work. I am not tired when I work. I am not tired when the work is 1100 interesting.
 OPPIE: No, Edward.
 TELLER: No?
 OPPIE: No, you cannot work on the super bomb.
 TELLER: But a hydrogen bomb! The processes of the stars themselves!
 This is what is fascinating to me ... not lumps of rock ... not 1105
 lumps of degrading rock ...
 OPPIE: There is not the resource to follow up on the super ... not at the moment ...
 TELLER: The numbers you have me working on ... the calculations ... any member of Hans' theoretical division ... 1110
 OPPIE: But they would not do it as fast or with as few mistakes as you.
 You will do the work that you are assigned.
 TELLER: No, I will not.
 OPPIE: No?
 TELLER: It is beneath me. 1115
 OPPIE: Beneath you?
 TELLER: It is a nonsense to have someone of my ability scratching out
 sums that would barely challenge a college freshman.
 OPPIE: Take your offence and your boredom and your ego – I have no
 use for them. 1120
 TELLER: There is opportunity here. The things we are learning about atomic structure – a decade's worth of peacetime research in a handful of years! We have funding ... we have resource ... and you would have me hold back?
 OPPIE: Our enemies are upon us! We have within our reach a blunt 1125 instrument and we will grab it and we will use it and we will win.

TELLER: There is no beauty or elegance in these equations.
 OPPIE: Thousands of people – at Los Alamos, Oak Ridge, Berkeley, Chicago and across the entire country – are working toward a single purpose ... and, contrary to what you may believe, that purpose is to end this war ... not to enable fantasies of a hydrogen bomb. 1130

TELLER: I have not fantasized this science ... it is reality.
 OPPIE: It is not! It is not a reality unless I say it is. It cannot exist unless I say it exists. And I say that there is no resource for a hydrogen bomb ... not here ... not now. Oh ... oh ... but excuse me ... I have forgotten myself ... you are the great Edward Teller ... how remiss of me. Of course you may work on your pet project, Edward. The world will simply all have to tolerate a little more war ... a little more slaughter. How shortsighted of me. You may have an hour. 1135

TELLER: I'm sorry?
 OPPIE: I will give you one hour ... every week ... to come and discuss with me your ideas on the super. That is what you want, isn't it? 1140

TELLER: An hour is no ...
 OPPIE: Edward ... it is all that I will give.
 TELLER: And I am supposed to be grateful?
 OPPIE: It is an hour or it is nothing. 1145

36 – KITTY AND OPPIE'S LOS ALAMOS HOME

KITTY and OPPIE's Los Alamos home.

Nighttime. A party in the distance. 1150

KITTY and OPPIE. KITTY is visibly pregnant.

MILITARY POLICEMAN enters from the bedroom.

POLICEMAN: Peter's tucked up snug as a bug in there, Mrs Oppenheimer.
 KITTY: Thank you.
 POLICEMAN: Just yell out the window if you need anything, sir. 1155

The MILITARY POLICEMAN exits.

OPPIE: Our security detail double as babysitters now?
 KITTY: I may as well make use of them.
 OPPIE: Groves is unhappy that all the women are pregnant ... and that my wife is leading by example. 1160

KITTY: You build a new town in the mountains ... kids running in the street ... tricycles ... jumpropes ... you provide free government funded healthcare for the men and their families ... and you're surprised by the birthrate? It's a boomtown, Robert. You've built a boomtown. 1165

OPPIE: You reek of booze.
 KITTY: It's the chemists' punch. They mix in the alcohol from the lab. Two hundred percent proof. I can still feel it in my throat ... feel it in my blood. Do you begrudge me a social life?

OPPIE: No. 1170
 KITTY: What else is there for me to do?
 OPPIE: No ... go ahead ... besides, we may need some new friends.

KITTY: What does that mean?
 OPPIE: Don't expect a dinner invitation from Edward and Mici Teller.
 KITTY: I can live without the Tellers. I can live without his appalling records ... his awful Beethoven. 1175

OPPIE: He smarts because I made Hans a division leader and not him.
 KITTY: He smarts because Groves gave you Los Alamos ... but he could not build this bomb. He could not rally the men and guide the work. Can you imagine Edward Teller as the Mayor of Boomtown? He has the arrogance ... and there is an arrogance required to build this weapon of yours ... to even consider the idea. What is rare is when arrogance is partnered with sacrifice. 1180

OPPIE: And what have I sacrificed?
 KITTY: Oh Robert ... Robert ... where is your brother? 1185
 OPPIE: There has to be distance.
 KITTY: Yes.
 OPPIE: There has to be distance. [Beat.] Haakon ... before we moved up here ... before work truly began ... Haakon said ... he came to me and said that he had been approached by someone who was in contact with the Soviet consulate in San Francisco. He was asking if I wanted to feed information about the bomb to our Soviet allies. 1190

KITTY: What did you tell him?
 OPPIE: I told him nothing. I may have used the word 'treason'. 1195
 KITTY: You need to tell Groves.
 OPPIE: Yes.
 KITTY: You see that, don't you?
 OPPIE: I do. But Haakon ...
 KITTY: ... should never have come to you. 1200
 OPPIE: He's my friend.
 KITTY: Not if he were to ask that. Cast him off. The bomb will not be built by some spineless weakling.
 OPPIE: No. 1205
 KITTY: The man who builds this bomb will be hailed a hero.
 OPPIE: I have never asked for that.
 KITTY: But you have wanted it. Everyone will know your name. Everyone will want to bask in your light.
 OPPIE: My 'light' ... if I were to show it ... would strike the world blind. 1210
 KITTY: You cannot be scared of your own potential.
 OPPIE: I have it within me to murder every last soul on the planet – should I not be scared?

Paper 1

May/June 2017

PRE-RELEASE MATERIAL

To be given to candidates on receipt by the Centre.

---

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

The questions in Paper 1 will be based on the stimuli and on the extract from David Haig's play Pressure provided in this booklet.

You may do any preparatory work that is considered appropriate. It is recommended that you perform the extract, at least informally.

You will not be permitted to take this copy of the material or any other notes or preparation into the examination. A clean copy of the pre-release material will be provided with the Question Paper.

---

This document consists of 37 printed pages and 3 blank pages.

STIMULI

Choose one of the following three stimuli and devise a piece of drama based on it. You should work in groups of between two and six performers. Your piece should last approximately 15 minutes.

In the Written examination, you will be asked questions about your piece that will cover both practical and theoretical issues.

Stimulus 1

Quotation: 'How many fond fools serve mad jealousy!'
From William Shakespeare's The Comedy of Errors [Act 2, Scene 1]

Stimulus 2

Grimms' Fairy Tales: Hansel and Gretel

Stimulus 3

Photograph: Two people working in an organic farm shop

EXTRACT*Taken from Pressure, by David Haig

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

David Haig's play Pressure was first performed in Edinburgh in 2014.

The play is set in June 1944 and explores the true story of the tensions and disagreements between two professional meteorologists, James Stagg and Irving P. Krick, weather-forecasters whose job it was to advise General Dwight D. 'Ike' Eisenhower, the Allied Supreme Commander with sole responsibility for the D-Day landings. The 'D-Day landings' is a term used to refer to the allied invasion of German-occupied France, which was a decisive factor in bringing the Second World War to an end.

The drama centres on the widely diverging views of the forecasters as to the likely weather on the day of the landings, since the lives of thousands of people depended on there being good weather that day.

The play is in two Acts, and the extract consists of Act One, Scenes One and Two.

Characters in order of appearance

Lieutenant Kay Summersby	Ike's chauffeur, unofficial aide and confidante
Dr James Stagg	Chief Meteorological Officer for the Allied Forces
Flight Lieutenant Andrew Carter	A junior meteorologist, assisting Stagg
Naval Meteorologist
General Dwight D. 'Ike' Eisenhower	Allied Supreme Commander with sole responsibility for the D-Day Landings
Colonel Irving P. Krick	Chief Meteorologist for the United States Armed Forces
Naval Rating	A Junior Ordinary Seaman
Captain Johns	A British Army Adjutant
Electrician
General 'Tooley' Spaatz	Commander, United States Air Force in Europe
Admiral Sir Bertram 'Bertie' Ramsay	Commander-in-Chief, Allied Naval Forces
Air Chief Marshall Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory	Commander-in-Chief, Allied Expeditionary Air Force

ACT 1

Scene 1

1.00 p.m. Friday, 2 June 1944.

Southwick House, Portsmouth, England. Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force for the invasion of German-occupied France.

A large room dominated by floor-to-ceiling French windows leading out to a small balcony. From the balcony, a view of the staggering Naval armada packed into Portsmouth Harbour – battleships, destroyers and landing craft, rail to rail, as far as the eye can see. 5

A stifflingly hot, summer afternoon. The sun streams through the windows, dust motes in the air. The room looks ... transitional, as if waiting for someone to give it a purpose. Piles of wooden chairs, tables, a single telephone. There's a giant noticeboard, punctured by hundreds of drawing pins, but no notices. Leaning against this wall are two sets of library steps on wheels. There's an old upright piano in the corner. 10
15

LIEUTENANT KAY SUMMERSBY [thirty-five years old] sits at a table by the window, sorting through a huge pile of correspondence. She is attractive, vivacious, the daughter of an Irish cavalry officer. She is also General Dwight D. 'Ike' Eisenhower's chauffeur, unofficial aide and confidante. She is dressed in the uniform of the Motor Transport Corps. The uniform is worn out. 20

KAY, like all the characters in the play, looks unslept. She lifts her head to feed off the warmth of the sun, but her peace is disturbed by the sudden roar of a fleet of bombers passing overhead, heading for the French coast. Their shadows blot out the sun. 25

The noise of the bombers masks the sound of the door opening. An ordinary-looking man with a tidy moustache enters. He is dusty, sweaty and is wearing an ill-fitting RAF uniform. He carries a suitcase and a briefcase. This is DR JAMES STAGG, Chief Meteorological Officer for the Allied Forces. 30

He looks around him.

STAGG: I must be in the wrong room.

KAY jumps to her feet. 35

KAY: Good afternoon, sir.

STAGG checks the number on the door.

STAGG: Room six, first floor?

KAY: Yes, sir.

STAGG: Should you be in here? 40
 KAY: I beg your pardon, sir.
 STAGG: Should you be in here?

He takes a sheet of paper out of his pocket and checks it.

KAY: Room six. You'll need to clear your stuff out.
 [demanding some sort of normal exchange] How do you do. I'm 45
 Lieutenant Summersby.

STAGG: James Stagg. Is there only one telephone?
 I'll need more than that. Who should I talk to?

KAY: I'll find out.

STAGG: [looking around him. Shocked] This is just a room. 50

KAY: I'll tell the General you've arrived.

STAGG: Which General?

KAY: General Eisenhower.

A moment as STAGG digests this.

STAGG: He knows I'm arriving today. 55

KAY: Does he? It may have slipped his mind, he's a rather busy man.

STAGG: It won't have slipped his mind.

*They stare at each other. STAGG, impassive. KAY, annoyed.
 She spins on her heel and leaves the room.*

STAGG immediately removes KAY's correspondence from her 60 table, dumping it on the floor, then he drags the table further into the room. He does the same with the other table and places a chair behind each.

*He takes out a handkerchief and mops his brow, then opens the 65
 French windows and goes out onto the balcony. Shielding his eyes from the sun, he looks up at the sky.*

There is a knock on the door. STAGG returns from the balcony.

Come in.

A young man [ANDREW], excited and out of breath, enters in the 70 uniform of a junior Air Force officer.

ANDREW: Welcome to Southwick House, Dr Stagg.

STAGG: Thank you.

STAGG claims one of the two tables as his own and starts unpacking his briefcase.

ANDREW: It's a great honour to meet you, sir. 75

STAGG says nothing. He sets out mathematical instruments and an array of pencils and coloured pens on his table.

STAGG: I so enjoyed your paper on the Coriolis effect.

STAGG: It's a fascinating subject.

ANDREW: I'm a great admirer of the Bergen School. Upper-air structures. 80

- STAGG: You're on the right lines then.
- A young NAVAL METEOROLOGIST hurries past the open door, but stops when he sees ANDREW. He hands ANDREW a piece of paper.*
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Latest thermograms, sir. Stevenson screen two. 85
 ANDREW: Thank you.
- The METEOROLOGIST marches off. [Whenever the door is open, we're aware of voices, footsteps, doors slamming. A constant buzz of urgent activity.]*
- [To STAGG.] I'm seconded to you, sir, for as long as you're here, 90
 if there's anything you need ...
- STAGG: [tension in his voice] I need everything. Look at this room. I need an anemometer, a Stevenson screen, thermometers, barograph,
 barometer, telephones.
- ANDREW: Admiral Ramsay has a forecast room downstairs, I'll see what I 95 can find.
- STAGG: I'd be grateful.
- The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST returns. He salutes sharply and hands STAGG a rolled-up chart.*
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Synoptic chart, sir. 1300 GMT. 100
- STAGG takes it.
- STAGG: Very good. How frequently are you producing charts?
 NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Every six hours, sir.
 STAGG: Normal synoptic hours?
 NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Yes sir. 0100, 0700, 1300 and 1800. 105
 STAGG: And intermediates at 0400, 1000 and 1600?
 NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Yes, sir.
 STAGG: Thank you.
- The METEOROLOGIST leaves. STAGG wheels a set of library steps to the giant notice board and climbs the steps.* 110
- ANDREW: Shall I give you a hand, sir?
- ANDREW wheels the other steps over and climbs them. STAGG hands him one end of the chart.*
- I'm Andrew Carter, by the way. From the Met Office. Flight-
 Lieutenant Carter I should say. They plonked me in the Air Force, 115
 I've no idea why.
- STAGG: No. [A beat, then:] I'm a Group Captain, I've never been near an aeroplane.
- STAGG pins the top of the chart.
- ANDREW: Good journey, sir? 120
 STAGG: Eighteen miles in seven and a half hours. An average of 2.4 miles per hour.

- ANDREW: The roads are impossibly busy.
- Short silence.*
- STAGG: Apparently, there are so many extra tanks and troops in the country, only the barrage balloons stop Britain from sinking. 125
- ANDREW: Aye, so I heard. It's a fine, sunny day, I should have walked. Bit warm for walking, sir. We have a screen in the grounds. The midday reading was 92.4.
- STAGG has finished pinning the chart. 130
- STAGG: You can let go.
- They release the chart which unrolls down the noticeboard. It's a massive synoptic weather chart, stretching from Newfoundland in the west to Central Europe in the east, from Greenland in the north to the North African Coast in the south. Written along the top is the caption: '1300 GMT FRIDAY JUNE 2 1944.'* 135
- For STAGG, a new weather chart is like a Christmas present. He is instantly absorbed. ANDREW could be a million miles away. STAGG gently touches the chart, then traces his finger along one of the finely drawn lines.* 140
- The chart could be big enough to be seen clearly by the whole audience.*
- A high-ranking American officer appears in the open doorway below them. He looks up at STAGG.*
- IKE: Good news? 145
- STAGG is too absorbed to reply. He glances briefly at the American officer, then turns back to the chart. ANDREW, on the other hand, scuttles down his library steps and slams to attention.*
- ANDREW: Sir!
- STAGG continues to examine the chart, he places his hand over the Arctic Circle.* 150
- STAGG: [half to himself] Full of menace ...
- He climbs down a few steps and places his hand on the middle of the Atlantic Ocean.*
- ... these are formidable ... 155
- He climbs off the steps and pushes them to one side. He places his hand over the Azores at the bottom of the chart.*
- ... this is gentler ... but interesting.
- IKE: Good prognosis?
- STAGG: When Colonel Krick arrives, we'll confer, then I believe I report to General Eisenhower. 160
- IKE: I am General Eisenhower.

ANDREW remains rigidly at attention. STAGG looks genuinely amazed. 165

STAGG: I thought your voice was familiar. It's seeing you in the flesh, rather than just speaking to you on the telephone ... and in your photographs you seem to have more hair than you actually have.

IKE cannot find a suitable response. 170

ANDREW: [to STAGG] I'll see what I can find downstairs, Dr Stagg.

ANDREW leaves. IKE closes the door. The buzz of voices in the corridor is muted.

IKE takes a packet of cigarettes out of his pocket.

IKE: You got an ashtray in here? 175

STAGG: I've got very little of anything in here.

IKE: Not a problem. What do you need?

STAGG: Everything. A forecast room is a specific environment, this is just a room. It's certainly not good enough for the purpose.

IKE: Give Lieutenant Summersby a list of what you want. 180

IKE walks towards the balcony.

I need you to be close. I'm a couple of doors down.

Suddenly his right knee buckles under him.

Dammit!!

He grabs one of the tables to support himself. 185

I have a knee. Damn!

IKE gently flexes his leg.

Boring! Cartilage. Football injury.

Gingerly, IKE takes a couple of steps.

STAGG: Not talking about soccer, Dr Stagg, I'm talking about American football ... more like your 'rugby', am I right? You ever play rugby? 190
On occasion, sir.

IKE: If we ever get a spare moment, you're gonna tell me what in heck is going on in that game. I saw a match once and I sure didn't know. 195

IKE limps out onto the balcony.

What a beautiful day. Flaming June!
What part of Scotland are you from?

- STAGG: Dalkieth, sir. A wee town by Edinburgh.
 IKE: I just love that city! First time I saw the castle on the rock – man! 200
 I’m from Kansas, I didn’t see a hill till I was twelve years old.
- IKE looks down at Portsmouth Harbour.*
- Seven thousand Naval vessels, Dr Stagg.
- He turns back to STAGG.*
- Seven thousand vessels, one hundred and sixty thousand ground 205
 troops, two hundred thousand Naval personnel, fifteen hospital ships, eight thousand doctors, four airborne divisions. The biggest amphibious landing in history. And let me tell you, every piece of the jigsaw is in place. Every man and woman involved is ready and waiting. There’s no more to learn. It’s time to run with the ball. 210
But ... there is still one uncertainty, one imponderable that can stop this thing happening ... that’s why I’ve put you in this room. I want you right beside me for the next four days.
- STAGG: I worry ...
 IKE: Not your job. 215
- But STAGG persists.*
- STAGG: I worry that what you require of me is scientifically impossible.
- IKE waits for STAGG to continue.*
- IKE: Long-term forecasting is only ever informed guesswork. 220
 Monday isn’t long term, for Pete’s sake.
- STAGG checks his watch.*
- STAGG: Sixty-five hours to go. In this part of the world, anything more than twenty-four hours is long term.
- IKE: You listen to me, soldier. Your Met Office tells me you’re a genius, you’re tearing up the rulebooks. I don’t care how you do it, but I’m 225 relying on you and Colonel Krick to tell me if the weather’s gonna be good on Monday.
- STAGG: And on Sunday I will be able to offer you a degree of certainty.
 IKE: Sunday’s too late, you understand? I need to know now. You got me? 230
- STAGG is silent.*
- We’ve got one chance, Dr Stagg. One chance only to get this right.
- IKE walks towards the door, still limping slightly.*
- Ask them to bring up a bed, you’re gonna need it. 235
- IKE is almost out of the door, then he turns back.*
- For the next four days, you’re part of the family. Same team, same ‘end zone’. Pardon me, wrong game. What would you call the end zone?

- STAGG: The try line? 240
 IKE: Sounds good. Same team, Stagg, same try line.
- IKE leaves, closing the door. STAGG mops his brow again. Another fleet of bombers roars overhead.*
- STAGG opens his suitcase and takes out a framed photograph of a heavily pregnant woman holding a child. He stares at the picture for a moment, then sits at his table, placing the photo in front of him.* 245
- He concentrates on the chart on the wall and starts to make notes.*
- A knock on the door.* 250
- STAGG: Come.
- KAY enters.*
- KAY: I've brought the 'little blue book'.
- She flicks through to the correct page.*
- If we lost this, the Allies would probably lose the war! Your first meeting will be at 1500 hours. General Eisenhower, Air Chief Marshal Leigh-Mallory, Admiral Ramsay and General Spaatz will be present. They would like to meet you here. In this room. 255
- STAGG nods, concentrating on the chart. He changes pencil and draws a series of lines.* 260
- STAGG: Does that give you enough time?
 If Krick arrives soon.
- Silence. STAGG continues to draw lines, rub them out, refine them, make notes. KAY watches him work. KAY is not sure whether STAGG is talking to her, but suddenly he expresses his thoughts out loud.* 265
- What he ignores is the third dimension, vertical structures, the upper air. This jet is thin, rapid, straight. No meandering, no Rossby waves. Freezing tongues of disruption pushing south. Vicious extrusions of cold air. He cannot ignore that. 270
- KAY: Who's ignoring it?
- STAGG looks up, surprised. He had forgotten KAY was in the room. He stares at her, then returns to his work.*
- STAGG: Sooner or later, the Arctic air will penetrate the westerly flow. Low 2 and Low 3 will be reinvigorated. But he won't see it. 275
- STAGG falls silent again, making further notes. Then, suddenly:*
- I sent Flight Lieutenant Carter in search of equipment. There's been

- no foresight at all, the set-up's amateur! These tables should have sloping tops, I need paper, ink, pencils, thermometers, barograph, barometer ... telephones, I must have more telephones. 280
- KAY: I'll see what I can do.
- STAGG: It's urgent.
- KAY: Everything, Dr Stagg, is urgent. I'll do my best.
- It's at this moment that KAY notices the correspondence she was working on, piled up on the floor. She marches over and starts to pick it up, placing it on top of a filing cabinet. She is furious, but her tone is controlled and polite.* 285
- Dr Stagg, this is the Supreme Allied Commander's personal correspondence. These are heartfelt, handwritten letters, sent from all over the world to General Eisenhower ... 290
- The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST enters and hands STAGG some papers.*
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Radio soundings for the past twenty-four hours, sir. From the weather ships.
- KAY continues brightly: 295
- KAY: ... As soon as I find another room in which I can work, I will do so.
- STAGG: [to the METEOROLOGIST] Thank you. I'd like all readings relating to Low 5 and the Azores anti-cyclone to be isolated and telephoned directly to me.
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Yes, sir. 300
- KAY: In the meantime, for a few more hours, I would appreciate it if I could leave all this here. Somewhere safe ... and not just ...
- The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST leaves, closing the door.*
- ... dumped on the bloody floor.
- STAGG looks up, surprised by KAY's sudden vehemence. 305
- STAGG: I'm sorry, what was your name?
- KAY: Lieutenant Summersby, sir.
- STAGG: Lieutenant Summersby, this is a forecast room.
- A short icy silence.*
- KAY: Do you ever smile, Dr Stagg? 310
- STAGG: Smile?
- He considers the question deeply.*
- I hope I do. If there's something to smile about.
- The door opens. A good-looking, but overfed man in his late thirties, breezes into the room. He has luxuriant hair and a well-trimmed moustache. This is COLONEL IRVING P. KRICK, Chief Meteorologist for the United States Armed Forces and STAGG's 'second-in-command'.* 315

- KRICK: Man, it's hot out there!
- KRICK wipes the sweat off his brow. 320
- Dr Stagg, I presume! Do we salute each other? I don't think so, do you?
- They don't.*
- Fascinating to attach a face to the voice.
You're taller than I imagined. 325
You're rounder than I imagined.
- STAGG: A momentary beat as KRICK digests STAGG's bluntness/ rudeness. KRICK looks around him.
- KRICK: Do they call this a forecast room?
- KAY steps forward. 330
- KAY: Sir.
- KRICK smiles. He embraces KAY and kisses her on the cheek.
- KRICK: Hey! Kay Summersby! Long time, no see. Kay and I are old buddies. [To KAY.] Right, sweetheart? August '39, Stagg, David Selznik calls me in California, he's shooting a movie. Wants a forecast for a three-day period in Beverly Hills. The scene is the burning of Atlanta. Wants to burn the stage set to the ground. And of course he does not want precipitation. Great movie! Kay drove me and Ike to the London premiere. True, sweetheart? 335
- KAY: Correct, sir. 340
- At this point, the NAVAL METEOROLOGIST and a RATING enter pushing trollies, laden high with large black leather folders – perhaps as many as a hundred. Each folder has a series of dates on it. E.G. 'MAY-JUNE 1912', 'MAY-JUNE 1923', etc.*
- KRICK: [to the METEOROLOGIST] Put 'em over there. 345
NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Sir!
- KRICK: Selznik said to me: 'Irv, I don't want to see a drop of rain for three days.' MGM give me dates, I forecast a dry spell, they shoot the scenes – beautiful weather, movie's a hit, I'm on the front page of the LA Times and I get to meet Clark Gable. Movie called Gone with the Wind. You see it, Stagg? 350
- STAGG: No.
- The METEOROLOGIST and RATING leave.*
- KAY: Did you meet Vivien Leigh?
KRICK: I did. 355
KAY: What was she like?
KRICK: Cute, of course. Kinda ... remote ... beautiful skin, but too fragile for my taste, she looked breakable.
KAY: How exciting!

- STAGG picks up one of KRICK's folders. 360
- KRICK: [explaining the folders] Analogues.
 STAGG: I realise that.
 KRICK: I guess you know, Kay, Stagg and I have been talking on the telephone since the middle of March. This is the first time we've actually met. 365
- STAGG: Shall we start? The meeting is at 1500 hours.
- The phone rings. STAGG answers it.*
- [On phone.] Stagg ... one moment please ...
- STAGG grabs paper and pencil.
- KRICK: [to KAY] You still driving Ike round in a Buick? 370
 KAY: No, the Buick died, the gears went haywire.
 STAGG: [on phone] 40.2 north ...
- KAY focuses on STAGG as she and KRICK talk.
- KRICK: What do you drive now?
 KAY: A Packard Clipper. 375
 STAGG: [on phone] 46.7 west ...
 KRICK: Good motor car?
 KAY: The brakes are a perfect bore, I spend my life attaching bleeder hoses to the wheel cylinders.
- STAGG: [on phone] 1011 millibars ... rising ... 2 knots. Thank you. 380
- STAGG puts the phone down.
- Low 5 is moving north.
- STAGG goes to the chart and, with a red crayon, adjusts the position of storm Low 5 a fraction further north.
- A British Army Adjutant in his forties, CAPTAIN JOHNS, appears at the door.* 385
- CAPTAIN JOHNS: Lieutenant Summersby?
 KAY: Would you excuse me, Colonel?
 KRICK: Irving, please.
- KAY gets a card out of her pocket. She gives it to STAGG. 390
- KAY: [to STAGG] Please ring this internal extension if you need to speak to General Eisenhower. He'd like you to call at any time, day or night, if it's important.
 STAGG: Is this a direct line to General Eisenhower?
 KAY: No, sir, it's a direct line to me. 395
- They hold each other's gaze for a moment. STAGG pockets the card. KAY marches smartly out of the room, followed by CAPTAIN JOHNS.*
- KRICK: Now we can actually see each other, maybe things'll improve.

- STAGG: [checking his watch] Sixty-four hours. We should start. 400
- STAGG stands in front of the chart and begins his analysis.
- A family of four low-pressure centres, four aggressive storms, stretching from Jutland, Low 1 –
- He points to Low 1 on the chart.*
- across the Atlantic Ocean to Low 4 south of Nova Scotia. A fifth storm, Low 5, lurks here. 405
- He points to Low 5.*
- KRICK: Already on the move.
- STAGG: Aye, but yet to be drawn into the bosom of the family. We also have a formidable, unforgiving mass of high pressure extending a third of the way round the Arctic Circle, from the Rocky Mountains to the White Sea. 410
- KRICK: Sure.
- STAGG: Finally, an area of high pressure over the Azores ...
- He points to the anti-cyclone over the Azores.* 415
- KRICK: That's what interests me.
- STAGG: ... gentler than its polar cousin, it's moving lethargically ...
- KRICK: Your word, not mine.
- STAGG: ... north-eastward towards Europe. What you see on this chart is precisely what I anticipated ... 420
- KRICK: I'm not interested in what you anticipated.
- STAGG: I mention that I was correct, as a statement of fact ...
- KRICK: But you had to tell me.
- STAGG: ... to support the forecast I'm about to give.
- KRICK: Just talk about the weather ... 425
- STAGG: You diminish yourself, Colonel Krick ...
- KRICK: Talk about the weather not yourself, okay?
- STAGG: ... by accusing me of self-interest.
- KRICK: Talk about the damn weather, will ya?
- Tense silence.* 430
- STAGG: [voice trembling with intensity] If we continue like this, we will fail. We – will – FAIL. And thousands of men will die because of our failure.
- KRICK: What is your forecast for D-Day?
- STAGG collects himself and begins his forecast. 435
- STAGG: My forecast is not only based on weather at the surface ...
- There's a knock on the door. STAGG tries to ignore it.*
- ... I've also considered upper-air currents within the troposphere, at the tropopause, and in the lower stratosphere ...
- Another knock on the door.* 440

- One moment! The most powerful of these currents, measured two hours ago at twenty-eight thousand feet, is three hundred miles wide and three miles deep. I'll refer to it as the jet stream ...
- KRICK: There's no proof the jet stream exists.
- STAGG: It definitely exists. 445
- KRICK: Who says?
- STAGG: [on his way to answer the door] Last week two B17s flying from New York to Prestwick found the jet stream and cut their travel time by one third. The tail wind was measured at 120 knots.
- KRICK: You're taking the word of two pilots? That's not proof. 450
- STAGG opens the door, the NAVAL METEOROLOGIST hands him some papers.
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: More signals from the weather ships, sir.
- The METEOROLOGIST leaves.*
- STAGG: Colonel Krick, you think two-dimensionally. [Glancing at the papers.] Low 5 is still moving. 455
- He puts the papers on his table.*
- You know as well as I do that upper-air structures determine weather at surface level.
- KRICK: To an extent. 460
- STAGG: And the jet stream is no exception. It is now moving very straight and very fast ...
- KRICK: Sure, but at twenty-eight thousand feet.
- STAGG: ... driving storms 2, 3 and 4 at great speed towards Europe.
- KRICK: Not from twenty-eight thousand feet it isn't. 465
- STAGG: Because of the energy of this current, our storms are moving more rapidly than the surface chart would imply. Low 2 will move east or south-eastward. Low 3 will follow quickly, east-north-east to the latitude of Lerwick.
- KRICK: Where's Lerwick, for crying out loud? 470
- STAGG: [pointing it out on the chart] The capital of the Shetlands.
- KRICK: Which is a thousand miles north of the English Channel.
- STAGG: The speed of movement of these depressions ...
- KRICK: A thousand miles, Stagg!
- STAGG: ... will bring to southern England and the English Channel, 475
a stream of humid air with considerable amounts of low cloud, substantial rainfall and, at times, strong winds.
- KRICK: I don't think so.
- STAGG: This weather is likely to last at least two to three days. Saturday, Sunday, and most likely Monday ... D-Day. 480
- KRICK: I don't agree.
- STAGG: The poor weather on D-Day, will, I suggest, make the landings extremely problematic, if not impossible. Low cloud, base five hundred feet, seven to nine-tenths complete cover. Poor visibility. Considerable swell. Waves six to ten feet. Wind speeds, force 485 five to six, occasionally, force seven.
- STAGG has finished.
- KRICK: You done?

- KRICK takes a chart from his black-leather folder and hands it to STAGG. 490
- Okay. This is the weather chart for June 2nd, 1923. And I could have given you June 3rd 1919, or June 10th 1926, all three identical to the chart on this wall.
- STAGG: Not identical.
- KRICK: Virtually. 495
- He points to the main chart on the wall.*
- Same depressions in the Atlantic. Same ridge of high pressure over the Arctic Circle. And most importantly, the same high pressure over the Azores ... here.
- He taps the Azores on the chart, then hands STAGG another analogue chart.* 500
- ... now move forward three days ... to June 5th 1923, D-Day if you like, but twenty-one years ago.
- He uses the main chart to demonstrate.*
- The ridge of high pressure over the Azores has strengthened and pushed north-eastwards, pressing Low 2, 3 and 4 northwards towards Iceland, thereby protecting the English Channel from any direct onslaught by the Atlantic storms. 505
- STAGG: Because the storms in 1923 were less intense.
- KRICK: Not true. It's a classic battle between good and evil! And let me tell you, Stagg, 'good' will prevail, as it did in 1919, '23 and '26. The proof is in the past. I anticipate calm seas and clear skies on Monday – perfect conditions for the Normandy landings. 510
- Complete impasse. The two men stare at each other.*
- STAGG: In less than half an hour, I have to present an agreed forecast to General Eisenhower. How can I do that when you predict a glorious sunny day, and I predict storm-force winds and rain. For the sake of the three hundred and fifty thousand men who will cross the Channel on Monday, is there no room for compromise? 515
- KRICK: You tell me. 520
- STAGG: Nothing would please me more than to agree with you, but I can't. Your system is flawed ...
- KRICK: Garbage!
- STAGG: You have to think three-dimensionally. Surface weather is not enough on its own. 525
- KRICK: Let me tell you something, thousands of lives were saved in the Torch campaign, using analogues.
- STAGG: You were lucky.
- KRICK: [incensed] I was not lucky! The Air Force and the Army needed long-term predictions – and they got them, and the predictions were right – every time. 530
- STAGG: Except, of course, at Anzio. On that occasion your analogues were completely inaccurate, if they had followed your advice not mine, the landings would never have happened.

- KRICK and STAGG are boiling with frustration. 535
- KRICK: We need to compromise.
Compromise requires movement on both sides.
- STAGG gestures to KRICK's leather folders full of weather charts going back fifty years.
- STAGG: Where are those charts from? 540
KRICK: What do you mean, 'where are they from'?
- STAGG: They come from Washington DC. Drawn up by men and women who've never even been to Europe, let alone stood on a beach on the south coast of England. Have you ever done that, Colonel Krick? Have you ever been to the beaches of Hastings, or Brighton, or Portsmouth? 545
- KRICK: I'm a physicist, Stagg, not a tourist.
STAGG: Ten o'clock in the morning it's baking hot, the beach is packed. By midday, there's a howling wind and the Punch and Judy man has packed up for the day. 550
- KRICK: For crying out loud!
STAGG: By two o'clock, the rain is horizontal, but by four o'clock ... the sun is beating down again and it's eighty degrees. Nothing is predictable about British weather, that's why we love to talk about it. 555
- KRICK: So, I have to get wet to know why it's raining?
STAGG: We're not on a film set in Beverly Hills, we are in northern Europe. Your analogue charts do not even begin to replicate what we have here.
- KRICK: In identical scenarios in the past ... 560
STAGG: Not identical ...
KRICK: ... high pressure over the Azores repelled similar storms ...
STAGG: Lesser storms.
KRICK: ... and drove them north. Scotland may have terrible weather on D-Day, the Channel will be fine and sunny. 565
- Impasse again.*
- STAGG: Colonel Krick, it's Friday. The invasion is on Monday. What we decide now, together, will determine whether the invasion goes ahead or not. Let's remember why we've been picked. You're American. I'm British. If D-Day fails because of a bad weather forecast, it fails because of an Allied blunder, no one side must be seen to be blamed. Hence the need for us to agree – [Urgent.] on – some – level. 570
- Long silence. KRICK doesn't budge an inch. STAGG checks his watch.* 575
- [Suddenly on his feet, active.] I've decided to meet the Commanders-in-Chief alone.
- KRICK: You can't do that.
STAGG: The last thing Eisenhower needs at the moment is uncertainty.
KRICK: Or a mistake. 580
STAGG: Final decision.
KRICK: He needs to know there's more than one possible outcome.

STAGG:	The forecast for D-Day is my responsibility.
KRICK:	I'm gonna talk to Spaatz.
STAGG:	By all means.	585
KRICK:	Have you any idea of the consequences of postponement?
STAGG:	Of course I have.
KRICK:	Can you imagine the effect on morale?
STAGG:	I am offering the C-in-Cs a weather forecast in good faith. It's up to them how they choose to respond to it.	590
KRICK:	[ deliberately ] Which is why they should be made aware of both arguments.
	A final impasse.
STAGG:	We'll reconvene at midnight for the next chart.
	A beat in which KRICK decides whether to object further. He doesn't. He goes to the door and opens it, he's confronted by ANDREW coming the other way, laden with meteorological equipment. KRICK barges past him. ANDREW staggers into the room, dumping the equipment on the floor.	595
	STAGG appears oblivious to ANDREW's presence, absorbed in his own thoughts.	600
ANDREW:	We've done rather well, sir ... Where shall I put these?
STAGG:	[ suddenly active, urgent ] Come and look at this chart with me.
	STAGG practically drags ANDREW to the chart.
	I want your opinion.	605
ANDREW:	I don't think I'm ...
STAGG:	I want to know what you think. Will this anti-cyclone over the Azores extend and deflect 2, 3 and 4?
ANDREW:	I don't really think I'm the one to ...
STAGG:	I want to know what you think.	610
	ANDREW leans nervously into the chart.
ANDREW:	I think it ... I think it could go either way.
STAGG:	It could, so what would tilt the balance one way or the other?
	ANDREW looks reluctant to be drawn in, but carries on.
ANDREW:	I would look at the intensity of the Atlantic storms ...	615
STAGG:	Aye, and ...?
	The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST and the NAVAL RATING enter, carrying more equipment.
NAVAL METEOROLOGIST:	[ to STAGG ] Where do you want these, sir?
STAGG:	On the floor. Anywhere. [ To ANDREW. ] And ...?	620
ANDREW:	I would look at the strength of the pressure gradient ...
STAGG:	Aye.
ANDREW:	... and the thickness charts ...
STAGG:	Good. [ To the METEOROLOGIST. ] That'll be all. [ To ANDREW. ] What else?	625

- ANDREW: ... the velocity of the upper winds.
STAGG: Exactly!
- STAGG picks up the papers that were delivered earlier in the scene. He reads out a series of figures.*
- Look at these. 22,000 feet – 115 knots. 26,000 feet – 120 knots. 28,000 feet – 135 knots. Extraordinary readings. Readings you'd associate with December not June. 630
- ANDREW: They could have a huge impact on the speed of the storms.
STAGG: But how do I convince someone who doesn't even believe the jet stream exists? How do I persuade General Eisenhower that the man he trusts relies on a fallacious, archaic system? 635
- ANDREW: I'm sure you'll find a way, sir.
STAGG: Are you? I'm not. And should I be trying to persuade him anyway? There's only one other date this year when spring tide coincides with first light, and on that night there's no full moon. Can he afford to postpone? He may have to go on Monday. 640
- ANDREW: They should listen to you, of all people.
STAGG: Why? Would you, in their shoes? Not a cloud in the sky, not a breath of wind. The last thing they want to hear is what I've got to tell them ... [A sudden change of tone, honest.] And I may be wrong, his anti-cyclone is a plausible theory, he's always been lucky. I'm a scientist, not a gambler. But that's what they're making us do ... gamble, with three hundred and fifty thousand lives at stake. 645
- ANDREW: [disappointed in his hero] It's more than gambling, sir. 650
- STAGG picks a barometer off the top of the pile of equipment and hangs it from an exposed nail on the wall. STAGG taps the glass and adjusts the brass arrow.*
- STAGG: Set up the barograph, will you?
ANDREW: Sir. 655
- A sixty-year-old civilian ELECTRICIAN appears in the doorway, carrying two telephones and a mass of cable.*
- ELECTRICIAN: Two telephones.
STAGG: How long will it take?
ELECTRICIAN: Five minutes. 660
STAGG: If you're quick.
- A sudden thought strikes STAGG. He takes KAY's card out of his pocket and rings her internal extension.*
- STAGG: [on phone] Lieutenant Summersby ... I need a typewriter urgently ... for goodness sake, do you really care if I say please or thank you every time I ask you for something? This isn't an English tea party! 665
- KAY obviously stands her ground, because:*
- ... Please!
- He slams down the telephone.* 670

- ELECTRICIAN: Where d'you want them?
STAGG taps KRICK's table.
- STAGG: On this table.
STAGG sits at his table and starts writing his forecast for Eisenhower. 675
The ELECTRICIAN places the phones on KRICK's table. He extends cable from the phones to a point on the wall.
CAPTAIN JOHNS pops his head round the door.
- CAPTAIN JOHNS: The C-in-Cs have arrived. They'd like to start in ten minutes.
CAPTAIN JOHNS goes. 680
- ELECTRICIAN: Can't come a moment too soon for me, mate.
STAGG: I'm sorry, what can't?
ELECTRICIAN: The invasion. The sooner the better.
The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST returns with more equipment: paper, pens, pencils, ink, etc. 685
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: [to STAGG] And these, sir?
STAGG: On the table please.
While the ELECTRICIAN talks, ANDREW sets up the barograph, STAGG writes and the METEOROLOGIST drops off the equipment and leaves again. 690
- ELECTRICIAN: They phoned me a week ago, I live in Portsmouth, they said could I come up to Southwick House and put in some extra telephone lines.
STAGG: [not interested, he concentrates on writing his forecast] Really?
ELECTRICIAN: I said yeah if you want, I've given it all up really, but I'll do it if you pay me. They told me the hourly rate, I thought blimey I've never been paid that before, so I said yes. I couldn't work out why they picked me. I know now of course. Anyway I come up here and I put the extra lines in, in an office just down the corridor from here as it happens, and on the wall there's a huge, coloured map of Normandy, you know with tiny wooden boats crossing the Channel to these beaches, and all the beaches are labelled: Juno, Sword, is it? I can't remember the other names, but ... anyway I thought: aaah, so that's where it's going to be. It's Normandy, not Calais at all. So I finish putting in the lines, pack up my stuff, go to the door, open it and there's two of them military police waiting for me, and they say: sorry, you can't go home, apologies for the inconvenience but you know too much, you're officially detained here till after the invasion. I said when's that? They said: none of your business. 700
710
- STAGG: [not listening] Really?
ELECTRICIAN: I bumped into the lads who put up the map of Normandy actually, they're here! Chad Valley the toy manufacturers made the map and sent these two chippies in to put it up and they were detained too! They've been here longer than me. I wish they'd hurry up and invade, I wanna go home. I know why they picked me of course, I'm sixty, retired, no wife, no kids, no one'd know I'm missing. They had it all worked out. There you are, mate, all done. 715

He lifts the receivers on both phones and listens for the dialling tone. 720

All working. Internal calls only, of course, till after the invasion. What's your job?

STAGG says nothing.

All right, fair enough.

At this moment, KAY walks in, carrying a typewriter. 725

Let me know if there's any problems.

The ELECTRICIAN picks up his tools.

[To KAY.] All right, love?

KAY: Yes thanks.

The ELECTRICIAN leaves. 730

STAGG: One typewriter.
He didn't stop talking from the moment he walked in to the moment he left.

KAY: What about?

STAGG: I've no idea. I wasn't listening. 735

STAGG takes the typewriter from KAY. He puts it on a table. He mumbles under his breath:

KAY: Thank you.
Not at all.

STAGG examines the typewriter. He needs paper and carbon paper. He finds paper in his briefcase. ANDREW brings him carbon. The phone rings. STAGG answers it. 740

STAGG: [on phone] Stagg. One moment ...

STAGG hands the phone to ANDREW.

Take this down, will you. 745

ANDREW grabs paper and pencil.

ANDREW: [on phone] Hello ... 41.2 north. Yes. 46.1 west. 1010. Thank you. Falling. 2 knots. 71 degrees.

STAGG tries to sandwich carbons between paper and insert them into the typewriter. 750

ANDREW puts down the phone.

STAGG: Low 5?

ANDREW: Yes, sir.

STAGG: Mark it up, will you.

ANDREW: Me?

STAGG: Aye.

755

ANDREW goes to the chart and adjusts the position of Low 5. The storm is creeping northward.

STAGG is battling with the typewriter. The first pieces of paper are a disaster, crumpled up before he's even started.

760

He rips them out, scrumples them and throws them on the floor. The second attempt is just as bad, he rips them out and throws them away. He's becoming increasingly frustrated.

KAY: Would you like some help?

STAGG presses a key and the carriage shoots across to the left. He pushes it back to the right and types a couple of words.

765

STAGG: This machine's out of the Ark! I should have been allocated a typist as soon as I arrived.

KAY: Will I do?

STAGG: Do you understand these machines?

KAY: More or less. I'm getting better.

770

The carriage shoots across again. STAGG despairs.

STAGG: It has a life of its own.

CAPTAIN JOHNS knocks and enters.

CAPTAIN JOHNS: They're ready for you, sir.

775

STAGG stands up, pushing the typewriter away and scraping his chair back. CAPTAIN JOHNS leaves. STAGG walks to the French windows and stares out at the late-afternoon sun, at the serene sky.

He turns back to KAY.

780

STAGG: The weather gods are toying with us.

A beat, then:

KAY: Four copies?

STAGG: Is that possible?

KAY: We can try.

785

KAY sits at the table and pulls the typewriter towards her. Efficiently, quickly, she sandwiches three carbons between four sheets of paper. She inserts them into the typewriter.

STAGG walks to the table and pushes a piece of paper, the handwritten forecast, towards her. She puts on a pair of reading glasses and starts to type. 790

STAGG is astonished by her typing speed. Her fingers fly over the keys. For a moment he and ANDREW watch her in silence. Then:

ANDREW: Anything else I can do, sir?
STAGG: Will you see that all upper-air data, in or out of synoptic hours, is sent directly to me. I want to be notified of any changes in upper-wind velocity. 795

ANDREW: Yes, sir.
STAGG: What is your extension?

ANDREW: 231. 800

STAGG: I'll telephone you if I need you ...

ANDREW: Good luck, sir.

ANDREW slips out of the room. KAY is typing away. STAGG notices her hands are black.

STAGG: Your hands. 805

She holds them up in front of her face and wiggles her fingers for a second.

KAY: Oil. Impossible to get it off.

She returns to her typing. STAGG checks his watch. Silence, save the clack of the typewriter. 810

STAGG goes to the chart and examines it. He talks [half to himself, half to the absent KRICK] as KAY types.

STAGG: 1010, 1013, 1014, it's not enough! [Questioning himself for a second.] Is it? Surely not. If the jet was further north you might have a point. No, not even then! Use your eyes, man, use your bloody eyes! Look at Low 2, for heaven's sake. 815

KAY finishes typing. She removes her specs, pulls the paper out of the typewriter and extracts the carbons. She examines the fourth carbon copy.

KAY: The fourth is rather faint. Give it to Leigh-Mallory, make him work for his supper. 820

KAY hands the four copies to STAGG.

STAGG: They won't like the forecast.
Nor do I.

KAY checks her watch, then goes to the door. 825

KAY: I'll tell them you're ready. Don't take anything Leigh-Mallory says personally, he's got even worse manners than you.

She leaves, closing the door. STAGG sets out some chairs, then stands in front of the chart, clutching his notes. He waits ... and waits. 830

Eventually the door opens. IKE leads the way, followed by GENERAL 'TOOEY' SPAATZ, ADMIRAL SIR BERTRAM 'BERTIE' RAMSAY and AIR CHIEF MARSHAL SIR TRAFFORD LEIGH-MALLORY.

STAGG is extremely nervous. 835

IKE: [introducing everyone] Group Captain Stagg – this is Admiral Ramsay, Commander-in-Chief, Allied Naval forces, Air Chief Marshal Leigh-Mallory Commander-in-Chief Allied Expeditionary Air Force, and General Spaatz, Commander United States Air Force in Europe. General Montgomery is not attending, he assures me he's ready to go, whatever the weather. 840

IKE gets out a cigarette and is about to light it.

LEIGH-MALLORY: Ike?

The cigarette sits unlit in IKE's mouth.

IKE: It's so difficult to concentrate in a room full of smoke. 845
 LEIGH-MALLORY: For you, Trafford, we'll open the windows.
 Cigarettes destroy one's mental acuity.

SPAATZ flings open the French windows, then paces impatiently at the back of the room.

BERTIE RAMSAY: [to STAGG] Did you get the equipment you needed? 850
 STAGG: Most of it, yes, sir.
 BERTIE RAMSAY: You could always use one of my forecast rooms. If you don't think this room is suitable.
 IKE: No he couldn't.

Outside, the familiar sound of a Spitfire overhead. 855

I want Stagg right here. Give him everything he wants, Bertie, but he stays here.
 BERTIE RAMSAY: [looking out of the French windows] It is an enviable view.

KAY has walked in with a tray of coffee.

STAGG: These ... 860

He coughs to clear his throat. His voice trembles.

These are copies of my – [Coughing again.] my forecast.

STAGG hands out the copies of the forecast. SPAATZ looks at his copy of the forecast vaguely, but seems uninterested.

KAY puts down the tray of coffee and starts to leave. 865

- IKE: Lieutenant Summersby, where you going? Stay. Keep the coffee flowing.
- This familiarity, intimacy, does not go unnoticed.*
- SPAATZ: Ike, you know I'd trust Kay Summersby with my life, but is it appropriate she stays? 870
- IKE: Too right it is. I've given up keeping secrets from Kay. Anybody want sugar?
- LEIGH-MALLORY: [raising a hand] Two.
- IKE: Okay, Stagg, what have you got for us?
- SPAATZ: Where's Krick? 875
- STAGG: [hesitating] ... He's not attending, sir.
- SPAATZ: Why the hell not?
- STAGG: I represent the Allied Meteorological Unit.
- SPAATZ: Dr Stagg, I'm in command of over five thousand American aircraft. I've worked with Irving Krick since July '42. I wouldn't contemplate making a strategic choice without hearing his view. I want him here. 880
- IKE: In future I'd like you both to be present. Okay, what have you got?
- STAGG turns to the chart.*
- STAGG: We are faced with four ... [He hesitates.] We are faced with four ... 885
- SPAATZ: Speak up.
- STEGG: ... four, soon to be five, storms in the Atlantic of unprecedented intensity for the time of the year. Although ... [Clearing his throat again.] there exists the seductive notion that this ridge of high pressure over the Azores could extend and deflect the storms, the Allied Meteorological Unit does not believe this is likely. 890
- SPAATZ: 'Allied'? That include Irving Krick? What does he think?
- STAGG: Colonel Krick and I have discussed this in considerable detail and these are the conclusions of the AMU. 895
- SPAATZ: Okay, I'll take your word for it.
- SPAATZ looks sceptical, but STAGG battles on.*
- STAGG: My forecast, therefore, for Monday 5th June, the proposed D-Day, is as follows: Wind: west-north-west. Strong. Reaching force five to six, possibly force seven. 900
- BERTIE RAMSAY: [shocked] Seven? Are you sure?
- STAGG: That is my estimate.
- BERTIE RAMSAY: Throughout the day?
- STAGG: It's more than likely. Cloud: Low. Base 500 to 1000 feet. 7 to 9 10ths cover. Visibility: Poor. Rain: Very likely. The sea: Waves 6 feet to 10 feet, possibly increasing to 12 feet. Swell: Height 10 feet, wave length 750 feet. Confidence: Poor, falling to very poor through Monday 5th to Tuesday 6th. 905
- STAGG looks up. The Commanders-in-Chief are gloomy to a man.* 910
- SPAATZ: I do not believe this! 6 foot 1 of Stagg. 6 foot 2 of gloom.
- And as if to mock everything STAGG is suggesting, the sun dips*

lower outside, allowing a serene, golden light to pour into the room.

- I'm not a weatherman, Dr Stagg, but you expect me to believe your forecast? Look out the window! 915
- STAGG: As I'm sure you know, sir, the weather in this part of the world can change very rapidly.
- SPAATZ: It's been like this for six weeks, I'm sure it'll last another three days. 920
- STAGG: I wish that were the case, sir.
- BERTIE RAMSAY: [to STAGG] Will the force-six winds continue through Tuesday and Wednesday?
- STAGG: Any forecast beyond twenty-four to thirty-six hours is an informed guess ... 925
- IKE: Not according to Colonel Krick.
- STAGG: No. Colonel Krick is enviably ... certain. If I had to guess, I would say 'yes'. The force-six winds will probably continue through Tuesday and Wednesday.
- BERTIE RAMSAY: You say 'poor visibility', how poor? 930
- STAGG: Less than a mile.
- LEIGH-MALLORY: What will conditions be like for my heavy bombers taking off early on Monday morning?
- STAGG: 7 to 8 10ths stratus cloud. At 3,000 feet – thick. As I said, base 500 to 1000 feet. 935
- LEIGH-MALLORY: And above the stratus?
- STAGG: Considerable cloud between 8 and 12,000 feet.
- LEIGH-MALLORY: What will the enemy have for their aircraft?
- STAGG: Inland over France, weather will be better than over England. But on the coast – much the same as us. 940

Silence.

- IKE: Thank you, Stagg. Tooey?
- SPAATZ: We should 'go' regardless. The lives we'll save by shortening the war, will far outnumber the lives lost on D-Day. If we sit on our backsides on this side of the Channel, the war could go on another five years. Get the men onto the beaches, somehow. Anyhow. 945
- BERTIE RAMSAY: [a dose of reality] General Spaatz, I can't land one hundred and sixty thousand men in a force-seven gale.

Scene 2

5.00 p.m. Friday, 2 June 1944. 950

The room has emptied. STAGG looks pale and exhausted. He is slumped in a chair, holding the photograph of the pregnant woman and child. That's how KAY finds him when she returns to collect the empty coffee cups.

- KAY: [encouraging] All right, sir? 955
- STAGG: Aye, I'm fine.
- KAY: [brightly] Coffee cups.
- STAGG: Aye.

KAY starts to clear up the cups.

KAY: You look as if you've seen a ghost. 960
 STAGG: I'm fine.
 KAY: Is that your wife?
 STAGG: Aye.

He's about to put the photo back on the table.

KAY: May I see? 965

A beat, then STAGG hands her the photo.

STAGG: Is that your daughter?
 Son.
 KAY: Oh, I'm sorry.
 STAGG: He needed a haircut. 970
 KAY: How old is he?
 STAGG: Four.

The phone rings. STAGG picks it up.

Stagg ...

He listens attentively and jots down some figures. 975

Thank you.

He puts down the phone, goes to the chart and makes an adjustment.

KAY: Your wife ... is she ...?
 STAGG: Eight months pregnant. She had our son, Peter, early. So it could be any day. 980

KAY picks up the note of anxiety in STAGG's voice. She smiles at the photo.

KAY: It's a lovely photograph.
 STAGG: Could you put it back on the table. 985

KAY replaces the photo. Silence. STAGG works on the chart, then asks a question which takes KAY by surprise.

KAY: Do you have children?
 [never self-pitying] No! Not me! The war rather got in the way. I'm not even married. It would have been nice. Too late now. 990
 STAGG: Is it? Why?
 KAY: Various reasons. [American accent.] 'Not a problem' – as the Americans would say.
 STAGG: You're young, fine looking, plenty of time.

KAY is astonished by the compliment. STAGG continues to work. 995

KAY: What's your wife's name?
 STAGG: Elizabeth.

- KAY: She'll be fine, Dr Stagg.
 STAGG: There's no certainty of that. Childbirth doesn't agree with her.
- STAGG picks up a wooden slatted box, one of the instruments brought in by ANDREW.* 1000
- KAY: I'm going to set this up. In the grounds.
 STAGG: What is it?
 STAGG: A Stevenson screen. Keeps instruments dry, keeps the air circulating. 1005
- He walks to the door, then stops.*
- KAY: What if Krick's right? What if summer's here to stay?
 That would be good, wouldn't it?
- STAGG nods slowly, then leaves the room. KAY walks out onto the balcony, untucks her blouse and flaps it to cool down her body. She lifts her face to the sun, closes her eyes and feels the heat on her eyelids.* 1010
- She doesn't hear IKE open the door. He stands in the open doorway watching her.*
- Eventually, KAY senses his presence and turns to face him.* 1015
- IKE: I didn't know England ever got this hot.
- KAY tucks in her blouse.*
- KAY: Where's Stagg?
 Setting up equipment in the grounds.
- IKE closes the door. He takes a key out of his pocket and locks the door.* 1020
- IKE: Five minutes.
 KAY: Five whole minutes.
- They stand, eyes locked, on opposite sides of the room.*
- IKE: You look so tired. 1025
 We're all tired. Even your uniform looks tired. Would you like a new one?
- KAY: Yes please!
 IKE: Soon as we get to Paris, we'll have one made.
- KAY's face lights up.* 1030
- KAY: Paris! Imagine us in Paris.
- Short silence. The sound of a ship's hooter from the harbour below. IKE walks over to the chart.*
- IKE: Do you understand it?
 KAY: [joining IKE in front of the chart] Not really, do you? 1035

IKE: I'd like to, I'd really like to.

They stand side by side, a few feet apart, staring at the chart.

If Stagg's right, the landing craft will capsize. Fifty, sixty, seventy thousand men will drown before they even get to the beaches. Not exaggerating, Kay, these are fair-weather vessels, they don't even have a keel, and some of them are twenty years old. If the cloud is low, the airborne won't know where to land, bombers won't see their targets, civilians will be killed. The weather has got to be good ... And we have no back-up. 1040

I don't know if it's positive thinking or foolishness, but we have no Plan B. 1045

Another silence. KAY pulls a chair over to IKE.

KAY: Sit.

IKE is obedient and sits.

IKE: How is your knee? 1050
[shrugging] It's just a knee.

KAY pulls another chair over and places it beside IKE's. She sits next to him. IKE checks his watch.

KAY: How long?

IKE: Three minutes. 1055

Their hands hang loosely between the two chairs. They sit in silence for a moment, then almost tentatively, IKE takes KAY's hand. They sit in silence for a moment.

I have a surprise for us. As rare as nylons.

IKE reaches into his pocket and takes out ... an orange. 1060

KAY: An orange! How smashing!!

She takes it from IKE and smells it.

IKE: Mmmmmmm! Where did you get it?

A secret admirer.

KAY: You can have as many admirers as you like if they bring you oranges. 1065

KAY starts to peel the orange. Silence, then IKE continues to unburden himself of the day's problems.

IKE: Rommel ... has doubled his beach defences in Normandy ... Why now? Why not in Calais? Why the specific stretch of sand where we want to land? It cannot be a coincidence. He knows, Kay. [Needing an answer.] Do you think they're waiting for us? 1070

KAY: Do you?

Silence. Eventually:

IKE: [truthful] I don't know. I really don't know. Sixteen months we've kept this secret. 1075

KAY has peeled the orange. Her hands are covered in juice. She holds up a large segment in front of IKE's mouth. IKE opens his mouth. KAY pops the segment in. She pops one into her own mouth too. 1080

That is ... so ...
 KAY: Mmmmmmmm! Mmm! Mmm!
 IKE: Delicious! Oh, wow!
 KAY: That is the best ... orange ... I have ever ...

She feeds them both another segment – and another. They eat in silence for a while, relishing the heavenly taste. 1085

IKE: We need a full moon, and dry beaches at low tide for half an hour after touchdown. Those conditions only exist on the 5th. I can't bring D-Day forward, I can't delay it, and Stagg tells me we should expect force-seven gales on Monday. We're trapped. When did a coach ever rely on one play to win a match? 1090

KAY hands IKE a handkerchief. He wipes orange juice off his chin.

The ship's hooter sounds again. A solitary aircraft passes overhead. 1095

And Winston wants to watch the invasion from HMS Belfast.
 KAY: Really?
 IKE: Can you believe that? I said to him, 'I cannot sanction you taking that risk.' He said, 'As a Minister of Defence I have a duty to take part.' 'Bull!' I said. He said, 'I will circumvent your authority and go as a crew member.' Winston Churchill! A member of the crew?! 'Dammit!' I said, 'It's D-Day minus three, haven't I got enough on my plate without having to worry about the Prime Minister's safety?' 1100

KAY: What will you do? 1105

IKE: Done it. I mentioned Winston's plan to the King.

KAY: What did he say?

IKE: The King sent a handwritten letter from Buckingham Palace to Ten Downing Street, saying that of course, as King, he would never interfere in the affairs of the Prime Minister, however, should the PM carry out his intentions, then as King, he would likewise feel obliged to witness the invasion as titular head of Britain's armed forces. 1110

KAY: You are very brilliant!

IKE: Winston read the letter and told me he was bitterly disappointed and resentful. He said to me: 'If I do defer, which I assure you is by no means certain, I will be deferring to the Crown, not to you, General Eisenhower.'

KAY: He won't go. He can't risk the King's life.

IKE looks at his watch. 1120

- IKE: Time's up. More than up.
- IKE gets up. His knee gives way for a step or two towards the door, but then recovers. He unlocks the door and pockets the key. His hand is on the doorknob, he's about to leave, but he stops. Throughout the next speech he's facing the door, not KAY.* 1125
- [Difficult to say, hesitant.] Kay ...
- I don't know what I'd do without you ... truly I don't ... you work ... so hard ... you are so ... special to me ... if we win this war ... and History gives me some of the credit ... it will be in no small measure down to you. 1130
- IKE opens the door and leaves. The tears well up in KAY's eyes. She looks around for something to do. She pushes the two chairs back against a wall. The door opens. STAGG returns. STAGG and KAY look at each other in silence. The silence is broken by one of the phones ringing. STAGG picks it up.* 1135
- STAGG: Yes ... yes ... one moment ...
- STAGG mimes to KAY to take dictation from him. KAY finds paper and pencil.*
- [Dictating.] 42.3 north. 15.4 west.
Pressure sea level: 1029 millibars. 1140
- KAY: M?
- STAGG: M for ... Methuselah.
- KAY: [a glimmer of a smile] Methuselah?
- STAGG: Barometric change: plus 10.
Tendency: Rising. 1145
Wind Speed: 3 knots.
Direction: South-west.
Temperature: 78 degrees.
[Into phone.] Thank you.
- STAGG puts down the phone. KAY gives him the dictated information. STAGG reads it, takes a red crayon and goes to the weather chart.* 1150
- He adjusts the curve of an isobar on the map north-east of the Azores. He draws a new red curve [visible to the audience] which stretches further to the north-east, towards the English Channel.* 1155
- KAY: What do the figures mean?
- STAGG doesn't answer.*
- Can you explain the figures to me?
- Still no answer. STAGG concentrates on the chart.*
- Dr Stagg! I suspect you don't have much time for the English, but I'm not English, I'm Irish. We're both Celts, so don't take your prejudice out on me. 1160

- STAGG: I'm not in the slightest bit prejudiced.
STAGG is still looking at the map.
- KAY: What does the red curve mean? 1165
STAGG answers KAY's original question.
- STAGG: We have a British weather ship north-east of the Azores. This is their latest reading. All the thin lines are isobars. Measurements of barometric pressure.
STAGG points to the barometer on the wall. 1170
No different from that barometer on the wall. The red curve is Colonel Krick's finger of high pressure pushing north-eastward towards the English Channel ... as he predicted.
- KAY: So the weather will be good on Monday?
STAGG: I don't believe so. You can never be certain, but I don't believe he's right. It does surprise me that the curve is so pronounced. 1175
Suddenly the door is flung open. IKE is in the room. He slams the door closed. His face is beetroot red, the veins stand out on his forehead. This is the legendary Eisenhower temper.
- IKE: Stagg, what in hell is going on?! I wanna know now. Was the forecast you gave us the view of American and British forecasters? 1180
STAGG is silent. IKE is striding round the room, limping heavily.
Answer the damn question!
- STAGG: It was the view of the Allied Meteorological Unit.
IKE: Don't play games with me, you son-of-a-bitch! Because I've just had Spaatz on the telephone telling me that Krick's team think it's gonna be a beautiful summer's day on Monday. 1185
STAGG: Colonel Krick had no right to divulge ...
IKE: He had every right to confer with his superior officer if he thought it would affect the outcome of the invasion. 1190
The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST appears in the doorway.
Not now, dammit!
The METEOROLOGIST looks uncertain ...
Get out!!
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Sir. 1195
The METEOROLOGIST hurries out.
- STAGG: If you feel you can put greater trust in Colonel Krick ...
IKE: You think I'm a damn child, Stagg?
STAGG: I didn't think uncertainty would be useful.
IKE: Uncertainty! You listen to me. Over the last two years Krick has saved thousands of lives because of his forecasts. Again and again he gets it right. Why do you think he's wrong now? 1200

STAGG is silent.

Listen, fella, you are gonna explain to me what that damn chart means and why I should trust you and not one of the unsung American heroes of this war. Why is Krick wrong? 1205

No answer.

Why!

STAGG: I respect Colonel Krick as a scientist ...
IKE: Answer the question! 1210

STAGG hesitates, then:

STAGG: Colonel Krick ... has been lucky.
IKE: Good, I like luck, don't you? Why lucky?
STAGG: [nervous but strong] Lucky because the weather systems when he made his forecasts were stable, so his analogous charts fitted conveniently. When patterns are predictable, charts from the past can be useful. 1215

IKE: Damn right they're useful. In North Africa, he never made a mistake.

STAGG: Of course he didn't. He only forecasts if he's absolutely certain and in Morocco and Algeria in the summer, he was as safe as houses. This is northern Europe, sir. Look at the chart: one, two, three, four, five storms which could, at any moment, erupt into terrible violence over the British Isles. 1220

IKE: [pointing at the chart] Why is that curve red? 1225

STAGG: It's a more recent reading.

IKE: What does it mean?

STAGG: It means ...

STAGG trails off. IKE pounces.

IKE: I can't hear ya, soldier. 1230

STAGG: It means that high pressure from the Azores is pushing north-eastwards.

IKE: As Colonel Krick predicted it would. High pressure means good weather? Right?

STAGG: Usually. Not always. 1235

IKE: In this case?

STAGG: The weather within the red curve would be calm, yes.

The phone rings. STAGG lets it ring.

IKE: Go ahead, answer it.

STAGG: [answering the phone] Stagg ... thank you ... 1240

He picks up a pen and jots down a message.

46.5 north. 12.3 west ... 1028 ... thank you.

He puts down the phone.

IKE: Interesting?

STAGG: I'll adjust it later. 1245

- IKE: Do it now, I'm fascinated.
- STAGG freezes.
- [Steely.] Do it – now.
- STAGG takes his red crayon to the chart. His back hides what he's drawing. When he's finished, he steps away. A second red curve of high pressure, i.e. calm weather, stretches from the Azores even further north-east. Even nearer the English Channel. 1250
- STAGG: Krick's good weather is on the move. Am I right?
Weather is always on the move.
- IKE: And moving in the right direction, as he predicted. 1255
- STAGG: These are readings from one weather ship. Because of stormy seas, new readings from the Atlantic will take longer to come through.
- IKE: When's the next chart due?
- STAGG: One o'clock, tomorrow morning. 1260
- IKE: That should clarify things?
- STAGG: I hope so.
- IKE: One of you is right.
- STAGG: Yes, sir.
- IKE: Before this game kicked off, it was decided the Chief Meteorological Officer should be British. 1265
- STAGG: So your hands are tied?
- IKE: There's no question of Krick taking over, but you know as well as I do that Allied unity is essential.
- Short silence. IKE walks to the chart and stares at the mass of curves, lines and figures.* 1270
- STAGG: Sir ...
- IKE turns back to STAGG.
- IKE: British weather is uniquely complex and erratic. 1275
I wouldn't want to book a holiday in advance.
- STAGG: I lived for two years on a weather ship off the west coast of Scotland. I witnessed winds of one hundred and thirty miles per hour, summer temperatures of ninety degrees, I measured a wave of sixty feet between the Isle of Arran and the Ayrshire coast. It's a climate of surprises ... of twists and turns ... you have to sense the rise and fall on the hall barometer before the arrow even moves. It's a science governed by instinct and experience as much as formulae. You'll have to trust that my instincts are good. 1280
- Silence.* 1285
- IKE: You know Ayrshire well?
- STAGG: I do.
- IKE: You know Culzean Castle?
- STAGG: Very well.
- IKE: You ever watched the geese flying in from the west? 1290
- STAGG: Often.
- IKE: What a sound. Primeval. Fundamental.

- STAGG: It's a sound I'd welcome on my deathbed. Geese will tell you as much as a barometer. 'When the geese pass over Kintyre, bring in the peats, stock up the fire.' 1295
- Long moment. IKE walks up close to STAGG.*
- IKE: If there is divergence, I want to know. Is that clear?
- STAGG doesn't answer.
- [Frightening intensity.] Is – that – clear?
- STAGG: Dr Stagg? 1300
Aye, it is.
- IKE leaves. Silence. STAGG thinking, KAY watching STAGG. A phone rings. STAGG answers it.*
- STAGG: [on phone] ... Stagg ... Yes ... 1305
- A second phone rings.*
- 50.5 north ...
- STAGG gestures to KAY. She grabs paper and pencil and answers the second phone.
- KAY: [on phone] Lieutenant Summersby ... yes ... yes ...
STAGG: [on phone] ... 32.7 west ... 1310
KAY: [on phone] I'll pass that on to him ...
- STAGG glances at KAY, a flicker of interest, nothing more.
- STAGG: [on phone] 1016 ...
KAY: [on phone] No.
STAGG: [on phone] 1010 ... 1315
KAY: [on phone] Dr Forbes? ...
- For STAGG, the name of the doctor is like an electric shock. His attention instantly switches to KAY's call. He gestures to her, mouthing the words: 'I want to speak to him.'
- Yes I will ... yes ... yes ... 1320
- STAGG realises he hasn't heard his caller's last figures.
- STAGG: [on phone] I beg your pardon, could you repeat that ...
KAY: [on phone] Where is she ... ?
STAGG: [on phone] 2 knots ...
KAY: [on phone] I see. Can we contact her? ... 1325
STAGG: [on phone] 2 knots rising ... aye ...
KAY: [on phone] That seems excessive ...
STAGG: [on phone] I'm sorry, could you ... repeat ... 4 knots, thank you ...
- STAGG struggles to focus on his call. He looks pale, frightened.

KAY: [on phone] Surely you can give me a telephone number? ... 1330
 STAGG: [on phone] 998 ...
 KAY: [on phone] It's a hospital, not Ten Downing Street!
 STAGG: [on phone] 1001, aye ...
 KAY: [on phone] Well, please let us know, as soon as you hear anything ... I'd be grateful ... 1335

STAGG gesticulates for KAY to keep the call going – too late.

Thank you ... goodbye.

She puts the phone down, STAGG's call trickles on. KAY waits for it to end.

STAGG: [on phone] North-north-east ... 3 knots ... 1010, east-south-east 2 knots rising ... thank you. Goodbye. 1340

STAGG is repeating the figures but failing to write them down. The call ends. He looks at KAY desperately.

KAY: Your wife left a message with the Met Office in London ... Your baby's on the way. 1345

STAGG: I knew this would happen.

KAY: She's on her way to hospital.

STAGG: Which one?

KAY: Southampton General.

STAGG: [extremely anxious] I need to talk to her. Did they give you a contact number? 1350

KAY: I'm afraid 'security' blocked it.

STAGG: I need to see her.

KAY: She'll be in safe hands.

STAGG: What did they say about Dr Forbes? 1355

KAY: He's been informed.

STAGG: I need to speak to him, there must be a way of contacting the hospital, I may have his telephone number.

He hurries to his suitcase and opens it.

KAY: You won't be able to call him, Dr Stagg. 1360

STAGG is rummaging through his case.

Trunk calls are forbidden. They're going to leave a message with the Met Office as soon as there are any developments.

STAGG: Dr Forbes has all the information about our son Peter's birth ... it was not straightforward ... not at all straightforward ... did they say how long Liz had been in labour? 1365

KAY: She'll be fine.

STAGG: You know nothing about it! There is no certainty she will be fine, none whatsoever!

STAGG looks distraught. The phone rings again. STAGG appears paralysed. KAY has to answer it. 1370

KAY: [on phone] Thank you ... 54.2 north ... 28.6 west ... 1014 ...

The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST enters. He holds out papers for STAGG.

NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: New weather ship signals, sir. 1375

STAGG looks at the METEOROLOGIST blankly, as ... a second phone rings. KAY covers her receiver with her hand.

KAY: Dr Stagg!

Eventually, STAGG picks up the phone, his hand is trembling. The following dialogue overlaps.

1380

STAGG: [on phone] Stagg ...

KAY: Rising ...

STAGG: 44.3 north ...

KAY: South-south-west ...

The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST places the papers on STAGG's table, as the third phone rings. 1385

STAGG: 18.5 west ...

KAY: 3 knots ...

KAY points at the third phone. The METEOROLOGIST picks up the phone.

1390

STAGG: 1016 ...

KAY: Drizzle and fog ...

NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: [on phone] This is Group Captain Stagg's Office ...

STAGG: West-south-west 3 knots ...

KAY: Visibility, poor ...

1395

STAGG: Visibility, good ...

The phone calls continue as the lights fade.

Paper 1

May/June 2017

COPY OF PRE-RELEASE MATERIAL

2 hours 30 minutes

---

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

The questions in Paper 1 will be based on the stimuli and on the extract from David Haig's play Pressure provided in this booklet.

This clean copy of the material is for you to use in your responses.

---

This document consists of 37 printed pages and 3 blank pages.

STIMULI

Choose one of the following three stimuli and devise a piece of drama based on it. You should work in groups of between two and six performers. Your piece should last approximately 15 minutes.

In the Written examination, you will be asked questions about your piece that will cover both practical and theoretical issues.

Stimulus 1

Quotation: 'How many fond fools serve mad jealousy!'
From William Shakespeare's The Comedy of Errors [Act 2, Scene 1]

Stimulus 2

Grimms' Fairy Tales: Hansel and Gretel

Stimulus 3

Photograph: Two people working in an organic farm shop

EXTRACT*Taken from Pressure, by David Haig

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

David Haig's play Pressure was first performed in Edinburgh in 2014.

The play is set in June 1944 and explores the true story of the tensions and disagreements between two professional meteorologists, James Stagg and Irving P. Krick, weather-forecasters whose job it was to advise General Dwight D. 'Ike' Eisenhower, the Allied Supreme Commander with sole responsibility for the D-Day landings. The 'D-Day landings' is a term used to refer to the allied invasion of German-occupied France, which was a decisive factor in bringing the Second World War to an end.

The drama centres on the widely diverging views of the forecasters as to the likely weather on the day of the landings, since the lives of thousands of people depended on there being good weather that day.

The play is in two Acts, and the extract consists of Act One, Scenes One and Two.

Characters in order of appearance

Lieutenant Kay Summersby	Ike's chauffeur, unofficial aide and confidante
Dr James Stagg	Chief Meteorological Officer for the Allied Forces
Flight Lieutenant Andrew Carter	A junior meteorologist, assisting Stagg
Naval Meteorologist
General Dwight D. 'Ike' Eisenhower	Allied Supreme Commander with sole responsibility for the D-Day Landings
Colonel Irving P. Krick	Chief Meteorologist for the United States Armed Forces
Naval Rating	A Junior Ordinary Seaman
Captain Johns	A British Army Adjutant
Electrician
General 'Tooley' Spaatz	Commander, United States Air Force in Europe
Admiral Sir Bertram 'Bertie' Ramsay	Commander-in-Chief, Allied Naval Forces
Air Chief Marshall Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory	Commander-in-Chief, Allied Expeditionary Air Force

ACT 1

Scene 1

1.00 p.m. Friday, 2 June 1944.

Southwick House, Portsmouth, England. Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force for the invasion of German-occupied France.

A large room dominated by floor-to-ceiling French windows leading out to a small balcony. From the balcony, a view of the staggering Naval armada packed into Portsmouth Harbour – battleships, destroyers and landing craft, rail to rail, as far as the eye can see. 5

A stifflingly hot, summer afternoon. The sun streams through the windows, dust motes in the air. The room looks ... transitional, as if waiting for someone to give it a purpose. Piles of wooden chairs, tables, a single telephone. There's a giant noticeboard, punctured by hundreds of drawing pins, but no notices. Leaning against this wall are two sets of library steps on wheels. There's an old upright piano in the corner. 10 15

LIEUTENANT KAY SUMMERSBY [thirty-five years old] sits at a table by the window, sorting through a huge pile of correspondence. She is attractive, vivacious, the daughter of an Irish cavalry officer. She is also General Dwight D. 'Ike' Eisenhower's chauffeur, unofficial aide and confidante. She is dressed in the uniform of the Motor Transport Corps. The uniform is worn out. 20

KAY, like all the characters in the play, looks unslept. She lifts her head to feed off the warmth of the sun, but her peace is disturbed by the sudden roar of a fleet of bombers passing overhead, heading for the French coast. Their shadows blot out the sun. 25

The noise of the bombers masks the sound of the door opening. An ordinary-looking man with a tidy moustache enters. He is dusty, sweaty and is wearing an ill-fitting RAF uniform. He carries a suitcase and a briefcase. This is DR JAMES STAGG, Chief Meteorological Officer for the Allied Forces. 30

He looks around him.

STAGG: I must be in the wrong room.

KAY jumps to her feet. 35

KAY: Good afternoon, sir.

STAGG checks the number on the door.

STAGG: Room six, first floor?

KAY: Yes, sir.

STAGG:	Should you be in here?	40
KAY:	I beg your pardon, sir.
STAGG:	Should you be in here?
	He takes a sheet of paper out of his pocket and checks it.
KAY:	Room six. You'll need to clear your stuff out. [demanding some sort of normal exchange] How do you do. I'm Lieutenant Summersby.	45
STAGG:	James Stagg. Is there only one telephone? I'll need more than that. Who should I talk to?
KAY:	I'll find out.
STAGG:	[looking around him. Shocked] This is just a room.	50
KAY:	I'll tell the General you've arrived.
STAGG:	Which General?
KAY:	General Eisenhower.
	A moment as STAGG digests this.
STAGG:	He knows I'm arriving today.	55
KAY:	Does he? It may have slipped his mind, he's a rather busy man.
STAGG:	It won't have slipped his mind.
	They stare at each other. STAGG, impassive. KAY, annoyed. She spins on her heel and leaves the room.
	STAGG immediately removes KAY's correspondence from her table, dumping it on the floor, then he drags the table further into the room. He does the same with the other table and places a chair behind each.	60
	He takes out a handkerchief and mops his brow, then opens the French windows and goes out onto the balcony. Shielding his eyes from the sun, he looks up at the sky.	65
	There is a knock on the door. STAGG returns from the balcony.
	Come in.
	A young man [ANDREW], excited and out of breath, enters in the uniform of a junior Air Force officer.	70
ANDREW:	Welcome to Southwick House, Dr Stagg.
STAGG:	Thank you.
	STAGG claims one of the two tables as his own and starts unpacking his briefcase.
ANDREW:	It's a great honour to meet you, sir.	75
	STAGG says nothing. He sets out mathematical instruments and an array of pencils and coloured pens on his table.
STAGG:	I so enjoyed your paper on the Coriolis effect. It's a fascinating subject.
ANDREW:	I'm a great admirer of the Bergen School. Upper-air structures.	80

- STAGG: You're on the right lines then.
- A young NAVAL METEOROLOGIST hurries past the open door, but stops when he sees ANDREW. He hands ANDREW a piece of paper.*
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Latest thermograms, sir. Stevenson screen two. 85
 ANDREW: Thank you.
- The METEOROLOGIST marches off. [Whenever the door is open, we're aware of voices, footsteps, doors slamming. A constant buzz of urgent activity.]*
- [To STAGG.] I'm seconded to you, sir, for as long as you're here, 90
 if there's anything you need ...
- STAGG: [tension in his voice] I need everything. Look at this room. I need an anemometer, a Stevenson screen, thermometers, barograph,
 barometer, telephones.
- ANDREW: Admiral Ramsay has a forecast room downstairs, I'll see what I 95
 can find.
- STAGG: I'd be grateful.
- The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST returns. He salutes sharply and hands STAGG a rolled-up chart.*
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Synoptic chart, sir. 1300 GMT. 100
- STAGG takes it.
- STAGG: Very good. How frequently are you producing charts?
 NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Every six hours, sir.
 STAGG: Normal synoptic hours?
 NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Yes sir. 0100, 0700, 1300 and 1800. 105
 STAGG: And intermediates at 0400, 1000 and 1600?
 NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Yes, sir.
 STAGG: Thank you.
- The METEOROLOGIST leaves. STAGG wheels a set of library steps to the giant notice board and climbs the steps.* 110
- ANDREW: Shall I give you a hand, sir?
- ANDREW wheels the other steps over and climbs them. STAGG hands him one end of the chart.*
- I'm Andrew Carter, by the way. From the Met Office. Flight-Lieutenant Carter I should say. They plonked me in the Air Force, I've no idea why. 115
- STAGG: No. [A beat, then:] I'm a Group Captain, I've never been near an aeroplane.
- STAGG pins the top of the chart.
- ANDREW: Good journey, sir? 120
 STAGG: Eighteen miles in seven and a half hours. An average of 2.4 miles per hour.

- ANDREW: The roads are impossibly busy.
- Short silence.*
- STAGG: Apparently, there are so many extra tanks and troops in the country, only the barrage balloons stop Britain from sinking. 125
- ANDREW: Aye, so I heard. It's a fine, sunny day, I should have walked. Bit warm for walking, sir. We have a screen in the grounds. The midday reading was 92.4.
- STAGG has finished pinning the chart. 130
- STAGG: You can let go.
- They release the chart which unrolls down the noticeboard. It's a massive synoptic weather chart, stretching from Newfoundland in the west to Central Europe in the east, from Greenland in the north to the North African Coast in the south. Written along the top is the caption: '1300 GMT FRIDAY JUNE 2 1944.'* 135
- For STAGG, a new weather chart is like a Christmas present. He is instantly absorbed. ANDREW could be a million miles away. STAGG gently touches the chart, then traces his finger along one of the finely drawn lines.* 140
- The chart could be big enough to be seen clearly by the whole audience.*
- A high-ranking American officer appears in the open doorway below them. He looks up at STAGG.*
- IKE: Good news? 145
- STAGG is too absorbed to reply. He glances briefly at the American officer, then turns back to the chart. ANDREW, on the other hand, scuttles down his library steps and slams to attention.*
- ANDREW: Sir!
- STAGG continues to examine the chart, he places his hand over the Arctic Circle.* 150
- STAGG: [half to himself] Full of menace ...
- He climbs down a few steps and places his hand on the middle of the Atlantic Ocean.*
- ... these are formidable ... 155
- He climbs off the steps and pushes them to one side. He places his hand over the Azores at the bottom of the chart.*
- ... this is gentler ... but interesting.
- IKE: Good prognosis?
- STAGG: When Colonel Krick arrives, we'll confer, then I believe I report to General Eisenhower. 160
- IKE: I am General Eisenhower.

ANDREW remains rigidly at attention. STAGG looks genuinely amazed. 165

STAGG: I thought your voice was familiar. It's seeing you in the flesh, rather than just speaking to you on the telephone ... and in your photographs you seem to have more hair than you actually have.

IKE cannot find a suitable response. 170

ANDREW: [to STAGG] I'll see what I can find downstairs, Dr Stagg.

ANDREW leaves. IKE closes the door. The buzz of voices in the corridor is muted.

IKE takes a packet of cigarettes out of his pocket.

IKE: You got an ashtray in here? 175

STAGG: I've got very little of anything in here.

IKE: Not a problem. What do you need?

STAGG: Everything. A forecast room is a specific environment, this is just a room. It's certainly not good enough for the purpose.

IKE: Give Lieutenant Summersby a list of what you want. 180

IKE walks towards the balcony.

I need you to be close. I'm a couple of doors down.

Suddenly his right knee buckles under him.

Dammit!!

He grabs one of the tables to support himself. 185

I have a knee. Damn!

IKE gently flexes his leg.

Boring! Cartilage. Football injury.

Gingerly, IKE takes a couple of steps.

STAGG: Not talking about soccer, Dr Stagg, I'm talking about American football ... more like your 'rugby', am I right? You ever play rugby? 190
On occasion, sir.

IKE: If we ever get a spare moment, you're gonna tell me what in heck is going on in that game. I saw a match once and I sure didn't know. 195

IKE limps out onto the balcony.

What a beautiful day. Flaming June!
What part of Scotland are you from?

- STAGG: Dalkieth, sir. A wee town by Edinburgh.
 IKE: I just love that city! First time I saw the castle on the rock – man! 200
 I’m from Kansas, I didn’t see a hill till I was twelve years old.
- IKE looks down at Portsmouth Harbour.*
- Seven thousand Naval vessels, Dr Stagg.
- He turns back to STAGG.*
- Seven thousand vessels, one hundred and sixty thousand ground 205
 troops, two hundred thousand Naval personnel, fifteen hospital ships, eight thousand doctors, four airborne divisions. The biggest amphibious landing in history. And let me tell you, every piece of the jigsaw is in place. Every man and woman involved is ready and waiting. There’s no more to learn. It’s time to run with the ball. 210
But ... there is still one uncertainty, one imponderable that can stop this thing happening ... that’s why I’ve put you in this room. I want you right beside me for the next four days.
- STAGG: I worry ...
 IKE: Not your job. 215
- But STAGG persists.*
- STAGG: I worry that what you require of me is scientifically impossible.
- IKE waits for STAGG to continue.*
- IKE: Long-term forecasting is only ever informed guesswork.
 Monday isn’t long term, for Pete’s sake. 220
- STAGG checks his watch.*
- STAGG: Sixty-five hours to go. In this part of the world, anything more than twenty-four hours is long term.
- IKE: You listen to me, soldier. Your Met Office tells me you’re a genius, you’re tearing up the rulebooks. I don’t care how you do it, but I’m 225 relying on you and Colonel Krick to tell me if the weather’s gonna be good on Monday.
- STAGG: And on Sunday I will be able to offer you a degree of certainty.
 IKE: Sunday’s too late, you understand? I need to know now. You got me? 230
- STAGG is silent.*
- We’ve got one chance, Dr Stagg. One chance only to get this right.
- IKE walks towards the door, still limping slightly.*
- Ask them to bring up a bed, you’re gonna need it. 235
- IKE is almost out of the door, then he turns back.*
- For the next four days, you’re part of the family. Same team, same ‘end zone’. Pardon me, wrong game. What would you call the end zone?

- STAGG: The try line? 240
 IKE: Sounds good. Same team, Stagg, same try line.
- IKE leaves, closing the door. STAGG mops his brow again. Another fleet of bombers roars overhead.*
- STAGG opens his suitcase and takes out a framed photograph of a heavily pregnant woman holding a child. He stares at the picture for a moment, then sits at his table, placing the photo in front of him.* 245
- He concentrates on the chart on the wall and starts to make notes.*
- A knock on the door.* 250
- STAGG: Come.
- KAY enters.*
- KAY: I've brought the 'little blue book'.
- She flicks through to the correct page.*
- If we lost this, the Allies would probably lose the war! Your first meeting will be at 1500 hours. General Eisenhower, Air Chief Marshal Leigh-Mallory, Admiral Ramsay and General Spaatz will be present. They would like to meet you here. In this room. 255
- STAGG nods, concentrating on the chart. He changes pencil and draws a series of lines.* 260
- STAGG: Does that give you enough time?
 If Krick arrives soon.
- Silence. STAGG continues to draw lines, rub them out, refine them, make notes. KAY watches him work. KAY is not sure whether STAGG is talking to her, but suddenly he expresses his thoughts out loud.* 265
- What he ignores is the third dimension, vertical structures, the upper air. This jet is thin, rapid, straight. No meandering, no Rossby waves. Freezing tongues of disruption pushing south. Vicious extrusions of cold air. He cannot ignore that. 270
- KAY: Who's ignoring it?
- STAGG looks up, surprised. He had forgotten KAY was in the room. He stares at her, then returns to his work.*
- STAGG: Sooner or later, the Arctic air will penetrate the westerly flow. Low 2 and Low 3 will be reinvigorated. But he won't see it. 275
- STAGG falls silent again, making further notes. Then, suddenly:*
- I sent Flight Lieutenant Carter in search of equipment. There's been

- no foresight at all, the set-up's amateur! These tables should have sloping tops, I need paper, ink, pencils, thermometers, barograph, barometer ... telephones, I must have more telephones. 280
- KAY: I'll see what I can do.
- STAGG: It's urgent.
- KAY: Everything, Dr Stagg, is urgent. I'll do my best.
- It's at this moment that KAY notices the correspondence she was working on, piled up on the floor. She marches over and starts to pick it up, placing it on top of a filing cabinet. She is furious, but her tone is controlled and polite.* 285
- Dr Stagg, this is the Supreme Allied Commander's personal correspondence. These are heartfelt, handwritten letters, sent from all over the world to General Eisenhower ... 290
- The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST enters and hands STAGG some papers.*
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Radio soundings for the past twenty-four hours, sir. From the weather ships.
- KAY continues brightly:* 295
- KAY: ... As soon as I find another room in which I can work, I will do so.
- STAGG: [to the METEOROLOGIST] Thank you. I'd like all readings relating to Low 5 and the Azores anti-cyclone to be isolated and telephoned directly to me.
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Yes, sir. 300
- KAY: In the meantime, for a few more hours, I would appreciate it if I could leave all this here. Somewhere safe ... and not just ...
- The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST leaves, closing the door.*
- ... dumped on the bloody floor.
- STAGG looks up, surprised by KAY's sudden vehemence.* 305
- STAGG: I'm sorry, what was your name?
- KAY: Lieutenant Summersby, sir.
- STAGG: Lieutenant Summersby, this is a forecast room.
- A short icy silence.*
- KAY: Do you ever smile, Dr Stagg? 310
- STAGG: Smile?
- He considers the question deeply.*
- I hope I do. If there's something to smile about.
- The door opens. A good-looking, but overfed man in his late thirties, breezes into the room. He has luxuriant hair and a well-trimmed moustache. This is COLONEL IRVING P. KRICK, Chief Meteorologist for the United States Armed Forces and STAGG's 'second-in-command'.* 315

- KRICK: Man, it's hot out there!
- KRICK wipes the sweat off his brow. 320
- Dr Stagg, I presume! Do we salute each other? I don't think so, do you?
- They don't.*
- Fascinating to attach a face to the voice.
You're taller than I imagined. 325
You're rounder than I imagined.
- STAGG: A momentary beat as KRICK digests STAGG's bluntness/ rudeness. KRICK looks around him.
- KRICK: Do they call this a forecast room?
- KAY steps forward. 330
- KAY: Sir.
- KRICK smiles. He embraces KAY and kisses her on the cheek.
- KRICK: Hey! Kay Summersby! Long time, no see. Kay and I are old buddies. [To KAY.] Right, sweetheart? August '39, Stagg, David Selznik calls me in California, he's shooting a movie. Wants a forecast for a three-day period in Beverly Hills. The scene is the burning of Atlanta. Wants to burn the stage set to the ground. And of course he does not want precipitation. Great movie! Kay drove me and Ike to the London premiere. True, sweetheart? 335
- KAY: Correct, sir. 340
- At this point, the NAVAL METEOROLOGIST and a RATING enter pushing trollies, laden high with large black leather folders – perhaps as many as a hundred. Each folder has a series of dates on it. E.G. 'MAY-JUNE 1912', 'MAY-JUNE 1923', etc.*
- KRICK: [to the METEOROLOGIST] Put 'em over there. 345
NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Sir!
- KRICK: Selznik said to me: 'Irv, I don't want to see a drop of rain for three days.' MGM give me dates, I forecast a dry spell, they shoot the scenes – beautiful weather, movie's a hit, I'm on the front page of the LA Times and I get to meet Clark Gable. Movie called Gone with the Wind. You see it, Stagg? 350
- STAGG: No.
- The METEOROLOGIST and RATING leave.*
- KAY: Did you meet Vivien Leigh?
KRICK: I did. 355
KAY: What was she like?
KRICK: Cute, of course. Kinda ... remote ... beautiful skin, but too fragile for my taste, she looked breakable.
KAY: How exciting!

- STAGG picks up one of KRICK's folders. 360
- KRICK: [explaining the folders] Analogues.
 STAGG: I realise that.
 KRICK: I guess you know, Kay, Stagg and I have been talking on the telephone since the middle of March. This is the first time we've actually met. 365
- STAGG: Shall we start? The meeting is at 1500 hours.
- The phone rings. STAGG answers it.*
- [On phone.] Stagg ... one moment please ...
- STAGG grabs paper and pencil.
- KRICK: [to KAY] You still driving Ike round in a Buick? 370
 KAY: No, the Buick died, the gears went haywire.
 STAGG: [on phone] 40.2 north ...
- KAY focuses on STAGG as she and KRICK talk.
- KRICK: What do you drive now?
 KAY: A Packard Clipper. 375
 STAGG: [on phone] 46.7 west ...
 KRICK: Good motor car?
 KAY: The brakes are a perfect bore, I spend my life attaching bleeder hoses to the wheel cylinders.
- STAGG: [on phone] 1011 millibars ... rising ... 2 knots. Thank you. 380
- STAGG puts the phone down.
- Low 5 is moving north.
- STAGG goes to the chart and, with a red crayon, adjusts the position of storm Low 5 a fraction further north.
- A British Army Adjutant in his forties, CAPTAIN JOHNS, appears at the door.* 385
- CAPTAIN JOHNS: Lieutenant Summersby?
 KAY: Would you excuse me, Colonel?
 KRICK: Irving, please.
- KAY gets a card out of her pocket. She gives it to STAGG. 390
- KAY: [to STAGG] Please ring this internal extension if you need to speak to General Eisenhower. He'd like you to call at any time, day or night, if it's important.
 STAGG: Is this a direct line to General Eisenhower?
 KAY: No, sir, it's a direct line to me. 395
- They hold each other's gaze for a moment. STAGG pockets the card. KAY marches smartly out of the room, followed by CAPTAIN JOHNS.*
- KRICK: Now we can actually see each other, maybe things'll improve.

- STAGG: [checking his watch] Sixty-four hours. We should start. 400
- STAGG stands in front of the chart and begins his analysis.
- A family of four low-pressure centres, four aggressive storms, stretching from Jutland, Low 1 –
- He points to Low 1 on the chart.*
- across the Atlantic Ocean to Low 4 south of Nova Scotia. A fifth storm, Low 5, lurks here. 405
- He points to Low 5.*
- KRICK: Already on the move.
- STAGG: Aye, but yet to be drawn into the bosom of the family. We also have a formidable, unforgiving mass of high pressure extending a third of the way round the Arctic Circle, from the Rocky Mountains to the White Sea. 410
- KRICK: Sure.
- STAGG: Finally, an area of high pressure over the Azores ...
- He points to the anti-cyclone over the Azores.* 415
- KRICK: That's what interests me.
- STAGG: ... gentler than its polar cousin, it's moving lethargically ...
- KRICK: Your word, not mine.
- STAGG: ... north-eastward towards Europe. What you see on this chart is precisely what I anticipated ... 420
- KRICK: I'm not interested in what you anticipated.
- STAGG: I mention that I was correct, as a statement of fact ...
- KRICK: But you had to tell me.
- STAGG: ... to support the forecast I'm about to give.
- KRICK: Just talk about the weather ... 425
- STAGG: You diminish yourself, Colonel Krick ...
- KRICK: Talk about the weather not yourself, okay?
- STAGG: ... by accusing me of self-interest.
- KRICK: Talk about the damn weather, will ya?
- Tense silence.* 430
- STAGG: [voice trembling with intensity] If we continue like this, we will fail. We – will – FAIL. And thousands of men will die because of our failure.
- KRICK: What is your forecast for D-Day?
- STAGG collects himself and begins his forecast. 435
- STAGG: My forecast is not only based on weather at the surface ...
- There's a knock on the door. STAGG tries to ignore it.*
- ... I've also considered upper-air currents within the troposphere, at the tropopause, and in the lower stratosphere ...
- Another knock on the door.* 440

- One moment! The most powerful of these currents, measured two hours ago at twenty-eight thousand feet, is three hundred miles wide and three miles deep. I'll refer to it as the jet stream ...
- KRICK: There's no proof the jet stream exists.
- STAGG: It definitely exists. 445
- KRICK: Who says?
- STAGG: [on his way to answer the door] Last week two B17s flying from New York to Prestwick found the jet stream and cut their travel time by one third. The tail wind was measured at 120 knots.
- KRICK: You're taking the word of two pilots? That's not proof. 450
- STAGG opens the door, the NAVAL METEOROLOGIST hands him some papers.
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: More signals from the weather ships, sir.
- The METEOROLOGIST leaves.*
- STAGG: Colonel Krick, you think two-dimensionally. [Glancing at the papers.] Low 5 is still moving. 455
- He puts the papers on his table.*
- You know as well as I do that upper-air structures determine weather at surface level.
- KRICK: To an extent. 460
- STAGG: And the jet stream is no exception. It is now moving very straight and very fast ...
- KRICK: Sure, but at twenty-eight thousand feet.
- STAGG: ... driving storms 2, 3 and 4 at great speed towards Europe.
- KRICK: Not from twenty-eight thousand feet it isn't. 465
- STAGG: Because of the energy of this current, our storms are moving more rapidly than the surface chart would imply. Low 2 will move east or south-eastward. Low 3 will follow quickly, east-north-east to the latitude of Lerwick.
- KRICK: Where's Lerwick, for crying out loud? 470
- STAGG: [pointing it out on the chart] The capital of the Shetlands.
- KRICK: Which is a thousand miles north of the English Channel.
- STAGG: The speed of movement of these depressions ...
- KRICK: A thousand miles, Stagg!
- STAGG: ... will bring to southern England and the English Channel, 475
a stream of humid air with considerable amounts of low cloud, substantial rainfall and, at times, strong winds.
- KRICK: I don't think so.
- STAGG: This weather is likely to last at least two to three days. Saturday, Sunday, and most likely Monday ... D-Day. 480
- KRICK: I don't agree.
- STAGG: The poor weather on D-Day, will, I suggest, make the landings extremely problematic, if not impossible. Low cloud, base five hundred feet, seven to nine-tenths complete cover. Poor visibility. Considerable swell. Waves six to ten feet. Wind speeds, force 485 five to six, occasionally, force seven.
- STAGG has finished.
- KRICK: You done?

- KRICK takes a chart from his black-leather folder and hands it to STAGG. 490
- Okay. This is the weather chart for June 2nd, 1923. And I could have given you June 3rd 1919, or June 10th 1926, all three identical to the chart on this wall.
- STAGG: Not identical.
- KRICK: Virtually. 495
- He points to the main chart on the wall.*
- Same depressions in the Atlantic. Same ridge of high pressure over the Arctic Circle. And most importantly, the same high pressure over the Azores ... here.
- He taps the Azores on the chart, then hands STAGG another analogue chart.* 500
- ... now move forward three days ... to June 5th 1923, D-Day if you like, but twenty-one years ago.
- He uses the main chart to demonstrate.*
- The ridge of high pressure over the Azores has strengthened and pushed north-eastwards, pressing Low 2, 3 and 4 northwards towards Iceland, thereby protecting the English Channel from any direct onslaught by the Atlantic storms. 505
- STAGG: Because the storms in 1923 were less intense.
- KRICK: Not true. It's a classic battle between good and evil! And let me tell you, Stagg, 'good' will prevail, as it did in 1919, '23 and '26. The proof is in the past. I anticipate calm seas and clear skies on Monday – perfect conditions for the Normandy landings. 510
- Complete impasse. The two men stare at each other.*
- STAGG: In less than half an hour, I have to present an agreed forecast to General Eisenhower. How can I do that when you predict a glorious sunny day, and I predict storm-force winds and rain. For the sake of the three hundred and fifty thousand men who will cross the Channel on Monday, is there no room for compromise? 515
- KRICK: You tell me. 520
- STAGG: Nothing would please me more than to agree with you, but I can't. Your system is flawed ...
- KRICK: Garbage!
- STAGG: You have to think three-dimensionally. Surface weather is not enough on its own. 525
- KRICK: Let me tell you something, thousands of lives were saved in the Torch campaign, using analogues.
- STAGG: You were lucky.
- KRICK: [incensed] I was not lucky! The Air Force and the Army needed long-term predictions – and they got them, and the predictions were right – every time. 530
- STAGG: Except, of course, at Anzio. On that occasion your analogues were completely inaccurate, if they had followed your advice not mine, the landings would never have happened.

- KRICK and STAGG are boiling with frustration. 535
- KRICK: We need to compromise.
Compromise requires movement on both sides.
- STAGG gestures to KRICK's leather folders full of weather charts going back fifty years.
- STAGG: Where are those charts from? 540
- KRICK: What do you mean, 'where are they from'?
- STAGG: They come from Washington DC. Drawn up by men and women who've never even been to Europe, let alone stood on a beach on the south coast of England. Have you ever done that, Colonel Krick? Have you ever been to the beaches of Hastings, or Brighton, or Portsmouth? 545
- KRICK: I'm a physicist, Stagg, not a tourist.
- STAGG: Ten o'clock in the morning it's baking hot, the beach is packed. By midday, there's a howling wind and the Punch and Judy man has packed up for the day. 550
- KRICK: For crying out loud!
- STAGG: By two o'clock, the rain is horizontal, but by four o'clock ... the sun is beating down again and it's eighty degrees. Nothing is predictable about British weather, that's why we love to talk about it. 555
- KRICK: So, I have to get wet to know why it's raining?
- STAGG: We're not on a film set in Beverly Hills, we are in northern Europe. Your analogue charts do not even begin to replicate what we have here.
- KRICK: In identical scenarios in the past ... 560
- STAGG: Not identical ...
- KRICK: ... high pressure over the Azores repelled similar storms ...
- STAGG: Lesser storms.
- KRICK: ... and drove them north. Scotland may have terrible weather on D-Day, the Channel will be fine and sunny. 565
- Impasse again.*
- STAGG: Colonel Krick, it's Friday. The invasion is on Monday. What we decide now, together, will determine whether the invasion goes ahead or not. Let's remember why we've been picked. You're American. I'm British. If D-Day fails because of a bad weather forecast, it fails because of an Allied blunder, no one side must be seen to be blamed. Hence the need for us to agree – [Urgent.] on – some – level. 570
- Long silence. KRICK doesn't budge an inch. STAGG checks his watch.* 575
- [Suddenly on his feet, active.] I've decided to meet the Commanders-in-Chief alone.
- KRICK: You can't do that.
- STAGG: The last thing Eisenhower needs at the moment is uncertainty.
- KRICK: Or a mistake. 580
- STAGG: Final decision.
- KRICK: He needs to know there's more than one possible outcome.

- STAGG: The forecast for D-Day is my responsibility.
 KRICK: I'm gonna talk to Spaatz.
 STAGG: By all means. 585
 KRICK: Have you any idea of the consequences of postponement?
 STAGG: Of course I have.
 KRICK: Can you imagine the effect on morale?
 STAGG: I am offering the C-in-Cs a weather forecast in good faith. It's up to them how they choose to respond to it. 590
 KRICK: [deliberately] Which is why they should be made aware of both arguments.

A final impasse.

 STAGG: We'll reconvene at midnight for the next chart.

A beat in which KRICK decides whether to object further. He doesn't. He goes to the door and opens it, he's confronted by ANDREW coming the other way, laden with meteorological equipment. KRICK barges past him. ANDREW staggers into the room, dumping the equipment on the floor. 595

STAGG appears oblivious to ANDREW's presence, absorbed in his own thoughts. 600

 ANDREW: We've done rather well, sir ... Where shall I put these?
 STAGG: [suddenly active, urgent] Come and look at this chart with me.

STAGG practically drags ANDREW to the chart.

 I want your opinion. 605
 ANDREW: I don't think I'm ...
 STAGG: I want to know what you think. Will this anti-cyclone over the Azores extend and deflect 2, 3 and 4?
 ANDREW: I don't really think I'm the one to ...
 STAGG: I want to know what you think. 610

ANDREW leans nervously into the chart.

 ANDREW: I think it ... I think it could go either way.
 STAGG: It could, so what would tilt the balance one way or the other?

ANDREW looks reluctant to be drawn in, but carries on.

 ANDREW: I would look at the intensity of the Atlantic storms ... 615
 STAGG: Aye, and ...?

The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST and the NAVAL RATING enter, carrying more equipment.

 NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: [to STAGG] Where do you want these, sir?
 STAGG: On the floor. Anywhere. [To ANDREW.] And ...? 620
 ANDREW: I would look at the strength of the pressure gradient ...
 STAGG: Aye.
 ANDREW: ... and the thickness charts ...
 STAGG: Good. [To the METEOROLOGIST.] That'll be all. [To ANDREW.]
 What else? 625

- ANDREW: ... the velocity of the upper winds.
STAGG: Exactly!
- STAGG picks up the papers that were delivered earlier in the scene. He reads out a series of figures.*
- Look at these. 22,000 feet – 115 knots. 26,000 feet – 120 knots. 28,000 feet – 135 knots. Extraordinary readings. Readings you'd associate with December not June. 630
- ANDREW: They could have a huge impact on the speed of the storms.
STAGG: But how do I convince someone who doesn't even believe the jet stream exists? How do I persuade General Eisenhower that the man he trusts relies on a fallacious, archaic system? 635
- ANDREW: I'm sure you'll find a way, sir.
STAGG: Are you? I'm not. And should I be trying to persuade him anyway? There's only one other date this year when spring tide coincides with first light, and on that night there's no full moon. Can he afford to postpone? He may have to go on Monday. 640
- ANDREW: They should listen to you, of all people.
STAGG: Why? Would you, in their shoes? Not a cloud in the sky, not a breath of wind. The last thing they want to hear is what I've got to tell them ... [A sudden change of tone, honest.] And I may be wrong, his anti-cyclone is a plausible theory, he's always been lucky. I'm a scientist, not a gambler. But that's what they're making us do ... gamble, with three hundred and fifty thousand lives at stake. 645
- ANDREW: [disappointed in his hero] It's more than gambling, sir. 650
- STAGG picks a barometer off the top of the pile of equipment and hangs it from an exposed nail on the wall. STAGG taps the glass and adjusts the brass arrow.*
- STAGG: Set up the barograph, will you?
ANDREW: Sir. 655
- A sixty-year-old civilian ELECTRICIAN appears in the doorway, carrying two telephones and a mass of cable.*
- ELECTRICIAN: Two telephones.
STAGG: How long will it take?
ELECTRICIAN: Five minutes. 660
STAGG: If you're quick.
- A sudden thought strikes STAGG. He takes KAY's card out of his pocket and rings her internal extension.*
- STAGG: [on phone] Lieutenant Summersby ... I need a typewriter urgently ... for goodness sake, do you really care if I say please or thank you every time I ask you for something? This isn't an English tea party! 665
- KAY obviously stands her ground, because:*
- ... Please!
- He slams down the telephone.* 670

- ELECTRICIAN: Where d'you want them?
STAGG taps KRICK's table.
- STAGG: On this table.
STAGG sits at his table and starts writing his forecast for Eisenhower. 675
The ELECTRICIAN places the phones on KRICK's table. He extends cable from the phones to a point on the wall.
CAPTAIN JOHNS pops his head round the door.
- CAPTAIN JOHNS: The C-in-Cs have arrived. They'd like to start in ten minutes.
CAPTAIN JOHNS goes. 680
- ELECTRICIAN: Can't come a moment too soon for me, mate.
STAGG: I'm sorry, what can't?
ELECTRICIAN: The invasion. The sooner the better.
The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST returns with more equipment: paper, pens, pencils, ink, etc. 685
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: [to STAGG] And these, sir?
STAGG: On the table please.
While the ELECTRICIAN talks, ANDREW sets up the barograph, STAGG writes and the METEOROLOGIST drops off the equipment and leaves again. 690
- ELECTRICIAN: They phoned me a week ago, I live in Portsmouth, they said could I come up to Southwick House and put in some extra telephone lines.
STAGG: [not interested, he concentrates on writing his forecast] Really?
ELECTRICIAN: I said yeah if you want, I've given it all up really, but I'll do it if you pay me. They told me the hourly rate, I thought blimey I've never been paid that before, so I said yes. I couldn't work out why they picked me. I know now of course. Anyway I come up here and I put the extra lines in, in an office just down the corridor from here as it happens, and on the wall there's a huge, coloured map of Normandy, you know with tiny wooden boats crossing the Channel to these beaches, and all the beaches are labelled: Juno, Sword, is it? I can't remember the other names, but ... anyway I thought: aaah, so that's where it's going to be. It's Normandy, not Calais at all. So I finish putting in the lines, pack up my stuff, go to the door, open it and there's two of them military police waiting for me, and they say: sorry, you can't go home, apologies for the inconvenience but you know too much, you're officially detained here till after the invasion. I said when's that? They said: none of your business. 700
710
- STAGG: [not listening] Really?
ELECTRICIAN: I bumped into the lads who put up the map of Normandy actually, they're here! Chad Valley the toy manufacturers made the map and sent these two chippies in to put it up and they were detained too! They've been here longer than me. I wish they'd hurry up and invade, I wanna go home. I know why they picked me of course, I'm sixty, retired, no wife, no kids, no one'd know I'm missing. They had it all worked out. There you are, mate, all done. 715

He lifts the receivers on both phones and listens for the dialling tone. 720

All working. Internal calls only, of course, till after the invasion. What's your job?

STAGG says nothing.

All right, fair enough.

At this moment, KAY walks in, carrying a typewriter. 725

Let me know if there's any problems.

The ELECTRICIAN picks up his tools.

[To KAY.] All right, love?

KAY: Yes thanks.

The ELECTRICIAN leaves. 730

STAGG: One typewriter.
He didn't stop talking from the moment he walked in to the moment he left.

KAY: What about?

STAGG: I've no idea. I wasn't listening. 735

STAGG takes the typewriter from KAY. He puts it on a table. He mumbles under his breath:

KAY: Thank you.
Not at all.

STAGG examines the typewriter. He needs paper and carbon paper. He finds paper in his briefcase. ANDREW brings him carbon. The phone rings. STAGG answers it. 740

STAGG: [on phone] Stagg. One moment ...

STAGG hands the phone to ANDREW.

Take this down, will you. 745

ANDREW grabs paper and pencil.

ANDREW: [on phone] Hello ... 41.2 north. Yes. 46.1 west. 1010. Thank you. Falling. 2 knots. 71 degrees.

STAGG tries to sandwich carbons between paper and insert them into the typewriter. 750

ANDREW puts down the phone.

STAGG: Low 5?
 ANDREW: Yes, sir.
 STAGG: Mark it up, will you.
 ANDREW: Me? 755
 STAGG: Aye.

ANDREW goes to the chart and adjusts the position of Low 5. The storm is creeping northward.

STAGG is battling with the typewriter. The first pieces of paper are a disaster, crumpled up before he's even started. 760

He rips them out, scrumples them and throws them on the floor. The second attempt is just as bad, he rips them out and throws them away. He's becoming increasingly frustrated.

KAY: Would you like some help?

STAGG presses a key and the carriage shoots across to the left. He pushes it back to the right and types a couple of words. 765

STAGG: This machine's out of the Ark! I should have been allocated a typist as soon as I arrived.

KAY: Will I do?

STAGG: Do you understand these machines? 770

KAY: More or less. I'm getting better.

The carriage shoots across again. STAGG despairs.

STAGG: It has a life of its own.

CAPTAIN JOHNS knocks and enters.

CAPTAIN JOHNS: They're ready for you, sir. 775

STAGG stands up, pushing the typewriter away and scraping his chair back. CAPTAIN JOHNS leaves. STAGG walks to the French windows and stares out at the late-afternoon sun, at the serene sky.

He turns back to KAY. 780

STAGG: The weather gods are toying with us.

A beat, then:

KAY: Four copies?

STAGG: Is that possible?

KAY: We can try. 785

KAY sits at the table and pulls the typewriter towards her. Efficiently, quickly, she sandwiches three carbons between four sheets of paper. She inserts them into the typewriter.

STAGG walks to the table and pushes a piece of paper, the handwritten forecast, towards her. She puts on a pair of reading glasses and starts to type. 790

STAGG is astonished by her typing speed. Her fingers fly over the keys. For a moment he and ANDREW watch her in silence. Then:

ANDREW: Anything else I can do, sir?
STAGG: Will you see that all upper-air data, in or out of synoptic hours, is sent directly to me. I want to be notified of any changes in upper-wind velocity. 795

ANDREW: Yes, sir.
STAGG: What is your extension?

ANDREW: 231. 800

STAGG: I'll telephone you if I need you ...

ANDREW: Good luck, sir.

ANDREW slips out of the room. KAY is typing away. STAGG notices her hands are black.

STAGG: Your hands. 805

She holds them up in front of her face and wiggles her fingers for a second.

KAY: Oil. Impossible to get it off.

She returns to her typing. STAGG checks his watch. Silence, save the clack of the typewriter. 810

STAGG goes to the chart and examines it. He talks [half to himself, half to the absent KRICK] as KAY types.

STAGG: 1010, 1013, 1014, it's not enough! [Questioning himself for a second.] Is it? Surely not. If the jet was further north you might have a point. No, not even then! Use your eyes, man, use your bloody eyes! Look at Low 2, for heaven's sake. 815

KAY finishes typing. She removes her specs, pulls the paper out of the typewriter and extracts the carbons. She examines the fourth carbon copy.

KAY: The fourth is rather faint. Give it to Leigh-Mallory, make him work for his supper. 820

KAY hands the four copies to STAGG.

STAGG: They won't like the forecast.
Nor do I.

KAY checks her watch, then goes to the door. 825

KAY: I'll tell them you're ready. Don't take anything Leigh-Mallory says personally, he's got even worse manners than you.

She leaves, closing the door. STAGG sets out some chairs, then stands in front of the chart, clutching his notes. He waits ... and waits. 830

Eventually the door opens. IKE leads the way, followed by GENERAL 'TOOEY' SPAATZ, ADMIRAL SIR BERTRAM 'BERTIE' RAMSAY and AIR CHIEF MARSHAL SIR TRAFFORD LEIGH-MALLORY.

STAGG is extremely nervous. 835

IKE: [introducing everyone] Group Captain Stagg – this is Admiral Ramsay, Commander-in-Chief, Allied Naval forces, Air Chief Marshal Leigh-Mallory Commander-in-Chief Allied Expeditionary Air Force, and General Spaatz, Commander United States Air Force in Europe. General Montgomery is not attending, he assures me he's ready to go, whatever the weather. 840

IKE gets out a cigarette and is about to light it.

LEIGH-MALLORY: Ike?

The cigarette sits unlit in IKE's mouth.

IKE: It's so difficult to concentrate in a room full of smoke. 845
 LEIGH-MALLORY: For you, Trafford, we'll open the windows.
 Cigarettes destroy one's mental acuity.

SPAATZ flings open the French windows, then paces impatiently at the back of the room.

BERTIE RAMSAY: [to STAGG] Did you get the equipment you needed? 850
 STAGG: Most of it, yes, sir.
 BERTIE RAMSAY: You could always use one of my forecast rooms. If you don't think this room is suitable.
 IKE: No he couldn't.

Outside, the familiar sound of a Spitfire overhead. 855

I want Stagg right here. Give him everything he wants, Bertie, but he stays here.
 BERTIE RAMSAY: [looking out of the French windows] It is an enviable view.

KAY has walked in with a tray of coffee.

STAGG: These ... 860

He coughs to clear his throat. His voice trembles.

These are copies of my – [Coughing again.] my forecast.

STAGG hands out the copies of the forecast. SPAATZ looks at his copy of the forecast vaguely, but seems uninterested.

KAY puts down the tray of coffee and starts to leave. 865

- IKE: Lieutenant Summersby, where you going? Stay. Keep the coffee flowing.
- This familiarity, intimacy, does not go unnoticed.*
- SPAATZ: Ike, you know I'd trust Kay Summersby with my life, but is it appropriate she stays? 870
- IKE: Too right it is. I've given up keeping secrets from Kay. Anybody want sugar?
- LEIGH-MALLORY: [raising a hand] Two.
- IKE: Okay, Stagg, what have you got for us?
- SPAATZ: Where's Krick? 875
- STAGG: [hesitating] ... He's not attending, sir.
- SPAATZ: Why the hell not?
- STAGG: I represent the Allied Meteorological Unit.
- SPAATZ: Dr Stagg, I'm in command of over five thousand American aircraft. I've worked with Irving Krick since July '42. I wouldn't contemplate making a strategic choice without hearing his view. I want him here. 880
- IKE: In future I'd like you both to be present. Okay, what have you got?
- STAGG turns to the chart.*
- STAGG: We are faced with four ... [He hesitates.] We are faced with four ... 885
- SPAATZ: Speak up.
- STAGG: ... four, soon to be five, storms in the Atlantic of unprecedented intensity for the time of the year. Although ... [Clearing his throat again.] there exists the seductive notion that this ridge of high pressure over the Azores could extend and deflect the storms, the Allied Meteorological Unit does not believe this is likely. 890
- SPAATZ: 'Allied'? That include Irving Krick? What does he think?
- STAGG: Colonel Krick and I have discussed this in considerable detail and these are the conclusions of the AMU. 895
- SPAATZ: Okay, I'll take your word for it.
- SPAATZ looks sceptical, but STAGG battles on.*
- STAGG: My forecast, therefore, for Monday 5th June, the proposed D-Day, is as follows: Wind: west-north-west. Strong. Reaching force five to six, possibly force seven. 900
- BERTIE RAMSAY: [shocked] Seven? Are you sure?
- STAGG: That is my estimate.
- BERTIE RAMSAY: Throughout the day?
- STAGG: It's more than likely. Cloud: Low. Base 500 to 1000 feet. 7 to 9 10ths cover. Visibility: Poor. Rain: Very likely. The sea: Waves 6 feet to 10 feet, possibly increasing to 12 feet. Swell: Height 10 feet, wave length 750 feet. Confidence: Poor, falling to very poor through Monday 5th to Tuesday 6th. 905
- STAGG looks up. The Commanders-in-Chief are gloomy to a man.* 910
- SPAATZ: I do not believe this! 6 foot 1 of Stagg. 6 foot 2 of gloom.
- And as if to mock everything STAGG is suggesting, the sun dips*

lower outside, allowing a serene, golden light to pour into the room.

- I'm not a weatherman, Dr Stagg, but you expect me to believe your forecast? Look out the window! 915
- STAGG: As I'm sure you know, sir, the weather in this part of the world can change very rapidly.
- SPAATZ: It's been like this for six weeks, I'm sure it'll last another three days. 920
- STAGG: I wish that were the case, sir.
- BERTIE RAMSAY: [to STAGG] Will the force-six winds continue through Tuesday and Wednesday?
- STAGG: Any forecast beyond twenty-four to thirty-six hours is an informed guess ... 925
- IKE: Not according to Colonel Krick.
- STAGG: No. Colonel Krick is enviably ... certain. If I had to guess, I would say 'yes'. The force-six winds will probably continue through Tuesday and Wednesday.
- BERTIE RAMSAY: You say 'poor visibility', how poor? 930
- STAGG: Less than a mile.
- LEIGH-MALLORY: What will conditions be like for my heavy bombers taking off early on Monday morning?
- STAGG: 7 to 8 10ths stratus cloud. At 3,000 feet – thick. As I said, base 500 to 1000 feet. 935
- LEIGH-MALLORY: And above the stratus?
- STAGG: Considerable cloud between 8 and 12,000 feet.
- LEIGH-MALLORY: What will the enemy have for their aircraft?
- STAGG: Inland over France, weather will be better than over England. But on the coast – much the same as us. 940

Silence.

- IKE: Thank you, Stagg. Tooey?
- SPAATZ: We should 'go' regardless. The lives we'll save by shortening the war, will far outnumber the lives lost on D-Day. If we sit on our backsides on this side of the Channel, the war could go on another five years. Get the men onto the beaches, somehow. Anyhow. 945
- BERTIE RAMSAY: [a dose of reality] General Spaatz, I can't land one hundred and sixty thousand men in a force-seven gale.

Scene 2

5.00 p.m. Friday, 2 June 1944. 950

The room has emptied. STAGG looks pale and exhausted. He is slumped in a chair, holding the photograph of the pregnant woman and child. That's how KAY finds him when she returns to collect the empty coffee cups.

- KAY: [encouraging] All right, sir? 955
- STAGG: Aye, I'm fine.
- KAY: [brightly] Coffee cups.
- STAGG: Aye.

KAY starts to clear up the cups.

KAY: You look as if you've seen a ghost. 960
 STAGG: I'm fine.
 KAY: Is that your wife?
 STAGG: Aye.

He's about to put the photo back on the table.

KAY: May I see? 965

A beat, then STAGG hands her the photo.

STAGG: Is that your daughter?
 Son.
 KAY: Oh, I'm sorry.
 STAGG: He needed a haircut. 970
 KAY: How old is he?
 STAGG: Four.

The phone rings. STAGG picks it up.

Stagg ...

He listens attentively and jots down some figures. 975

Thank you.

He puts down the phone, goes to the chart and makes an adjustment.

KAY: Your wife ... is she ...?
 STAGG: Eight months pregnant. She had our son, Peter, early. So it could be any day. 980

KAY picks up the note of anxiety in STAGG's voice. She smiles at the photo.

KAY: It's a lovely photograph.
 STAGG: Could you put it back on the table. 985

KAY replaces the photo. Silence. STAGG works on the chart, then asks a question which takes KAY by surprise.

KAY: Do you have children?
 [never self-pitying] No! Not me! The war rather got in the way. I'm not even married. It would have been nice. Too late now. 990
 STAGG: Is it? Why?
 KAY: Various reasons. [American accent.] 'Not a problem' – as the Americans would say.
 STAGG: You're young, fine looking, plenty of time.

KAY is astonished by the compliment. STAGG continues to work. 995

KAY: What's your wife's name?
 STAGG: Elizabeth.

- KAY: She'll be fine, Dr Stagg.
 STAGG: There's no certainty of that. Childbirth doesn't agree with her.
- STAGG picks up a wooden slatted box, one of the instruments brought in by ANDREW.* 1000
- KAY: I'm going to set this up. In the grounds.
 STAGG: What is it?
 STAGG: A Stevenson screen. Keeps instruments dry, keeps the air circulating. 1005
- He walks to the door, then stops.*
- KAY: What if Krick's right? What if summer's here to stay?
 That would be good, wouldn't it?
- STAGG nods slowly, then leaves the room. KAY walks out onto the balcony, untucks her blouse and flaps it to cool down her body. She lifts her face to the sun, closes her eyes and feels the heat on her eyelids.* 1010
- She doesn't hear IKE open the door. He stands in the open doorway watching her.*
- Eventually, KAY senses his presence and turns to face him.* 1015
- IKE: I didn't know England ever got this hot.
- KAY tucks in her blouse.*
- KAY: Where's Stagg?
 Setting up equipment in the grounds.
- IKE closes the door. He takes a key out of his pocket and locks the door.* 1020
- IKE: Five minutes.
 KAY: Five whole minutes.
- They stand, eyes locked, on opposite sides of the room.*
- IKE: You look so tired. 1025
 We're all tired. Even your uniform looks tired. Would you like a new one?
- KAY: Yes please!
 IKE: Soon as we get to Paris, we'll have one made.
- KAY's face lights up.* 1030
- KAY: Paris! Imagine us in Paris.
- Short silence. The sound of a ship's hooter from the harbour below. IKE walks over to the chart.*
- IKE: Do you understand it?
 KAY: [joining IKE in front of the chart] Not really, do you? 1035

IKE: I'd like to, I'd really like to.

They stand side by side, a few feet apart, staring at the chart.

If Stagg's right, the landing craft will capsize. Fifty, sixty, seventy thousand men will drown before they even get to the beaches. Not exaggerating, Kay, these are fair-weather vessels, they don't even have a keel, and some of them are twenty years old. If the cloud is low, the airborne won't know where to land, bombers won't see their targets, civilians will be killed. The weather has got to be good ... And we have no back-up. 1040

I don't know if it's positive thinking or foolishness, but we have no Plan B. 1045

Another silence. KAY pulls a chair over to IKE.

KAY: Sit.

IKE is obedient and sits.

IKE: How is your knee? 1050
[shrugging] It's just a knee.

KAY pulls another chair over and places it beside IKE's. She sits next to him. IKE checks his watch.

KAY: How long?

IKE: Three minutes. 1055

Their hands hang loosely between the two chairs. They sit in silence for a moment, then almost tentatively, IKE takes KAY's hand. They sit in silence for a moment.

I have a surprise for us. As rare as nylons.

IKE reaches into his pocket and takes out ... an orange. 1060

KAY: An orange! How smashing!!

She takes it from IKE and smells it.

Mmmmmmm! Where did you get it?

IKE: A secret admirer.

KAY: You can have as many admirers as you like if they bring you oranges. 1065

KAY starts to peel the orange. Silence, then IKE continues to unburden himself of the day's problems.

IKE: Rommel ... has doubled his beach defences in Normandy ... Why now? Why not in Calais? Why the specific stretch of sand where we want to land? It cannot be a coincidence. He knows, Kay. [Needing an answer.] Do you think they're waiting for us? 1070

KAY: Do you?

Silence. Eventually:

IKE: [truthful] I don't know. I really don't know. Sixteen months we've kept this secret. 1075

KAY has peeled the orange. Her hands are covered in juice. She holds up a large segment in front of IKE's mouth. IKE opens his mouth. KAY pops the segment in. She pops one into her own mouth too. 1080

That is ... so ...
 KAY: Mmmmmmmm! Mmm! Mmm!
 IKE: Delicious! Oh, wow!
 KAY: That is the best ... orange ... I have ever ...

She feeds them both another segment – and another. They eat in silence for a while, relishing the heavenly taste. 1085

IKE: We need a full moon, and dry beaches at low tide for half an hour after touchdown. Those conditions only exist on the 5th. I can't bring D-Day forward, I can't delay it, and Stagg tells me we should expect force-seven gales on Monday. We're trapped. When did a coach ever rely on one play to win a match? 1090

KAY hands IKE a handkerchief. He wipes orange juice off his chin.

The ship's hooter sounds again. A solitary aircraft passes overhead. 1095

And Winston wants to watch the invasion from HMS Belfast.
 KAY: Really?
 IKE: Can you believe that? I said to him, 'I cannot sanction you taking that risk.' He said, 'As a Minister of Defence I have a duty to take part.' 'Bull!' I said. He said, 'I will circumvent your authority and go as a crew member.' Winston Churchill! A member of the crew?! 'Dammit!' I said, 'It's D-Day minus three, haven't I got enough on my plate without having to worry about the Prime Minister's safety?' 1100

KAY: What will you do? 1105

IKE: Done it. I mentioned Winston's plan to the King.

KAY: What did he say?

IKE: The King sent a handwritten letter from Buckingham Palace to Ten Downing Street, saying that of course, as King, he would never interfere in the affairs of the Prime Minister, however, should the PM carry out his intentions, then as King, he would likewise feel obliged to witness the invasion as titular head of Britain's armed forces. 1110

KAY: You are very brilliant!

IKE: Winston read the letter and told me he was bitterly disappointed and resentful. He said to me: 'If I do defer, which I assure you is by no means certain, I will be deferring to the Crown, not to you, General Eisenhower.' 1115

KAY: He won't go. He can't risk the King's life.

IKE looks at his watch. 1120

- IKE: Time's up. More than up.
- IKE gets up. His knee gives way for a step or two towards the door, but then recovers. He unlocks the door and pockets the key. His hand is on the doorknob, he's about to leave, but he stops. Throughout the next speech he's facing the door, not KAY.* 1125
- [Difficult to say, hesitant.] Kay ...
- I don't know what I'd do without you ... truly I don't ... you work ... so hard ... you are so ... special to me ... if we win this war ... and History gives me some of the credit ... it will be in no small measure down to you. 1130
- IKE opens the door and leaves. The tears well up in KAY's eyes. She looks around for something to do. She pushes the two chairs back against a wall. The door opens. STAGG returns. STAGG and KAY look at each other in silence. The silence is broken by one of the phones ringing. STAGG picks it up.* 1135
- STAGG: Yes ... yes ... one moment ...
- STAGG mimes to KAY to take dictation from him. KAY finds paper and pencil.*
- [Dictating.] 42.3 north. 15.4 west.
Pressure sea level: 1029 millibars. 1140
- KAY: M?
- STAGG: M for ... Methuselah.
- KAY: [a glimmer of a smile] Methuselah?
- STAGG: Barometric change: plus 10.
Tendency: Rising. 1145
Wind Speed: 3 knots.
Direction: South-west.
Temperature: 78 degrees.
[Into phone.] Thank you.
- STAGG puts down the phone. KAY gives him the dictated information. STAGG reads it, takes a red crayon and goes to the weather chart.* 1150
- He adjusts the curve of an isobar on the map north-east of the Azores. He draws a new red curve [visible to the audience] which stretches further to the north-east, towards the English Channel.* 1155
- KAY: What do the figures mean?
- STAGG doesn't answer.*
- Can you explain the figures to me?
- Still no answer. STAGG concentrates on the chart.*
- Dr Stagg! I suspect you don't have much time for the English, but I'm not English, I'm Irish. We're both Celts, so don't take your prejudice out on me. 1160

- STAGG: I'm not in the slightest bit prejudiced.
STAGG is still looking at the map.
- KAY: What does the red curve mean? 1165
STAGG answers KAY's original question.
- STAGG: We have a British weather ship north-east of the Azores. This is their latest reading. All the thin lines are isobars. Measurements of barometric pressure.
STAGG points to the barometer on the wall. 1170
No different from that barometer on the wall. The red curve is Colonel Krick's finger of high pressure pushing north-eastward towards the English Channel ... as he predicted.
- KAY: So the weather will be good on Monday?
STAGG: I don't believe so. You can never be certain, but I don't believe he's right. It does surprise me that the curve is so pronounced. 1175
Suddenly the door is flung open. IKE is in the room. He slams the door closed. His face is beetroot red, the veins stand out on his forehead. This is the legendary Eisenhower temper.
- IKE: Stagg, what in hell is going on?! I wanna know now. Was the forecast you gave us the view of American and British forecasters? 1180
STAGG is silent. IKE is striding round the room, limping heavily.
- STAGG: Answer the damn question!
IKE: It was the view of the Allied Meteorological Unit. 1185
Don't play games with me, you son-of-a-bitch! Because I've just had Spaatz on the telephone telling me that Krick's team think it's gonna be a beautiful summer's day on Monday.
- STAGG: Colonel Krick had no right to divulge ...
IKE: He had every right to confer with his superior officer if he thought it would affect the outcome of the invasion. 1190
The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST appears in the doorway.
Not now, dammit!
The METEOROLOGIST looks uncertain ...
Get out!!
- NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: Sir. 1195
The METEOROLOGIST hurries out.
- STAGG: If you feel you can put greater trust in Colonel Krick ...
IKE: You think I'm a damn child, Stagg?
STAGG: I didn't think uncertainty would be useful.
IKE: Uncertainty! You listen to me. Over the last two years Krick has saved thousands of lives because of his forecasts. Again and again he gets it right. Why do you think he's wrong now? 1200

STAGG is silent.

Listen, fella, you are gonna explain to me what that damn chart means and why I should trust you and not one of the unsung American heroes of this war. Why is Krick wrong? 1205

No answer.

Why!

STAGG: I respect Colonel Krick as a scientist ...
IKE: Answer the question! 1210

STAGG hesitates, then:

STAGG: Colonel Krick ... has been lucky.
IKE: Good, I like luck, don't you? Why lucky?
STAGG: [nervous but strong] Lucky because the weather systems when he made his forecasts were stable, so his analogous charts fitted conveniently. When patterns are predictable, charts from the past can be useful. 1215

IKE: Damn right they're useful. In North Africa, he never made a mistake.

STAGG: Of course he didn't. He only forecasts if he's absolutely certain and in Morocco and Algeria in the summer, he was as safe as houses. This is northern Europe, sir. Look at the chart: one, two, three, four, five storms which could, at any moment, erupt into terrible violence over the British Isles. 1220

IKE: [pointing at the chart] Why is that curve red? 1225

STAGG: It's a more recent reading.

IKE: What does it mean?

STAGG: It means ...

STAGG trails off. IKE pounces.

IKE: I can't hear ya, soldier. 1230

STAGG: It means that high pressure from the Azores is pushing north-eastwards.

IKE: As Colonel Krick predicted it would. High pressure means good weather? Right?

STAGG: Usually. Not always. 1235

IKE: In this case?

STAGG: The weather within the red curve would be calm, yes.

The phone rings. STAGG lets it ring.

IKE: Go ahead, answer it.

STAGG: [answering the phone] Stagg ... thank you ... 1240

He picks up a pen and jots down a message.

46.5 north. 12.3 west ... 1028 ... thank you.

He puts down the phone.

IKE: Interesting?

STAGG: I'll adjust it later. 1245

- IKE: Do it now, I'm fascinated.
- STAGG freezes.
- [Steely.] Do it – now.
- STAGG takes his red crayon to the chart. His back hides what he's drawing. When he's finished, he steps away. A second red curve of high pressure, i.e. calm weather, stretches from the Azores even further north-east. Even nearer the English Channel. 1250
- STAGG: Krick's good weather is on the move. Am I right?
Weather is always on the move.
- IKE: And moving in the right direction, as he predicted. 1255
- STAGG: These are readings from one weather ship. Because of stormy seas, new readings from the Atlantic will take longer to come through.
- IKE: When's the next chart due?
- STAGG: One o'clock, tomorrow morning. 1260
- IKE: That should clarify things?
- STAGG: I hope so.
- IKE: One of you is right.
- STAGG: Yes, sir.
- IKE: Before this game kicked off, it was decided the Chief Meteorological Officer should be British. 1265
- STAGG: So your hands are tied?
- IKE: There's no question of Krick taking over, but you know as well as I do that Allied unity is essential.
- Short silence. IKE walks to the chart and stares at the mass of curves, lines and figures.* 1270
- STAGG: Sir ...
- IKE turns back to STAGG.
- IKE: British weather is uniquely complex and erratic. 1275
I wouldn't want to book a holiday in advance.
- STAGG: I lived for two years on a weather ship off the west coast of Scotland. I witnessed winds of one hundred and thirty miles per hour, summer temperatures of ninety degrees, I measured a wave of sixty feet between the Isle of Arran and the Ayrshire coast. It's a climate of surprises ... of twists and turns ... you have to sense the rise and fall on the hall barometer before the arrow even moves. It's a science governed by instinct and experience as much as formulae. You'll have to trust that my instincts are good. 1280
- Silence.* 1285
- IKE: You know Ayrshire well?
- STAGG: I do.
- IKE: You know Culzean Castle?
- STAGG: Very well.
- IKE: You ever watched the geese flying in from the west? 1290
- STAGG: Often.
- IKE: What a sound. Primeval. Fundamental.

- STAGG: It's a sound I'd welcome on my deathbed. Geese will tell you as much as a barometer. 'When the geese pass over Kintyre, bring in the peats, stock up the fire.' 1295
- Long moment. IKE walks up close to STAGG.*
- IKE: If there is divergence, I want to know. Is that clear?
- STAGG doesn't answer.
- [Frightening intensity.] Is – that – clear?
- STAGG: Dr Stagg? 1300
Aye, it is.
- IKE leaves. Silence. STAGG thinking, KAY watching STAGG. A phone rings. STAGG answers it.*
- STAGG: [on phone] ... Stagg ... Yes ... 1305
- A second phone rings.*
- 50.5 north ...
- STAGG gestures to KAY. She grabs paper and pencil and answers the second phone.
- KAY: [on phone] Lieutenant Summersby ... yes ... yes ... 1310
STAGG: [on phone] ... 32.7 west ...
KAY: [on phone] I'll pass that on to him ...
- STAGG glances at KAY, a flicker of interest, nothing more.
- STAGG: [on phone] 1016 ... 1315
KAY: [on phone] No.
STAGG: [on phone] 1010 ...
KAY: [on phone] Dr Forbes? ...
- For STAGG, the name of the doctor is like an electric shock. His attention instantly switches to KAY's call. He gestures to her, mouthing the words: 'I want to speak to him.'
- Yes I will ... yes ... yes ... 1320
- STAGG realises he hasn't heard his caller's last figures.
- STAGG: [on phone] I beg your pardon, could you repeat that ... 1325
KAY: [on phone] Where is she ... ?
STAGG: [on phone] 2 knots ...
KAY: [on phone] I see. Can we contact her? ...
STAGG: [on phone] 2 knots rising ... aye ...
KAY: [on phone] That seems excessive ...
STAGG: [on phone] I'm sorry, could you ... repeat ... 4 knots, thank you ...
- STAGG struggles to focus on his call. He looks pale, frightened.

KAY: [on phone] Surely you can give me a telephone number? ... 1330
 STAGG: [on phone] 998 ...
 KAY: [on phone] It's a hospital, not Ten Downing Street!
 STAGG: [on phone] 1001, aye ...
 KAY: [on phone] Well, please let us know, as soon as you hear anything ... I'd be grateful ... 1335

STAGG gesticulates for KAY to keep the call going – too late.

Thank you ... goodbye.

She puts the phone down, STAGG's call trickles on. KAY waits for it to end.

STAGG: [on phone] North-north-east ... 3 knots ... 1010, east-south-east 2 knots rising ... thank you. Goodbye. 1340

STAGG is repeating the figures but failing to write them down. The call ends. He looks at KAY desperately.

KAY: Your wife left a message with the Met Office in London ... Your baby's on the way. 1345

STAGG: I knew this would happen.

KAY: She's on her way to hospital.

STAGG: Which one?

KAY: Southampton General.

STAGG: [extremely anxious] I need to talk to her. Did they give you a contact number? 1350

KAY: I'm afraid 'security' blocked it.

STAGG: I need to see her.

KAY: She'll be in safe hands.

STAGG: What did they say about Dr Forbes? 1355

KAY: He's been informed.

STAGG: I need to speak to him, there must be a way of contacting the hospital, I may have his telephone number.

He hurries to his suitcase and opens it.

KAY: You won't be able to call him, Dr Stagg. 1360

STAGG is rummaging through his case.

Trunk calls are forbidden. They're going to leave a message with the Met Office as soon as there are any developments.

STAGG: Dr Forbes has all the information about our son Peter's birth ... it was not straightforward ... not at all straightforward ... did they say how long Liz had been in labour? 1365

KAY: She'll be fine.

STAGG: You know nothing about it! There is no certainty she will be fine, none whatsoever!

STAGG looks distraught. The phone rings again. STAGG appears paralysed. KAY has to answer it. 1370

KAY: [on phone] Thank you ... 54.2 north ... 28.6 west ... 1014 ...

The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST enters. He holds out papers for STAGG.

NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: New weather ship signals, sir. 1375

STAGG looks at the METEOROLOGIST blankly, as ... a second phone rings. KAY covers her receiver with her hand.

KAY: Dr Stagg!

Eventually, STAGG picks up the phone, his hand is trembling. The following dialogue overlaps.

1380

STAGG: [on phone] Stagg ...

KAY: Rising ...

STAGG: 44.3 north ...

KAY: South-south-west ...

The NAVAL METEOROLOGIST places the papers on STAGG's table, as the third phone rings. 1385

STAGG: 18.5 west ...

KAY: 3 knots ...

KAY points at the third phone. The METEOROLOGIST picks up the phone.

1390

STAGG: 1016 ...

KAY: Drizzle and fog ...

NAVAL METEOROLOGIST: [on phone] This is Group Captain Stagg's Office ...

STAGG: West-south-west 3 knots ...

KAY: Visibility, poor ...

1395

STAGG: Visibility, good ...

The phone calls continue as the lights fade.

Paper 1

May/June 2017

PRE-RELEASE MATERIAL

To be given to candidates on receipt by the Centre.

---

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

The questions in Paper 1 will be based on the stimuli and on the extract from Rona Munro's play Little Eagles provided in this booklet.

You may do any preparatory work that is considered appropriate. It is recommended that you perform the extract, at least informally.

You will not be permitted to take this copy of the material or any other notes or preparation into the examination. A clean copy of the pre-release material will be provided with the Question Paper.

---

This document consists of 34 printed pages and 2 blank pages.

STIMULI

Choose one of the following three stimuli and devise a piece of drama based on it. You should work in groups of between two and six performers. Your piece should last approximately 15 minutes.

In the Written examination, you will be asked questions about your piece that will cover both practical and theoretical issues.

Stimulus 1*Quotation:

'It is a wise father that knows his own child.'

From William Shakespeare's The Merchant of Venice [Act 2, Scene 2]

Stimulus 2

Grimms' Fairy Tales: Little Red Riding Hood

EXTRACT

Taken from Little Eagles, by Rona Munro

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

Rona Munro's play Little Eagles was commissioned by the Royal Shakespeare Company and first performed in April 2011 at Hampstead Theatre, London.

The play is set initially in 1938 and then in the 1950s. Following the death of Stalin in 1953, the Soviet Union went through a significant regime change, culminating in the rise to power of Khrushchev, and the acceleration of the Soviet space programme.

It explores the historically true but little-known story of Sergei Pavlovich Korolyov, engineer and Chief Designer of the space programme. Under Korolyov's leadership, the 'little eagles' of the Soviet Union beat the Americans in the early stages of the space race, achieving a series of firsts, including the first manned space flight. The history books have focused on the person who made that first flight, the cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin. However, Little Eagles charts the progress of Korolyov from his status as 'enemy of the people' to Chief Designer of the Sputnik programme.

The term 'comrade' was required as a formal mode of address by the Soviet Union.

The play is in three Acts. The extract consists of the whole of Act One, the first scene of Act Two and part of the second scene of Act Two.

ACT 1

Scene 1

Kolyma Gulag (prison camp) 1938. Sound of wind howling.

STALIN stands high above the frozen steppes.

STALIN:

Comrades.

Our country is attacked from within. Only the most naive among you can doubt that our enemies are right in the heart of our great nation, like rats in a barrel of wheat. We all know that the agents of all the bourgeois countries prey upon each other, sowing war and creating discord inside each other's borders. We know too that these same bourgeois countries consider us, the Soviet people, to be their greatest enemy. Of course they have sent their agents, their spies among us. Who can doubt it?

And even as we struggle against this foreign disease we still have failed to root out every germ of our own illnesses, Trotskyites and other double-dealers are living amongst us. [Muted applause]

As STALIN speaks, the GULAG WORKERS enter one by one. The Gulag is a frozen wasteland, an icy, open-cast gold mine. It's just after sunset. The GULAG WORKERS are scraping at the icy earth. They are all sick, very weak.

15

Some have accused our loyal agents of using excessive physical pressure against those who have been arrested. Some have even said that these faithful comrades have behaved like criminals themselves. But a party directive, made in 1937, indicated such force could be used in exceptional cases. I ask those who criticise this action to tell us how otherwise we are to defend ourselves against blatant enemies of the people. Enemies who, when interrogated by humane methods, defiantly refuse to turn over the names of co-conspirators. Enemies who refuse for months on end to provide any evidence. Enemies who try to thwart the unmasking of co-conspirators still at large, and who thereby continue, even from prison, to wage a struggle against the Soviet regime. The use of force requires courage but our experience has taught us no other method can produce results. The defence of the Soviet people demands all our strength.

20

There is no other case to answer.

30

What is done is done by the will of the people as all their actions demonstrate.

STALIN exits but his presence remains onstage in some visible form.

One by one the GULAG PRISONERS stop working, some collapsing altogether, others struggling to continue. Wind howling, then still.

One of them, KOROLYOV, looks up at the sky. He smiles. The worker beside him, an OLD MAN, sees him.

35

OLD MAN:

Who's up there?

KOROLYOV:

Venus. The evening star. Close and bright in the blue dusk. You can see the shape of her.

OLD MAN:

You got a biscuit, comrade?

40

KOROLYOV:

What?

OLD MAN: They fed you, there was none left for an old man, I couldn't reach it in time. Were there biscuits? I'll lick the crumbs off your fingers, comrade, anything.

Something sweet. I'd give my soul for something sweet on my tongue, comrade. 45

KOROLYOV: There's never any biscuits, you old fool.

I've nothing.

Two GUARDS drag on another WORKER; an execution. They position him and then aim their guns. The DOCTOR follows them on.

DOCTOR: Wait ... ! I didn't mean ... 50

The CONDEMNED MAN raises his arms to STALIN.

CONDEMNED MAN: Long live Comrade Stalin!

GUARD ONE: [meaning it] Well said, comrade!

They shoot him.

They turn to the DOCTOR. The DOCTOR is in her late twenties. She has never seen anyone shot before. 55

DOCTOR: You were saying.

DOCTOR: I didn't mean ... I didn't mean ...

GUARD TWO: You said he was dead.

DOCTOR: I didn't mean ... 60

GUARD ONE: You said he was as good as dead already.

DOCTOR: I didn't ... !

GUARD TWO: You said,

[Looks at notes.] 'If he's under sentence of death you might as well shoot him now and get it over with ...'

GUARD ONE: '... it'd be kinder.' 65

That's what you said.

GUARD TWO: And he was under sentence of death. So we did.

GUARD ONE: [pushing paperwork at her] Sign.

GUARD TWO: We did your kindness for you. 70

GUARD ONE: Sign.

GUARD TWO: Put your name to it. Put your name to your recommendation, as medical officer in charge.

GUARD ONE: Go on, sign.

They're closing in on the DOCTOR, intimidating her. 75

GUARD TWO: Sign it!

GUARD ONE: Put your name on the paper, comrade!

KOROLYOV: [to the DOCTOR] They can't make you do that.

DOCTOR: What?

KOROLYOV: Someone needs to be responsible, for the paperwork, death must be recorded, execution quotas must be precise, they've acted without paperwork ... 80

GUARD ONE silences him. A vicious blow.

GUARD TWO:	Sign.
	The DOCTOR signs.	85
DOCTOR:	What I said ... What I meant ... there is only enough medicine to treat one person ... I only have enough to save one of them ... but no one should die from this disease, no one deserves that death ... it's too cruel ...
GUARD ONE:	So treat them.
DOCTOR:	I only have enough for one person!	90
GUARD TWO:	So pick one!
DOCTOR:	We have to requisition supplies! I need you to contact your superior officers and tell them we need more supplies!
GUARD ONE:	[to GUARD TWO] When did she get here?
GUARD TWO:	I'm guessing yesterday.	95
GUARD ONE:	[to DOCTOR] You are the last new, clean and healthy thing whose feet will break the dirty snow here till next May. No drugs. No daylight. No escape ...
	[Moving in on her.] Nothing else sweet and soft and fresh for a thousand miles ...
DOCTOR:	Stay away from me! I'll report you, comrade.	100
GUARD ONE:	I don't think so, it's a long way to Moscow, sweetheart. Pick one and save his life. Just make sure it's worth saving.
GUARD TWO:	Yeah, the vermin have got to be able to work, that's why they're here.
GUARD ONE:	[calling out to GULAG WORKERS] Hey! We've got one dose of the stuff that could save your worthless life. One dose for a worker. Who's fit to work?	105
	Some of the GULAG WORKERS call out, stumbling to their feet.
	Well, will you look at that? It's a medical miracle, they have all made a miraculous recovery!
	[To GUARD TWO] Move them out to break the new site.	110
GUARD TWO:	Move.
	Starts pushing the GULAG WORKERS out, clearing away the dead body.
GUARD ONE:	Pick one. Make sure he's worth saving. You're the angel of life and death. Enjoy.
DOCTOR:	You have the fever already.	115
	The DOCTOR is left with KOROLYOV, the OLD MAN and another GULAG WORKER. It is bitter cold. Only KOROLYOV is fit to speak, the other two are far gone. The DOCTOR looks at the OLD MAN. Checks his pulse.
	You look like my father.
	Moves to KOROLYOV. Checks his pulse.	120
	What's your name, comrade?
KOROLYOV:	Sergei Pavlovich Korolyov.
DOCTOR:	What did you do, Sergei? Before they sent you here?
KOROLYOV:	I ... made ... I flew ...
	I made ... rockets ... rockets.	125
DOCTOR:	Fireworks or bombs?

- KOROLYOV: To fly ... we flew ... I can't remember ...
- Let me live ...
- DOCTOR: Your heart's weak. They've cracked your ribs ...
- KOROLYOV: Help me, let me live, help me. 130
- DOCTOR: Lie still, you're bleeding.
- KOROLYOV: Help me see the sky ...
- DOCTOR: Careful ... alright ... gently ...
- She helps him. He looks up at the sky. Sound of wind.*
- [Treating his wounds.] I've been posted here indefinitely. What does that mean? How long do doctors work here? 135
- KOROLYOV: I don't know. A long time.
- DOCTOR: I can't stay here.
- KOROLYOV: I could have flown us both out of here.
- DOCTOR: On a rocket. 140
- KOROLYOV: Beyond the edge of the air, out into the sparkling dark and out of the reach of gravity ... to the other side of the Moon. We would fly on forever.
- DOCTOR: Good. Dream of that.
- KOROLYOV: It's not a dream. It's not. I could do that.
- DOCTOR: Not today you can't. 145
- [Starting to crack.] How will I live here?
- KOROLYOV: You breathe.
- Don't cry.
- DOCTOR: I'm not ... I ...
- KOROLYOV: No. You have to stop. You have to stop crying if you want to live. One day you'll work somewhere else again. Keep thinking that. You'll escape. 150
- DOCTOR: I don't deserve escape.
- KOROLYOV: That's got nothing to do with it, comrade.
- DOCTOR: No ... No! I'm an idiot. He was a General. He promised me an apartment. Oh, I so wanted an apartment! I thought I could suffer a few kisses and caresses... 155
- I couldn't do it twice! I couldn't bear it when he came back for more. He knew he made me feel sick. I couldn't hide it. I'm here because I'm only half a liar. If I knew how to be properly wicked I'd be safe by a stove in Spiridonovka.
- I wanted an apartment! That's all! A window sill with sun on it! A pot of flowers. A cat. My own little bed with fresh sheets and someone pretty lying under them. What's so wrong with that!? Why am I punished for that ... Why am I here? I ... Please ... please ... I didn't do anything wrong. I don't want to be here. I don't ... I can't ... I want to go home ... I want a home ...! I want a yellow painted wall and a kettle! 160
- She gets herself together. She opens her medical bag and gets a needle ready.*
- I'm so sorry. I'm so sorry. I don't know what to do, Sergei Pavlovich.
- KOROLYOV: Give it to him.
- DOCTOR: He's old. He's barely breathing. 170
- KOROLYOV: [Gestures towards the other worker] Then give it to him.
- DOCTOR: The fever's high in him already.
- KOROLYOV: Then give it to me! Just do it!

DOCTOR:	Promise me you're not a traitor, comrade.
	Promise me you'll do no more harm.	175
KOROLYOV:	I'm a man! If I'm alive I'll do harm!
DOCTOR:	Then say you forgive me!
KOROLYOV:	For what?
DOCTOR:	For choosing who lives and who dies.
KOROLYOV:	You're the one with the fur-lined boots.	180
	The DOCTOR pulls away from him. She goes to inject the OLD MAN but at the last moment turns back and gives KOROLYOV the life-saving vaccine.
DOCTOR:	You rotting traitor. Live then, for all the good it'll do you. You owe me one, Sergei Pavlovich.	185
	The DOCTOR exits.
KOROLYOV:	Witch.
	The OLD MAN groans. KOROLYOV struggles to him.
OLD MAN:	Is it time to go in? Help me in, son, I'll die out here.
KOROLYOV:	I can't.	190
OLD MAN:	Oh ...
	Oh ... that's it, then.
KOROLYOV:	Here.
	He gives something to the OLD MAN.
OLD MAN:	Sugar!	195
KOROLYOV:	She had a lump in her pocket. I lifted it.
OLD MAN:	The last sweet thing in Kolyma Gulag. You've been a good apprentice, Sergei Pavlovich. My time's not been wasted. You came here an enemy of the people and I've made an honest thief out of you. Did they hurt you?
KOROLYOV:	I'll live.	200
OLD MAN:	See that you do. One day you might go south again, eh? Make something of yourself. Live a bit of life for me.
KOROLYOV:	I'll build a rocket ... I'll send your fame all over the sky. 'The last honest thief' – you can steal a piece of the Moon.
OLD MAN:	A rocket?	205
	A rocket is no memorial is it, Sergei?
	Sergei Pavlovich, you know full well all I wanted was another sugar lump.
	Dip it in vodka, melt it on your tongue, then drain the rest and think of me.
	What a waste.
KOROLYOV:	Hold onto me, comrade. Just hold on.	210
OLD MAN:	You're right ...
	This isn't the time. I'm feeling lucky.
	I could steal my own soul back from death if I put my mind to it.

But they tell me men have no souls these days.

KOROLYOV: You know who the devil is, Sergei? 215
 OLD MAN: Who?
 [laughing] A bad boy from Smolensk, just like me.

Oh, look at that night ...

KOROLYOV: So much ice in the air even the stars are shivering with it. 220
 OLD MAN: Hold on. You'll be alright.
 KOROLYOV: If you say so, son. Just don't forget me, eh?
 OLD MAN: Never.
 OLD MAN: Good. That's good.

The OLD MAN dies.

Time passes. The night passes. Wind stills. The sun is coming up. KOROLYOV still sits with the frozen corpse of the OLD MAN. 225

GUARD TWO enters. He has some papers in his hand.

GUARD TWO: Sergei Pavlovich Korolyov ...

KOROLYOV says nothing.

They want you in Moscow. 230

Holds up papers.

Official release for reassignment of labour. They want him to stop breaking ice and rock and sit by a stove somewhere doing sums ...

I'm not joking.

KOROLYOV: Alright, I might be joking. I might just be waiting for the poor sod to stick his 235 hand up so I can shoot the traitor in the head. We'll never know unless he takes a gamble, will we ...
 [cuts him off] I'm Korolyov.

The GUARD raises his gun. Then he roars with laughter as KOROLYOV flinches and drops the papers beside him. 240

GUARD TWO: Better get yourself to Moscow, comrade.

KOROLYOV struggles up. He just looks at the GUARD, dazed and confused.

What? You thought they'd send you a car? Better get walking, comrade. Only nine thousand kilometres to go.

KOROLYOV turns to face the rising sun. He starts to walk towards it, blinded by the light, stumbling, freezing. 245

Behind him the GULAG WORKERS enter and are labouring again. Some of them drag the body of the OLD MAN offstage. Sounds of work fading.

KOROLYOV keeps walking. He doesn't look back.

Scene 2

The DESIGN ENGINEERS' room. Tables. Large plans. 250

XENIA, NATASHA and GLUSHKO come on, XENIA and NATASHA looking round at their unfamiliar surroundings.

NATASHA: Why are we here?
 GLUSHKO: This is where your father works, Natasha ...
 XENIA: Why are we here? Why haven't we been taken to the visiting room? 255
 GLUSHKO: I'll explain. In a minute. [glances at clipboard]

Is it what you imagined, Natasha?
 NATASHA: [looking round] No. This bit doesn't look like a prison.
 GLUSHKO: Natasha Kuralyeva, you know this isn't really a prison, your father is working for his country ... 260

XENIA: He's still a prisoner: there are guards, he's under lock and key. Why are we in here?
 GLUSHKO: Sergei Pavlovich has a busy day today. It wouldn't be possible for him to stop work and see you today. So. I've brought you to him.
 XENIA: He asked for us to come in here? 265

GLUSHKO: I'll explain. One of my assistants will give you a tour. We'll show you the living quarters, the kitchens, the dormitories ... there's a very pretty wood ... just beyond the fence ... do you see? I don't suppose you've had time to explore it, Natasha, would you like to?

XENIA: Comrade Glushko, we've been on a train for three days. Am I to be permitted to see my husband? 270

GLUSHKO: This is a very important day, for the whole programme. I want you to know that I will do everything I can to ensure Sergei Pavlovich's pardon ... We'll give you a tour. We'll show you the family apartments.

XENIA: Family apartments? 275

GLUSHKO: For employees of course, rather than the prisoners but ... Well, I'm certain I can obtain you permission to occupy one. Almost definitely.

XENIA: What are you talking about?
 GLUSHKO: You could see him ... every day. And in time ... if all goes well, if he's free ... he could live with you. Everything would be as it was. 280

XENIA: We have an apartment. In Moscow. Why are you offering us an apartment here?

GLUSHKO: I need you to talk to Sergei. I need you to explain the advantages, to all of us, of success here today. You can see the advantages, Xenia ...

XENIA: Why can't you talk to him? 285

I don't understand, Comrade Glushko, you've known him since you were students. You've worked together for nearly twenty years ...
 GLUSHKO: Not quite. No. We weren't able to work together, for many years, and I regret that, I want you ... I want Sergei to understand, at last, how much I regret that ... 290

Pause.

XENIA: [gets it] Ah. This is why he hates you.
 GLUSHKO: Sergei and I have ...
 XENIA: [interrupts] You kept your job.
 GLUSHKO: Yes, but ... 295
 XENIA: You kept your job. You have an apartment ... You walk around under the sky, free to turn your face up to the sun or the snow, any time you like ...

... you denounced him. Didn't you, Comrade Glushko?

Pause [GLUSHKO looks down at clipboard].

GLUSHKO: Look, you don't have much time, Xenia, I thought you would have arrived yesterday ... 300

XENIA: [interrupts] You denounced him. You sent him to the Gulag.

And now you're his boss.

[Laughs.] Yes, I can see why conversation might be difficult.

GLUSHKO: You could be together again. A family! Xenia, we don't have time for this. Sergei's work today is too important ... 305

XENIA: Have you asked Sergei if he wants a family?

GLUSHKO: Why wouldn't he want his family! Xenia ...

XENIA: Comrade Glushko. Look at me. Do I look well? Do I look healthy?

GLUSHKO: What? 310

[Floundering.] Of course ... you're a very ... yes ... you look well, you look wonderful! He'll be delighted to ...

XENIA: I kept my job, Comrade Glushko. I kept my apartment. I'm still working in the same medical research department as I was when Sergei was arrested but, like you, I've been promoted. 315

GLUSHKO: Yes, but ... what are you saying?

XENIA: That I understand why you can't talk freely with Sergei. It's difficult, isn't it? When you've betrayed him. Of course you had to. You had to live. You had to work. I understand ... They keep you so long in the dark, don't they? Shouting, questions, questions, questions ... Is Sergei Pavlovich a traitor? Is he a traitor, comrade? Tell us ... It was so dark. Was it dark where they kept you? 320

I thought. Natasha wouldn't like the dark. I didn't know what might happen to Natasha. Children need sun to grow straight, don't they. They need it for healthy bones. 325

NATASHA: [quiet] Mother, please don't ...

GLUSHKO: You denounced him?

XENIA: Of course I did. I called him a traitor. And that word lies between us every time I see him, like a rotting fish. We can hardly bear to be in the same room with it. You didn't know? Well ... why would he confide in you, of all people. I understand. Sergei doesn't talk freely with me either. No. I don't think we can be a family, Comrade Glushko. 330

GLUSHKO: Oh, but ... surely ... we'll give you the tour ... we ...

XENIA: No.

NATASHA: Mother, we can still visit him! I want to visit him. We can see him today. I'm glad we're here. I'm glad I'm seeing where he works. 335

Pause.

XENIA: Alright. Alright.

GLUSHKO: Would you like to freshen up? Come with me.

NATASHA, XENIA and GLUSHKO move out of the way as WORKERS and DESIGN ENGINEERS are brought on by GUARD TWO. They take their places at work stations. The convention of the engineers' room is established. A level of intense concentration, of calculations, an impression of endless paperwork, hundreds of blueprints. A work space where all activity centres on one place – the place KOROLYOV will occupy. 340
345

- GUARD TWO: Alright! Get working!
- The WORKERS/DESIGN ENGINEERS start working, low-level activity. There is a gentle buzz of machinery. They're watching a central point, waiting for some other signal.*
- KOROLYOV is brought on by GUARD TWO. He takes his place at the centre of activity. 350
- KOROLYOV: Alright! Let's get working!
- Instantly all the activity goes into hyperdrive. Everything is fed to KOROLYOV, checked by him and passed out again.*
- KOROLYOV is completely absorbed in checking the figures. He throws the papers down. 355
- Which diseased piece of mule dung is responsible for this!
- Everyone goes still, terrified. His deputy, MISHIN, turns to the second designer, IVANOVSKY.*
- MISHIN: I told you! I told you it wasn't ready! 360
- IVANOVSKY looks at the paperwork.
- IVANOVSKY: That would be my work.
KOROLYOV: You're a lying worm,
- MISHIN: [Indicating MISHIN.] ... it was this tub of rancid sausage.
[simultaneous] Yes ... but, SP, it wasn't my fault ... we knew the deadline was ... 365
- IVANOVSKY: [simultaneous] No, no, I take responsibility for the initial calculations ...
KOROLYOV: [cutting over both of them] You're both fired! Both of you! Get out of here!
- MISHIN and IVANOVSKY look at each other uncertainly then go back to the work stations. 370
- IVANOVSKY: I said get out of here! Go on!
But we can't, SP ...
MISHIN: Come on, SP ... it's a big day ...
KOROLYOV: I know what day it is, Mishin! It's the day I finally kick your sorry backside out of my workroom. Get out! 375
- IVANOVSKY: You know you can't fire us, no one can reassign a prisoner's labour except ...
MISHIN: [to IVANOVSKY, warning] Oleg!
IVANOVSKY: [under MISHIN] ... Comrade Glushko ...
- GLUSHKO is approaching them. KOROLYOV sees him and beyond him, waiting, XENIA and NATASHA. 380
- KOROLYOV: [quiet] Why's no one working?
- [Louder.] Move, you drowsy excuses for engineers! Work!
- The WORKERS/DESIGN ENGINEERS get going again.*

- GLUSHKO: Comrade Korolyov, is everything ready? 385
 KOROLYOV: No.
 GLUSHKO: What?
 KOROLYOV: The figures are wrong. I told you we needed more time.
 GLUSHKO: Then you'll have to ... you'll have to ...
- Look, your family is here. You have to present this as a success, you have to 390 tell them we've succeeded already!
 KOROLYOV: I know what you want, Glushko.
 XENIA: What does he want?
- Pause.*
- GLUSHKO: I'll let you ... I'll let you all ... Natasha, talk to your father ... 395
 We don't have much time, Sergei!
- GLUSHKO moves off, anxiously checking the work.
- KOROLYOV: It's a big day for us. This is the day we have been told to present our 400 completed work to the Politburo. Today is the triumphant conclusion to years of expensive labour.
 XENIA: [picks up on his tone, looking round] You're not ready.
 KOROLYOV: A few weeks away.
 XENIA: The design isn't working?
 KOROLYOV: My part of the design is working.
 XENIA: [gets it, indicating GLUSHKO] Ah ... so. The boss needs you to make him 405 look good.
 KOROLYOV: Yes.
- How are you?
 XENIA: As you see.
 KOROLYOV: Natasha. Look at you. 410
 NATASHA: I'm so glad, you've got windows.
 KOROLYOV: What's that?
 NATASHA: Every time I think of you working here I wonder if you can see the sun. And you can.
- KOROLYOV: We've got windows. Rather dirty windows of course but ... 415
 NATASHA: I'm glad.
- IVANOVSKY sidles up, hesitant.
- IVANOVSKY: Excuse me ... Comrade Korolyov ...
He offers papers. KOROLYOV looks at them.
- KOROLYOV: Well done, well done, good man. 420
 [To XENIA.] Why did they bring you in here?
 IVANOVSKY moves away.
- XENIA: You want us to leave?
 KOROLYOV: No! No of course not. How are you? How was the journey?
 XENIA: Cold. The train was delayed longer than usual. 425
 KOROLYOV: Have you eaten? Did you have enough food for the train?

MISHIN's turn to sidle up.

MISHIN: Sergei, I'm so sorry ...
 KOROLYOV: It's alright, Vassily. Show me.
 MISHIN: [offering papers] I think we can suggest a probable solution to determining an accurate trajectory if ... 430
 KOROLYOV: [cutting him off; quiet] Vassily, you think the idiots can count their own toes? It's fine. You've done well. We're ready for this.

MISHIN moves away.

[To XENIA] It's very good to see you. 435

I didn't expect to see you here.
 XENIA: In the middle of your work. We're disturbing you.
 KOROLYOV: No! It's ... you look well, Xenia. You look ... I'm glad to see you. Natasha, you look thin! Are you getting enough to eat?
 XENIA: Comrade Glushko has offered us an apartment here. 440
 KOROLYOV: Here?
 XENIA: Yes. Here. In the middle of your work.
 KOROLYOV: But how ... why?
 XENIA: So you see the advantages of making him look good.
 KOROLYOV: You'd come here? 445
 XENIA: You're asking us to come? That's what you want?

Pause.

KOROLYOV: What about Natasha's studies?
 NATASHA: I'm finished this summer.
 XENIA: Do you want us here? 450
 KOROLYOV: Yes. Would you come?
 XENIA: I don't know.
 GLUSHKO: It's nearly time. We need to be ready.
 KOROLYOV: It's too sudden. We can ... we'll have to talk about this later.

A bell. The GUARDS rush the WORKERS/DESIGN ENGINEERS off apart from MISHIN and IVANOVSKY. 455

XENIA: Glushko says you might be pardoned?
 KOROLYOV: I've another ten years on my sentence. That hasn't changed.
 XENIA: If they released you ... if you were free, would you really come back to Moscow? 460
 KOROLYOV: I don't understand you.
 GLUSHKO: They're early! The cars! The cars are arriving!
 XENIA: You didn't have to leave Moscow, Sergei.
 KOROLYOV: I was asleep. We were asleep! How could I get away? They dragged me downstairs. They threw me in a van, Xenia! 465
 XENIA: Sergei ... you saw what was coming. All your colleagues were being arrested ... all their families taken away ...
 KOROLYOV: So I should have denounced them first?
 XENIA: Yes! For us! For our sake.
 KOROLYOV: And our work? I should have just let it all be destroyed? 470
 XENIA: Oh, your work!
 NATASHA: Please. Please. Mother said you asked her to marry you over and over for six years.
 XENIA: He did. He never stopped asking.

- NATASHA: And at last you had to say yes. 475
- XENIA: I had to say yes. He'd never have stopped asking. He never stops. Of course I said yes.
- KOROLYOV: I was sure from the moment I saw you that I wanted to share my life with you. I'm still sure.
- GLUSHKO: They have to go. Xenia, you have to go now. 480
- WORKERS and DESIGN ENGINEERS are clearing up, frantically getting ready. A bell.
- XENIA: I'm glad you asked me, Sergei. I'll always be glad you made me say yes. But you have to understand, I made my choice ten years ago. I won't move here. I won't leave my life. I can't bring Natasha to live under the shadow of a prison wall, with the smell of death and gunpowder in her nose. But your home is still your home, if you're free, if you want it. 485
- GLUSHKO: If it all goes well, if we keep meeting our targets he'll be home with you soon.
- XENIA: If his work can spare him. 490
- GLUSHKO: Yes, yes, yes ... we'll all be on holiday soon. I promise you both. I promise you, Sergei, if today goes well it'll be picnics by the Volga for all of us, now say goodbye.
- XENIA: Goodbye.
- KOROLYOV: Goodbye. 495
- GLUSHKO: Goodbye, Natasha.
Goodbye, goodbye, goodbye! Go! Go!
- He shoos them off. Turns to KOROLYOV.*
- Line up! Line up! Come on.
- KOROLYOV, IVANOVSKY, MISHIN and the other WORKERS/DESIGN ENGINEERS form a welcoming committee. 500
- Are we alright? Do I look alright?
- IVANOVSKY straightens GLUSHKO's tie.
- Thank you. And Sergei, nothing about space today, you understand me? Not a word! 505
- KHRUSHCHEV and BREZHNEV enter, followed by members of the POLITBURO.
- GLUSHKO: Comrade First Secretary, honoured comrades ... welcome ... welcome. You'll take some tea? Vodka?
- KHRUSHCHEV: [looking round] Later, later, show us what we're paying for first. 510
- GLUSHKO: Of course. Of course, as you can see our engineers have prepared for your visit. Everything is on schedule. We have exceeded Comrade Stalin's expectations ...
- KHRUSHCHEV: Comrade Stalin's dead.
- GLUSHKO: Eh ... 515
- KHRUSHCHEV: Isn't he?
- GLUSHKO: Yes.
- KHRUSHCHEV: You noticed? You heard the news maybe?
- GLUSHKO: Yes.

- KHRUSHCHEV: So let's see if you can satisfy Comrade Khrushchev's expectations. On you go. 520
- GLUSHKO is trying to hand out papers to KHRUSHCHEV and the others.
- GLUSHKO: The eh ... the initial work ... the initial planning ... has proceeded as we anticipated ...
- KHRUSHCHEV: What work? What planning? 525
- [Re: the papers.] These are pages of numbers! Why are you showing me your numbers?
- KOROLYOV: Is someone going to tell me what's going on here!? Comrade Khrushchev, if I may ...
- KOROLYOV leads them to the base of a rocket. They look up. 530
- A beat while they take it in.*
- KHRUSHCHEV: Why is it so big?
- KOROLYOV: What you are looking at is our latest prototype developed to carry liquid fuel. With this missile we hope to increase our range by a factor of ten, allowing us to select targets many thousands of miles away with reasonable accuracy. 535
- KHRUSHCHEV: As you know? As you know? I don't know anything. What is this thing?
- KOROLYOV: It is an intercontinental ballistic missile.
- KHRUSHCHEV: So what can it do?
- KOROLYOV: This is our test model. We hope it can deliver a warhead over a much longer distance than would previously have been possible ... 540
- KHRUSHCHEV: How long?
- KOROLYOV: It could reach America in just a few minutes.
- KHRUSHCHEV: America? America?
- KOROLYOV: Yes. 545
- KHRUSHCHEV: [laughing, to the POLITBURO] You hear that! You hear that? We've just made toy boats of their warships! Those guns of theirs are going to be good for nothing but salutes!
- [To GLUSHKO.] Is it true!?
- GLUSHKO: Yes, Comrade Khrushchev. 550
- KHRUSHCHEV: Well, how many of these things do we have?
- GLUSHKO: The Politburo, as you know, approved ...
- KHRUSHCHEV: [interrupts] Look, you seem like a man who can understand plain talking, yes? I don't know what you were expecting today but this is how it is – the old man told me nothing. I don't know a bloody thing. 555
- [pointing at the MEMBERS OF THE POLITBURO.] They don't know a bloody thing.
- KOROLYOV: Tell me again, slowly, so I can understand. Comrade Stalin had a dream.
- KHRUSHCHEV: Yes. 560
- KOROLYOV: [as if quoting] His dream was to plant missiles like saplings of a new forest, bent by the winds of the world to point wherever they were needed.
- Their flight paths would be dotted lines of death threatening our enemies even in their own homes, as they threaten us now. He wanted to guard our whole, huge sky with fire and steel. 565

- KHRUSHCHEV: He said that.
 KOROLYOV: No. He had that written. But that was the idea.
 KHRUSHCHEV: That was his dream.
 KOROLYOV: Yes.
 KHRUSHCHEV: The old devil never told me he had dreams. 570
- Suddenly he bangs on the rocket.*
- [To the MEMBERS OF THE POLITBURO.] Look at this! Look at this thing, will you?!
- [To KOROLYOV, suddenly anxious.] Oh, can I do that? It won't ...?
 KOROLYOV: It's quite safe. 575
- KHRUSHCHEV hits the rocket again.
- KHRUSHCHEV: That explains it, that explains the secret smile. You know the one I mean? Just peeking round the edges of his moustache with so much iron behind it. I thought death was the twinkle in the eye, the big punchline to every joke he ever told ... But this is the big joke, isn't it? Ha! 580
- KHRUSHCHEV gives the rocket several more blows, laughing. The hammering reverberates around.
- He turns from examining the rocket to examining KOROLYOV.*
- Well. Well then.
- What's your name? 585
 KOROLYOV: Sergei Pavlovich Korolyov.
 KHRUSHCHEV: And how are conditions in the missile-builders' prison, Sergei Pavlovich? Food alright is it? Plenty of fresh air?
 KOROLYOV: Conditions are ...
 KHRUSHCHEV: [interrupts] A hell of a lot better than the Gulag. No, no, you're a lucky man, I can see that. And what was your sentence? 590
- Pause.*
- KOROLYOV: Hard labour or death, Comrade Khrushchev.
 KHRUSHCHEV: Comrade Stalin's rocket fuel. Got us all leaping forward, didn't it? Did you cry when he died? 595
 KOROLYOV: I was ... sad of course I ...
 KHRUSHCHEV: I wept like a child. He was our father. Now we're just children running from wolves ...
- He was right, of course he was right, the Americans are watching us from every wave of the sea. They're peering down on us from every patch of blue sky, ready to drop death on us whenever they like. 600
- [Suddenly to MISHIN.] What did you do in the Great Patriotic War, comrade?
 MISHIN: I ...
- I was in Czechoslovakia, Comrade First Secretary. I was a master of horses, in the cavalry ... 605
 KHRUSHCHEV: Wounded?
 MISHIN: Yes, comrade.

KHRUSHCHEV: Show me.

Hesitant, MISHIN pulls up his shirt to show his scar.

Shrapnel.

MISHIN: The shell exploded right beside our position ... I was the only one who survived ...

610

KHRUSHCHEV: [stopping him] It's alright soldier. We've all got our wounds, eh?

We've given the world enough of our dead. We gave millions to win their war for them while they ate chocolate and chewed gum. The crops in our fields are still rich with the Russian blood that soaked into the earth – the blood of millions of farmers and soldiers who died winning that war. We broke the world's enemy for them and then the world turned round and threatened us?! Well, no more! No more! Ha! We'll show them! You'll show them, Sergei!

615

You've beaten the Americans and their pet Germans? They can't do this?

KOROLYOV: They're developing the German V2. But we don't think their design is yet capable of ...

620

KHRUSHCHEV: [interrupts] Oh, let me tell them! Let me tell them we can see a fly on a grain of wheat on their great plains and kill the fly and the whole plain with it ...

KOROLYOV: Our accuracy is not yet ...

625

KHRUSHCHEV: No! No, let me tell them that! I want to see their faces! Let them try and frighten our mothers and children now!

Do you have family, Sergei?

KOROLYOV: I've got a daughter.

KHRUSHCHEV: Wife and daughter, eh? Lovely. They let you see them?

630

Pause.

KOROLYOV: Yes, Comrade Khrushchev.

KHRUSHCHEV: Good, good, you'll spend days with them soon. Now your work's done.

KOROLYOV: The work is not completed.

GLUSHKO: [simultaneous] Comrade Khrushchev ...

635

KHRUSHCHEV: [simultaneous] What!?

KOROLYOV: We do not have a working mathematical model, as yet. But if the work proceeds to our plan, the missile will fly within the month. I guarantee that.

KHRUSHCHEV: You guarantee that personally?

KOROLYOV: Yes, comrade.

640

KHRUSHCHEV: You know what I think then, Sergei Pavlovich? I think the people are going to pardon you. I think you'd still love Mother Russia even if you weren't staring down the barrel of a gun. Am I right?

KOROLYOV: You're right, comrade.

KHRUSHCHEV: So go and get your wife ... You're a free man!

645

You can go out and buy your daughter a new pair of shoes. Have you got an apartment here for them?

GLUSHKO: Yes, Comrade Khrushchev ...

KOROLYOV: No.

KHRUSHCHEV: What do you mean, 'No'?

650

KOROLYOV: They wouldn't come here.

They won't come, Comrade Khrushchev.

GLUSHKO: Comrade Khrushchev doesn't want to hear ...

KHRUSHCHEV: She told you that?

- KOROLYOV: Yes. 655
- KHRUSHCHEV: Well ... a man needs his family. Go to her.
- GLUSHKO: We do need Sergei Pavlovich if the work is to proceed, Comrade Khrushchev ...
- KHRUSHCHEV: What about these other boys in white coats? They can finish the job without this lad here, can't they? 660
- GLUSHKO: No.
- KOROLYOV: No, Comrade Khrushchev.
- GLUSHKO: Comrade Korolyov is indispensable. At the moment.
- KHRUSHCHEV: [laughs] And you're not?
- Well. 665
- Well, what are we going to do?
- [To KOROLYOV.] All these plans, all these dreams of fire and steel in one little head? Is that wise? Is there room in there, comrade?
- KOROLYOV: One mind can hold a million ideas, a million actions, as many possibilities as specks of light in the night sky. 670
- KHRUSHCHEV: But put a bullet in his brain and you lose the lot. I can see how you managed to stay alive, comrade. Very clever.
- Well, I'm still offering you a choice. You're pardoned. Take your freedom and go home to your wife if you like ...
- GLUSHKO: [cutting in] Comrade Khrushchev ... 675
- KHRUSHCHEV: Shut up! I'm not talking to you!
- [To KOROLYOV.] You decide, comrade. Do you need a holiday?
- Pause.*
- KOROLYOV: No, comrade. I need to finish my work.
- KHRUSHCHEV: Course you do. 680
- KOROLYOV: I need Mishin, I need Ivanovsky. I need my team.
- KHRUSHCHEV: Your team. Your team.
- All enemies of the people?
- No one answers.*
- Well ... well, if a man has given his blood for the people I think that's all we need to know. I think that's all that counts in this new world, in these new days where our enemies want to bring us down while our wounds are still wet. 685
- Let's try another way to fuel the rocket, comrades. The people will give you all their pardon. Do your work. 690
- MISHIN breaks down abruptly.
- KOROLYOV: Vassily ...
- KHRUSHCHEV: It's alright. Give him a drink.
- [To MISHIN.] Take a drink, soldier.
- Let's all have a drink. 695

MISHIN is still weeping.

That's enough, that's enough now, we're celebrating now. You've done a good job, Sergei Pavlovich.

[To GLUSHKO.] He's done a good job for you, hasn't he? He's been a good deputy for your little rocket-building team. 700

[To KOROLYOV.] Who do you want as your deputy then?

[Indicating GLUSHKO.] Him?

KOROLYOV: [thrown] Eh ... I don't ...

KHRUSHCHEV: You should be running this team, shouldn't you?

GLUSHKO: Comrade First Secretary ... 705

KHRUSHCHEV: [cutting him off] Shut up, we're not talking to you, Sergei and me are making a new plan now.

[Indicating GLUSHKO.] Do you need him?

Beat. KOROLYOV looks at GLUSHKO.

KOROLYOV: For what? 710

GLUSHKO: Everything we've done was dependent on my design for ...

KHRUSHCHEV: [interrupts, just speaking to KOROLYOV] So you can run your team and you have this one, unless you want him for your deputy?

GLUSHKO: No! No, the committee must approve any reorganisation in our working structure and ... 715

KHRUSHCHEV: [turns on GLUSHKO] Oh, must they? Which committee? Do I know them, have they bought me a drink recently, have any of them had their feet up on my chairs?

[To KOROLYOV.] You don't want him? You don't trust him?

When KOROLYOV says nothing, KHRUSHCHEV indicates BREZHNEV. 720

I trust this man to stand here, you see? Just behind me. He doesn't say much do you, Comrade Brezhnev?

BREZHNEV: No, comrade.

KHRUSHCHEV: He never has. He watches, and he sees it all, don't you?

BREZHNEV: Yes, comrade. 725

KHRUSHCHEV: And no one sees him. No one saw him until I did. I saw a boy who could learn what I had. I saw a young man who could follow me up the party. I saw a man who could take the trust I offered him and stand at my shoulder, my eyes and ears. Watching and listening until the blood and fire and bullets had passed us both by. 730

We understand each other, don't we? We understand what we must do now, for the people.

BREZHNEV: Yes, comrade.

KHRUSHCHEV: So, who do you want to stand beside you, Sergei?

Pause. 735

KOROLYOV: Vassily ...

Comrade Mishin.

KHRUSHCHEV: The man who can stare down the barrel of a German tank! Yes! Good choice!
 GLUSHKO: Am I required here then?
 KHRUSHCHEV: Those damn Nazis! Every one of them in bed with Uncle Sam now. But 740
 Sergei Pavlovich and the Soviet workers can beat them!
 KOROLYOV: That's right, comrade, and we could beat them into space too.
 GLUSHKO: Am I still required here!?

Pause.

KHRUSHCHEV: Are you drinking? No. Clear off then. 745

Into space? What are you talking about? Take a drink, man.

GLUSHKO exits.

KOROLYOV: In a moment perhaps, Comrade Khrushchev, thank you. Can I show you something, Nikita Sergeevich, can I show you my dream?

[Drawing him over to the rocket again.] Look, look, it's nearly touching the 750 sky already. Over five million horsepower thrusting it up into the stars. Five tons of warhead soaring higher than any human thing ever made. We could escape gravity itself! We could send a satellite around the Earth!

KHRUSHCHEV: Why? 755
 Why would we do that?

KOROLYOV: Because we must! It would be a first step, Comrade First Secretary. Before this, the idea of moving off the Earth, travelling beyond our little world has just been a dream. But we could make it real. Here, today, we could take that first step no one has dared to believe was possible. It would change what it means to be human. 760

No response.

Think of it, to take mankind so high, so high that we can look back and see what we are, look beyond the curve of the Earth to see what we can become!

No response.

For Mother Russia! For the love of our black earth and memory of our dead. 765

No response.

America will claim the first satellite very soon if we don't ...

KHRUSHCHEV: [cuts him off] You're ready to do this?
 KOROLYOV: Almost immediately. We replace the warhead with a satellite, the plans have been submitted to the committee ... 770

KHRUSHCHEV: Alright. Send everything to my office as well.

[To BREZHNEV.] You'll keep an eye on this?

BREZHNEV: Yes, comrade.

KHRUSHCHEV: You can have your dream, Sergei Pavlovich, as long as I have my missiles.

KHRUSHCHEV and BREZHNEV exit. Once they are clear, KOROLYOV, IVANOVSKY, MISHIN and the others roar with delight, dancing and hugging each other. 775

MISHIN: A toast! A toast! To the new chief designer!

- KOROLYOV: You're excused. You're all excused. No more work today.
- The GUARDS exit followed by WORKERS and DESIGN ENGINEERS whooping. MISHIN, IVANOVSKY and KOROLYOV remain.* 780
- KOROLYOV: [to IVANOVSKY] How come this wet baboon cries with joy at the thought of working with me and you don't even blink?
- IVANOVSKY: I've no tears left in me, SP, you know that.
- KOROLYOV: Oh, I'll find your tears. The way I'll work you now ... 785
- Bring her out. Let's look at her.
- From a hiding place, IVANOVSKY produces a scale model of Sputnik. A beautiful shining silver ball.*
- He holds it up.*
- We're going to make you real, beautiful. We're going to let you grow and fire you up where you belong. 790
- They're passing the Sputnik among them. MISHIN kisses it.*
- MISHIN: You little darling.
- KOROLYOV: Hey! Hey! No marks!
- He polishes the model with his sleeve.* 795
- We're going to polish the skin till it blazes with all the light of the sun, so we can see her pass over us with our own eyes, the star we made.
- IVANOVSKY: I have to tell the others, can I tell them, Sergei?
- KOROLYOV: Yes! Go on!
- IVANOVSKY runs off.* 800
- MISHIN: That was your daughter?
- KOROLYOV: Yes. That was Natasha.
- MISHIN: She's lovely. A lovely girl.
- KOROLYOV: Yes.
- MISHIN: Take a drink, Sergei. 805
- MISHIN exits.*
- KOROLYOV raises his little shining Sputnik.*
- KOROLYOV: You're lovely. A lovely thing.
- Fly up and see who chases you. If the race starts we'll all run to the other side of the Moon. 810
- KOROLYOV throws the Sputnik up into the sky.*
- Lights down.*
- The silver sound of Sputnik overhead.*
- A parade ground, Central Russia, An autumn night. October 4th 1957.*

SOLDIERS from the local barracks and YOUNG WOMEN from a textile factory dancing together. YURI is dancing with VALYA. KOMAROV, TITOV and LEONOV are dancing with other WOMEN or, in the absence of partners, boisterously with each other. The dance finishes, an OFFICER shouts over the end. 815

OFFICER: Last dance! One more then flying officers report back to barracks! 820

The music begins again, they dance.

YURI is talking to VALYA.

YURI: So I'll see you next week then.

VALYA laughs.

VALYA: What? 825
Every time!

Have you asked me if I want to see you next week?

YURI: No.

VALYA: Are you going to?

YURI: No. 830

VALYA: Why not?

YURI: Because I know the answer.

VALYA: You're very sure of yourself.

YURI: No, I'm sure of you.

VALYA: You ...! 835

Words fail her, she starts to pull away.

YURI: [stopping her] No, you don't get it.

If I asked if you wanted to see me next week you'd say you didn't know, wouldn't you?

VALYA hesitates. 840

But I know. I'm sure.

VALYA: Of what?

YURI: That I want to see you.

VALYA: And that's enough, is it?

YURI: Isn't it? You don't trust me? 845

VALYA: Why should I trust you?

YURI: Look at me. I'm so sure I want you, Valya. Look, can't you see it in my eyes?

VALYA: Let me see your hands.

He offers them. She looks at them. 850

My mother taught me how to read a man's hands.

[Studying them] If there's dirt under the nails the man will bring his working day home to make your nights a misery.

YURI: I'm clean.

VALYA: If the nails are clean but there are cracks in his skin, his working day will 855

- break him in the end.
 YURI: Clean and smooth.
 VALYA: And those are the hands of a thief who lives off the work of others ...
- [Seeing something.] What is this? On your skin?
 YURI: What are you seeing? 860
 VALYA: It's silver.
 YURI: Oh, it's from the engines, little flakes of metal.
 VALYA: You clean the engines of the planes?
 YURI: No, no, I stroke them, before I fly. Like horses.
 VALYA: Horses? 865
 YURI: A jet engine's a tricky thing. You don't know how it might decide to kill you. A wild horse is an easier beast to tame than a MiG landing on a frozen runway. So I always pat the engines before I throw my life into the sky. I ask them to be sweet one more time. It can't hurt, can it? I'm still here, aren't I? [Sound of a whistle.] 870
- OFFICER: That's it, Lieutenant! Time's up!
 VALYA: You have to go.
 YURI: No. We've got a moment.
 VALYA: It's cold. Can you smell it, in the air? Snow. Smells like smoke and sugar. There'll be no more dancing on the parade ground after tonight. Just you squaddies stamping up and down, kicking the ice off your boots. 875
 YURI: Flying officers don't stamp, we walk on air.
- So I'll see you next week.
 VALYA: I don't know. I don't know how to be sure.
 YURI: What did your mother say about men with metal hands? 880
 VALYA: She doesn't know any.
 YURI: Need to make up your own mind then.
- LEONOV runs on, waving a radio over his head. He's shouting over the music.
- LEONOV: Sputnik! Sputnik! Sputnik!
The music dies away as LEONOV reaches YURI. 885
 Yuri, it's Sputnik!
 [Shouting the noise down.] Listen! Listen!
- Silence. The silvery sound of Sputnik, faint through the radio, growing louder.*
 VALYA: What is it?
 LEONOV: The world's first satellite! 890
 TITOV: Good heavens, it's up there now. It's above us!
 KOMAROV: Can you see it?
 TITOV: It's too small. It won't be visible to the naked eye.
 LEONOV: There! Look! Shining!
 VALYA: It's a star, a moving star. 895
 KOMAROV: [pointing] No it's there!
 VALYA: I'm seeing it everywhere. The whole sky's full of moving stars.
 TITOV: It's snow. It's snowing.
- Snow starts to fall on their upturned faces.*
- OFFICER: Fall in, men, fall in, it's time. 900
 KOMAROV: Everyone else is lined up.

LEONOV: Yuri, we have to go.

The others move off, still looking up till only YURI and VALYA are left.

YURI: They'll hear it over all of Russia. Over the whole world. The sky is ours.
 VALYA: Is it really true? 905
 YURI: I'll bring you a piece of sky, a star to hang round your neck. I'll pick it next time I fly up there.
 VALYA: Listen to you. Next you'll tell me that's stardust on your hands.
 YURI: No. It's just oil and metal.

[Takes her hands.] But the thing about metal ... 910

The thing about metal is, you make it one shape and that's how it'll be. It's true. The only thing that wears metal out is time and it'll last a whole life before that happens.

So what do you want, Valya Goryacheva?

VALYA kisses him. 915

OFFICER: Lieutenant Gagarin!
 YURI: Coming, sir!

YURI exits. VALYA exits slowly in the opposite direction, still looking up at the sky.

The following scenes flow into this one, characters from one entering as the previous actor is still exiting. 920

A park, Moscow, continuous.

The snow is falling a little quicker. NATASHA walks through the park, across the stage, a radio in her hands, listening to the sound of Sputnik, watching the sky. 925

The Gulag, Kolyma, continuous. Strong wind.

As NATASHA exits, a GULAG PRISONER crawls onstage, breath rasping. The snow is falling fast and fierce now. The DOCTOR enters, wrapped up against the weather. She has a radio too, the sound of Sputnik is replaced by a patriotic commentary explaining the triumph of Sputnik, it's in Russian, the commentator rousing and excited, the signal is fading in and out. The DOCTOR is trying to get another channel, banging the radio and muttering. She doesn't see the GULAG PRISONER at first. 930

DOCTOR: Come on! Come on! Some music, not this rubbish! I want music. I'll settle for a military band, come on! 935

She sees the GULAG PRISONER.

Where are you going?

Where are you going, come back to the infirmary, you'll die out here.

GULAG PRISONER: Leave me alone ...

- DOCTOR: I want to die ... in the clean air ... I don't want ... your medicine ... poison ...
I don't have any medicine. I just count the dead. Come on, don't die yet.
Come inside. 940
- She pulls at him.*
- GULAG PRISONER: Bitch.
- DOCTOR: Yeah, yeah ... 945
- She tries to heave him up. He cries out in pain.*
- Come on. Come on, you fool! Fight, damn you ...!
- She can't lift him.*
- GULAG PRISONER: I want ... to die ... under ... the open sky ...
- She lets him drop.* 950
- DOCTOR: I'm so sorry. I'm sorry. Why should you stay alive to make me feel better?
What's your name? What's your name?
- The GULAG PRISONER mumbles something indistinct.*
- That's your prison number. What's your name?
Never mind. Never mind. Think about ... something happy ... something warm. Did you love your mother? 955
- GULAG PRISONER: Mum ...
- DOCTOR: Yes. Can you see her? Where is she?
- GULAG PRISONER: My mother ... My mother sat me on ... a red rug ... in the window ... she pulled me close ... 960
- DOCTOR: That's right. That's right and nothing's going to hurt any more ...
- GULAG PRISONER: I could see ... the reflections of the candle flames in the glass. I could see ... the candles above in the dark ... a thousand candles ... stars in the sky ...
- She's got the dose ready to inject him.* 965
- DOCTOR: It's alright. It'll be warm, it'll be quiet and I'll hold you till you get there.
- GULAG PRISONER: She said ... she said ... you can't touch the stars, Pavel ... they're too far away ... you'll have to travel miles through the dark to reach them.
- DOCTOR: [rolling up his sleeve] Shhhh ...
- GULAG PRISONER: And I said ... then I will ... 970
- The DOCTOR injects him. The GULAG WORKER stiffens then goes still.*
- The patriotic voice on the radio rises to a crescendo.*
- RADIO: Sputnik! Sputnik!
- The silvery sound of Sputnik.*
- The DOCTOR looks up into the falling snow.* 975
- DOCTOR: Sputnik.
- She spits.*

End of Act 1.

ACT 2

Scene 1

The DESIGN ENGINEERS' room.

MISHIN, IVANOVSKY and KOROLYOV are watching a piece of archive film.
Patriotic music, interspersed with voice-over. 980

We don't see the film itself.

MISHIN: Where is this?
IVANOVSKY: America.
MISHIN: Yes but where?
IVANOVSKY: Oh, like you'd know. 985
KOROLYOV: Florida.
MISHIN: Florida? Are you sure? It looks very dry.
ANNOUNCER: '... in the heart of the Florida desert ...'
KOROLYOV: This is their most recent unmanned prototype. It's still basically the V2, don't you think? 990
IVANOVSKY: I don't know.
MISHIN: Do they farm there? It looks too dry. They have a lot of cattle, don't they ... the Americans. I think that land's too dry for cattle.
IVANOVSKY: I'd say they've changed the fuel.
KOROLYOV: That's what the intelligence says, but ... 995
MISHIN: Maybe a different kind of cow. Do you think that's it?
IVANOVSKY: I don't understand why they've changed the shape.
MISHIN: They've only put two engines on the thing, so they must have about 120,000 kilo thrust, kerosene oxygen fuel maybe?
KOROLYOV: This is why he's second in command. 1000
IVANOVSKY: Oh, is that why?
MISHIN: Enough to get them into orbit.
KOROLYOV: Maybe. Let's see.
IVANOVSKY: Here she goes.
KOROLYOV: That is an elegant shape, look at that white slender nose ... 1005
MISHIN: She's wobbling.
IVANOVSKY: No, she's going up.
KOROLYOV: Beautiful aristocratic American nose, sniffing out the Moon ...
MISHIN: Sergei, you already know if they launched successfully, just tell us.
IVANOVSKY: She's still going up, steady as a piston ... 1010
MISHIN: I think there's a tremor ... there ... no?
IVANOVSKY: No ... Maybe ... Oooh!

They all groan in horror and delight.

MISHIN: Did you see that!
ANNOUNCER: '... early days for the space programme ...' 1015
IVANOVSKY: Boom! Look at her burn!
MISHIN: They can't do it!
IVANOVSKY: Boom!
MISHIN: Forget it, forget it, America, spend your money on new cars. You haven't got the rocket engineers to match Oleg and Vassily! 1020
KOROLYOV: It's old film.
ANNOUNCER: '... as AMERICA advances into space ...'
MISHIN: We've beaten them!
KOROLYOV: Intelligence kept it for months. It's old.

- IVANOVSKY: But we've beaten them. 1025
 KOROLYOV: They're bound to have made some progress since then ...
 MISHIN: But ... !!??
 KOROLYOV: But right now ... we've beaten them!
- America is lying in the dirt staring up at our vapour trail! The first man in space is going to be a good Soviet citizen, no question. 1030
- IVANOVSKY: Yes!
 KOROLYOV: Alright. Run it again. Let's work out what they might have done next.
- GENERAL GELADZE enters. He salutes.
- GELADZE: The cosmonauts are ready for your inspection, Comrade Chief Designer.
 KOROLYOV: Yes, yes ... 1035
- GELADZE: In a minute.
 All good boys. Trained and ready ...
- KOROLYOV, MISHIN and IVANOVSKY are ignoring him, absorbed in the film again.
- KOROLYOV: There is something about that nose. Why make it like that? 1040
 GELADZE: One metre seventy-eight tall, as requested, all trained, you'll see ...
- IVANOVSKY: Though we're all puzzling about that one. One metre seventy ...
 It's just vanity. There's no reason. There can't be an aerodynamic benefit at that thrust.
- GELADZE: As Uncle Joe would say, 'Do the work, comrade, and ask the party for the reason ...' 1045
- They all look at him.*
- KOROLYOV: What?
 GELADZE: Our Uncle Joe Stalin would have got the reason out of you, eh?
 KOROLYOV: What are you talking about? 1050
 GELADZE: Why are all the cosmonauts to be under one metre seventy-eight?
- KOROLYOV: And seventy-five kilos?
 GELADZE: To fit in the capsule.
 Of course. Of course.
- [Laughing.] Stupid of me. 1055
- They ignore him again.*
- MISHIN: [re: the film] You see the tremor starts as soon as it's cleared the gantry ...
 GELADZE: Well, you've got a good bunch. They're the right height and they're ready to die.
- KOROLYOV: That won't be required. 1060
 GELADZE: If it is they're ready. They are heroes. Heroes of the Soviet people.
 KOROLYOV: Good.
- GELADZE: I'll be with you in a moment.
 Of course. 'Scuse me, 'scuse me, comrades, getting in your way. You're busy men. Excuse me. 1065

I'll wait for you outside, Comrade Chief Designer.

GELADZE exits.

KOROLYOV: I better get this over with. Tell me what you think when I get back later. Work it out for me.

MISHIN: Heroes of the Soviet people, eh? Is that what you ordered, Sergei? 1070

KOROLYOV: Of course.

MISHIN: Of course you did. Just what we need. More of those.

IVANOVSKY shushes him, laughing but shocked. They exit.

The COSMONAUTS' training room.

The COSMONAUTS, LEONOV, KOMAROV, TITOV and YURI, are standing, waiting, rigidly at attention. 1075

After a few motionless moments, YURI looks at his fellow COSMONAUTS. He looks round.

There's something really hot and metal right beside them. A heating pipe, a piece of equipment, a samovar. YURI reaches out and touches it briefly, looking at the others. He winces in pain at the heat, blowing on his fingers. He touches it again, checking he's got everyone's attention. Snatches his hand off again. 1080

YURI: Five roubles says I last two minutes.

He waits, hand poised expectantly. An uncertain moment then all the COSMONAUTS break ranks, slapping one hand on the same bit of metal. They hold the hot metal, wincing and gasping in discomfort. 1085

LEONOV breaks first, dancing away, waving his heated fingers.

KOMAROV follows seconds later. YURI and TITOV are still holding it.

LEONOV: Go on, Yuri! 1090

KOMAROV: Titov's steady.

LEONOV: Go on, Yuri!

KOMAROV: Ten roubles on Titov.

LEONOV: You've got him! You've got him! You ...

YURI lets go. 1095

YURI: Ugh, comrade, what happened?
Yeah, like you were still in there.

Nice one, Titov.

TITOV is still holding on.

LEONOV: Titov? 1100

KOMAROV: Titov, you've won.

YURI: Look at him!

KOMAROV: Titov, drop it.

YURI: He's going purple, look.

LEONOV: You've won! 1105

KOMAROV: You've won!

- YURI: You beat me, man, come on!
- TITOV lets go.
- TITOV: 'Upon the brink of the wild stream
He stood, and dreamt a mighty dream.' 1110
- LEONOV: Who did?
- TITOV: Pushkin.
- KOMAROV: It's a quote.
- LEONOV: Right.
- YURI slaps out his damaged hand. 1115
- YURI: Well done!
- TITOV returns the shake with force.
- Ow! Ow!
- [Laughing.] Alright, you got me again.
- TITOV lets him go. 1120
- Can you still bend your fingers? Hell, that was stupid, they might have us trying out the instrument panel.
- TITOV: I used my left hand.
- YURI: [to others] See?
- TITOV: He wins again. Can't get past you, can we, Titov? 1125
You can try if you like.
- YURI tries to step past TITOV, TITOV blocks him. They move, block, move, block – faster and faster till they are actually wrestling each other.
- GELADZE enters with KOROLYOV.
- GELADZE: Cosmonauts! 1130
They quickly get back in line, standing to attention.
- KOROLYOV: So, here you all are. My little eagles.
- GELADZE: Relax. Come on, I'm just going to explain things to you.
At ease.
- The COSMONAUTS relax.* 1135
- KOROLYOV: This is how it works, boys. We're building you a craft to take you out of the Earth's atmosphere.
You're all top pilots but all you have to do is monitor its performance.
- As you know we've tested the rocket with dogs. The dogs that orbited and landed again all lived. Some of them did not land. 1140
- The DOCTOR enters and stands, watching and listening.*

But if I've done my job this one will. Don't worry, boys. I'm good at my job.

So we've tested our design. You'll get a chance to sit in the capsule in a moment.

YURI starts to take off his shoes. 1145

You'll see it is a simple practical structure. I can show you the blueprints so you understand everything. We design the parts. We send the designs to the factory. They send us back the parts. We fit them together. Simple. Like building a tractor or one of your MiGs we ...

Sees YURI. 1150

What are you doing, comrade?

GELADZE: Lieutenant Gagarin, get up, what are you doing?

YURI: You said we were going to get in the capsule, comrade. So I thought ...

KOROLYOV: What?

YURI: Well ... we've got to take our shoes off, comrade ... it's only polite ... 1155

GELADZE: You brainless excuse for a flying officer, Gagarin! What do you think you're going to do, fly the designer's machine in your socks?

KOROLYOV: He's thinking about keeping the farm dirt off the floor.

[To YURI.] Is that it?

You'd take your shoes off before you went in your uncle's house, wouldn't you, Gagarin? 1160

YURI: Of course.

KOROLYOV: Good for you, farm boy.

The other COSMONAUTS look at each other then drop and start pulling off their boots. KOROLYOV talks to YURI over this. 1165

Where are you from?

YURI: Smolensk.

KOROLYOV: A farmer's boy from Smolensk. Of course. I've heard they're all thieves in Smolensk, what do you say?

YURI: It's a hard life farming that earth. If you're not born into luck maybe you need to steal some. 1170

KOROLYOV: So you're all thieves?

YURI: We're all lucky.

KOROLYOV: And how far do you think your luck will get you here? You'll have to learn something here, Lieutenant. 1175

[To all of them.] We can't tell you everything in one day. We're going to prepare classes so you can learn the system thoroughly. You'll attend lectures and then we'll set you some exams.

YURI has raised his hand.

Yes?

YURI: Will you be marking us, Comrade Chief Designer? 1180

KOROLYOV: Yes and I'll throw you out! Stop smiling! What are you smiling at, you featherless sparrow!?

He waits, face close to YURI. YURI keeps his eyes front. Face blank.

Alright. 1185

Alright, go through, little eagles. My boys and girls will get you ready.

The COSMONAUTS exit carrying their boots.

One of those boys is going to see beyond the edges of the world.

GELADZE: Lieutenant Gagarin is the perfect proletarian candidate.
 KOROLYOV: Is he? 1190
 GELADZE: A tractor driver's son ...

[Showing KOROLYOV.] You see I've kept extensive notes on all the cosmonauts ... see here, Gagarin ... honourable proletarian background ... good performance in all tests ... you see? Here and ... here ...

KOROLYOV: He's good but he's not the best, is he? 1195
 GELADZE: Well, in a sense, comrade, he is the best because he ...
 KOROLYOV: [interrupts, pointing] Here ... and here ... and here ... Titov ... first ... best performance, first, first, best, best ...

Beat.

GELADZE: Titov. Of course. Of course. An able candidate. But Gagarin is my 1200 recommendation.

KOROLYOV: Well ... I'll consider your recommendation.

GELADZE: I am responsible for the military personnel, comrade. As Uncle Joe would say, each man has only one part to play in the revolution so play it well.

KOROLYOV starts to leave. 1205

If I could make another suggestion, comrade?

KOROLYOV: Yes?
 GELADZE: Your team ... at their current rate of progress the launch will be delayed.
 KOROLYOV: It might.
 GELADZE: Then they should sleep less. 1210

KOROLYOV: What?
 GELADZE: Men can work quite efficiently with six hours' sleep in every forty-eight. That's been proven in combat.

KOROLYOV: Has it?
 GELADZE: I've witnessed it myself. 1215

KOROLYOV: Well. Thank you for sharing your valuable experience, comrade. However, I'm responsible for the timetable my team work to, or I was last time I checked.
 GELADZE: Of course, of course, comrade, stupid of me ...

What are the chances of success, Comrade Chief Designer?

Pause. 1220

KOROLYOV: Fifty-fifty.
 GELADZE: That's good. Yes.
 KOROLYOV: Good enough to try? Yes. I hope so.

KOROLYOV is exiting. He sees the DOCTOR. He stops dead, staring at her.

DOCTOR: Shall I set up the next tests, General? 1225
 GELADZE: Yes. They'll be back with you shortly.

KOROLYOV is still staring at the DOCTOR.

Comrade Chief Designer?

GELADZE exits.

Scene 2 (abridged)

KOROLYOV:	I know you ... don't I?	1230
DOCTOR:	Do you?
KOROLYOV:	Yes. Yes.
	It's you.
DOCTOR:	Is it?
KOROLYOV:	Yes.	1235
DOCTOR:	I doubt it. I doubt I'm who you think I am.
KOROLYOV:	No. No it is you! I'm certain.
DOCTOR:	If you say so. You look well, Sergei Pavlovich.
KOROLYOV:	I am well.
DOCTOR:	You look happy.	1240
KOROLYOV:	I am happy. You on the other hand look as miserable as a toothless cat in a bucket of fish.
DOCTOR:	I did twenty years in the Gulag, Sergei, long years, war years, you only had to suffer five. No. I don't think I'm who you think I am any more.
KOROLYOV:	I'll do what I can.	1245
DOCTOR:	Who for?
KOROLYOV:	For you.
DOCTOR:	I was promised an apartment.
KOROLYOV:	Alright ... Alright, I'll look into it.
DOCTOR:	Three rooms.	1250
KOROLYOV:	No one gets three rooms.
DOCTOR:	Not even if they've saved the life of the chief designer?
KOROLYOV:	And how many did you kill?
DOCTOR:	Don't you talk to me about death. Don't you dare talk to me about death, Sergei Pavlovich!	1255
	I have an army whispering at my back and they're all saying the same thing. 'Why is he breathing when we're not? Why is he sucking our air into his lungs? Who is he? Who is he?'
KOROLYOV:	I'm your boss and you'll be reassigned.
DOCTOR:	I answer to the medical team. They answer to General Geladze. What's the matter, Sergei? You worried I'll kill one of your precious eagle chicks before you do?	1260
	Have you decided who you're sending up first?
	KOROLYOV doesn't answer.
DOCTOR:	Well, they're in great condition. They're all superb pilots. They all have regular bowel movements and great shoulders. Flip a coin.	1265
KOROLYOV:	I'm not sending anyone up there to get killed.
DOCTOR:	Can you be certain they won't? Life and death, Comrade Chief Designer. How does it feel? How will you choose?
KOROLYOV:	I'll send a lucky man.	1270

EXTRACT

Taken from Little Eagles, by Rona Munro

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

Rona Munro's play Little Eagles was commissioned by the Royal Shakespeare Company and first performed in April 2011 at Hampstead Theatre, London.

The play is set initially in 1938 and then in the 1950s. Following the death of Stalin in 1953, the Soviet Union went through a significant regime change, culminating in the rise to power of Khrushchev, and the acceleration of the Soviet space programme.

It explores the historically true but little-known story of Sergei Pavlovich Korolyov, engineer and Chief Designer of the space programme. Under Korolyov's leadership, the 'little eagles' of the Soviet Union beat the Americans in the early stages of the space race, achieving a series of firsts, including the first manned space flight. The history books have focused on the person who made that first flight, the cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin. However, Little Eagles charts the progress of Korolyov from his status as 'enemy of the people' to Chief Designer of the Sputnik programme.

The term 'comrade' was required as a formal mode of address by the Soviet Union.

The play is in three Acts. The extract consists of the whole of Act One, the first scene of Act Two and part of the second scene of Act Two.

Characters in order of appearance. Capitals indicate the name by which the character is identified as a speaker in the text.

ACT 1

Scene 1

Kolyma Gulag (prison camp) 1938. Sound of wind howling.

STALIN stands high above the frozen steppes.

STALIN:

Comrades.

Our country is attacked from within. Only the most naive among you can doubt that our enemies are right in the heart of our great nation, like rats in a barrel of wheat. We all know that the agents of all the bourgeois countries prey upon each other, sowing war and creating discord inside each other's borders. We know too that these same bourgeois countries consider us, the Soviet people, to be their greatest enemy. Of course they have sent their agents, their spies among us. Who can doubt it?

And even as we struggle against this foreign disease we still have failed to root out every germ of our own illnesses, Trotskyites and other double-dealers are living amongst us. [Muted applause]

As STALIN speaks, the GULAG WORKERS enter one by one. The Gulag is a frozen wasteland, an icy, open-cast gold mine. It's just after sunset. The GULAG WORKERS are scraping at the icy earth. They are all sick, very weak.

15

Some have accused our loyal agents of using excessive physical pressure against those who have been arrested. Some have even said that these faithful comrades have behaved like criminals themselves. But a party directive, made in 1937, indicated such force could be used in exceptional cases. I ask those who criticise this action to tell us how otherwise we are to defend ourselves against blatant enemies of the people. Enemies who, when interrogated by humane methods, defiantly refuse to turn over the names of co-conspirators. Enemies who refuse for months on end to provide any evidence. Enemies who try to thwart the unmasking of co-conspirators still at large, and who thereby continue, even from prison, to wage a struggle against the Soviet regime. The use of force requires courage but our experience has taught us no other method can produce results. The defence of the Soviet people demands all our strength.

20

There is no other case to answer.

30

What is done is done by the will of the people as all their actions demonstrate.

STALIN exits but his presence remains onstage in some visible form.

One by one the GULAG PRISONERS stop working, some collapsing altogether, others struggling to continue. Wind howling, then still.

One of them, KOROLYOV, looks up at the sky. He smiles. The worker beside him, an OLD MAN, sees him.

35

OLD MAN:

Who's up there?

KOROLYOV:

Venus. The evening star. Close and bright in the blue dusk. You can see the shape of her.

OLD MAN:

You got a biscuit, comrade?

40

KOROLYOV:

What?

OLD MAN: They fed you, there was none left for an old man, I couldn't reach it in time. Were there biscuits? I'll lick the crumbs off your fingers, comrade, anything.

Something sweet. I'd give my soul for something sweet on my tongue, comrade. 45

KOROLYOV: There's never any biscuits, you old fool.

I've nothing.

Two GUARDS drag on another WORKER; an execution. They position him and then aim their guns. The DOCTOR follows them on.

DOCTOR: Wait ... ! I didn't mean ... 50

The CONDEMNED MAN raises his arms to STALIN.

CONDEMNED MAN: Long live Comrade Stalin!

GUARD ONE: [meaning it] Well said, comrade!

They shoot him.

They turn to the DOCTOR. The DOCTOR is in her late twenties. She has never seen anyone shot before. 55

DOCTOR: You were saying.

DOCTOR: I didn't mean ... I didn't mean ...

GUARD TWO: You said he was dead.

DOCTOR: I didn't mean ... 60

GUARD ONE: You said he was as good as dead already.

DOCTOR: I didn't ... !

GUARD TWO: You said,

[Looks at notes.] 'If he's under sentence of death you might as well shoot him now and get it over with ...'

GUARD ONE: '... it'd be kinder.' 65

That's what you said.

GUARD TWO: And he was under sentence of death. So we did.

GUARD ONE: [pushing paperwork at her] Sign.

GUARD TWO: We did your kindness for you. 70

GUARD ONE: Sign.

GUARD TWO: Put your name to it. Put your name to your recommendation, as medical officer in charge.

GUARD ONE: Go on, sign.

They're closing in on the DOCTOR, intimidating her. 75

GUARD TWO: Sign it!

GUARD ONE: Put your name on the paper, comrade!

KOROLYOV: [to the DOCTOR] They can't make you do that.

DOCTOR: What?

KOROLYOV: Someone needs to be responsible, for the paperwork, death must be recorded, execution quotas must be precise, they've acted without paperwork ... 80

GUARD ONE silences him. A vicious blow.

GUARD TWO:	Sign.
	The DOCTOR signs.	85
DOCTOR:	What I said ... What I meant ... there is only enough medicine to treat one person ... I only have enough to save one of them ... but no one should die from this disease, no one deserves that death ... it's too cruel ...
GUARD ONE:	So treat them.
DOCTOR:	I only have enough for one person!	90
GUARD TWO:	So pick one!
DOCTOR:	We have to requisition supplies! I need you to contact your superior officers and tell them we need more supplies!
GUARD ONE:	[to GUARD TWO] When did she get here?
GUARD TWO:	I'm guessing yesterday.	95
GUARD ONE:	[to DOCTOR] You are the last new, clean and healthy thing whose feet will break the dirty snow here till next May. No drugs. No daylight. No escape ...
	[ Moving in on her. ] Nothing else sweet and soft and fresh for a thousand miles ...
DOCTOR:	Stay away from me! I'll report you, comrade.	100
GUARD ONE:	I don't think so, it's a long way to Moscow, sweetheart. Pick one and save his life. Just make sure it's worth saving.
GUARD TWO:	Yeah, the vermin have got to be able to work, that's why they're here.
GUARD ONE:	[ calling out to GULAG WORKERS ] Hey! We've got one dose of the stuff that could save your worthless life. One dose for a worker. Who's fit to work?	105
	Some of the GULAG WORKERS call out, stumbling to their feet.
	Well, will you look at that? It's a medical miracle, they have all made a miraculous recovery!
GUARD TWO:	[To GUARD TWO] Move them out to break the new site. Move.	110
	Starts pushing the GULAG WORKERS out, clearing away the dead body.
GUARD ONE:	Pick one. Make sure he's worth saving. You're the angel of life and death. Enjoy.
DOCTOR:	You have the fever already.	115
	The DOCTOR is left with KOROLYOV, the OLD MAN and another GULAG WORKER. It is bitter cold. Only KOROLYOV is fit to speak, the other two are far gone. The DOCTOR looks at the OLD MAN. Checks his pulse.
	You look like my father.
	Moves to KOROLYOV. Checks his pulse.	120
KOROLYOV:	What's your name, comrade?
DOCTOR:	Sergei Pavlovich Korolyov.
DOCTOR:	What did you do, Sergei? Before they sent you here?
KOROLYOV:	I ... made ... I flew ...
DOCTOR:	I made ... rockets ... rockets. Fireworks or bombs?	125

- KOROLYOV: To fly ... we flew ... I can't remember ...
- Let me live ...
- DOCTOR: Your heart's weak. They've cracked your ribs ...
- KOROLYOV: Help me, let me live, help me. 130
- DOCTOR: Lie still, you're bleeding.
- KOROLYOV: Help me see the sky ...
- DOCTOR: Careful ... alright ... gently ...
- She helps him. He looks up at the sky. Sound of wind.*
- [Treating his wounds.] I've been posted here indefinitely. What does that mean? How long do doctors work here? 135
- KOROLYOV: I don't know. A long time.
- DOCTOR: I can't stay here.
- KOROLYOV: I could have flown us both out of here.
- DOCTOR: On a rocket. 140
- KOROLYOV: Beyond the edge of the air, out into the sparkling dark and out of the reach of gravity ... to the other side of the Moon. We would fly on forever.
- DOCTOR: Good. Dream of that.
- KOROLYOV: It's not a dream. It's not. I could do that.
- DOCTOR: Not today you can't. 145
- [Starting to crack.] How will I live here?
- KOROLYOV: You breathe.
- Don't cry.
- DOCTOR: I'm not ... I ...
- KOROLYOV: No. You have to stop. You have to stop crying if you want to live. One day you'll work somewhere else again. Keep thinking that. You'll escape. 150
- DOCTOR: I don't deserve escape.
- KOROLYOV: That's got nothing to do with it, comrade.
- DOCTOR: No ... No! I'm an idiot. He was a General. He promised me an apartment. Oh, I so wanted an apartment! I thought I could suffer a few kisses and caresses... 155
- I couldn't do it twice! I couldn't bear it when he came back for more. He knew he made me feel sick. I couldn't hide it. I'm here because I'm only half a liar. If I knew how to be properly wicked I'd be safe by a stove in Spiridonovka.
- I wanted an apartment! That's all! A window sill with sun on it! A pot of flowers. A cat. My own little bed with fresh sheets and someone pretty lying under them. What's so wrong with that!? Why am I punished for that ... Why am I here? I ... Please ... please ... I didn't do anything wrong. I don't want to be here. I don't ... I can't ... I want to go home ... I want a home ...! I want a yellow painted wall and a kettle! 160
- She gets herself together. She opens her medical bag and gets a needle ready.*
- I'm so sorry. I'm so sorry. I don't know what to do, Sergei Pavlovich.
- KOROLYOV: Give it to him.
- DOCTOR: He's old. He's barely breathing. 170
- KOROLYOV: [Gestures towards the other worker] Then give it to him.
- DOCTOR: The fever's high in him already.
- KOROLYOV: Then give it to me! Just do it!

DOCTOR:	Promise me you're not a traitor, comrade.
	Promise me you'll do no more harm.	175
KOROLYOV:	I'm a man! If I'm alive I'll do harm!
DOCTOR:	Then say you forgive me!
KOROLYOV:	For what?
DOCTOR:	For choosing who lives and who dies.
KOROLYOV:	You're the one with the fur-lined boots.	180
	The DOCTOR pulls away from him. She goes to inject the OLD MAN but at the last moment turns back and gives KOROLYOV the life-saving vaccine.
DOCTOR:	You rotting traitor. Live then, for all the good it'll do you. You owe me one, Sergei Pavlovich.	185
	The DOCTOR exits.
KOROLYOV:	Witch.
	The OLD MAN groans. KOROLYOV struggles to him.
OLD MAN:	Is it time to go in? Help me in, son, I'll die out here.
KOROLYOV:	I can't.	190
OLD MAN:	Oh ...
	Oh ... that's it, then.
KOROLYOV:	Here.
	He gives something to the OLD MAN.
OLD MAN:	Sugar!	195
KOROLYOV:	She had a lump in her pocket. I lifted it.
OLD MAN:	The last sweet thing in Kolyma Gulag. You've been a good apprentice, Sergei Pavlovich. My time's not been wasted. You came here an enemy of the people and I've made an honest thief out of you. Did they hurt you?
KOROLYOV:	I'll live.	200
OLD MAN:	See that you do. One day you might go south again, eh? Make something of yourself. Live a bit of life for me.
KOROLYOV:	I'll build a rocket ... I'll send your fame all over the sky. 'The last honest thief' – you can steal a piece of the Moon.
OLD MAN:	A rocket?	205
	A rocket is no memorial is it, Sergei?
	Sergei Pavlovich, you know full well all I wanted was another sugar lump.
	Dip it in vodka, melt it on your tongue, then drain the rest and think of me.
	What a waste.
KOROLYOV:	Hold onto me, comrade. Just hold on.	210
OLD MAN:	You're right ...
	This isn't the time. I'm feeling lucky.
	I could steal my own soul back from death if I put my mind to it.

But they tell me men have no souls these days.

KOROLYOV: You know who the devil is, Sergei? 215
 OLD MAN: Who?
 [laughing] A bad boy from Smolensk, just like me.

Oh, look at that night ...

KOROLYOV: So much ice in the air even the stars are shivering with it. 220
 Hold on. You'll be alright.
 OLD MAN: If you say so, son. Just don't forget me, eh?
 KOROLYOV: Never.
 OLD MAN: Good. That's good.

The OLD MAN dies.

Time passes. The night passes. Wind stills. The sun is coming up. KOROLYOV still sits with the frozen corpse of the OLD MAN. 225

GUARD TWO enters. He has some papers in his hand.

GUARD TWO: Sergei Pavlovich Korolyov ...

KOROLYOV says nothing.

They want you in Moscow. 230

Holds up papers.

Official release for reassignment of labour. They want him to stop breaking ice and rock and sit by a stove somewhere doing sums ...

I'm not joking.

KOROLYOV: Alright, I might be joking. I might just be waiting for the poor sod to stick his 235 hand up so I can shoot the traitor in the head. We'll never know unless he takes a gamble, will we ...
 [cuts him off] I'm Korolyov.

The GUARD raises his gun. Then he roars with laughter as KOROLYOV flinches and drops the papers beside him. 240

GUARD TWO: Better get yourself to Moscow, comrade.

KOROLYOV struggles up. He just looks at the GUARD, dazed and confused.

What? You thought they'd send you a car? Better get walking, comrade. Only nine thousand kilometres to go.

KOROLYOV turns to face the rising sun. He starts to walk towards it, blinded by the light, stumbling, freezing. 245

Behind him the GULAG WORKERS enter and are labouring again. Some of them drag the body of the OLD MAN offstage. Sounds of work fading.

KOROLYOV keeps walking. He doesn't look back.

Scene 2

The DESIGN ENGINEERS' room. Tables. Large plans. 250

XENIA, NATASHA and GLUSHKO come on, XENIA and NATASHA looking round at their unfamiliar surroundings.

NATASHA: Why are we here?
 GLUSHKO: This is where your father works, Natasha ...
 XENIA: Why are we here? Why haven't we been taken to the visiting room? 255
 GLUSHKO: I'll explain. In a minute. [glances at clipboard]

Is it what you imagined, Natasha?
 NATASHA: [looking round] No. This bit doesn't look like a prison.
 GLUSHKO: Natasha Kuralyeva, you know this isn't really a prison, your father is working for his country ... 260

XENIA: He's still a prisoner: there are guards, he's under lock and key. Why are we in here?
 GLUSHKO: Sergei Pavlovich has a busy day today. It wouldn't be possible for him to stop work and see you today. So. I've brought you to him.
 XENIA: He asked for us to come in here? 265

GLUSHKO: I'll explain. One of my assistants will give you a tour. We'll show you the living quarters, the kitchens, the dormitories ... there's a very pretty wood ... just beyond the fence ... do you see? I don't suppose you've had time to explore it, Natasha, would you like to?

XENIA: Comrade Glushko, we've been on a train for three days. Am I to be permitted to see my husband? 270

GLUSHKO: This is a very important day, for the whole programme. I want you to know that I will do everything I can to ensure Sergei Pavlovich's pardon ... We'll give you a tour. We'll show you the family apartments.

XENIA: Family apartments? 275

GLUSHKO: For employees of course, rather than the prisoners but ... Well, I'm certain I can obtain you permission to occupy one. Almost definitely.

XENIA: What are you talking about?
 GLUSHKO: You could see him ... every day. And in time ... if all goes well, if he's free ... he could live with you. Everything would be as it was. 280

XENIA: We have an apartment. In Moscow. Why are you offering us an apartment here?

GLUSHKO: I need you to talk to Sergei. I need you to explain the advantages, to all of us, of success here today. You can see the advantages, Xenia ...

XENIA: Why can't you talk to him? 285

I don't understand, Comrade Glushko, you've known him since you were students. You've worked together for nearly twenty years ...
 GLUSHKO: Not quite. No. We weren't able to work together, for many years, and I regret that, I want you ... I want Sergei to understand, at last, how much I regret that ... 290

Pause.

XENIA: [gets it] Ah. This is why he hates you.
 GLUSHKO: Sergei and I have ...
 XENIA: [interrupts] You kept your job.
 GLUSHKO: Yes, but ... 295
 XENIA: You kept your job. You have an apartment ... You walk around under the sky, free to turn your face up to the sun or the snow, any time you like ...

... you denounced him. Didn't you, Comrade Glushko?

Pause [GLUSHKO looks down at clipboard].

GLUSHKO: Look, you don't have much time, Xenia, I thought you would have arrived yesterday ... 300

XENIA: [interrupts] You denounced him. You sent him to the Gulag.

And now you're his boss.

[Laughs.] Yes, I can see why conversation might be difficult.

GLUSHKO: You could be together again. A family! Xenia, we don't have time for this. Sergei's work today is too important ... 305

XENIA: Have you asked Sergei if he wants a family?

GLUSHKO: Why wouldn't he want his family! Xenia ...

XENIA: Comrade Glushko. Look at me. Do I look well? Do I look healthy?

GLUSHKO: What? 310

[Floundering.] Of course ... you're a very ... yes ... you look well, you look wonderful! He'll be delighted to ...

XENIA: I kept my job, Comrade Glushko. I kept my apartment. I'm still working in the same medical research department as I was when Sergei was arrested but, like you, I've been promoted. 315

GLUSHKO: Yes, but ... what are you saying?

XENIA: That I understand why you can't talk freely with Sergei. It's difficult, isn't it? When you've betrayed him. Of course you had to. You had to live. You had to work. I understand ... They keep you so long in the dark, don't they? Shouting, questions, questions, questions ... Is Sergei Pavlovich a traitor? Is he a traitor, comrade? Tell us ... It was so dark. Was it dark where they kept you? 320

I thought. Natasha wouldn't like the dark. I didn't know what might happen to Natasha. Children need sun to grow straight, don't they. They need it for healthy bones. 325

NATASHA: [quiet] Mother, please don't ...

GLUSHKO: You denounced him?

XENIA: Of course I did. I called him a traitor. And that word lies between us every time I see him, like a rotting fish. We can hardly bear to be in the same room with it. You didn't know? Well ... why would he confide in you, of all people. I understand. Sergei doesn't talk freely with me either. No. I don't think we can be a family, Comrade Glushko. 330

GLUSHKO: Oh, but ... surely ... we'll give you the tour ... we ...

XENIA: No.

NATASHA: Mother, we can still visit him! I want to visit him. We can see him today. I'm glad we're here. I'm glad I'm seeing where he works. 335

Pause.

XENIA: Alright. Alright.

GLUSHKO: Would you like to freshen up? Come with me.

NATASHA, XENIA and GLUSHKO move out of the way as WORKERS and DESIGN ENGINEERS are brought on by GUARD TWO. They take their places at work stations. The convention of the engineers' room is established. A level of intense concentration, of calculations, an impression of endless paperwork, hundreds of blueprints. A work space where all activity centres on one place – the place KOROLYOV will occupy. 340
345

- GUARD TWO: Alright! Get working!
- The WORKERS/DESIGN ENGINEERS start working, low-level activity. There is a gentle buzz of machinery. They're watching a central point, waiting for some other signal.*
- KOROLYOV is brought on by GUARD TWO. He takes his place at the centre of activity. 350
- KOROLYOV: Alright! Let's get working!
- Instantly all the activity goes into hyperdrive. Everything is fed to KOROLYOV, checked by him and passed out again.*
- KOROLYOV is completely absorbed in checking the figures. He throws the papers down. 355
- Which diseased piece of mule dung is responsible for this!
- Everyone goes still, terrified. His deputy, MISHIN, turns to the second designer, IVANOVSKY.*
- MISHIN: I told you! I told you it wasn't ready! 360
- IVANOVSKY looks at the paperwork.
- IVANOVSKY: That would be my work.
KOROLYOV: You're a lying worm,
- MISHIN: [Indicating MISHIN.] ... it was this tub of rancid sausage.
[simultaneous] Yes ... but, SP, it wasn't my fault ... we knew the deadline was ... 365
- IVANOVSKY: [simultaneous] No, no, I take responsibility for the initial calculations ...
KOROLYOV: [cutting over both of them] You're both fired! Both of you! Get out of here!
- MISHIN and IVANOVSKY look at each other uncertainly then go back to the work stations. 370
- IVANOVSKY: I said get out of here! Go on!
But we can't, SP ...
MISHIN: Come on, SP ... it's a big day ...
KOROLYOV: I know what day it is, Mishin! It's the day I finally kick your sorry backside out of my workroom. Get out! 375
- IVANOVSKY: You know you can't fire us, no one can reassign a prisoner's labour except ...
MISHIN: [to IVANOVSKY, warning] Oleg!
IVANOVSKY: [under MISHIN] ... Comrade Glushko ...
- GLUSHKO is approaching them. KOROLYOV sees him and beyond him, waiting, XENIA and NATASHA. 380
- KOROLYOV: [quiet] Why's no one working?
- [Louder.] Move, you drowsy excuses for engineers! Work!
- The WORKERS/DESIGN ENGINEERS get going again.*

- GLUSHKO: Comrade Korolyov, is everything ready? 385
 KOROLYOV: No.
 GLUSHKO: What?
 KOROLYOV: The figures are wrong. I told you we needed more time.
 GLUSHKO: Then you'll have to ... you'll have to ...
- Look, your family is here. You have to present this as a success, you have to 390 tell them we've succeeded already!
 KOROLYOV: I know what you want, Glushko.
 XENIA: What does he want?
- Pause.*
- GLUSHKO: I'll let you ... I'll let you all ... Natasha, talk to your father ... 395
 We don't have much time, Sergei!
- GLUSHKO moves off, anxiously checking the work.
- KOROLYOV: It's a big day for us. This is the day we have been told to present our 400 completed work to the Politburo. Today is the triumphant conclusion to years of expensive labour.
 XENIA: [picks up on his tone, looking round] You're not ready.
 KOROLYOV: A few weeks away.
 XENIA: The design isn't working?
 KOROLYOV: My part of the design is working.
 XENIA: [gets it, indicating GLUSHKO] Ah ... so. The boss needs you to make him 405 look good.
 KOROLYOV: Yes.
- How are you?
 XENIA: As you see.
 KOROLYOV: Natasha. Look at you. 410
 NATASHA: I'm so glad, you've got windows.
 KOROLYOV: What's that?
 NATASHA: Every time I think of you working here I wonder if you can see the sun. And you can.
- KOROLYOV: We've got windows. Rather dirty windows of course but ... 415
 NATASHA: I'm glad.
- IVANOVSKY sidles up, hesitant.
- IVANOVSKY: Excuse me ... Comrade Korolyov ...
He offers papers. KOROLYOV looks at them.
- KOROLYOV: Well done, well done, good man. 420
 [To XENIA.] Why did they bring you in here?
 IVANOVSKY moves away.
- XENIA: You want us to leave?
 KOROLYOV: No! No of course not. How are you? How was the journey?
 XENIA: Cold. The train was delayed longer than usual. 425
 KOROLYOV: Have you eaten? Did you have enough food for the train?

MISHIN's turn to sidle up.

MISHIN: Sergei, I'm so sorry ...
 KOROLYOV: It's alright, Vassily. Show me.
 MISHIN: [offering papers] I think we can suggest a probable solution to determining an accurate trajectory if ... 430
 KOROLYOV: [cutting him off; quiet] Vassily, you think the idiots can count their own toes? It's fine. You've done well. We're ready for this.

MISHIN moves away.

[To XENIA] It's very good to see you. 435

I didn't expect to see you here.
 XENIA: In the middle of your work. We're disturbing you.
 KOROLYOV: No! It's ... you look well, Xenia. You look ... I'm glad to see you. Natasha, you look thin! Are you getting enough to eat?
 XENIA: Comrade Glushko has offered us an apartment here. 440
 KOROLYOV: Here?
 XENIA: Yes. Here. In the middle of your work.
 KOROLYOV: But how ... why?
 XENIA: So you see the advantages of making him look good.
 KOROLYOV: You'd come here? 445
 XENIA: You're asking us to come? That's what you want?

Pause.

KOROLYOV: What about Natasha's studies?
 NATASHA: I'm finished this summer.
 XENIA: Do you want us here? 450
 KOROLYOV: Yes. Would you come?
 XENIA: I don't know.
 GLUSHKO: It's nearly time. We need to be ready.
 KOROLYOV: It's too sudden. We can ... we'll have to talk about this later.

A bell. The GUARDS rush the WORKERS/DESIGN ENGINEERS off apart from MISHIN and IVANOVSKY. 455

XENIA: Glushko says you might be pardoned?
 KOROLYOV: I've another ten years on my sentence. That hasn't changed.
 XENIA: If they released you ... if you were free, would you really come back to Moscow? 460
 KOROLYOV: I don't understand you.
 GLUSHKO: They're early! The cars! The cars are arriving!
 XENIA: You didn't have to leave Moscow, Sergei.
 KOROLYOV: I was asleep. We were asleep! How could I get away? They dragged me downstairs. They threw me in a van, Xenia! 465
 XENIA: Sergei ... you saw what was coming. All your colleagues were being arrested ... all their families taken away ...
 KOROLYOV: So I should have denounced them first?
 XENIA: Yes! For us! For our sake.
 KOROLYOV: And our work? I should have just let it all be destroyed? 470
 XENIA: Oh, your work!
 NATASHA: Please. Please. Mother said you asked her to marry you over and over for six years.
 XENIA: He did. He never stopped asking.

- NATASHA: And at last you had to say yes. 475
- XENIA: I had to say yes. He'd never have stopped asking. He never stops. Of course I said yes.
- KOROLYOV: I was sure from the moment I saw you that I wanted to share my life with you. I'm still sure.
- GLUSHKO: They have to go. Xenia, you have to go now. 480
- WORKERS and DESIGN ENGINEERS are clearing up, frantically getting ready. A bell.
- XENIA: I'm glad you asked me, Sergei. I'll always be glad you made me say yes. But you have to understand, I made my choice ten years ago. I won't move here. I won't leave my life. I can't bring Natasha to live under the shadow of a prison wall, with the smell of death and gunpowder in her nose. But your home is still your home, if you're free, if you want it. 485
- GLUSHKO: If it all goes well, if we keep meeting our targets he'll be home with you soon.
- XENIA: If his work can spare him. 490
- GLUSHKO: Yes, yes, yes ... we'll all be on holiday soon. I promise you both. I promise you, Sergei, if today goes well it'll be picnics by the Volga for all of us, now say goodbye.
- XENIA: Goodbye.
- KOROLYOV: Goodbye. 495
- GLUSHKO: Goodbye, Natasha.
Goodbye, goodbye, goodbye! Go! Go!
- He shoos them off. Turns to KOROLYOV.*
- Line up! Line up! Come on.
- KOROLYOV, IVANOVSKY, MISHIN and the other WORKERS/DESIGN ENGINEERS form a welcoming committee. 500
- Are we alright? Do I look alright?
- IVANOVSKY straightens GLUSHKO's tie.
- Thank you. And Sergei, nothing about space today, you understand me? Not a word! 505
- KHRUSHCHEV and BREZHNEV enter, followed by members of the POLITBURO.
- GLUSHKO: Comrade First Secretary, honoured comrades ... welcome ... welcome. You'll take some tea? Vodka?
- KHRUSHCHEV: [looking round] Later, later, show us what we're paying for first. 510
- GLUSHKO: Of course. Of course, as you can see our engineers have prepared for your visit. Everything is on schedule. We have exceeded Comrade Stalin's expectations ...
- KHRUSHCHEV: Comrade Stalin's dead.
- GLUSHKO: Eh ... 515
- KHRUSHCHEV: Isn't he?
- GLUSHKO: Yes.
- KHRUSHCHEV: You noticed? You heard the news maybe?
- GLUSHKO: Yes.

- KHRUSHCHEV: So let's see if you can satisfy Comrade Khrushchev's expectations. On you go. 520
- GLUSHKO is trying to hand out papers to KHRUSHCHEV and the others.
- GLUSHKO: The eh ... the initial work ... the initial planning ... has proceeded as we anticipated ...
- KHRUSHCHEV: What work? What planning? 525
- [Re: the papers.] These are pages of numbers! Why are you showing me your numbers?
- KOROLYOV: Is someone going to tell me what's going on here!? Comrade Khrushchev, if I may ...
- KOROLYOV leads them to the base of a rocket. They look up. 530
- A beat while they take it in.*
- KHRUSHCHEV: Why is it so big?
- KOROLYOV: What you are looking at is our latest prototype developed to carry liquid fuel. With this missile we hope to increase our range by a factor of ten, allowing us to select targets many thousands of miles away with reasonable accuracy. 535
- KHRUSHCHEV: As you know? As you know? I don't know anything. What is this thing?
- KOROLYOV: It is an intercontinental ballistic missile.
- KHRUSHCHEV: So what can it do?
- KOROLYOV: This is our test model. We hope it can deliver a warhead over a much longer distance than would previously have been possible ... 540
- KHRUSHCHEV: How long?
- KOROLYOV: It could reach America in just a few minutes.
- KHRUSHCHEV: America? America?
- KOROLYOV: Yes. 545
- KHRUSHCHEV: [laughing, to the POLITBURO] You hear that! You hear that? We've just made toy boats of their warships! Those guns of theirs are going to be good for nothing but salutes!
- [To GLUSHKO.] Is it true!?
- GLUSHKO: Yes, Comrade Khrushchev. 550
- KHRUSHCHEV: Well, how many of these things do we have?
- GLUSHKO: The Politburo, as you know, approved ...
- KHRUSHCHEV: [interrupts] Look, you seem like a man who can understand plain talking, yes? I don't know what you were expecting today but this is how it is – the old man told me nothing. I don't know a bloody thing. 555
- [pointing at the MEMBERS OF THE POLITBURO.] They don't know a bloody thing.
- KOROLYOV: Tell me again, slowly, so I can understand. Comrade Stalin had a dream.
- KHRUSHCHEV: Yes. 560
- KOROLYOV: [as if quoting] His dream was to plant missiles like saplings of a new forest, bent by the winds of the world to point wherever they were needed.
- Their flight paths would be dotted lines of death threatening our enemies even in their own homes, as they threaten us now. He wanted to guard our whole, huge sky with fire and steel. 565

KHRUSHCHEV: He said that.
 KOROLYOV: No. He had that written. But that was the idea.
 KHRUSHCHEV: That was his dream.
 KOROLYOV: Yes.
 KHRUSHCHEV: The old devil never told me he had dreams. 570

Suddenly he bangs on the rocket.

[To the MEMBERS OF THE POLITBURO.] Look at this! Look at this thing, will you?!

[To KOROLYOV, suddenly anxious.] Oh, can I do that? It won't ...?
 KOROLYOV: It's quite safe. 575

KHRUSHCHEV hits the rocket again.

KHRUSHCHEV: That explains it, that explains the secret smile. You know the one I mean? Just peeking round the edges of his moustache with so much iron behind it. I thought death was the twinkle in the eye, the big punchline to every joke he ever told ... But this is the big joke, isn't it? Ha! 580

KHRUSHCHEV gives the rocket several more blows, laughing. The hammering reverberates around.

He turns from examining the rocket to examining KOROLYOV.

Well. Well then.

What's your name? 585
 KOROLYOV: Sergei Pavlovich Korolyov.

KHRUSHCHEV: And how are conditions in the missile-builders' prison, Sergei Pavlovich? Food alright is it? Plenty of fresh air?

KOROLYOV: Conditions are ...

KHRUSHCHEV: [interrupts] A hell of a lot better than the Gulag. No, no, you're a lucky man, I can see that. And what was your sentence? 590

Pause.

KOROLYOV: Hard labour or death, Comrade Khrushchev.

KHRUSHCHEV: Comrade Stalin's rocket fuel. Got us all leaping forward, didn't it? Did you cry when he died? 595

KOROLYOV: I was ... sad of course I ...

KHRUSHCHEV: I wept like a child. He was our father. Now we're just children running from wolves ...

He was right, of course he was right, the Americans are watching us from every wave of the sea. They're peering down on us from every patch of blue sky, ready to drop death on us whenever they like. 600

[Suddenly to MISHIN.] What did you do in the Great Patriotic War, comrade?
 MISHIN: I ...

I was in Czechoslovakia, Comrade First Secretary. I was a master of horses, in the cavalry ... 605

KHRUSHCHEV: Wounded?

MISHIN: Yes, comrade.

KHRUSHCHEV: Show me.

Hesitant, MISHIN pulls up his shirt to show his scar.

Shrapnel.

MISHIN: The shell exploded right beside our position ... I was the only one who survived ...

610

KHRUSHCHEV: [stopping him] It's alright soldier. We've all got our wounds, eh?

We've given the world enough of our dead. We gave millions to win their war for them while they ate chocolate and chewed gum. The crops in our fields are still rich with the Russian blood that soaked into the earth – the blood of millions of farmers and soldiers who died winning that war. We broke the world's enemy for them and then the world turned round and threatened us?! Well, no more! No more! Ha! We'll show them! You'll show them, Sergei!

615

You've beaten the Americans and their pet Germans? They can't do this?

KOROLYOV: They're developing the German V2. But we don't think their design is yet capable of ...

620

KHRUSHCHEV: [interrupts] Oh, let me tell them! Let me tell them we can see a fly on a grain of wheat on their great plains and kill the fly and the whole plain with it ...

KOROLYOV: Our accuracy is not yet ...

625

KHRUSHCHEV: No! No, let me tell them that! I want to see their faces! Let them try and frighten our mothers and children now!

Do you have family, Sergei?

KOROLYOV: I've got a daughter.

KHRUSHCHEV: Wife and daughter, eh? Lovely. They let you see them?

630

Pause.

KOROLYOV: Yes, Comrade Khrushchev.

KHRUSHCHEV: Good, good, you'll spend days with them soon. Now your work's done.

KOROLYOV: The work is not completed.

GLUSHKO: [simultaneous] Comrade Khrushchev ...

635

KHRUSHCHEV: [simultaneous] What!?

KOROLYOV: We do not have a working mathematical model, as yet. But if the work proceeds to our plan, the missile will fly within the month. I guarantee that.

KHRUSHCHEV: You guarantee that personally?

KOROLYOV: Yes, comrade.

640

KHRUSHCHEV: You know what I think then, Sergei Pavlovich? I think the people are going to pardon you. I think you'd still love Mother Russia even if you weren't staring down the barrel of a gun. Am I right?

KOROLYOV: You're right, comrade.

KHRUSHCHEV: So go and get your wife ... You're a free man!

645

You can go out and buy your daughter a new pair of shoes. Have you got an apartment here for them?

GLUSHKO: Yes, Comrade Khrushchev ...

KOROLYOV: No.

KHRUSHCHEV: What do you mean, 'No'?

650

KOROLYOV: They wouldn't come here.

They won't come, Comrade Khrushchev.

GLUSHKO: Comrade Khrushchev doesn't want to hear ...

KHRUSHCHEV: She told you that?

- KOROLYOV: Yes. 655
 KHRUSHCHEV: Well ... a man needs his family. Go to her.
 GLUSHKO: We do need Sergei Pavlovich if the work is to proceed, Comrade Khrushchev ...
- KHRUSHCHEV: What about these other boys in white coats? They can finish the job without this lad here, can't they? 660
 GLUSHKO: No.
 KOROLYOV: No, Comrade Khrushchev.
 GLUSHKO: Comrade Korolyov is indispensable. At the moment.
 KHRUSHCHEV: [laughs] And you're not?
 Well. 665
 Well, what are we going to do?
 [To KOROLYOV.] All these plans, all these dreams of fire and steel in one little head? Is that wise? Is there room in there, comrade?
 KOROLYOV: One mind can hold a million ideas, a million actions, as many possibilities as specks of light in the night sky. 670
 KHRUSHCHEV: But put a bullet in his brain and you lose the lot. I can see how you managed to stay alive, comrade. Very clever.
 Well, I'm still offering you a choice. You're pardoned. Take your freedom and go home to your wife if you like ...
 GLUSHKO: [cutting in] Comrade Khrushchev ... 675
 KHRUSHCHEV: Shut up! I'm not talking to you!
 [To KOROLYOV.] You decide, comrade. Do you need a holiday?
Pause.
- KOROLYOV: No, comrade. I need to finish my work.
 KHRUSHCHEV: Course you do. 680
 KOROLYOV: I need Mishin, I need Ivanovsky. I need my team.
 KHRUSHCHEV: Your team. Your team.
 All enemies of the people?
No one answers.
- Well ... well, if a man has given his blood for the people I think that's all we need to know. I think that's all that counts in this new world, in these new days where our enemies want to bring us down while our wounds are still wet. 685
 Let's try another way to fuel the rocket, comrades. The people will give you all their pardon. Do your work. 690
 MISHIN breaks down abruptly.
- KOROLYOV: Vassily ...
 KHRUSHCHEV: It's alright. Give him a drink.
 [To MISHIN.] Take a drink, soldier.
 Let's all have a drink. 695

MISHIN is still weeping.

That's enough, that's enough now, we're celebrating now. You've done a good job, Sergei Pavlovich.

[To GLUSHKO.] He's done a good job for you, hasn't he? He's been a good deputy for your little rocket-building team. 700

[To KOROLYOV.] Who do you want as your deputy then?

[Indicating GLUSHKO.] Him?

KOROLYOV: [thrown] Eh ... I don't ...

KHRUSHCHEV: You should be running this team, shouldn't you?

GLUSHKO: Comrade First Secretary ... 705

KHRUSHCHEV: [cutting him off] Shut up, we're not talking to you, Sergei and me are making a new plan now.

[Indicating GLUSHKO.] Do you need him?

Beat. KOROLYOV looks at GLUSHKO.

KOROLYOV: For what? 710

GLUSHKO: Everything we've done was dependent on my design for ...

KHRUSHCHEV: [interrupts, just speaking to KOROLYOV] So you can run your team and you have this one, unless you want him for your deputy?

GLUSHKO: No! No, the committee must approve any reorganisation in our working structure and ... 715

KHRUSHCHEV: [turns on GLUSHKO] Oh, must they? Which committee? Do I know them, have they bought me a drink recently, have any of them had their feet up on my chairs?

[To KOROLYOV.] You don't want him? You don't trust him?

When KOROLYOV says nothing, KHRUSHCHEV indicates BREZHNEV. 720

I trust this man to stand here, you see? Just behind me. He doesn't say much do you, Comrade Brezhnev?

BREZHNEV: No, comrade.

KHRUSHCHEV: He never has. He watches, and he sees it all, don't you?

BREZHNEV: Yes, comrade. 725

KHRUSHCHEV: And no one sees him. No one saw him until I did. I saw a boy who could learn what I had. I saw a young man who could follow me up the party. I saw a man who could take the trust I offered him and stand at my shoulder, my eyes and ears. Watching and listening until the blood and fire and bullets had passed us both by. 730

We understand each other, don't we? We understand what we must do now, for the people.

BREZHNEV: Yes, comrade.

KHRUSHCHEV: So, who do you want to stand beside you, Sergei?

Pause. 735

KOROLYOV: Vassily ...

Comrade Mishin.

KHRUSHCHEV: The man who can stare down the barrel of a German tank! Yes! Good choice!
 GLUSHKO: Am I required here then?
 KHRUSHCHEV: Those damn Nazis! Every one of them in bed with Uncle Sam now. But 740
 Sergei Pavlovich and the Soviet workers can beat them!
 KOROLYOV: That's right, comrade, and we could beat them into space too.
 GLUSHKO: Am I still required here!?

Pause.

KHRUSHCHEV: Are you drinking? No. Clear off then. 745

Into space? What are you talking about? Take a drink, man.

GLUSHKO exits.

KOROLYOV: In a moment perhaps, Comrade Khrushchev, thank you. Can I show you something, Nikita Sergeevich, can I show you my dream?

[Drawing him over to the rocket again.] Look, look, it's nearly touching the 750 sky already. Over five million horsepower thrusting it up into the stars. Five tons of warhead soaring higher than any human thing ever made. We could escape gravity itself! We could send a satellite around the Earth!

KHRUSHCHEV: Why? 755
 Why would we do that?

KOROLYOV: Because we must! It would be a first step, Comrade First Secretary. Before this, the idea of moving off the Earth, travelling beyond our little world has just been a dream. But we could make it real. Here, today, we could take that first step no one has dared to believe was possible. It would change what it means to be human. 760

No response.

Think of it, to take mankind so high, so high that we can look back and see what we are, look beyond the curve of the Earth to see what we can become!

No response.

For Mother Russia! For the love of our black earth and memory of our dead. 765

No response.

America will claim the first satellite very soon if we don't ...

KHRUSHCHEV: [cuts him off] You're ready to do this?
 KOROLYOV: Almost immediately. We replace the warhead with a satellite, the plans have been submitted to the committee ... 770

KHRUSHCHEV: Alright. Send everything to my office as well.

[To BREZHNEV.] You'll keep an eye on this?

BREZHNEV: Yes, comrade.

KHRUSHCHEV: You can have your dream, Sergei Pavlovich, as long as I have my missiles.

KHRUSHCHEV and BREZHNEV exit. Once they are clear, KOROLYOV, IVANOVSKY, MISHIN and the others roar with delight, dancing and hugging each other. 775

MISHIN: A toast! A toast! To the new chief designer!

- KOROLYOV: You're excused. You're all excused. No more work today.
- The GUARDS exit followed by WORKERS and DESIGN ENGINEERS whooping. MISHIN, IVANOVSKY and KOROLYOV remain.* 780
- KOROLYOV: [to IVANOVSKY] How come this wet baboon cries with joy at the thought of working with me and you don't even blink?
- IVANOVSKY: I've no tears left in me, SP, you know that.
- KOROLYOV: Oh, I'll find your tears. The way I'll work you now ... 785
- Bring her out. Let's look at her.
- From a hiding place, IVANOVSKY produces a scale model of Sputnik. A beautiful shining silver ball.*
- He holds it up.*
- We're going to make you real, beautiful. We're going to let you grow and fire you up where you belong. 790
- They're passing the Sputnik among them. MISHIN kisses it.*
- MISHIN: You little darling.
- KOROLYOV: Hey! Hey! No marks!
- He polishes the model with his sleeve.* 795
- We're going to polish the skin till it blazes with all the light of the sun, so we can see her pass over us with our own eyes, the star we made.
- IVANOVSKY: I have to tell the others, can I tell them, Sergei?
- KOROLYOV: Yes! Go on!
- IVANOVSKY runs off.* 800
- MISHIN: That was your daughter?
- KOROLYOV: Yes. That was Natasha.
- MISHIN: She's lovely. A lovely girl.
- KOROLYOV: Yes.
- MISHIN: Take a drink, Sergei. 805
- MISHIN exits.*
- KOROLYOV raises his little shining Sputnik.*
- KOROLYOV: You're lovely. A lovely thing.
- Fly up and see who chases you. If the race starts we'll all run to the other side of the Moon. 810
- KOROLYOV throws the Sputnik up into the sky.*
- Lights down.*
- The silver sound of Sputnik overhead.*
- A parade ground, Central Russia, An autumn night. October 4th 1957.*

SOLDIERS from the local barracks and YOUNG WOMEN from a textile factory dancing together. YURI is dancing with VALYA. KOMAROV, TITOV and LEONOV are dancing with other WOMEN or, in the absence of partners, boisterously with each other. The dance finishes, an OFFICER shouts over the end. 815

OFFICER: Last dance! One more then flying officers report back to barracks! 820

The music begins again, they dance.

YURI is talking to VALYA.

YURI: So I'll see you next week then.

VALYA laughs.

VALYA: What? 825
Every time!

Have you asked me if I want to see you next week?

YURI: No.

VALYA: Are you going to?

YURI: No. 830

VALYA: Why not?

YURI: Because I know the answer.

VALYA: You're very sure of yourself.

YURI: No, I'm sure of you.

VALYA: You ...! 835

Words fail her, she starts to pull away.

YURI: [stopping her] No, you don't get it.

If I asked if you wanted to see me next week you'd say you didn't know, wouldn't you?

VALYA hesitates. 840

But I know. I'm sure.

VALYA: Of what?

YURI: That I want to see you.

VALYA: And that's enough, is it?

YURI: Isn't it? You don't trust me? 845

VALYA: Why should I trust you?

YURI: Look at me. I'm so sure I want you, Valya. Look, can't you see it in my eyes?

VALYA: Let me see your hands.

He offers them. She looks at them. 850

My mother taught me how to read a man's hands.

[Studying them] If there's dirt under the nails the man will bring his working day home to make your nights a misery.

YURI: I'm clean.

VALYA: If the nails are clean but there are cracks in his skin, his working day will 855

- break him in the end.
 YURI: Clean and smooth.
 VALYA: And those are the hands of a thief who lives off the work of others ...
- [Seeing something.] What is this? On your skin?
 YURI: What are you seeing? 860
 VALYA: It's silver.
 YURI: Oh, it's from the engines, little flakes of metal.
 VALYA: You clean the engines of the planes?
 YURI: No, no, I stroke them, before I fly. Like horses.
 VALYA: Horses? 865
 YURI: A jet engine's a tricky thing. You don't know how it might decide to kill you. A wild horse is an easier beast to tame than a MiG landing on a frozen runway. So I always pat the engines before I throw my life into the sky. I ask them to be sweet one more time. It can't hurt, can it? I'm still here, aren't I? [Sound of a whistle]. 870
- OFFICER: That's it, Lieutenant! Time's up!
 VALYA: You have to go.
 YURI: No. We've got a moment.
 VALYA: It's cold. Can you smell it, in the air? Snow. Smells like smoke and sugar. There'll be no more dancing on the parade ground after tonight. Just you squaddies stamping up and down, kicking the ice off your boots. 875
 YURI: Flying officers don't stamp, we walk on air.
- So I'll see you next week.
 VALYA: I don't know. I don't know how to be sure.
 YURI: What did your mother say about men with metal hands? 880
 VALYA: She doesn't know any.
 YURI: Need to make up your own mind then.
- LEONOV runs on, waving a radio over his head. He's shouting over the music.
- LEONOV: Sputnik! Sputnik! Sputnik!
The music dies away as LEONOV reaches YURI. 885
 Yuri, it's Sputnik!
- [Shouting the noise down.] Listen! Listen!
- Silence. The silvery sound of Sputnik, faint through the radio, growing louder.*
 VALYA: What is it?
 LEONOV: The world's first satellite! 890
 TITOV: Good heavens, it's up there now. It's above us!
 KOMAROV: Can you see it?
 TITOV: It's too small. It won't be visible to the naked eye.
 LEONOV: There! Look! Shining!
 VALYA: It's a star, a moving star. 895
 KOMAROV: [pointing] No it's there!
 VALYA: I'm seeing it everywhere. The whole sky's full of moving stars.
 TITOV: It's snow. It's snowing.
- Snow starts to fall on their upturned faces.*
- OFFICER: Fall in, men, fall in, it's time. 900
 KOMAROV: Everyone else is lined up.

- LEONOV: Yuri, we have to go.
- The others move off, still looking up till only YURI and VALYA are left.*
- YURI: They'll hear it over all of Russia. Over the whole world. The sky is ours.
 VALYA: Is it really true? 905
 YURI: I'll bring you a piece of sky, a star to hang round your neck. I'll pick it next time I fly up there.
 VALYA: Listen to you. Next you'll tell me that's stardust on your hands.
 YURI: No. It's just oil and metal.
- [Takes her hands.] But the thing about metal ... 910
- The thing about metal is, you make it one shape and that's how it'll be. It's true. The only thing that wears metal out is time and it'll last a whole life before that happens.
- So what do you want, Valya Goryacheva?
- VALYA kisses him. 915
- OFFICER: Lieutenant Gagarin!
 YURI: Coming, sir!
- YURI exits. VALYA exits slowly in the opposite direction, still looking up at the sky.
- The following scenes flow into this one, characters from one entering as the previous actor is still exiting.* 920
- A park, Moscow, continuous.*
- The snow is falling a little quicker. NATASHA walks through the park, across the stage, a radio in her hands, listening to the sound of Sputnik, watching the sky.* 925
- The Gulag, Kolyma, continuous. Strong wind.*
- As NATASHA exits, a GULAG PRISONER crawls onstage, breath rasping. The snow is falling fast and fierce now. The DOCTOR enters, wrapped up against the weather. She has a radio too, the sound of Sputnik is replaced by a patriotic commentary explaining the triumph of Sputnik, it's in Russian, the commentator rousing and excited, the signal is fading in and out. The DOCTOR is trying to get another channel, banging the radio and muttering. She doesn't see the GULAG PRISONER at first.* 930
- DOCTOR: Come on! Come on! Some music, not this rubbish! I want music. I'll settle for a military band, come on! 935
- She sees the GULAG PRISONER.*
- Where are you going?
- Where are you going, come back to the infirmary, you'll die out here.
- GULAG PRISONER: Leave me alone ...

- DOCTOR: I want to die ... in the clean air ... I don't want ... your medicine ... poison ...
I don't have any medicine. I just count the dead. Come on, don't die yet.
Come inside. 940
- She pulls at him.*
- GULAG PRISONER: Bitch.
- DOCTOR: Yeah, yeah ... 945
- She tries to heave him up. He cries out in pain.*
- Come on. Come on, you fool! Fight, damn you ...!
- She can't lift him.*
- GULAG PRISONER: I want ... to die ... under ... the open sky ...
- She lets him drop.* 950
- DOCTOR: I'm so sorry. I'm sorry. Why should you stay alive to make me feel better?
What's your name? What's your name?
- The GULAG PRISONER mumbles something indistinct.*
- That's your prison number. What's your name?
Never mind. Never mind. Think about ... something happy ... something warm. Did you love your mother? 955
- GULAG PRISONER: Mum ...
- DOCTOR: Yes. Can you see her? Where is she?
- GULAG PRISONER: My mother ... My mother sat me on ... a red rug ... in the window ... she pulled me close ... 960
- DOCTOR: That's right. That's right and nothing's going to hurt any more ...
- GULAG PRISONER: I could see ... the reflections of the candle flames in the glass. I could see ... the candles above in the dark ... a thousand candles ... stars in the sky ...
- She's got the dose ready to inject him.* 965
- DOCTOR: It's alright. It'll be warm, it'll be quiet and I'll hold you till you get there.
- GULAG PRISONER: She said ... she said ... you can't touch the stars, Pavel ... they're too far away ... you'll have to travel miles through the dark to reach them.
- DOCTOR: [rolling up his sleeve] Shhhh ...
- GULAG PRISONER: And I said ... then I will ... 970
- The DOCTOR injects him. The GULAG WORKER stiffens then goes still.*
- The patriotic voice on the radio rises to a crescendo.*
- RADIO: Sputnik! Sputnik!
- The silvery sound of Sputnik.*
- The DOCTOR looks up into the falling snow.* 975
- DOCTOR: Sputnik.
- She spits.*

End of Act 1.

ACT 2

Scene 1

The DESIGN ENGINEERS' room.

MISHIN, IVANOVSKY and KOROLYOV are watching a piece of archive film.
Patriotic music, interspersed with voice-over. 980

We don't see the film itself.

MISHIN: Where is this?
IVANOVSKY: America.
MISHIN: Yes but where?
IVANOVSKY: Oh, like you'd know. 985
KOROLYOV: Florida.
MISHIN: Florida? Are you sure? It looks very dry.
ANNOUNCER: '... in the heart of the Florida desert ...'
KOROLYOV: This is their most recent unmanned prototype. It's still basically the V2, don't you think? 990
IVANOVSKY: I don't know.
MISHIN: Do they farm there? It looks too dry. They have a lot of cattle, don't they ...
the Americans. I think that land's too dry for cattle.
IVANOVSKY: I'd say they've changed the fuel.
KOROLYOV: That's what the intelligence says, but ... 995
MISHIN: Maybe a different kind of cow. Do you think that's it?
IVANOVSKY: I don't understand why they've changed the shape.
MISHIN: They've only put two engines on the thing, so they must have about 120,000 kilo thrust, kerosene oxygen fuel maybe?
KOROLYOV: This is why he's second in command. 1000
IVANOVSKY: Oh, is that why?
MISHIN: Enough to get them into orbit.
KOROLYOV: Maybe. Let's see.
IVANOVSKY: Here she goes.
KOROLYOV: That is an elegant shape, look at that white slender nose ... 1005
MISHIN: She's wobbling.
IVANOVSKY: No, she's going up.
KOROLYOV: Beautiful aristocratic American nose, sniffing out the Moon ...
MISHIN: Sergei, you already know if they launched successfully, just tell us.
IVANOVSKY: She's still going up, steady as a piston ... 1010
MISHIN: I think there's a tremor ... there ... no?
IVANOVSKY: No ... Maybe ... Oooh!

They all groan in horror and delight.

MISHIN: Did you see that!
ANNOUNCER: '... early days for the space programme ...' 1015
IVANOVSKY: Boom! Look at her burn!
MISHIN: They can't do it!
IVANOVSKY: Boom!
MISHIN: Forget it, forget it, America, spend your money on new cars. You haven't got the rocket engineers to match Oleg and Vassily! 1020
KOROLYOV: It's old film.
ANNOUNCER: '... as AMERICA advances into space ...'
MISHIN: We've beaten them!
KOROLYOV: Intelligence kept it for months. It's old.

- IVANOVSKY: But we've beaten them. 1025
 KOROLYOV: They're bound to have made some progress since then ...
 MISHIN: But ... !!??
 KOROLYOV: But right now ... we've beaten them!
- America is lying in the dirt staring up at our vapour trail! The first man in space is going to be a good Soviet citizen, no question. 1030
- IVANOVSKY: Yes!
 KOROLYOV: Alright. Run it again. Let's work out what they might have done next.
- GENERAL GELADZE enters. He salutes.
- GELADZE: The cosmonauts are ready for your inspection, Comrade Chief Designer.
 KOROLYOV: Yes, yes ... 1035
- GELADZE: In a minute.
 All good boys. Trained and ready ...
- KOROLYOV, MISHIN and IVANOVSKY are ignoring him, absorbed in the film again.
- KOROLYOV: There is something about that nose. Why make it like that? 1040
 GELADZE: One metre seventy-eight tall, as requested, all trained, you'll see ...
- IVANOVSKY: Though we're all puzzling about that one. One metre seventy ...
 It's just vanity. There's no reason. There can't be an aerodynamic benefit at that thrust.
- GELADZE: As Uncle Joe would say, 'Do the work, comrade, and ask the party for the reason ...' 1045
- They all look at him.*
- KOROLYOV: What?
 GELADZE: Our Uncle Joe Stalin would have got the reason out of you, eh?
 KOROLYOV: What are you talking about? 1050
 GELADZE: Why are all the cosmonauts to be under one metre seventy-eight?
- KOROLYOV: And seventy-five kilos?
 To fit in the capsule.
 GELADZE: Of course. Of course.
- [Laughing.] Stupid of me. 1055
- They ignore him again.*
- MISHIN: [re: the film] You see the tremor starts as soon as it's cleared the gantry ...
 GELADZE: Well, you've got a good bunch. They're the right height and they're ready to die.
- KOROLYOV: That won't be required. 1060
 GELADZE: If it is they're ready. They are heroes. Heroes of the Soviet people.
 KOROLYOV: Good.
- GELADZE: I'll be with you in a moment.
 Of course. 'Scuse me, 'scuse me, comrades, getting in your way. You're busy men. Excuse me. 1065

I'll wait for you outside, Comrade Chief Designer.

GELADZE exits.

KOROLYOV: I better get this over with. Tell me what you think when I get back later. Work it out for me.

MISHIN: Heroes of the Soviet people, eh? Is that what you ordered, Sergei? 1070

KOROLYOV: Of course.

MISHIN: Of course you did. Just what we need. More of those.

IVANOVSKY shushes him, laughing but shocked. They exit.

The COSMONAUTS' training room.

After a few motionless moments, YURI looks at his fellow COSMONAUTS. He looks round.

There's something really hot and metal right beside them. A heating pipe, a piece of equipment, a samovar. YURI reaches out and touches it briefly, looking at the others. He winces in pain at the heat, blowing on his fingers. He touches it again, checking he's got everyone's attention. Snatches his hand off again. 1080

YURI: Five roubles says I last two minutes.

He waits, hand poised expectantly. An uncertain moment then all the COSMONAUTS break ranks, slapping one hand on the same bit of metal. They hold the hot metal, wincing and gasping in discomfort. 1085

LEONOV breaks first, dancing away, waving his heated fingers.

KOMAROV follows seconds later. YURI and TITOV are still holding it.

LEONOV: Go on, Yuri! 1090

KOMAROV: Titov's steady.

LEONOV: Go on, Yuri!

KOMAROV: Ten roubles on Titov.

LEONOV: You've got him! You've got him! You ...

YURI lets go. 1095

YURI: Ugh, comrade, what happened?
Yeah, like you were still in there.

Nice one, Titov.

TITOV is still holding on.

LEONOV: Titov? 1100

KOMAROV: Titov, you've won.

YURI: Look at him!

KOMAROV: Titov, drop it.

YURI: He's going purple, look.

LEONOV: You've won! 1105

KOMAROV: You've won!

- YURI: You beat me, man, come on!
- TITOV lets go.
- TITOV: 'Upon the brink of the wild stream
He stood, and dreamt a mighty dream.' 1110
- LEONOV: Who did?
- TITOV: Pushkin.
- KOMAROV: It's a quote.
- LEONOV: Right.
- YURI slaps out his damaged hand. 1115
- YURI: Well done!
- TITOV returns the shake with force.
- Ow! Ow!
- [Laughing.] Alright, you got me again.
- TITOV lets him go. 1120
- Can you still bend your fingers? Hell, that was stupid, they might have us trying out the instrument panel.
- TITOV: I used my left hand.
- YURI: [to others] See?
- TITOV: He wins again. Can't get past you, can we, Titov? 1125
You can try if you like.
- YURI tries to step past TITOV, TITOV blocks him. They move, block, move, block – faster and faster till they are actually wrestling each other.
- GELADZE enters with KOROLYOV.
- GELADZE: Cosmonauts! 1130
They quickly get back in line, standing to attention.
- KOROLYOV: So, here you all are. My little eagles.
- GELADZE: Relax. Come on, I'm just going to explain things to you.
At ease.
- The COSMONAUTS relax.* 1135
- KOROLYOV: This is how it works, boys. We're building you a craft to take you out of the Earth's atmosphere.
You're all top pilots but all you have to do is monitor its performance.
- As you know we've tested the rocket with dogs. The dogs that orbited and landed again all lived. Some of them did not land. 1140
- The DOCTOR enters and stands, watching and listening.*

But if I've done my job this one will. Don't worry, boys. I'm good at my job.

So we've tested our design. You'll get a chance to sit in the capsule in a moment.

YURI starts to take off his shoes. 1145

You'll see it is a simple practical structure. I can show you the blueprints so you understand everything. We design the parts. We send the designs to the factory. They send us back the parts. We fit them together. Simple. Like building a tractor or one of your MiGs we ...

Sees YURI. 1150

What are you doing, comrade?

GELADZE: Lieutenant Gagarin, get up, what are you doing?

YURI: You said we were going to get in the capsule, comrade. So I thought ...

KOROLYOV: What?

YURI: Well ... we've got to take our shoes off, comrade ... it's only polite ... 1155

GELADZE: You brainless excuse for a flying officer, Gagarin! What do you think you're going to do, fly the designer's machine in your socks?

KOROLYOV: He's thinking about keeping the farm dirt off the floor.

[To YURI.] Is that it?

You'd take your shoes off before you went in your uncle's house, wouldn't you, Gagarin? 1160

YURI: Of course.

KOROLYOV: Good for you, farm boy.

The other COSMONAUTS look at each other then drop and start pulling off their boots. KOROLYOV talks to YURI over this. 1165

Where are you from?

YURI: Smolensk.

KOROLYOV: A farmer's boy from Smolensk. Of course. I've heard they're all thieves in Smolensk, what do you say?

YURI: It's a hard life farming that earth. If you're not born into luck maybe you need to steal some. 1170

KOROLYOV: So you're all thieves?

YURI: We're all lucky.

KOROLYOV: And how far do you think your luck will get you here? You'll have to learn something here, Lieutenant. 1175

[To all of them.] We can't tell you everything in one day. We're going to prepare classes so you can learn the system thoroughly. You'll attend lectures and then we'll set you some exams.

YURI has raised his hand.

Yes?

YURI: Will you be marking us, Comrade Chief Designer? 1180

KOROLYOV: Yes and I'll throw you out! Stop smiling! What are you smiling at, you featherless sparrow!?

He waits, face close to YURI. YURI keeps his eyes front. Face blank.

Alright. 1185

Alright, go through, little eagles. My boys and girls will get you ready.

The COSMONAUTS exit carrying their boots.

One of those boys is going to see beyond the edges of the world.

GELADZE: Lieutenant Gagarin is the perfect proletarian candidate.
 KOROLYOV: Is he? 1190
 GELADZE: A tractor driver's son ...

[Showing KOROLYOV.] You see I've kept extensive notes on all the cosmonauts ... see here, Gagarin ... honourable proletarian background ... good performance in all tests ... you see? Here and ... here ...

KOROLYOV: He's good but he's not the best, is he? 1195
 GELADZE: Well, in a sense, comrade, he is the best because he ...
 KOROLYOV: [interrupts, pointing] Here ... and here ... and here ... Titov ... first ... best performance, first, first, best, best ...

Beat.

GELADZE: Titov. Of course. Of course. An able candidate. But Gagarin is my 1200 recommendation.

KOROLYOV: Well ... I'll consider your recommendation.

GELADZE: I am responsible for the military personnel, comrade. As Uncle Joe would say, each man has only one part to play in the revolution so play it well.

KOROLYOV starts to leave. 1205

If I could make another suggestion, comrade?

KOROLYOV: Yes?
 GELADZE: Your team ... at their current rate of progress the launch will be delayed.
 KOROLYOV: It might.
 GELADZE: Then they should sleep less. 1210

KOROLYOV: What?
 GELADZE: Men can work quite efficiently with six hours' sleep in every forty-eight. That's been proven in combat.

KOROLYOV: Has it?
 GELADZE: I've witnessed it myself. 1215

KOROLYOV: Well. Thank you for sharing your valuable experience, comrade. However, I'm responsible for the timetable my team work to, or I was last time I checked.
 GELADZE: Of course, of course, comrade, stupid of me ...

What are the chances of success, Comrade Chief Designer?

Pause. 1220

KOROLYOV: Fifty-fifty.
 GELADZE: That's good. Yes.
 KOROLYOV: Good enough to try? Yes. I hope so.

KOROLYOV is exiting. He sees the DOCTOR. He stops dead, staring at her.

DOCTOR: Shall I set up the next tests, General? 1225
 GELADZE: Yes. They'll be back with you shortly.

KOROLYOV is still staring at the DOCTOR.

Comrade Chief Designer?

GELADZE exits.

Scene 2 (abridged)

KOROLYOV:	I know you ... don't I?	1230
DOCTOR:	Do you?
KOROLYOV:	Yes. Yes.
	It's you.
DOCTOR:	Is it?
KOROLYOV:	Yes.	1235
DOCTOR:	I doubt it. I doubt I'm who you think I am.
KOROLYOV:	No. No it is you! I'm certain.
DOCTOR:	If you say so. You look well, Sergei Pavlovich.
KOROLYOV:	I am well.
DOCTOR:	You look happy.	1240
KOROLYOV:	I am happy. You on the other hand look as miserable as a toothless cat in a bucket of fish.
DOCTOR:	I did twenty years in the Gulag, Sergei, long years, war years, you only had to suffer five. No. I don't think I'm who you think I am any more.
KOROLYOV:	I'll do what I can.	1245
DOCTOR:	Who for?
KOROLYOV:	For you.
DOCTOR:	I was promised an apartment.
KOROLYOV:	Alright ... Alright, I'll look into it.
DOCTOR:	Three rooms.	1250
KOROLYOV:	No one gets three rooms.
DOCTOR:	Not even if they've saved the life of the chief designer?
KOROLYOV:	And how many did you kill?
DOCTOR:	Don't you talk to me about death. Don't you dare talk to me about death, Sergei Pavlovich!	1255
	I have an army whispering at my back and they're all saying the same thing. 'Why is he breathing when we're not? Why is he sucking our air into his lungs? Who is he? Who is he?'
KOROLYOV:	I'm your boss and you'll be reassigned.
DOCTOR:	I answer to the medical team. They answer to General Geladze. What's the matter, Sergei? You worried I'll kill one of your precious eagle chicks before you do?	1260
	Have you decided who you're sending up first?
	KOROLYOV doesn't answer.
DOCTOR:	Well, they're in great condition. They're all superb pilots. They all have regular bowel movements and great shoulders. Flip a coin.	1265
KOROLYOV:	I'm not sending anyone up there to get killed.
DOCTOR:	Can you be certain they won't? Life and death, Comrade Chief Designer. How does it feel? How will you choose?
KOROLYOV:	I'll send a lucky man.	1270

Section A

Answer all questions in this section.

Questions 1–6 are based on the extract from Oppenheimer, by Tom Morton-Smith, that you have studied.

- 1 Suggest a costume for the character of CHARLOTTE SERBER in the opening ‘Fundraiser’ scenes, and give a reason to support your suggestion. [2]
- 2 What advice would you give to the actor playing the role of JOE WEINBERG on how to deliver his lines between line 98 (‘You have such a lovely home’) and lines 106–107 (‘... you’ve yet to embarrass yourself in front of.’)? Why would this advice be appropriate? [2]
- 3 Look at JEAN TATLOCK’s speech from line 66 (‘For too long the White House ...’) to line 76 (‘Thank you’). Suggest three ways in which you would add physical emphasis to what is spoken. [3]
- 4 Select two moments where the use of props would be particularly effective in the extract, and say why. [4]
- 5 Suggest two things that motivate GENERAL LESLIE GROVES between line 644 (‘The eagle on this man’s collar’) and lines 700–701 (‘... what would be our next move?’) Give a reason from the text for each of your suggestions. [4]
- 6 How would you direct Scene 35—MILITARY BASE AT LOS ALAMOS, and what would you want the actor playing PROFESSOR EDWARD TELLER to emphasise? [5]

Questions 7–8 are based on the piece of drama that you have devised from your chosen stimulus.

At the start of your answer to Question 7, write the title of the stimulus you have used.

- 7 Which role in your devised piece was most effectively portrayed, and how was this achieved? [5]
- 8 Write one sentence that sums up the mood of your devised piece. Explain in detail why this sentence is an accurate description. [5]

Section B

Answer one question in this section.

Questions 9–11 are based on the extract from Oppenheimer, by Tom Morton-Smith, that you have studied.

- 9 You are preparing to audition for the role of OPPIE. Which aspects of his character would you seek to bring out in your interpretation? [25]
- 10 Scenes 1, 11, 16, 19 and 33 are labelled as a ‘lecture series’, which serve to convey information to the audience.
As a director, how would you bring out the dramatic potential of any two of these lecture scenes? [25]
- 11 What challenges would this extract present to the design team responsible for a production, and what solutions could you offer? [25]

Section C

Answer one question in this section.

Questions 12–14 are based on the piece of drama that you have devised from your chosen stimulus.

At the start of your answer, write the title of the stimulus you have used.

- 12 How effective was the interaction between characters in your devised piece, and why? [25]
- 13 What was your overall intention for your devised piece and to what extent did you achieve it? [25]
- 14 What was your approach to costume design in your devised piece? What changes would you make if you had unlimited costume resources, and why? [25]

Paper 1

May/June 2018

COPY OF PRE-RELEASE MATERIAL

2 hours 30 minutes

---

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

The questions in Paper 1 will be based on the stimuli and on the extract from Neil Bartlett's stage adaptation of the story A Christmas Carol by Charles Dickens provided in this booklet.

This clean copy of the material is for you to use in your responses.

---

This document consists of 35 printed pages and 1 blank page.

STIMULI

Choose one of the following three stimuli and devise a piece of drama based on it. You should work in groups of between two and six performers. Your piece should last approximately 15 minutes.

In the Written examination, you will be asked questions about your piece that will cover both practical and theoretical issues.

Stimulus 1

Quotation: 'I have a dream.'
Martin Luther King

Stimulus 2

Proverb: Look Before You Leap

Stimulus 3

Photograph: Street scene in central downtown São Paulo, Brazil

EXTRACT

Taken from A Christmas Carol by Charles Dickens, adapted for the stage by Neil Bartlett

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

The extract is taken from Charles Dickens's A Christmas Carol, adapted for the stage by Neil Bartlett. Bartlett has said that his adaptation was 'written to be played by a tight, role-swapping ensemble of eight actors. It could, of course be done with more, if economy allowed.'. In this approach, one actor plays the role of Scrooge throughout, while the other actors may play several parts, with rapid changes.

The story is a morality tale for Christmas, which shows how an avaricious old miser named Ebenezer Scrooge is visited by three spirits, who challenge him to reconsider his life and values.

The play is in two Acts and the extract consists of an abridged version of the entire play, from which a number of scenes have been omitted.

Characters in order of appearance:

SCROOGE CLERKS
BOB CRATCHIT
FRED, SCROOGE'S NEPHEW

PROLOGUE

Seven performers arrive; they speak the first line in unison, then separately.

ALL: Christmas is coming!
The goose is getting fat
please put a penny in the old man's hat –
If you haven't got a penny,
a ha'penny will do;
if you haven't got a ha'penny...
then God bless –

The curtain rises to reveal SCROOGE, in his office, lit by a single dim light bulb...

SCENE 2

SCROOGE'S NEPHEW, FRED

FRED:	God Save You! A Merry Christmas, Uncle!
SCROOGE:	Bah! Humbug!	65
FRED:	Christmas a humbug, uncle! You don't mean that, I am sure?
SCROOGE:	I do. Merry Christmas! What right have you to be merry? What reason have you to be merry? You're poor enough.

FRED:	What right have you to be dismal? What reason have you to be morose? You're rich enough.	70
SCROOGE:	Bah. Humbug.
FRED:	Don't be cross, Uncle.
SCROOGE:	What else can I be when I live in a world of fools? Merry Christmas! Out upon Merry Christmas! What's Christmas time to you Fred but a time for paying bills without money, a time for finding yourself a year older and not an hour richer, a time for balancing your books and having every item in 'em through a round dozen of months presented dead against you. If I could work my will, every idiot who goes about with 'Merry Christmas' on his lips should be boiled with his own pudding and buried with a stake of holly through his heart. He should.	75 80
FRED:	Uncle!	85
SCROOGE:	Nephew, keep Christmas in your own way, and let me keep it in mine.
FRED:	Keep it! But you don't keep it.
SCROOGE:	Let me leave it alone then. Much good may it do you. Much good has it ever done you.	90
	During this speech the CLERKS rise in a silent impassioned crescendo of agreement.
FRED:	There are many things from which I might have derived good, by which I have not profited, I dare say, Christmas among the rest. But I am sure I have always thought of Christmas time, when it has come round, apart from the veneration due to its sacred name and origin – if anything can be apart from that – as a good time; a kind, forgiving, charitable time; the only time I know of, in the long calendar of the year, when men and women seem by one consent to open their shut up hearts and to think of other people as if they really were fellow passengers to the grave and not another race of creatures bound on other journeys. And therefore, uncle, though it has never put a scrap of gold or silver in my pockets, I believe that it has done me good, and will do me good, and I say, God bless it!	95 100 105
BOB:	God bless it!!!
SCROOGE:	Let me hear another sound from you Bob Cratchit and you'll keep your Christmas by losing your situation. You're quite a powerful speaker, sir. I wonder you don't go into Parliament.	110
FRED:	Don't be angry, Uncle. Come and have your Christmas dinner with us tomorrow.
SCROOGE:	I'll see you in hell and frozen over first. I'll see you da –	115
FRED:	[Stopping the action.] – and he went the whole extremity of the expression, he did –
CLERKS:	Oh!!
FRED:	But why? Why?
SCROOGE:	Why did you get married?	120

FRED:	Because I fell in love.
SCROOGE:	Because you fell in love. Good afternoon.
FRED:	But uncle –
SCROOGE:	Good afternoon.
FRED:	I want nothing from you; I ask nothing of you; why cannot we be friends?	125
SCROOGE:	Good afternoon.
FRED:	I am sorry, with all my heart, to find you so resolved. But I have made the trial in homage to Christmas, and I'll keep my Christmas humour to the last. So, A Merry Christmas, Uncle.	130
SCROOGE:	Good afternoon.
FRED:	And a Happy New Year.
SCROOGE:	Good afternoon.
FRED:	And a very merry Christmas to you Bob Cratchit.	135
BOB:	Merry Christmas Fred.
FRED exits. Snow. In letting himself out, he lets TWO PORTLY GENTLEMEN in.
SCROOGE:	A clerk, with fifteen shillings a week, and a wife, and family, talking about a merry Christmas. I'll retire to the madhouse.	140

SCENE 3

TWO PORTLY GENTLEMEN

With a collecting tin and clipboard.

FIRST PORTLY GENTLEMAN:	Scrooge and Marley's, I believe?
SECOND PORTLY GENTLEMAN:	Have we the pleasure of addressing Mr Scrooge, or Mr Marley?	145
SCROOGE:	Marley is dead.
FIRST / SECOND PORTLY GENTLEMEN:	Dead?	150
SCROOGE:	The register of his burial was signed by the clergyman, the clerk, the undertaker and the chief mourner.
BOTH PORTLY GENTLEMEN:	Jacob Marley, Dead?
SCROOGE:	As a door-nail. Not that I mean to say that I know of my own knowledge what there is particularly dead about a door-nail: I might have been inclined, myself, to regard the coffin-nail as the deadest piece of ironmongery in the trade.	155
BOTH PORTLY GENTLEMEN:	Dead.	160
SCROOGE:	Seven years ago, this very night.
CLERKS:	...this...very...night...
BOB:	Christmas Eve.
FIRST PORTLY GENTLEMAN:	We have no doubt his liberality is well represented by his surviving partner.	165

SCROOGE:	Indeed it is.
FIRST PORTLY
GENTLEMAN:	At this festive season of the year, Mr...	170
SECOND PORTLY
GENTLEMAN:	Scrooge –
FIRST PORTLY
GENTLEMAN:	...Scrooge, it is more than usually desirable that we should make some slight provision for the poor and destitute –	175
SECOND PORTLY
GENTLEMAN:	– who suffer greatly at the present time –
FIRST PORTLY
GENTLEMAN:	– Many thousands are in want of common necessities.
SECOND PORTLY		180
GENTLEMAN:	Hundreds of thousands are in want of common comforts, sir.
SCROOGE:	Are there no prisons?
FIRST PORTLY
GENTLEMAN:	Plenty of prisons.	185
SCROOGE:	And the workhouses, are they still in operation?
FIRST PORTLY
GENTLEMAN:	They are. Still. I wish I could say they were not.
SCROOGE:	The Poor Laws are in full vigour, then.
FIRST PORTLY		190
GENTLEMAN:	All very busy, sir.
SCROOGE:	Oh! I was afraid, from what you said at first, that something had occurred to stop them in their useful course. I'm very glad to hear it.
SECOND PORTLY		195
GENTLEMAN:	Under the impression...
FIRST PORTLY
GENTLEMAN:	Under the impression that they scarcely furnish Christmas cheer of mind or body to the multitude, a few of us are endeavouring to raise a fund –	200
SECOND PORTLY
GENTLEMAN:	– choosing this Christmas time because it of all others is a time when Want is keenly felt and Abundance rejoices – What shall I put you down for?
CLERKS:	[ Mime. ] Nothing!!!	205
SCROOGE:	Nothing.
FIRST PORTLY
GENTLEMAN:	You wish to be anonymous.
SCROOGE:	I wish to be left alone, since you ask. I don't make myself merry at Christmas, and I can't afford to make idle people merry. My taxes support the establishments I have mentioned; they cost enough; and those who are badly off must go there.	210
FIRST PORTLY
GENTLEMAN:	Many would rather die.	215
SCROOGE:	If they would rather die they had better do it and decrease the surplus population. Besides – excuse me – I don't know that –
FIRST PORTLY
GENTLEMAN:	But you might know it.	220

- SCROOGE: It's not my business. It's enough for a man to understand his own business, and not to interfere with other people's. Mine occupies me entirely. Good afternoon, gentlemen.
- The gentlemen withdraw.*
- Bah! 225
- SCROOGE locks his door.
- Lock lock lock lock lock!!!
- He resumes his labours.*
- CLERKS: Oh! –
Tick tick tick tick 230
Scratch scratch scratch scratch
Tick tick tick tick...
- SCENE 4
THE END OF THE DAY
- BELLS: Ding dong ding dong
Ding dong ding dong
Ding dong ding dong 235
- CLERKS: ALMOST FIVE ON CHRISTMAS EVE – ON CHRISTMAS EVE, ON CHRISTMAS EVE
ALMOST FIVE ON CHRISTMAS EVE
AND CHRISTMAS DAY IN THE MORNING!!
- SCROOGE: Bah! 240
- CLERKS: THE HOLLY AND THE IVY,
WHEN WE HAVE ALL GONE HOME –
- SCROOGE: Bah!
- The sound of a boy singing a carol outside. He sings through SCROOGE's letterbox, begging for money.* 245
- BOY: GOD REST YE MERRY GENTLEMEN
LET NOTHING YOU DISMAY...
- SCROOGE seizes his steel ruler and attacks the hand coming through the letterbox.
- Aargh!!! 250
- CLERKS: Ooh! – tick tick tick tick tick tick tick.
[Ad lib.]
- SCROOGE checks that it is indeed five o'clock.

SCROOGE'S WATCH:	Ping Ping Ping Ping Ping.
SCROOGE:	You'll want all day tomorrow I suppose, it being Christmas.	255
	CLERKS elect BOB as their spokesperson.
BOB:	If quite convenient sir.
SCROOGE:	It's not convenient, and it's not fair. If I was to stop half a crown for it, you'd think yourself ill-used I'll be bound, and yet you don't think me ill-used when I pay a day's wages for no work.	260
BOB:	It is only once a year sir.
SCROOGE:	A poor excuse for picking a man's pocket every twenty-fifth of December. Be here all the earlier the next morning.
SCROOGE:	[ Unlocking. ] Lock lock lock lock... Lock. [ The door is open. ]	265
THE THREE CLERKS:	YESSSS!!!! [ They exit singing a Christmas carol. ]
SCROOGE:	Bah!!
	He slams the door shut. He is alone in his office with his light bulb. He locks away his money.	270

SCENE 5
SCROOGE LOCKS UP

SCROOGE unscrews the light bulb and carefully places it in his pocket. He locks his door, turns up his collar and begins to trudge home in the snow.

SCENE 6
SCROOGE GOES HOME IN THE FOG AND FROST

CLERKS THREE /		275
FOUR / FIVE and SIX:	Scrunch Scrunch Scrunch Scrunch Scrunch Scrunch Scrunch Scrunch Snow, ice Snow, ice Snow, ice Snow, ice – Snow, Ice, Frost, Cold – Gloomy, Dreary, Dark, Old...	280
	Where does he live? – All on his own. How does he live? – All alone.	285 290

We are now outside SCROOGE's front door.

- SCROOGE: Yes, yes, yes. Night and morning, morning and night. Key in the pocket, out of the pocket, key in the lock, unlock the door –
- SCROOGE / CLERKS: Aaaaah!!!! 295
- MARLEY's face is suddenly there instead of the door knocker.*
- CLERKS: – knock knock!!
– Who's there?
- SCROOGE: Jacob!! 300
- CLERKS: – Jacob? Jacob who?
– Jacob Marley's dead.
– Seven years dead.
- SCROOGE: But I never think about him –
- CLERKS: – And never thought of 305
– 'til now...
- SCROOGE: Never wasted one thought on him. Not one. Not – until this afternoon...
- The face has gone. SCROOGE unlocks his door and enters his house, searching for MARLEY.* 310

SCENE 7

SCROOGE'S ROOM

- SCROOGE locks the door behind him and checks for intruders.*
- SCROOGE: Lock, lock, lock. Locked!
Nobody in the sitting room, nobody in the lumber room...
nobody in the bedroom. 315
- Nobody under the bed.
- Nobody in the wardrobe.
Nobody in the dressing gown.
- Nothing in the fireplace
- Fire: small. 320
Grate, fireguard, poker: old fashioned.
Saucepan: small.
Gruel: thin.
Spoon.
- SCROOGE finishes his nasty supper. He prepares for bed. He is too mean even to take his coat off. He screws in and switches on his light bulb.* 325
- It begins to pulsate and swing...ghostly noises begin...*

CLERKS: – Ebenezer...look behind you... 330
 – Knock Knock!!
 SCROOGE: Who's there?
 CLERKS: – Jacob!!
 SCROOGE: Humbug. I won't believe it –
 CLERKS: Jacob who?
 Jacob Marley, 335
 – but Jacob Marley's dead.
 Bzzzzzzzzzzz!!!
They exit as the bulb flashes and dies.
 LAST CLERK: [Off.] Jacob Marley's Ghost...

SCENE 8
MARLEY'S GHOST

The locked bedroom door mysteriously opens. MARLEY's ghost enters. 340 SCROOGE: The same face; the very same. Marley. How now, what do you want with me?
 MARLEY: Much.
 SCROOGE: Who are you? 345
 MARLEY: Ask me who I was.
 SCROOGE: Who were you then. You're particular – for a shade.
 MARLEY: In life I was your partner, Jacob Marley.
 SCROOGE: Can you – can you sit down?
 MARLEY: I can. 350
 SCROOGE: Do it then.
 MARLEY: You don't believe in me.
 SCROOGE: I don't.
 MARLEY: What evidence would you have of my reality?
 SCROOGE: I don't know. 355
 MARLEY: Why do you doubt your senses?
 SCROOGE: Because a little thing affects them. A slight disorder of the stomach makes them cheats. You may be an undigested bit of beef, a blot of mustard, a crumb of cheese, a fragment of an underdone potato. There's more of the 360 gravy than of the grave about you, whatever you are.
 SCROOGE attempts to keep down his terror.
 Humbug, I tell you –
 Humbug.
 MARLEY: [Rattling his chains.] Aaaaaaah! 365
 SCROOGE: Mercy!
 MARLEY: Man of the worldly mind! Do you believe in me or not?
 SCROOGE: I do. I must. But why do spirits walk the earth, and why do they come to me?
 MARLEY: It is required of every man that the spirit within him should 370 walk abroad among his fellow men, and travel far and wide; and if that spirit goes not forth in life, it is condemned to do so after death. Aaah!

SCROOGE:	You are fettered. Tell me why.
MARLEY:	I wear the chain I forged in life.	375
SCROOGE:	Jacob. Old Jacob; speak comfort to me, Jacob.
MARLEY:	I have none to give. It comes from other regions, Ebenezer Scrooge, and is conveyed by other ministers to other kinds of men. I cannot rest, I cannot stay. I cannot linger anywhere – in life, my spirit never walked, never roved beyond the narrow limits of our moneymaking hole – now, weary journeys lie before me!	380
SCROOGE:	You have been very slow about getting here, Jacob.
MARLEY:	Slow!
SCROOGE:	Seven years dead, and travelling all the time?	385
MARLEY:	The whole time – no rest, no peace – incessant torture –
SCROOGE:	You travel fast? –
MARLEY:	On the wings of the wind –
SCROOGE:	You must have covered a great deal of ground in seven years –	390
MARLEY:	Oh! not to know, not to know that no space of regret can make amends for one life's opportunity misused! Yet such was I, oh! such was I!
SCROOGE:	But you were always a good businessman, Jacob –
MARLEY:	Business! Mankind was my business. Charity and mercy were my business. The common welfare was my business.	395
SCROOGE:	Jacob!
MARLEY:	Oh hear me! hear me, for my time is nearly gone.
SCROOGE:	I will. But don't be hard upon me, Jacob.	400
MARLEY:	I am here tonight to warn you, that you may have yet a chance and hope of escaping my fate. A chance and hope of my procuring, Ebenezer.
SCROOGE:	You always were a good friend to me –
MARLEY:	You will be haunted, by three spirits.	405
SCROOGE:	Is that the chance and hope you mentioned, Jacob?
MARLEY:	It is.
SCROOGE:	I – I think I'd rather not.
MARLEY:	Without their visits you cannot hope to shun the paths I tread. Expect the first tomorrow when the bell tolls one. Expect the second on the next night at the same hour. The third upon the next night when the last stroke of twelve has ceased to vibrate.	410
SCROOGE:	Couldn't I take 'em all at once and have it over, Jacob?
MARLEY:	Look to see me no more; and look that, for your own sake, you remember what has passed between us.	415
	Remember what is past! Remember! Remember!
	MARLEY summons SCROOGE to his bedroom window.	420
	Look! We fill the air. Every one of us in chains. None of us free.

SCENE 9
THE PHANTOMS

There are strange noises in the air. Through the window, MARLEY shows SCROOGE that the air is filled with other phantoms, also in chains. 425

THE PHANTOMS: And our misery is this;
we wish to interfere, for good, in human matters,
but have lost the power forever,
lost, oh!, lost forever, forever 430
Unable to assist –
Mist...
Lost...
Past...
Forever! 435

MARLEY: Oh Ebenezer. Avoid our fate.
Avoid it.

SCROOGE: Bah!

THE PHANTOMS are silenced and fade into thin air.

SCROOGE checks his door. 440

Locked!

Double locked!!

Bed. My bed. Humbug, I tell you.

And puts out his light and goes straight to bed. He falls into a chilly, frightened sleep. 445

VOICES: SNOW WAS FALLING, SNOW ON SNOW
SNOW ON SNOW ON SNOW ON SNOW ON.

Tick tick tick tick...

SCENE 10
THE GHOST OF CHRISTMAS PAST

THE BELLS: ... You will be haunted.
Ding dong ding dong 450
Ding dong ding dong
Ding dong ding dong
Ding dong ding dong –

SCROOGE: [Waking up.] Twelve already! Not possible. An icicle must have got into the works. 455

He checks his watch.

SCROOGE'S WATCH: Ping
Ping!

SCROOGE:	It isn't possible that I have slept through a whole day. It isn't possible that anything has happened to the sun...	460
	He looks out of his window.
	Dark and foggy, very. People: none, fortunately. Cold: extremely.
	He turns on his light bulb.
	Bulb aaah!	465
	Bah. It was all a dream. Wasn't it? It was. Or not. All a dream.
	He gets into bed and waits...
THE BELLS:	Expect the first spirit when the bell tolls one. Ding dong ding dong.	470
SCROOGE:	A quarter past.
THE BELLS:	Ding dong ding dong.
SCROOGE:	Half past.
THE BELLS:	Ding dong ding dong...
SCROOGE:	A quarter to.	475
THE BELLS:	Ding Dong Ding Dong.
SCROOGE:	One! The hour!! and nothing else.
	SCROOGE puts out his light. And goes to sleep.
	The bedroom is empty but for SCROOGE.
	Something under the bed blazes and the GHOST OF CHRISTMAS PAST rises through the bed, shining, a bright light bulb in his hand.	480
	Aaaaah! Are you the Spirit, sir, whose coming was foretold to me?
GHOST:	I am.	485
SCROOGE:	Who, and what, are you?
GHOST:	I am the Ghost of Christmas Past.
SCROOGE:	Long past?
GHOST:	No. Your past.
SCROOGE:	May I be so bold as to enquire what business brings you here?	490
GHOST:	Your welfare.
SCROOGE:	Much obliged I am sure but I cannot help thinking that a night of unbroken rest would have been more conducive to that end.	495
GHOST:	Your salvation, then.
SCROOGE:	My salvation.
GHOST:	Take heed.
	Rise! and walk with me.
	SCROOGE is lifted up.	500

- SCROOGE: The weather and the hour hardly seem adapted to pedestrian purposes, and the bed being so warm...and the thermometer so far below freezing and I... I... I...
- I've only got slippers on.
I think I might be starting a cold. 505
- I am a mortal and liable to fall!
- GHOST: You shall be upheld in more than this...
- Transformation.*
- VOICES: IN THE BLEAK MIDWINTER
FROSTY WINDS MADE MOAN, 510
EARTH STOOD HARD AS IRON, WATER LIKE A STONE.
SNOW HAD FALLEN, SNOW ON SNOW;
SNOW ON SNOW.
IN THE BLEAK MIDWINTER 515
LONG AGO...
- The snowy landscape of SCROOGE's childhood appears in his bedroom.*
- The following scenes from SCROOGE's past are played out in, on and around his bed. 520*

SCENE 11
A COUNTRY ROAD

- SCROOGE: Good heaven! I was born here. I was a boy here!
- GHOST: What is that upon your cheek?
- SCROOGE: A pimple.
Lead me where you will.
- GHOST: You recollect the way? 525
- SCROOGE: Recollect it – I could walk it blindfold.
- GHOST: Strange to have forgotten it for so many years. Let us go on.
- SCROOGE: Forgotten? That's the gate, that's the post, that's the tree.
The bridge. The church that's the church... 530
And that's – that's –
- The GHOST brings on –*
- TWO BOYS: Merry Christmas Tom!
Merry Christmas Dick!
- SCROOGE: That's Tom, and Dick, and... 535
- As DICK exits, HARRY enters.*
- DICK: Merry Christmas Harry!
- SCROOGE: – and Harry. Harry, Merry Christmas Harry –

TOM / HARRY: [Together.] Merry Christmas!!!!
 SCROOGE: Merry Christmas! 540
 GHOST: These are but shadows of things that have been. They have no consciousness of us.

The GHOST dismisses the boys.

[SCENE 12 A SCHOOL ROOM – OMITTED]

SCENE 13
 SCROOGE'S SISTER

SCROOGE'S SISTER enters.

SISTER: Ebenezer!! I have come to take you home, brother! Dear 545 brother – Home, home home!
 SCROOGE: Home?
 SISTER: Yes. Home, for ever and ever. Father is so much kinder than he used to be, and we're all to be together all Christmas long. At home. Home. Home. 550
 Ebenezer...home...
 SCROOGE: Home...
They dash towards the door; the SPIRIT holds them in time.
 GHOST: She had, I think, children, your sister, before she died? 555
 SISTER: Yes –
 SCROOGE: One child.
 GHOST: True. Your nephew, Fred.
 SCROOGE: Yes.
 GHOST: Let's see another Christmas. 560

[SCENE 14 THE FEZZIWIGS – OMITTED]

SCENE 15
 SCROOGE AND HIS FIANCÉE, MISS FEZZIWIG

GHOST: Tick, tick, tick, tick.
 My time grows short. Quick! Look!
 MISS FEZZIWIG: It matters very little to you, Ebenezer, very little. Another idol has displaced me.
 SCROOGE: What idol has displaced you? 565
 MISS FEZZIWIG: Gold.
 SCROOGE: Have I ever sought release from our contract?
 MISS FEZZIWIG: It was made when we were both poor, and content to be so.

SCROOGE:	Have I ever sought release?	570
MISS FEZZIWIG:	In words, no. Never.
SCROOGE:	In what, then?
MISS FEZZIWIG:	In an altered spirit.
	She removes her engagement ring. SCROOGE takes it back.	575
GHOST:	ON THE FIRST DAY OF CHRISTMAS MY TRUE LOVE GAVE TO ME.
MISS FEZZIWIG:	May you be happy in the life you have chosen.
SCROOGE:	Bah humbug! [ pause ]
SCROOGE:	Spirit! Show me no more. Take me home.	580
GHOST:	One Christmas more –
SCROOGE:	No more!
GHOST:	A special Christmas –
	MISS FEZZIWIG remains, weeping.
SCROOGE:	No more. I don't wish to see it. Show me no more!	585
	The GHOST forces SCROOGE to watch.

SCENE 16

BELLE WILKINS (NÉE FEZZIWIG)
AND HER DAUGHTER

Jump cut: A little GIRL runs on, followed by her FATHER, Dick Wilkins.

GIRL:	Mama! Mama! Mama! Mama!
MOTHER:	[ Happy. ] Merry Christmas.	590
GIRL:	Papa!
FATHER:	A Merry Christmas my dear. And to you my dear.
GIRL:	Oh! May I?
MOTHER:	You may.
	She unwraps her present.	595
FATHER:	Belle, I saw an old friend of yours this afternoon.
MOTHER:	Who was it?
FATHER:	Guess!
MOTHER:	I don't know. How can I!
FATHER:	I passed his office, and the window being open I could scarcely help seeing him. His partner lies upon the point of death, I hear; and there he sat alone. Quite alone in the world, I do believe.	600
MOTHER:	Mr Scrooge?
FATHER:	Scrooge it was –	605
SCROOGE:	Spirit, remove me from this place.
GHOST:	These were but shadows of the things that have been.

- SCROOGE: Remove me.
 GHOST: That they are what they are, do not blame me.
 SCROOGE: I cannot bear it! Take me back! Take me back! 610
 GHOST: No! ha ha ha ha.
- SCROOGE attempts to smother him with a pillow.
- CLOCK: Tick tick tick tick tick tick tick...
- The GHOST is forced to the floor. SCROOGE continues to pile pillows on him. He dies. The ticking stops. The SPIRIT is gone.* 615
- SCROOGE: Bah!
- He glares at the light bulb; it is behaving normally*
- He looks under the bed; there is nothing there...*
- No-one under the bed: no-one in the bedroom. 620
 No-one.
 No-one.
- He reels to his bed and falls asleep*
- CLOCK: Tick tick tick tick...
- MARLEY'S VOICE: The second spirit on the next night at the same hour..... 625 when the clock strikes one.
 Ding dong ding dong.
 Ding dong ding dong.
 Ding dong ding dong.
 Ding dong ding dong – 630

SCENE 17

THE GHOST OF CHRISTMAS PRESENT

- SCROOGE: [Waking up.] One, one o'clock. Again!! Nothing. Five minutes, nothing. Ten minutes... Nothing. Fifteen minutes... Nothing. Nothing; no spectre no spirit, no rhinoceros, no baby, and nothing in between. No-one under the bed, no-one in the bedroom, no-one in the dressing gown, nobody in the wardrobe. Locked. No-one in the dressing gown. 635
- He removes a key from the pocket of the dressing gown that hangs on his wardrobe door, locks the wardrobe door and replaces the key and goes back to bed.* 640
- A hand appears in the dressing gown sleeve. It removes the key and unlocks the wardrobe. The room begins to fill with a blaze of ruddy light.*
- SCROOGE: Aaaaah! Hello...?

GHOST: Knock knock! 645
 SCROOGE: Who's there...?

The wardrobe doors burst open and the second GHOST emerges.

GHOST: Look upon me, and know me better. I am the Ghost of Christmas Present!! Christmas Present, Christmas cake and Christmas pudding; Christmas poultry, pigs, pies, pears, paunch, punch and Plenty! Plummed, sucked, luscious, wreathed, seething, cheery, cherry-cheeked and immense. You have never seen the likes of me before! 650

SCROOGE: Never. 655

GHOST: Have never walked forth with other members of my family, those elder brothers born these later years.

SCROOGE: No I don't think I have. Have you many brothers, Spirit?

GHOST: Two thousand and seventeen.

SCROOGE: A tremendous family to provide for. 660

GHOST: Tremendous.

The GHOST rises...

SCROOGE: Spirit, conduct me where you will. Last night I learnt a lesson; tonight, if you have anything to teach me...

GHOST: Touch my robe. 665

Do as you're told.

Hold fast!!!

Christmas is coming...

[SCENE 18 SHOPPING – OMITTED]

GHOST: Do you know this house?

The GHOST leads SCROOGE straight to: 670

SCENE 19
 THE CRATCHITS

MRS CRATCHIT enters [singing] and throws the GHOST and SCROOGE off the bed. The bed becomes the CRATCHITS' table.

MRS CRATCHIT: Mr Bob Cratchit's house. Mr Bob Cratchit's wife, Mrs Bob Cratchit. Twice-turned, but brave in ribbons and making a goodly show for sixpence. Belinda! – 675

BELINDA enters with plates.

BELINDA: Belinda Cratchit.

MRS CRATCHIT: Her daughter –

BELINDA:	Also brave in ribbons.	680
MRS CRATCHIT:	Peter! –
	PETER enters with cups. They proceed to lay the table.
PETER:	Master Peter Cratchit –
MRS CRATCHIT:	Son and heir –
PETER:	Gallantly attired and elder brother.	685
MRS CRATCHIT:	Anticipating goose.
PETER:	And desirous of stuffing. Sage. And Onion.
MRS CRATCHIT:	What has ever got your precious father then. And your brother Tiny Tim. And Martha warn't as late last Christmas Day by half an hour –	690
MARTHA:	Martha Cratchit, her other daughter.
MRS CRATCHIT:	Why bless you alive how late you are.
MARTHA:	We'd a deal of work to finish last night. And had to clear away this morning.
MRS CRATCHIT:	Well never mind so long as you are come.	695
BELINDA:	Here's Father. Hide Martha Hide.
	Enter BOB carrying TINY TIM.
BOB:	Where's our Martha?
MRS CRATCHIT:	Not coming.
TIM:	Not coming. Not coming on Christmas Day?	700
MARTHA:	Merry Christmas!
	The GHOST fills the room with the smell of the goose.
TIM / BOB:	Christmas is coming; The Goose is nearly cooked – We can smell it in the oven, Let's all go take a look.	705
	The children go to see the goose. PETER remains.
MRS CRATCHIT:	Potatoes, Peter.
PETER:	Bubbling!
MRS CRATCHIT:	Well mash 'em then.	710
	He exits.
BOB:	And how did little Tim behave? As good as gold, and better. Somehow he gets thoughtful sitting by himself so much, and thinks the strangest things you ever heard. He told me, coming home, that he hoped people saw him, because they might remember the stories of who made the beggars walk and the blind man see. I am quite sure he is growing strong and hearty.	715
	The children return.
TIM / BELINDA:	Christmas is coming The goose is nearly burnt!!	720

MRS CRATCHIT runs, screaming, to attend to the goose.
MR CRATCHIT takes charge.

BOB: Gravy.
BELINDA: Hot! 725
BOB: Potatoes?
PETER: Mashed!
BOB: Apple sauce?
MARTHA: Sweetened!
BOB: Plates... 730
BELINDA: Dusted...

Enter MRS CRATCHIT carrying the goose in a covered dish.

MRS CRATCHIT: Goose. Cooked.

They are about to lift the cover, but MRS CRATCHIT stops them to say grace. 735

ALL [including SCROOGE]: Amen.

BOB: A Merry Christmas to us all, my dears. God bless us.
CRATCHITS: God bless us.
TINY TIM: God bless us every one. 740

The CRATCHITS freeze on the raising of their drinks in a toast. BOB has his arm around his youngest son.

SCROOGE: He seems to dread his child will be taken from him. Spirit, tell me if Tiny Tim will live.

MARTHA CRATCHIT sings under the scene 'Once in Royal David's City'. 745

GHOST: I see a vacant seat at this table. If these shadows remain unaltered by the Future, the child will die.

SCROOGE: Oh no. No. No. Say he will be spared.
GHOST: If these shadows remain unaltered by the Future, none other of my race will find him here. The child will die. If he be like to die, he had better do it, and decrease the surplus population. 750

Man, forbear that wicked talk until you have discovered what the surplus is, and where it is. It may be that in the sight of heaven you are worth less than this poor man's child. 755

End of carol. Unfreeze.

BOB: Mr Scrooge! I give you Mr Scrooge, the Founder of the Feast. 760
MRS CRATCHIT: The Founder of the Feast indeed! I wish I had him here. I'd give him a piece of my mind to feast upon, and I hope he'd have a good appetite for it.
BOB: My dear, the children. Christmas Day.

MRS CRATCHIT:	It should be Christmas day, I am sure, for me to drink the health of such an odious, stingy, hard, unfeeling man as Mr Scrooge. You know he is, Robert. Nobody knows it better than you.	765
BOB:	My dear. Christmas day.
MRS CRATCHIT:	I'll drink his health for your sake and the day's, not for his. Long life to him. Merry Christmas to him. A happy new year to him. He'll be very merry and very happy, I have no doubt.	770
	A toast. Freeze.
GHOST:	You see; you see; they are not a handsome family; they are not well paid – they are not well dressed; – very likely their clothes are second-hand, but they are happy. Happy together.	775
CRATCHITS:	[ Singing to SCROOGE. ] WE WISH YOU A MERRY CHRISTMAS WE WISH YOU A MERRY CHRISTMAS WE WHOOSH...WHOOSH...	780
	The GHOST makes a great wind begin to blow. The CRATCHITS and their room and all their possessions are blown offstage – across a thunderous night sky...	785
SCROOGE:	Where are you taking me? Where are we going?
GHOST:	Hold on! Hold on to my robe!!
	They climb on to the bed. It rises and sails through the night.	790

SCENE 20

DIFFERENT CHRISTMASES

GHOST:	See, see! In the thick gloom of darkest Night, still in every window lights flicker, roar, bake, blaze, are cosy behind deep red curtains drawn to keep out the cold and darkness. In hospital and in jail, in misery's every refuge, in every dark place on this long night shines out a ray of brightness.	795
SCROOGE:	Where are we going –
GHOST:	– even out at sea –
SCROOGE:	– not to sea –
GHOST:	– on dismal reefs of sunken rocks the lighthouse-keepers keep their Christmas, high above the black and heaving waves –	800
SCROOGE:	– oh –
GHOST:	Even on the ships, far out from any shore, the officers who have the watch hum a Christmas tune; the dark figures at their several stations think Christmas thoughts, the sailors remember those companions they have cared for, and even here, on the face of the lonely and unknown abyss,	805

	whose depths are secret, black and profound as Death, the words ring out.	810
VOICES:	Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas!
SCROOGE:	What place is this?  The sound of laughter.
GHOST:	A place where they know me...	815

SCENE 21
FRED'S PARTY

FRED and his WIFE appear laughing on the flying bed

FRED:	And then he said, that Christmas was a humbug. He believed it, too.
FRED'S WIFE:	More shame on him, Fred!
FRED:	He's a comical old fellow, his offences carry their own punishment, and I won't have a word said against him.	820
FRED'S WIFE:	Is he very rich, Fred?
FRED:	If he is, he doesn't do any good with it.
FRED'S WIFE:	I have no patience with him.
FRED:	Oh, I have. I am sorry for him. If he won't come and have his Christmas dinner with us –	825
FRED'S WIFE:	He loses a very good dinner –
FRED:	Taken with a very pleasant companion.
FRED'S WIFE:	With pleasanter companions than he can find in his mouldy old office.	830
FRED:	I pity him. He may rail at Christmas 'til he dies, but he can't help thinking better of it – I defy him – if he finds me going there, in good temper, year after year, and saying, 'Uncle Scrooge, how are you?'
SCROOGE:	Well Fred, I'm...	835
FRED'S WIFE:	It might even put him in the vein to leave that poor clerk of his fifty pounds.
SCROOGE:	Ha! Ha! Ha!
GHOST:	I am greatly pleased to find you in this mood.
SCROOGE:	Can we stay?	840
GHOST:	We may not –
SCROOGE:	Just until –
GHOST:	It cannot be done –
SCROOGE:	Half an hour –
FRED:	Let's play a game: 'Yes and No'.	845
SCROOGE / FRED'S WIFE:	What's that?
FRED:	I have to think of something – something that's not in the room – and you must find it out – by asking questions – but I can only answer Yes or No.	850
FRED'S WIFE:	Does it live in London?
FRED:	Yes.
FRED'S WIFE:	Is it an animal?

FRED: Yes.

FRED'S WIFE: A live animal. 855

FRED: Yes.

FRED'S WIFE: A disagreeable and savage animal.

FRED: Yes.

FRED'S WIFE: Does it grunt and growl?

FRED: Yes. 860

FRED'S WIFE: And it lives in London.

FRED: Yes.

FRED'S WIFE: Is it in a circus?

FRED: No.

FRED'S WIFE: In a zoo. 865

FRED: No.

SCROOGE: Tiger!!!

FRED'S WIFE: So it's not a tiger.

FRED: No.

FRED'S WIFE: In a butcher's shop. 870

FRED: No.

SCROOGE: Pig!!!

FRED'S WIFE: So it's not a pig.

FRED: No.

FRED'S WIFE: Is it a horse? 875

FRED: No.

FRED'S WIFE: Is it an ass?

FRED: No.

SCROOGE: Dog!!

FRED'S WIFE: Is it a dog? 880

FRED: No.

SCROOGE: Cat?

FRED'S WIFE: Is it a cat?

FRED: No.

SCROOGE: Bear? 885

FRED'S WIFE: Is it a bear?

FRED: No.

FRED'S WIFE: I've found it! I know what it is, Fred! I know what it is!

FRED: What is it?

FRED'S WIFE: It's your Uncle SCROOOOOOOOGE!! 890

FRED: And a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to the old man whatever he is. He wouldn't take it from me, but he shall have it nevertheless. I mean to give him the same chance every year, whether he takes it or not or likes it or not, I shall be there, year after year, Uncle Scrooge, how are you, Uncle Scrooge, HAPPY CHRISTMAS!!!! 895

SCROOGE reaches out to touch FRED's hand, but –

[SCENE 22 TWO TERRIBLE CHILDREN – FIRST SECTION OMITTED]

The GHOST OF CHRISTMAS PRESENT dies.

THE VOICE OF JACOB MARLEY:	You will be haunted by three spirits...	900
BELLS:	Ding dong ding dong.
MARLEY:	Without their visits you have no hope.
BELLS:	Ding dong ding dong.
MARLEY:	Expect the third upon the next night.
BELLS:	Ding dong ding dong.	905
MARLEY:	When the last stroke of Midnight.
BELLS:	Ding dong ding dong.
MARLEY:	Has ceased to vibrate...

Lifting up his eyes, SCROOGE beholds a solemn phantom, draped and hooded, coming, like a mist along the ground, towards him.

910

Curtain.

ACT TWO

SCENE 23

THE GHOST OF CHRISTMAS YET TO COME

A deep black night. All signs of SCROOGE's bedroom have gone. Stars.

The very air in which THE GHOST OF CHRISTMAS YET TO COME moves seems to scatter gloom and mystery. SCROOGE is on his knees. 915

SCROOGE: I am in the presence of the Ghost of Christmas Yet to Come?

It neither speaks nor moves. 920

You are about to show me things that have not happened, but will happen. Is that so, Spirit?

The GHOST inclines its head.

You would think I would be used to ghostly company by this time. 925

Ghost of the future, I fear you more than any spectre I have seen, yet I know your purpose is to do me good, and as I hope to live to be another man from what I was, I am prepared to bear you company, and to do it with a thankful heart. 930

Will you not speak to me?

This night is waning fast, and time is precious, I know. Show me, Spirit, show me.

The GHOST shows him.

[SCENE 24 THREE FAT BUSINESSMEN – OMITTED]

SCENE 25
TWO MEN OF BUSINESS

Two very RICH MEN with copies of the financial papers. 935

FIRST RICH MAN: How are you?
 SECOND RICH MAN: How are you?
 FIRST RICH MAN: Well. Old Scratch has got his own at last, hey?
 SECOND RICH MAN: So I am told. Cold isn't it?
 FIRST RICH MAN: Christmas time. You're not a skater, I suppose? 940
 SECOND RICH MAN: No. No. Something else to think of. Good morning.

They exit.

SCROOGE: I am surprised that you attach importance to conversations so apparently trivial. They have some hidden purpose I suppose; no doubt to whomsoever they apply they have some latent moral... 945

And doubtless the conduct of my future self might provide me with some clue.

But I cannot see myself in this vision. Anywhere.

Although this is perhaps no surprise as I have been considering a change of life and perhaps my absence from this haunt of business is but a sign of some new-born resolution carried out. Don't you think. Possibly. Perhaps. Perchance. 950

Will you not speak to me? 955

The SPIRIT conjures the Cratchits' house.

[SCENES 26 A NIGHTMARE AND 27 – OMITTED]

SCENE 28
THE CRATCHITS REVISITED

MRS CRATCHIT, PETER and BELINDA assemble by candlelight. MRS CRATCHIT is knitting. PETER is teaching BELINDA to read from a copy of the Bible. TINY TIM's chair is empty. 960

SCROOGE: But I know this house; this is poor Bob Cratchit's house. Surely they are very quiet?
 BELINDA: 'At the same time came the disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who is the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven? And Jesus called a little child to him, and set him in the midst of them, And said...' 965
 PETER: '...verily I say unto you, Except ye become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.'

MRS CRATCHIT:	The colour hurts my eyes. They're better now again. It's the candle light makes them weak, and I wouldn't show weak eyes to your father when he comes home for the world. It must be near his time.	970
BELINDA:	Past it, rather.
PETER:	He walks a little slower than he used to, these last few evenings.	975
MRS CRATCHIT:	I have known him walk very fast with – I have known him walk with Tiny Tim upon his shoulder, very fast indeed.
PETER:	So have I. Often.
BELINDA:	So have I.
SCROOGE:	Oh no.	980
MRS CRATCHIT:	But then he was so very light to carry, no trouble, no trouble at all. And there is your father at the door.
	BOB CRATCHIT enters.
PETER:	Good evening father.
BOB:	Peter.	985
BELINDA:	Good evening father.
BOB:	Belinda, my dear.
	The work is progressing nicely I see. Should be done long before Sunday.
MRS CRATCHIT:	Sunday! You went today then Robert.	990
BOB:	Yes my dear. I wish you could have come. It would have done you good to see how green a place it is. But you shall see it – I promised him that we would all go there on Sunday.
MARTHA'S VOICE:	ONCE IN ROYAL DAVID'S CITY. [ Under. ]	995
BOB:	My child. My little child.
	He breaks down, and then recovers.
	I met Mr Scrooge's nephew in the street, and seeing that I looked a little down he inquired what had happened. And I told him. And he said, I am heartily sorry for it, Mr Cratchit, and if I can be of service to you all in any way, you know where I live. I don't think he said it for the sake of anything he might be able to do for us, but just to be kind, as if he really had known our Tim, and felt with us.	1000
MRS CRATCHIT:	I'm sure he's a good soul.	1005
BOB:	I shouldn't be at all surprised, mark what I say, if he were one day to offer Peter a situation.
MRS CRATCHIT:	Hear that Peter.
PETER:	Get along.
BOB:	It's just as likely as not, one of these days. Though there's plenty of time for that. But however and whenever we shall part from one another, and for whatever reason, I am sure we shall none of us forget Tim, or this first parting that there was among us, shall we?	1010
BELINDA:	Never, Father.	1015
PETER:	Never, Father.

MRS CRATCHIT: Never.

End of carol.

BOB: I am very happy. I am very happy.

They leave. MRS CRATCHIT is the last to leave, carrying TINY TIM's empty chair. 1020

SCENE 29

SCROOGE'S ROOM RESTORED

MRS CRATCHIT looks at SCROOGE, then is gone.

SCROOGE: Spectre, something informs me that our parting moment is at hand. I know it, but I know not how.

Then let me see what I shall be in days to come...there seems no order in these visions! – you show me the resorts of businessmen, but show me not myself there; take me to my place of occupation, my house...or if not there, then to my office; let me look in at the window of my office, and see – is it an office still? Is it still mine? Is the furniture still the same – is the man sitting there on my chair...myself? I want to see myself. Why do you show me not myself? 1025

The GHOST's inexorable finger points down to a grave.

Why are you pointing there? 1030

Where are we?

Gravestones appear.

A churchyard.

And I have now to learn what wretched man lies underneath the ground here. 1040

Before I draw nearer to that stone, answer me one question. Are these the shadows of things that definitely Will be, or are they the shadows of things that May be, only?

Tell me. 1045

He sees the name on the gravestone: Ebenezer Scrooge.

Oh, no, no!

Listen to me. I am not the man I was. I will not be that man.

Why show me this if I am past all hope? 1050

I will honour Christmas in my heart, and I will try to keep it. I will live in the Past, the Present and the Future. The spirits of all three shall strive within me. I will not shut out the lessons they teach. Assure me that I may yet change these shadows you have shown me by an altered life, oh tell me I may sponge away the writing on this stone. Tell me I may change! 1055

Change, change, shrink, collapse, dwindle, dwindle down into – a bedpost. 1060

SCROOGE's bed and bedroom have returned, and he finds himself back in bed, clutching the bedpost.

A bedpost. My bedpost.

My bed.

I'm in my bed. In my room. 1065

In bed, with the bedpost, and the bedcovers, and they are not taken, not taken off with me lying there; they are here. I am here. And the door is here, where Jacob Marley – and the wardrobe, where the ghost – and the window, where I saw the – 1070

and it's all right. It's all right. It's all true. It all happened, it did happen, ha, ha-ha, and the things that would have been, won't be, not necessarily, and I will live in the Past, the Present, and the Future, even though I don't know what to do. I am as light as a feather. I am as giddy as an angel, I am as merry as a schoolboy. I don't know how long I've been... 1075

I don't know anything.
I'm a baby. Never mind.
I don't care, I'd rather be a baby. 1080

SCENE 30 CHRISTMAS DAY

SCROOGE runs to his window and throws it open.

SCROOGE:

I don't know what day of the month it is. No fog – no mist. Cold, but jovial. Stirring. Oh, glorious. Glorious. Heavenly. Sweet. Hello!! 1085

BOY:	GOD REST YE MERRY GENTLEMEN LET NOTHING YOU DISMAY.
SCROOGE:	Hello! What's today?
BOY:	Eh?
SCROOGE:	What's today, my fine fellow?	1090
BOY:	Today? Christmas Day.
SCROOGE:	It's Christmas Day. I haven't missed it.
	Those Spirits did it all in one night. They can do anything they like. Of course they can. Of course they can. Hello – Hello.	1095
BOY:	Do you know the Poulterers in the next street but one, on the corner?
SCROOGE:	I should hope I did.
BOY:	An intelligent boy. A remarkable boy. Do you know whether they've sold the prize turkey; not the little prize turkey: the big one.	1100
SCROOGE:	What the one as big as me?
BOY:	What a delightful boy, it's a pleasure to talk to him.
SCROOGE:	Yes the one as big as you. Go and buy it.
BOY:	Walk on.	1105
SCROOGE:	No no, go and buy it, and come back with it, and I'll give you a shilling. Come back in less than five minutes and I'll give you half a crown.
	The BOY dashes off.
	I'll send it to Bob Cratchit's. He shan't know who sends it. It's twice the size of Tiny Tim.	1110
	BOY reappears with an impossibly large turkey.
SCROOGE:	Whoop! Hello! How are you? You can't carry that. You must take a cab. Taxi!!
	SCROOGE gives the boy money for taxi, and sends him on his way.	1115
	Christmas. It's Christmas Day...
	He practises greeting people.
	Mah...meh...meh...murch...murr...mare...mary. Mary Christmas...	1120
	Merry Christmas: to Everybody. And a Happy, New, Year.
	As he finally, finally says the words that he has never said, snow begins to fall outside his bedroom window. Seeing it, he gets up and unlocks and then finally opens his door. He steps out into the empty street.	1125
	Silence. Snow gently begins to cover the stage. The CLERKS walk towards him out of the snow;

- CLERKS: Ding dong ding dong;
Ding dong ding dong; 1130
Ding...dong...ding... –
- SCROOGE, out in the street, greets passers by as if he had never seen the human race before.*
- SCROOGE: A Merry Christmas to you – and a Merry Christmas to you – 1135
- CLERK: Mr Scrooge!
- SCROOGE: Merry Christmas!!!
- Merry Christmas!!!
Merry Christmas!
Merry Christmas! 1140
Merry Christmas!
- SCROOGE meets people he has met before; first, he sees the two PORTLY GENTLEMEN.*
- SCROOGE: My dear Sir – how do you do – Merry Christmas – I hope you succeeded yesterday. It was so very kind of you – 1145
- PORTLY GENTLEMAN: Mr Scrooge?
- SCROOGE: Yes that is my name. Allow me to ask your pardon. And will you have the goodness to accept – [Whispers.] – to allow me to present you with a very large cheque.
- PORTLY GENTLEMAN: How much? Bless me! 1150
- SCROOGE: My dear Mr Scrooge – are you serious?
Not a farthing less. Will you do me that favour?
- PORTLY GENTLEMAN: My dear Mr Scrooge, I don't know what to say to such munifi –
- SCROOGE: Please, don't say anything. Come and see me. Will you come and see me? 1155
- PORTLY GENTLEMAN: We will.
- SCROOGE: I am very much obliged to you. I thank you. Bless you, and – Merry Christmas.
- PORTLY GENTLEMAN: Merry Christmas! 1160
- They exit.*
- SCROOGE: Fred. My Christmas dinner.
- Laughter. FRED and his WIFE, laden with Christmas shopping.*
- FRED: Fred!?! Fred, Fred. 1165
- SCROOGE: Uncle Scrooge. Is that you?
It is I. Your Uncle Scrooge. I have come for my dinner.
- My Christmas dinner.
- Will you let me in?
- FRED: Yes!!! 1170

FRED'S WIFE: Yes!
 ALL: Yes!
 SCROOGE: It was a wonderful dinner. Wonderful party, wonderful games. Wonderful, wonderful, wonderful happiness. Happy happy happy. Happy. 1175

A moment of peace.

But; early the next morning...tick tick tick tick...

SCENE 31

SCROOGE'S OFFICE, BOXING DAY

CLERK enters, still happily singing. He is oblivious to the fact that SCROOGE is now pretending to be his old self.

CLERK: Merry Christmas Mr Scrooge. 1180
 SCROOGE: Bah humbug.
 CLERK: Ooh, sorry sir, sorry.

CLERKS enter and begin to work frantically.

CLERKS TWO /
 THREE / FOUR / SIX: Tick tick tick tick 1185 scratch scratch scratch scratch tick tick tick tick.

SCROOGE: If I can only catch Bob coming late.
 CLERKS: Tick tick tick tick.
 SCROOGE: Nine. No Bob –
 CLERKS: Cratchit cratchit cratchit cratchit, tick tick tick tick. 1190
 SCROOGE: Nine fifteen.
 CLERKS: No Bob. He'll Catchit catchit catchit catchit tick, tick, tick, tick.

SCROOGE: Eighteen and a half minutes past nine.
 CLERKS: Tch tch tch tch. 1195

Enter BOB.

SCROOGE: Hello.
 CLERKS: Late!!!
 SCROOGE: What do you mean by coming here at this time of day?
 BOB: I am very sorry sir. I am behind my time. 1200
 SCROOGE: You are? Yes, I think you are. Step this way if you please.

SCROOGE gets out his ruler. BOB holds out his hand.

BOB: It's only once a year, sir.
 SCROOGE: Bah!
 BOB: It shall not be repeated. 1205
 SCROOGE: Bah!
 BOB: I was making rather merry yesterday, sir, it being – SCROOGE: Now, I'll tell you what my friend, I am not going to stand this sort of thing any longer. And therefore...

...and therefore I am about to raise your salary. 1210

This document consists of 31 printed pages and 1 blank page.

STIMULI

Choose one of the following three stimuli and devise a piece of drama based on it. You should work in groups of between two and six performers. Your piece should last approximately 15 minutes.

In the Written examination, you will be asked questions about your piece that will cover both practical and theoretical issues.

Stimulus 1

Quotation: 'The price of greatness is responsibility'
Winston Churchill

Stimulus 2

Proverb: A fool and his money are soon parted

Stimulus 3

Photograph: Crowds of people in the Gare de Lyon, Paris

EXTRACT

Taken from Great Expectations, by Charles Dickens, adapted for the stage by Neil Bartlett

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

The extract is taken from a stage version of Charles Dickens's novel, Great Expectations, adapted by Neil Bartlett. The story is set in the early nineteenth century and spans a period of almost thirty years. The play traces the life of an orphan, Pip, who is aged seven at the beginning of the story. His life is transformed when he learns that he has 'expectations' from an anonymous benefactor.

The adaptation was first performed in 2013 in Bristol, England, by an original company of nine actors, multi-roling in an ensemble style. However, Neil Bartlett has stated that, 'Every production of this script must find its own solutions to how to stage the story.'

The play is in thirty-seven scenes, with an interval occurring at the end of Scene 18. This extract consists of a slightly shortened version of Scenes 1 to 18.

BIDDY

SCENE 1

PIP, aged thirty-four, is alone.

PIP: I never saw my father. Or my mother.

And never any likeness of them neither – their days were long before the days of photographs.

But the shape of the letters on my father's tombstone gave me an odd idea that he must have been a square, stout man, with curly black hair. From the inscription on my mother's – Also Georgiana, Wife of the Above – ... I decided she must have been freckled, and sickly. As for the five little stones, arranged in a neat row beside them, Infant Children of the Aforesaid, I thought – well the stones were so little, and lozenge-shaped, I thought my five little brothers must all have been born on their backs with their hands in their pockets, and having given up trying to get a living exceedingly early in that universal struggle, never taken them out. 5
15

Alexander, Bartholemew, Abraham, Tobias...and Roger.

My father's family name being Pirrip, and my Christian name Phillip, my infant tongue could make of both names nothing longer or more explicit than Pip – so, I called myself Pip, and Pip I became... 20

I give Pirrip as our family name on the authority of his tombstone, and of my sister –

MRS JOE: [A vision of bonnetted fury, suddenly sweeping across the stage.] His sister, Mrs Joe Gargery, who married a blacksmith.

PIP is stopped in his recollections for a moment by the eruption of that memory. 25

PIP: Yes. I remember!

I remember.

He gathers himself.

I remember knowing, one memorable afternoon, one raw afternoon that that bleak place with the stones, overgrown with nettles, was a churchyard. That Phillip Pirrip, late of this parish, and Also Georgiana, wife of the above, were dead and buried, and gone; that my five little brothers were dead and buried too... 30
35

That the dark flat wilderness beyond the churchyard was the marshes; the low leaden line beyond, the river; that the wind blowing up was off the distant sea – and that I was seven, and cold, and afraid, afraid of it all, and beginning to cry.

- Out of the landscape, a figure; 'soaked in water, and smothered in mud, and lamed by stones.'* 40
- MAGWITCH: Hold your noise.
- PIP does as he is told.
- Keep still.
- Keep still – or I'll cut your throat. 45
- PIP: [In the voice of a seven-year-old.] O! Don't cut my throat, sir! Pray don't do it, sir.
- MAGWITCH: Tell us your name. Quick.
- PIP: [In his adult voice, and to the audience.] I was terrified.
- MAGWITCH: Tell us your name!!!! 50
- PIP: Pp, P-... Ppp-
- MAGWITCH: Give it mouth..
- PIP: My father's name being Pirrip, and mine Phillip, I –
- MAGWITCH: What?
- PIP: PPPip. Pip, sir. 55
- MAGWITCH stares at him.
- MAGWITCH: Show us where you live.
- PIP points.
- MAGWITCH: Where's your mother?
- PIP: [Pointing at a tombstone.] There sir! [MAGWITCH goes to bolt; then stops.] There. Also Georgiana, Wife of the Above. 60
- MAGWITCH: Oh. And your father?
- PIP: Yes sir, him too; Late Of This Parish, there sir.
- MAGWITCH: Who d'ye live with then – supposing you're kindly let to live.
- PIP: My sister. 65
- MRS JOE: [Crossing.] Mrs Joe Gargery, who married Joe Gargery, the blacksmith.
- MAGWITCH: Blacksmith, eh ?
- PIP: There was a great iron, on his leg...
- MAGWITCH: Now lookee here. You know what a file is? 70
- PIP: Yes sir.
- MAGWITCH: And you know what wittles is ?
- PIP: Yes sir, food sir.
- MAGWITCH: You get me a file; and you get me wittles; and you bring 'em to me. Or I'll have your heart and liver out. 75
- COMPANY: Out ! –
- PIP: Yes sir –
- MAGWITCH: Tomorrow morning, early, you do it; and you never dare to say a word, or I'll have 'em out, and roasted, and ate. There's a young man, hid with me on these marshes, in comparison with which young man I am a Angel. That young man hears the words I speak. That young man has a secret way pecooliar to himself of getting at a boy, and at his heart, and at his liver. A boy may lock his door – 80

COMPANY:	Lock it !	85
MAGWITCH:	May be warm in bed, may tuck himself up, but this young man will softly creep –
COMPANY:	Creep...
MAGWITCH:	Creep his way to him and Tear... Him... Open!	90
	The COMPANY emit sounds of violent evisceration.
MAGWITCH:	I am keeping that young man from harming you at the present moment with great difficulty; I find it wery hard to hold that young man off of your inside. Now, what do you say?
PIP:	I said I would get him the file and wittles –	95
MAGWITCH:	Say Lord strike you dead if you don't.
COMPANY:	Say it !
PIP:	Yes sir, dead sir.
COMPANY:	Dead !
MAGWITCH:	Now, you remember that young man, and get off home. And remember what you promised –	100
PIP:	[ As his adult self; to MAGWITCH. ] I remember!
	[ To the audience. ] I remember... Everything...
	I remember him clasping himself, as if to hold himself together – turning round, to look at me...the marshes all black behind him, and him saying	105
MAGWITCH:	I wish I was a frog...
	In memory, PIP feels again the cold of the marshes.
PIP:	I remember running all the way home without stopping – and thinking, all the way. Thinking.....	110
	JOE GARGERY is there behind him;
JOE:	Pip?
PIP:	Joe!
	A moment of recognition across the years;
	Oh, Joe –	115
	But JOE stops him from wasting any valuable time in reminiscence, as the COMPANY, who seem to be frightened of something, rush to assemble the Gargery kitchen for the next scene – JOE explains:

SCENE 2: THE KITCHEN

- JOE: Mrs Joe's been out a dozen times, looking for you, Pip. And what's worse, she's got Tickler with her. 120
- The COMPANY get out of the way – quick.*
- PIP: Has she Joe?
JOE: She's on the Ram-Page, Pip old chap, the Ram-Page. Best get that towel betwixt you. 125
- PIP hurries to get a towel down the back of his trousers, but too late; enter MRS JOE, on the Rampage, with the Tickler. JOE does his best to protect him, but to no avail.*
- MRS JOE: Where have you been, you young monkey? Tell me directly, or I'll have you out of that corner if you was fifty Pips. 130
- PIP: Only to the churchyard –
MRS JOE: Churchyard! If it warn't for me you'd have been to the churchyard long ago, and stayed there. [She grabs him and beats him.] Who brought you up by hand? 135
- PIP: You did.
MRS JOE: And why did I do it, I should like to know?
PIP: I don't know.
MRS JOE: I'd never do it again, I know that. I've never had this apron of mine off since born you were. It's bad enough to be a blacksmith's wife, and him being a Gargery, without being your mother. Churchyard, indeed! You'll drive me to the churchyard one of these days, and oh, a pr-r-recious pair you'd be without me. Now wash your hands – and Gargery – set the tea. 140
- The COMPANY assist, and the table gets laid. Just at the critical point, as the teapot is poised for MRS JOE to pour – the distant boom of a gun is heard out on the marshes.* 145
- JOE: Ah! There's another convict off.
PIP: What does that mean, Joe, 'off'?
MRS JOE: Escaped.
JOE: There was a convict off last night, after sunset. They fires, Pip, as of a warning. 150
- A second gun.*
- JOE: Two of them.
PIP: Who's firing?
MRS JOE: Drat the boy; ask no questions, and you'll be told no lies. 155
- Silently, JOE warns PIP to be quiet – but he can't resist...*
- PIP: Mrs Joe, I should like to know – if you shouldn't much mind – where the firing comes from.
MRS JOE: Lord bless the boy! From the Hulks.
PIP: Oh-h. What's Hulks? 160
MRS JOE: [To audience, aggrievedly.] That's the way with this boy, you see; answer him one question, and he'll ask you a dozen directly. [To PIP.] Hulks are prison-ships. Right 'cross

- th'meshes.
 PIP: We always used that name – meshes. 165
 Who's put in them, I wonder, and why.
- MRS JOE: Because they murder, and because they rob, and because they lie. All sorts of bad. And they always begin by asking questions. Bed! [She hits him.]
- PIP: Ow! 170
On this gesture, JOE and MRS JOE freeze.
 I went upstairs in the dark like I was told...and I was terrified.
 Terrified of the young man who wanted my heart and liver;
 Terrified of the man with the iron on his leg;
 Terrified, because I had begun by asking questions, and now – now, I was going to be a thief... [Whispering so MRS JOE won't hear him.] I got up [He does.] and went down stairs. [He does.] Every crack in every board called out:
- COMPANY: Stop, Thief!
- PIP: and: 180
- COMPANY: Wake up, Mrs Joe!
- PIP: From the pantry I stole some bread, a rind of cheese, some brandy in a stone bottle, and...a beautiful, round, compact pork pie.
 Conscience is a dreadful thing in a boy. 185
 From Joe's tools, I stole a file. Then, I unlocked and unbolted the front door... [He checks that JOE and MRS JOE are still frozen.]
 And I ran for the marshes.
- SCENE 3: GUILTY
- PIP: It was a misty morning; marsh-mist. 190
 Very damp –
- COMPANY: Very clammy –
 Rimy.
 Chilly.
 Muddy. 195
 Stony –
Guilty!! There goes a boy with somebody else's pie!
- PIP: I couldn't help it! It wasn't for myself I took it –
 COMPANY: Liar!

- PIP: It was as cold as iron; I can remember, however fast I went, I couldn't warm my feet, what with the mist and the mud and all those ditches – [He jumps over a ditch, and stops; panting, out of breath.] 200
- Then –
- The COMPANY show him a man dressed just as MAGWITCH was dressed, but with his back turned.* 205
- There he was. I thought he would be glad to see me, with his breakfast; so I went forward softly, and touched him on the shoulder –
- Before he can even do it, the man spins round. It is COMPEYSON.* 210
- Ah! It wasn't him – he was the same –
- COMPANY: Lame – hoarse – iron on his leg –
 PIP: But he didn't have the same face –
 COMPEYSON: Damn you... [He lurches forward to grab PIP, then lets out a yelp of pain as the metal bites at his ankle.] Ah! 215
- PIP: ...not the same face at all. He was badly bruised, with a great scar, just...
- COMPANY: Where?
 COMPEYSON: [Drawing a knife across his face.] Here... 220
 COMPANY: Here.
 PIP: Just there... I thought it was the young man who wanted my heart.
 COMPEYSON: Damn you boy... Damn you.
- Unable to get at PIP, COMPEYSON limps away... The COMPANY replace COMPEYSON with MAGWITCH.* 225
- MAGWITCH: You brought no one with you?
 PIP: No, sir! No!
 MAGWITCH: No one follow you?
 PIP: No! 230
 MAGWITCH: [He strokes PIP's face, then grabs him and ransacks him for the food.] What's in that bottle?
 PIP: Brandy.
- MAGWITCH stops mid-drink, because he thinks he hears something; decides it's nothing, and carries on. He finishes the brandy, and moves on to the pie.* 235
- He ate like our dog – too fast, and always looking sideways.
- I'm glad you enjoy it.
- I said I was glad you enjoyed it.
 MAGWITCH: Thankee my boy. I do. 240
 PIP: I'm afraid you won't leave any of it for him.
 MAGWITCH: Him? Who's him?

PIP: The young man. That's hid out here with you and wants my heart.

MAGWITCH: Oh, him. [Still eating.] He don't want no wittles. 245

PIP: He looked as though he did.

MAGWITCH: [Stopping.] Looked? Where?

PIP: Just here – I thought it was you. He had the same – the same reason for wanting to borrow a file. And he had a scar.

MAGWITCH: Not here? 250

PIP: Yes, sir.

MAGWITCH: [Stowing any uneaten food.] I'll pull him down like a bloodhound. [The iron bites his badly-chafed leg; he cries out in pain, and curses.] Ah! Bloody – Where's that file, boy. Ah!

PIP gives it to him. MAGWITCH starts filing at his iron like a madman, ignoring the pain. The sound of filing grows and echoes as this image of MAGWITCH is hidden by the mist. 255

SCENE 4: CHRISTMAS

MRS JOE: And where the deuce have you been this time?

PIP: Walking.

COMPANY: Liar! 260

MRS JOE: Well! Perhaps if I warn't a slave with her apron never off, I should get to go walking. As it is, I've a table to lay, a dinner to dress, a blacksmith for a husband, and [Knocking at the door.] – Joe Gargery, get that! – company. [By way of explanation.] It being that very day, Christmas. 265

A flurry of activity; laying of table, putting on of paper hats, opening of door, brushing of snow off shoulders, JOE in a clean collar for Christmas etc.

MR WOPSLE: Mrs Joe!

PIP: Mr Wopsle – A clerk at our church. 270

MR WOPSLE: Amen!

MR PUMBLECHOOK: Mrs Joe –

PIP: And Uncle Pumblechook – who wasn't really my Uncle.

MR PUMBLECHOOK: Mrs Joe, I have brought you, Mum, as the compliments of the season, a bottle of sherry wine – and I have brought you, Mum, a bottle of port wine. 275

MRS JOE: Oh, Un-cle Pum-ble-chook! This IS kind!

PIP: He did that every year.

JOE: Pip...

MR PUMBLECHOOK: It is no more, Mum, no more than your merits. And now: Mr Wopsle? – 280

MR WOPSLE: Ahem. For what we are about to receive, may the Lord make us truly grateful. A –

MR PUMBLECHOOK: [To PIP.] Do you hear that? Grateful!

MR WOPSLE: Especially, boy, to them that brought you up by hand. A – 285

MR PUMBLECHOOK: Ah, why is it, Mum, why is it the young is never grateful?

MRS JOE: Why is it, Uncle?

MR PUMBLECHOOK: Naterally Wicious!!

MR WOPSLE: Amen!
 PUMBLECHOOK / MRS JOE / JOE: Amen. 290
 PIP: ... Amen

Cutlery is poised for the beginning of the meal, but instead of beginning to eat, everyone suddenly slumps back in their seats with a sigh of satisfaction, as if sated – we have jump-cut to the end of the meal. 295

MR PUMBLECHOOK: Mum, what a meal! And what this boy has to be grateful for! Enjoying himself with his elders and betters, improving himself with their conversation, rolling in the lap of luxury –
 MR WOPSLE: Amen!
 MRS JOE: Do have a little brandy, Uncle – [PIP freezes at the mention of the stolen brandy.] 300
 PIP: Brandy?!
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: And yet – and yet, mum –
 MR WOPSLE: Amen!
 JOE: Pip? 305
 MRS JOE: – and you must taste, Uncle, you must taste, to finish with, some Pie.

Her guests are stopped in their tracks by gluttonous delight at this prospect; PIP, by terror.

PIP: Pie?! 310
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: Pie, Mum?
 MRS JOE: A savoury pork pie.
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: A bit of savoury pork pie, Mum, can lay atop anything you could mention, and do no harm. Partake we will.
 MRS JOE: Then I'll just go to the pantry and get it... 315
 JOE: [Seeing PIP frozen in terror and consternation.] Pip old chap?
 MR PUMBLECHOOK AND WOPSLE: Pip old chap; ask no questions, and tell no lies...
 MRS JOE: [In the pantry.] Gracious goodness gracious me, what's – Gone – Gone!

A violent banging at the front door. Consternation – PIP fears the worst... 320

SCENE 5: HANDCUFFS

PIP dares not open it, but under threat of violence from MRS JOE, eventually does so.

A SERGEANT: Well there you are then... Excuse me, ladies and gentlemen, but I and my colleagues are on the chase in the name of the King, and want a blacksmith. 325
 MRS JOE: And what might you want with him?
 SERGEANT: Missis, speaking for myself, I should reply, the honour and pleasure of his fine wife's acquaintance; speaking for the King, I answer, a little job done. You see, we have had an accident with these, [Holding up a pair of broken handcuffs.] and they are wanted for immediate service. 330
 MR WOPSLE: Convicts, Sergeant?
 SERGEANT: Ay! Two, out on the marshes. Anybody seen anything?

EVERYONE:	[ Except PIP. ] No.	335
	No!
PIP:	No good gracious –
SERGEANT:	No... Well, they'll soon find themselves trapped. Now, blacksmith. When you're ready, his Majesty the King is.	340
	JOE dons his blacksmith's apron, takes the handcuffs, and sets to work on them. The lines of the next conversation are punctuated by the blows of a hammer on an anvil.
MR PUMBLECHOOK:	Give the Sergeant some brandy, Mum.
	Hammer!	345
SERGEANT:	His Majesty's Health!
	Hammer! Hammer!
SERGEANT:	And your's Mum. May you live a thousand years!
	Hammer! Hammer! Hammer! Hammer!
	The SERGEANT drains his glass to a final flurry of hammer-blows. The handcuffs are returned and tested.	350
SERGEANT:	Right! And should you go down with us soldiers, gentlemen, and see what comes of the hunt?
MR PUMBLECHOOK:	I should sir – if, of course, Mr Gargery...
SERGEANT:	Mr Gargery, sir?	355
JOE:	Well...if Mrs Gargery –
MRS JOE:	If you bring that boy back with his head blown to bits by a musket, don't look to me to put it back together again! Eh?
	As she jabs her finger at JOE, the scene once again freezes...
SERGEANT:	Well then, gentlemen, to the business; out into the air –	360
	...and we see and hear the marshes.
PIP:	The raw, night air.

SCENE 6: CAPTURE

- SERGEANT: Fall in – and you, gentlemen; not a word.
- PIP is lifted up on JOE's back. An image of a line of men sweeping the marshes, 'steadily moving towards their business'. Night.* 365
- PIP: [Whispering.] I hope, Joe, I do hope we shan't find them.
JOE: I'd give a shilling if they'd cut and run, Pip.
- At a command from the SERGEANT, the rhythm of the hunt begins.* 370
- At a gesture from the SERGEANT, everyone stops and listens.*
- SERGEANT: Shhhh. Nothing.
MAGWITCH'S VOICE: He's here!!
SERGEANT: Towards the river, gentlemen! At the double...
COMPEYSON'S VOICE: Here!! Murder!! 375
SERGEANT: Run!!
- Darkness, beams of light, confusion.*
- COMPANY: This way! Here! I can't see them!
MAGWITCH'S VOICE: Here! Guard! Guard!!
COMPEYSON'S VOICE: Help me!!!! 380
SERGEANT: Here!! They're here!!
- In the light of the torches, we see a tangle of two desperate bodies: MAGWITCH and COMPEYSON.*
- SOLDIER: Surrender!! Confound you for beasts, surrender!!!
- They are forced apart.* 385
- The SERGEANT gives JOE his gun and takes the handcuffs out and handcuffs MAGWITCH. Once he is done, he takes the gun back.*
- MAGWITCH: I took him. And he knows it.
COMPEYSON: He tried to murder me... 390
MAGWITCH: I took him, and I giv'im up; that's what I done. Dragged him back.
- COMPEYSON: ...murder me...
MAGWITCH: Let you go free? Let you make a fool of me again? No! [He tries to get at COMPEYSON again, but is prevented.] 395
- SERGEANT: Enough!!
COMPEYSON: You see—
MAGWITCH: He's a liar! And he'll die a liar!
SERGEANT: Come on!
PIP: And then he saw me. 400
- MAGWITCH sees PIP; their eyes lock.*
- JOE: Pip?

- SERGEANT: All right, you. March.
MAGWITCH: I wish to say something.
SERGEANT: You can say what you like, but it won't – 405
MAGWITCH: Respecting this escape. It may prevent some persons laying under suspicion on account of me.
SERGEANT: Go on.
MAGWITCH: I took some wittles – and I'll tell you where from. From the Blacksmith's – a pie, it was. 410
- JOE: Hullo...
MAGWITCH: So you're the blacksmith, are you? Well I'm sorry to say I've eat your pie.
JOE: God knows you're welcome to it. We don't know what you done, but we wouldn't have you starved to death for it, would 415 us, Pip. Pip?
- Pip?
- MAGWITCH stares at him, and the boom of a gun reverberates in PIP's memory...*
- PIP: I'd been waiting all the time for him to look at me, that I might 420 try to assure him, it wasn't me who had brought the soldiers – that I hadn't betrayed him – but when he did, it...
- MAGWITCH: Thankee, Pip.
PIP: ...it all passed so quickly!
SERGEANT: Come on, you. 425
- MAGWITCH is taken away.*
- PIP: The guard were all ready – no one seemed surprised to see him back in irons, or sorry to see him, or glad... They put him in a boat, and they rowed him away, and somebody in the boat growled. 430
- ONE OF THE COMPANY: Give way, you!
- PIP: – as if it was an order given to dogs – and the oars dipped, and I watched him... disappear...
- ONE OF THE COMPANY: There was a torch, and someone flung it hissing into the 435 water –
- PIP: And it went out, as if...
As if it was all over.
PIP and JOE are left together.
- JOE: What larks, eh Pip? 440
What larks.

As PIP is lost in thought, another gun-boom reverberates in his memory.

PIP: [Referring to JOE.] I never told him.
 JOE: Told me what, Pip? 445
 PIP: I never told anybody.

SCENE 7: THIS BOY'S FORTUNE

MRS JOE: [Exasperated by all this introspection, washcloth in hand.]
 Was there ever such a boy as this? Fed, scrubbed, clothed, pampered – and is he grateful? Is he? No; too busy with mud 450 and meshes and convicts – [She suddenly stops scrubbing at him – and out of nowhere, in a different voice, asks him.] Well were you? Ever? Grateful? Were you? Oh!

Across the years, PIP looks at her. She slaps him hard around the face and exits. JOE prepares for work.

JOE: Don't cry old chap... I don't deny, Pip, that your sister, Pip, your 455 sister do drop down upon us heavy sometimes –

PIP: [In his adult voice, still staring after her.] Why did she do that?
 JOE: – but you see, Pip, what with the drudging and slaving and 460 never getting no peace in all her mortal days...well Pip, just remember; Whatsume'er the failings on her part, remember she were that good in her heart. Eh Pip?

PIP: I remember. Don't mind me, Joe.

JOE: Right you are...

Satisfied that PIP is alright, JOE gets back into his apron and again punctuates the next brief passage with blows to his anvil. PIP helps. 465

PIP: When I was old enough, I was to be apprenticed to Joe, and 470 until then I frightened birds [Hammer!] and picked up stones – [Hammer!] odd-boyed about the forge – [Hammer!] whatever happened to be wanted. Then, one night – [Hammer! Hammer!
 Hammer!]

We jump-cut to the arrival of the fateful request from Satis House...

MR PUMBLECHOOK: Well if that boy ain't grateful this night, he never will be! 475
 MRS JOE: Well!!

MR WOPSLE: Amen.

MRS JOE: It's only to be hoped, Uncle Pumblechook, it's only to be hoped he won't be pampered. But I have my fears!

MR PUMBLECHOOK: She ain't in that line, Mum. She knows better.
 MRS JOE: [To JOE.] Well? And what are you staring at? Is the house 480 a-fire?

JOE: She?

MRS JOE: Miss Havisham. Miss Havisham is a she, I suppose?

JOE: Miss Havisham up town?

MR PUMBLECHOOK: Immensely rich – immensely. 485

MR WOPSLE: Amen.

- MRS JOE: She wants this boy to go and play there. And he'd better play, or I'll work him.
- JOE: I wonder how she come to know our Pip?
- MRS JOE: Isn't it just barely possible that Uncle Pumblechook might be a tenant of hers, and that he might sometimes – sometimes – go there to pay his rent – and couldn't she then ask if he knew of a boy, to play, and couldn't Uncle Pumblechook, then, being always considerate and thoughtful for us – Joseph – then perhaps mention this boy, that I have for ever been slave to? 490
- MR PUMBLECHOOK: Prettily pointed, Mum.
- MR WOPSLE: Very. Amen.
- MRS JOE: And, [Grabbing PIP, and letting out a piercing whistle to summon the rest of the COMPANY, who dash on with clean clothes, haircombs, towels and whatever else is required for the scrubbing, combing and trussing of PIP ready for his journey to Satis House.] for anything we can tell, Joseph, though you may not think it, this boy's fortune may be made by his going to Miss Havisham's – 495
- MR PUMBLECHOOK: Immensely rich. 505
- MRS JOE: – which is why Uncle Pumblechook, being sensible to that case, has offered to take him into town, tonight, and, in his own chaise cart.
- PIP is transformed; MRS JOE hands him over.*
- MR PUMBLECHOOK: Mum! 510
- MR PUMBLECHOOK invites PIP to take his place in the cart. Just before he hands him up in to it:
- Boy, be for ever grateful
- COMPANY: Grateful!
- MR PUMBLECHOOK: to all friends; 515
- COMPANY: Friends!
- MR PUMBLECHOOK: but especially unto them
- COMPANY: which brought you up by hand.
- MR WOPSLE: Amen!

SCENE 8: THE JOURNEY TO SATIS HOUSE

- MR PUMBLECHOOK: It was a cold, dry night, with no pity in the glittering multitude of stars...nor in the sound of the mare's iron shoes upon the hard road... 520
- Well boy, I dare say that what with your feelings –
- PIP: Yes sir.
- MR PUMBLECHOOK: And that new collar – 525
- PIP: Yes sir.

MR PUMBLECHOOK: You can hardly see no stars.
 PIP: No sir.
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: But even if you could –
 PIP: Sir? 530
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: They would hardly throw any light on the question why on earth you are sent for to play at Miss Havisham's –
 PIP: No, sir.
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: Or what on earth you are expected to play at once we get there... 535
 PIP: No sir.

Beat.

MR PUMBLECHOOK: Seven times seven.
 PIP: Sir?
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: Seven times seven. 540
 PIP: Forty-nine, sir.
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: Hmmph!

They arrive at the looming front door of Satis House. PIP, confronted with this memory, stops. PUMBLECHOOK, exasperated by the boy, rings the doorbell. Nothing. He rings it a second time. 545

SCENE 9: DID YOU WISH TO SEE MISS HAVISHAM?

THE VOICE OF ESTELLA: What name?
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: Pumblechook.
 THE VOICE: Quite right.

The door is unlocked and opened. 550

MR PUMBLECHOOK: This, is Pip.
 ESTELLA: Come in, Pip. [To PUMBLECHOOK.] Did you wish to see Miss Havisham?
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: If Miss Havisham wished to see me.
 ESTELLA: Ah! But you see she doesn't. 555

She closes the door in his face, and locks it. She stares at PIP.

Inside Satis House: ESTELLA, carrying a candle, leads him through the labyrinthine darkness of the house, unlocking doors and locking them behind her. 560

PIP: What is the name of this house, miss?
 ESTELLA: Satis. Which is Greek, and Latin, and Hebrew, for 'Enough'.
 PIP: That's a curious name, miss.
 ESTELLA: Yes. It means more than it says. It meant, when it was given, that whoever had this house could want for nothing else. They 565 must have been easily satisfied in those days I suppose. Don't loiter, boy.

They arrive at the final door.

PIP: After you, miss.

ESTELLA: Don't be ridiculous, boy. I'm not going in. 570
She knocks on the door.

VOICE OF MISS HAVISHAM: Enter.

SCENE 10: WHAT A STUPID CLUMSY BOY YOU ARE

Like an apparition lit by candle-flames, MISS HAVISHAM, in the wreckage of her bridal chamber.

MISS HAVISHAM: Come nearer; let me look at you. You are not afraid of a woman who has never seen the sun since you were born? 575

PIP: No.

MISS HAVISHAM: Do you know what I touch, here?

PIP: Yes, ma'am. Your heart.

MISS HAVISHAM: Broken! 580

I am tired, and I want diversion. I have strange fancies sometimes, and I have a strange fancy that I want to see some play. Play, boy, play!

Are you obstinate?

PIP: No ma'am, but I can't play just now. I would if I could, but it is so new here, and so strange – 585

MISS HAVISHAM: So new to him, so old to me. Estella!

ESTELLA comes when she is called.

ESTELLA: Let me see you play cards with this boy. But he is a common labouring boy! 590

MISS HAVISHAM: Well? You can break his heart.

ESTELLA: What do you play, boy?

PIP: Nothing but 'Beggars My Neighbour', miss.

MISS HAVISHAM: Beggars him.

As ESTELLA lays out the cards... 595

PIP: [In a whisper.] Her watch was stopped at twenty minutes to nine. I realised that everything in the room had stopped; her watch, the clocks; her life –

ESTELLA: What coarse hands he has. And what thick boots!

PIP: She was right, of course. They were thick. Coarse... 600

ESTELLA: [As PIP makes a mistake.] What a stupid clumsy boy you are. A labouring boy.

MISS HAVISHAM: You say nothing of her. She says many hard things of you, but you say nothing of her. What do you think of her?

PIP: I think she is very proud. 605

MISS HAVISHAM: Anything else?

PIP: I think she is very pretty.

MISS HAVISHAM: Anything else?

PIP: I think she is very insulting.

MISS HAVISHAM: Anything else? 610

PIP: I think I should like to go home.

- MISS HAVISHAM: And never see her again, Pip?
 PIP: I am not sure that I shouldn't like to see her again, but I should like to go home.
- MISS HAVISHAM: You shall. Come again after six days. 615
 PIP: I could have said no. But I said... Yes.
- Yes Miss Havisham... I'll come Wednesday, ma'am –
- MISS HAVISHAM: I know nothing of days of the week; nothing of the weeks of the year. Estella, take him down. Goodbye, Pip.
- They journey back through the dark house. As they do:* 620
- COMPANY: Coarse...
 Coarse hands.
 And what thick boots.
 Would you like to go home?
- ESTELLA leaves him stranded: 625
- ESTELLA: Wait here.
 COMPANY: Wait here, You vulgar
 Ignorant
 Low-living
 Blacksmith's... Boy! 630
- The voices push him too far; PIP, humiliated, cries and kicks at a door. ESTELLA returns, and he conceals his feelings.*
- ESTELLA: Why don't you cry?
 PIP: Because I don't want to.
 ESTELLA: You do. You've been crying till you are half blind. Goodbye. 635
- Laughing, she pushes him out and locks the door.*
- SCENE 11: HOW DID YOU GET ON?
- MR PUMBLECHOOK: How did you get on, up town?
 PIP: I was sure they wouldn't understand, so I lied. Pretty well.
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: Pretty well! Pretty well is no answer.
 MRS JOE: [Losing her temper and about to hit.] I'll give him pretty... 640
 MR WOPSLE: Amen!
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: [Stopping her.] Mum; leave this lad to me. Boy! What like is Miss Havisham?
- During the next conversation, MRS JOE and MR PUMBLECHOOK behave as if they are being told all the marvellous and outlandish details of life in Satis House: what we hear, from PIP, are the thoughts that he is concealing under a wildly embellished account of his visit.* 645
- PIP: Like a corpse. Every clock in the room is stopped at twenty minutes to nine. 650
- MR PUMBLECHOOK: [Impressed.] Is she! And what was she a-doing of, when you went in?

PIP: And there was a beautiful young lady there, who was dreadfully proud.

MRS JOE: No daylight???

MR PUMBLECHOOK: And what did you play, boy?

PIP: She said I was common, and now I know I am.

MRS JOE / PUMBLECHOOK: [Amazed and delighted.] Ah!

PIP: And I wish with all my heart that I was not.

MR PUMBLECHOOK: There is no doubt, mum, no doubt that Miss Havisham will do something for this boy. 660

MR WOPSLE: Amen!

JOE: Well Pip; what larks...

MRS JOE / PUMBLECHOOK / WOPSLE: Will do something. For this boy...

As they gaze into the boy's glorious future... 665

JOE: Pip old chap...

PIP: Yes Joe?

JOE: Upstairs to bed, Pip, I should say.

PIP: Yes Joe.

JOE: And when is you to go back Pip? 670

PIP: Next Wednesday, Joe; next Wednesday. Good night.

JOE: [Kissing him goodnight.] Live well, and die happy.

PIP: I spent the whole of that night thinking how common Estella and Miss Havisham would think Joe; how thick his boots. [In the night, the sound of MAGWITCH's file.] I tried to think about Miss Havisham's, and about next Wednesday; but in my sleep all I saw was a door...and a file – a stolen file, coming at me out of the door, and I couldn't see who was holding it, and I –

At the very moment, in his nightmare, that he starts awake – we hear the echoing doorbell of Satis House, and see not MAGWITCH with the file coming through the door, but ESTELLA with her candle. 680

SCENE 12: EXPECTING

ESTELLA: You are to come a different way today.

She leaves him stranded in an empty corridor.

You are to wait in here, until you are wanted. 685

Suddenly, all the POCKETS tumble out of a door. They inspect him.

SARAH: The idea!

CAMILLA: No, no; IT WILL NOT DO. For the sake of the family.

SARAH: The family! 690

CAMILLA: Very true!

SARAH: The idea!

ESTELLA: [Returning.] Boy! She wants you.

SARAH: Well, I am sure!

CAMILLA: Was there ever such a fancy? 695

SARAH: The i-de-a!

They vanish.

In a dark corridor, ESTELLA suddenly stops.

ESTELLA: Well? Am I still pretty?
 PIP: I think you are very pretty. 700
 ESTELLA: Am I insulting?
 PIP: Not so much as you were last time.

She slaps him, hard, on the face.

ESTELLA: You coarse little monster, what do you think of me now?
 PIP: I shan't tell you. 705
 ESTELLA: Why don't you cry again, you little wretch?
 PIP: I'll never cry for you again!

A door has opened behind them. An unidentified, shadowy figure, JAGGERS, appears, wiping his hands on a handkerchief. 710

JAGGERS: Whom have we here, Estella?
 ESTELLA: A boy.
 JAGGERS: How does he come here?
 ESTELLA: Miss Havisham sent for him.
 JAGGERS: Did she? Did she indeed? Behave yourself, boy. 715

He looks at his watch, unlocks a door [with his own key], and disappears into the house.

PIP: That must have been the first time I ever saw him –
 ESTELLA: This way, boy!

She ushers him into another candle- and fire-lit room; we see MISS HAVISHAM, amidst the ruins of her bridal feast. 720

MISS HAVISHAM: So! The days have worn away, have they?
 PIP: Yes, ma'am, today is –
 MISS HAVISHAM: I don't want to know!

This is where I will be laid when I am dead. They shall all come and look at me... What do you think this is? 725

PIP: I don't know.
 MISS HAVISHAM: It's a bride-cake. Mine! It and I have worn away together... The mice have gnawed at it, and sharper teeth than teeth of mice have gnawed at me. Walk me, walk me... 730

This is my birthday, Pip.

He is going to wish her happy birthday, but she lifts her stick and stops him –

I won't suffer it to be spoken of. Not by anyone!

Estella! Bring them in! 735

Suddenly, the room is full of POCKETS, in maximum cringing and begging mode, followed by ESTELLA.

CAMILLA: Oh, but –
 SARAH: But Dear Miss Havisham: how well you look.
 MISS HAVISHAM: I do not. 740
 SARAH: No –
 CAMILLA: No, she doesn't –
 SARAH: The idea!
 MISS HAVISHAM: And how are you?
 CAMILLA: Oh, as well as can be expected – not expecting any thanks, or 745 anything of that sort, for coming here, no, certainly not...
 MISS HAVISHAM: Expecting? [She turns on them.] ...When I am laid out in this room, that will be your place, and that yours, and that yours.
 When you come to feast upon me. Now go! Go!
 POCKETS: The idea! Expecting? Bless you! Bless you! The family...(etc.) 750

They have gone. MISS HAVISHAM stands and stares as if she could see her dead self laid out.

MISS HAVISHAM: On this day of the year, long before you were born, Pip, this heap of decay was put on me. When the ruin is complete, and the curse is finished, and they lay me down, dead in my bride's 755 dress – so much the better if it is done on this day.

Estella...

She takes a jewel from her throat and gives it to ESTELLA.

Your own, my dear, then. Use it well.

[Fitting the jewel, and whispering in her ear.] Break their hearts 760 my pride and hope; break their hearts and have no mercy.

As she wishes him to be, PIP is transfixed.

Show the boy out, Estella.

She does, then locks the door behind her; and then says, 765
evidently with a plan:

ESTELLA: Wait here. Boy.

SCENE 13: A PALE YOUNG GENTLEMAN

ESTELLA doesn't come back. PIP tries several different doors, but they are all locked. Then, behind him, one opens.

A PALE YOUNG GENTLEMAN: Hello.
 PIP: Hello. 770
 THE GENTLEMAN: Who let you in?
 PIP: Miss Estella.
 THE GENTLEMAN: Did she give you leave to prowl about?
 PIP: Yes.
 THE GENTLEMAN: I see. [He puts his fists up. PIP doesn't respond.] Fight! Come 775 on, let's fight.

The PALE YOUNG GENTLEMAN starts dancing around like a boxer. PIP is nonplussed.

I suppose I ought to give you a reason. [He slaps PIP.]
There.

780

They fight, and PIP takes out all his pent-up feelings on him.

PIP: I am sorry to record that the more I hit him, the harder I hit him.

PIP lands his final punch [and cuts his knuckles in the process].

The YOUNG GENTLEMAN now has a bloody nose.

THE GENTLEMAN: I think this rather means you have won.

785

PIP: Can I help you?

THE GENTLEMAN: No thankee.

PIP: Good afternoon, then.

THE GENTLEMAN: Same to you.

He exits. ESTELLA has been watching: there is a bright flush upon her face, as though something has happened to delight her.

790

ESTELLA: Come here, boy. You may kiss me now, if you like.

He does.

Now go.

795

She pushes him out and runs away, laughing.

PIP: [Rubbing his wounded knuckles.] I never told anyone about that either...about the pale young gentleman whose nose I broke, I mean, and certainly not Joe...and besides, I never saw him again, not in that house anyway. Estella, of course, was always there, to let me in and out. And, of course, she –

800

ESTELLA: She grew prettier and prettier.

PIP: Yes, she did.

ESTELLA: Did she ever tell you you might kiss her again?

PIP: No.

805

ESTELLA: Really? And did you cry?

PIP: Never! I never wanted to cry!

MR PUMBLECHOOK: But, but with respections to Miss Havisham,

MR WOPSLE: Amen!

MR PUMBLECHOOK: – on what intentions may we at this point in the story speculate?

810

MR WOPSLE: What might she do with you, boy?

MR PUMBLECHOOK: Do for him...

MRS JOE: Do to him.

Suddenly; the doorbell: ESTELLA wheels in MISS HAVISHAM. PIP and ESTELLA are both now fourteen.

815

SCENE 14: APPRENTICED

- MISS HAVISHAM: Estella!
- You are growing tall, Pip! Tell me the name again of that blacksmith of yours?
- PIP: Joe Gargery, Miss Havisham.
- MISS HAVISHAM: [Scrutinising him.] You had better be apprenticed to him at once. Let him come here, with the indentures to sign. 820
- JOE: Me, Pip?
- PIP: At any particular time, Miss Havisham?
- MISS HAVISHAM: Time? I know nothing about time. Let him come soon – and come alone, with you. 825
- JOE is rooted to the spot with terror. MRS JOE takes charge of the situation –*
- JOE: Me...?
- MRS JOE: You! You great dunderheaded king of the noodles – a doormat, a doormat under your feet I am – standing there – Now!! 830
- sprucing him up to her satisfaction, and then pushing him into MISS HAVISHAM's presence. In this scene, JOE, overawed, communicates entirely in nods and shakes.*
- MISS HAVISHAM: So, Mr Gargery, does the boy like his trade?
- [A nod.] 835
- Has he ever made any objection to it?
- And have you brought the indentures with you?
- [Another nod; the indentures are handed over and signed.]
- Good. You expect no premium with the boy?
- [A shake.] 840
- Well, Pip has earned one: here.
- [She produces a bag of money.]
- Give it to your master, Pip.
- PIP: Yes Miss Havisham.
- MISS HAVISHAM: Goodbye, Pip. Estella... 845
- ESTELLA begins to wheel her away.*
- PIP: Miss Havisham! Am I not to come again, Miss Havisham?
- MISS HAVISHAM: No. Gargery is your master now. And Gargery –
- JOE nods and shakes furiously.*

The boy has been a good boy here, and that is his reward. As an honest man, you will expect no other. Expect no more. 850

ESTELLA wheels her away.

MRS JOE: Well?
 JOE: As-TON-ishing! Miss 'Avisham –
 MRS JOE: What did she give him?! 855
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: How much...
 JOE: What would present company say to ten pound?
 MR WOPSLE: They'd say Amen –
 MRS JOE: They'd say, pretty well. Not too much, but pretty well.
 JOE: It's more than that. 860
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: You don't mean to say –
 MRS JOE: Go on, Joseph.
 JOE: What would present company say, to twenty pound?
 MRS JOE: Handsome. Handsome would be the word.
 JOE: It's more than twenty pound. It's twenty-five! 865
 MR WOPSLE: A-men!
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: [Almost apoplectic with jealousy, shaking her hand.] Five and twenty pound, Mum! No more than your merits; no more than your merits.
 MRS JOE: Goodness knows, Uncle Pumblechook, after the trouble I've had – with this boy...well... 870

The focus goes back onto the forgotten PIP, who is still staring at the space where ESTELLA was.

JOE: Pip old chap?
 MR PUMBLECHOOK: And now you are apprenticed, Pip, shall you like being a blacksmith? 875
 PIP: [To himself.] Never.
 [To the audience.] I should have liked it, once, but once was not now. Now – I was ashamed.

MRS JOE: Oh and whose fault was that, eh? [Indicating where MISS HAVISHAM has gone.] Hers? Oh – Mine, I suppose... 880
 PUMBLECHOOK/WOPSLE: We wish you the joy of the money – never mind us – a pleasure's a pleasure all the world over. Amen.
 MRS JOE: – Oh to hear the things he's telling you...the black ingratitude of it... I wonder he condescended to come back! 885
 PUMBLECHOOK/WOPSLE: Naterally Wicious!!!

They sweep off after her. A beat.

PIP: [Angrily.] Whose fault it was is of no moment now. The change was made; the thing was done. Excusably or inexcusably, it was done! 890

He looks at JOE.

I never told you how I felt. All those nights we worked at the forge together...never. No. [With self-hatred.] No, what I said was: [Putting on his forge apron, and lying, brightly.]

SCENE 15: THE FORGE

PIP: Joe, don't you think I ought to make Miss Havisham a visit? 895

JOE, to displace his knowing that this is all wrong, sets to work with his hammer.

JOE: Well, Pip, what for? She might think you wanted something...

PIP: Might she?

JOE: She might old chap. You see, Pip, Miss Havisham done the handsome thing by you, but when she done that, she called me back to say most partick'ler as that were all. 900

PIP: Yes, Joe, I heard her.

JOE: ALL.

PIP: Yes, Joe, I – 905

JOE: Which I meantersay Pip, it might be that her meaning were [Hammer!] make an end on it Pip [Hammer!] as you was, Pip. [Hammer!]

PIP: But Joe –

JOE: Yes old chap... 910

PIP: I merely thought I might go up town and make a call on Miss Est – Havisham.

JOE stops whatever he is doing.

JOE: Which her name ain't Estavisham, Pip, unless she have been re-chris'ened. 915

PIP: I know, Joe, I know. That was a slip. What do you think of it, Joe?

JOE: Well I thinks...if you thinks well of it, Pip, then...then I thinks well of it, Pip. Old chap.

PIP takes his apron off and tidies himself up – he worries about his dirty hands. 920

PIP: And so...I went. Absurdly, and promising Joe it would be the very last time, I went back.

The doorbell of Satis House...

SCENE 16: LOSS

SARAH: What do you want? 925

PIP: Only to see how Miss –

SARAH: Well you'd better come up then.

This time, SARAH is his guide through the dark house.

MISS HAVISHAM, alone by firelight.

MISS HAVISHAM: Well? I hope you want nothing. You'll get nothing. 930

PIP: Miss Havisham, I wanted you to know that I am doing very well, and that –

MISS HAVISHAM: Ah! You are looking for Estella.

PIP: I... I hope she is well.

- MISS HAVISHAM: Abroad. Educating for a lady. Admired by all who see her. Do you feel that you have lost her? 935
- She laughs.*
- PIP: I feel...
- MISS HAVISHAM: Yes?
- PIP: I felt...felt that I deserved... Deserved!! 940
- MISS HAVISHAM: Here Pip, take a guinea. For your birthday. [Angrily.] Take it!!
- After considering refusal, he does.*
- Were you expecting more, Pip? Were you? Were you expecting more?
- MISS HAVISHAM laughs; SARAH wheels her away. 945
- PIP: Miss Havisham! – Miss Havisham –
- She's gone. Suddenly, the boom of a gun on the marshes; and all the COMPANY are staring at him.*
- PIP: What? What is it?
- COMPANY: There's something wrong, Pip – 950
- Up at your place.
- PIP: I don't understand –
- JOE: While you was up town, Pip...
- COMPANY: Your sister.
- PIP: My sister – ? 955
- COMPANY: [All, quietly.] Dead.
- The actor playing MRS JOE takes off and folds up her apron, as she tells us:*
- DEAD MRS JOE: They found her stretched out on the bare kitchen boards, just where she had fallen. She lay very ill in her bed for weeks, and eventually, at twenty past six on a Monday evening she said, quite plainly, 'Joe', and then, once, 'pardon', and once, 'Pip'; and then laid down her head, and was gone. 960
- COMPANY: [All, quietly.] Gone.
- A month later, a young girl named Bidly – 965
- MR WOPSLE: Who was Mr Wopsle's great-aunt's granddaughter – Amen.
- DEAD MRS JOE: A young girl called Bidly came to the house. [She is handed BIDDY's apron; as she puts it on, she assumes the character and voice of BIDDY.]
- BIDDY: She was an orphan – 970
- PIP: Like I was –
- BIDDY: – but a bright, neat, clean one, and she had come to take care of Mr Gargery.
- And you, Pip. And you.

	Now that you were fourteen...	975
	She busies herself tidying the place up – laying the table etc...
PIP:	Biddy, do you think me coarse and common?
BIDDY:	Who said that?
PIP:	The beautiful young lady at Miss Havisham's.
BIDDY:	Well, that was neither a very true nor very polite thing to say.	980
PIP:	I do admire her dreadfully.
BIDDY:	Do you Pip?
PIP:	[Finally coming out with what he wants to say.] Biddy, when I grow up, I want to be a gentleman.
BIDDY:	Oh.	985
PIP:	You see I am not at all happy as I am, and I never shall be or can be, unless – unless I can lead a very different sort of life from the life I lead now. I want to be a gentleman, on her account.
BIDDY:	[Stopping her work, and gently.] To spite her, or to gain her, Pip?	990
PIP:	I... I don't know.
	[In his adult voice, and to the audience.] I didn't know!! Not at fourteen, not at fifteen... Not at eighteen, either. I knew, of course, that if it was to gain her, that she was not worth gaining – not like that – I knew that – but – [Now justifying himself to BIDDY.] Well how could I, a poor dazed village lad, how could I possibly be expected to stay satisfied with that life, when –	995
	This outburst is suddenly curtailed by a sudden knocking on the door.	1000

SCENE 17: GREAT EXPECTATIONS

JAGGERS:	[Surveying these humble surroundings, and wiping his hands on his handkerchief.] Well!
PIP:	It was the gentleman I'd seen in the house.
JAGGERS:	[Cutting him off.] Quite. From information I have received, I have reason to believe there is a blacksmith among you, by name of Joseph Gargery?	1005
BIDDY:	He's out, sir.
JAGGERS:	Is he...? – Has he an apprentice, commonly known as Pip? Answer the question yes or no.
BIDDY:	He has...	1010
JAGGERS:	My name is Jaggers, and I am a lawyer. In London. I commence by explaining, the unusual business I have to transact with you is not of my originating. If my advice had been asked, I should not have been here. It was not. I am the bearer of an offer to relieve Mr Gargery of his apprentice. [He places the papers on the table.] And to this young fellow the communication I have got to make is, that he has Great Expectations.	1015
COMPANY:	!

- JAGGERS: I am instructed to communicate to him that he will come into a handsome property. Further, that it is the desire of the present possessor of this property that he be immediately removed from his present sphere of life, and be brought up, as a gentleman. 1020
- COMPANY: Oh!
- JAGGERS: Now, Mr Pip, I address the rest of what I have to say, to you. You are to understand, first, that it is the request of the person from whom I take my instructions that you shall always bear the name of Pip – you have no objection – ? 1025
- PIP: [He can barely stammer it out.] None.
- JAGGERS: – I should think not; second, that the name of the person who is your liberal benefactor remains a profound secret, until that person chooses to reveal it – I am empowered to mention that it is the intention of the person to reveal it at first hand, by word of mouth; when or where that intention may be carried out, I cannot say. No one can – and meanwhile, third, you are most positively prohibited from making any enquiry or any allusion or reference whatsoever as to the identity of this individual to me. Any objection to that? 1030
- PIP: N-none.
- JAGGERS: I should think not! Now, Mr Pip, to details; there is, already, lodged in my hands a sum of money amply sufficient for your suitable maintenance. In addition, it is considered that you must be better educated, in accordance with your altered position. You will of course be alive to the importance and necessity of entering at once on that advantage. 1035
- PIP: It is what I have always longed for. 1040
- COMPANY: !!!!!
- JAGGERS: Never mind what you have always longed for, Mr Pip. If you long for it now, that's enough. First, you must have some new clothes... 1045
- The COMPANY burst in, in a flurry of obsequiousness, and swiftly give PIP all that he needs to be a gentleman by way of new clothes, hats, gloves, valises – whatever.*
- MR PUMBLECHOOK: Indeed he must sir –
- COMPANY: And new gloves, sir – 1055
- Much in vogue among the gentry, sir –
- A very sweet article sir –
- Really extra super –
- Amen
- Etc... 1060
- JAGGERS: And, you'll want some money...shall we say twenty guineas?...
- COMPANY: Twenty!
- MR PUMBLECHOOK: Oh my dear friend – may I – may I?
- JAGGERS: And the sooner you leave here, the better.
- The COMPANY is stopped in its tracks by this news.* 1065

Leave that is, for London.

COMPANY: [Mouths, in stunned silence.] LONDON?!

BIDDY: London?!

JAGGERS: [Handing PIP a business card.] Take a hackney carriage from the coach office, and come straight to me. 1070

PIP: Mr Jaggars –

JAGGERS: [Already exiting.] Hmn?

PIP: I beg your pardon, but would there be any objection to my taking leave of any one I know before I go away?

JAGGERS: None. 1075

PIP: I mean – up town.

JAGGERS: No. No objection. [He is gone.]

PIP: Thank you.

Working hard to ignore and/or defy BIDDY's questioning stare, he fiddles self-importantly with some detail of his new outfit, and then, finally satisfied with his appearance – and treating the COMPANY as if he were a gentleman and they were all his staff – asks them to expedite the next step of his journey. 1080

Well? Thank you!

They bring him to the front door of Satis House, and there is a final flurry of obsequious, whispered farewells. 1085

MR PUMBLECHOOK: Well deserved, sir – well deserved...

MR WOPSLE: London. Amen. Amen...

PIP rings the doorbell.

SCENE 18: GOODBYES

At first no one comes, but then – 1090

SARAH: [Seeing his outfit.] What do you want?

PIP: [Already attempting to act the gentleman.] I am going to London, Miss Pocket, and wished to say goodbye to Miss Havisham.

Reeling with jealousy, she slams the door in his face – 1095

SARAH: Wait here –

MISS HAVISHAM'S VOICE BEHIND THE DOOR: Who is it Sarah?

SARAH opens it again. Staring disbelievingly at him all the time, she escorts him in.

MISS HAVISHAM: Pip... Well? 1100

PIP: [Bowing.] Miss Havisham. I thought you might kindly not mind my taking leave of you.

MISS HAVISHAM: This is a fine figure, Pip.

PIP: I have come into such good fortune, Miss Havisham, since I saw you last – and I am so grateful for it, Miss Havisham. 1105

MISS HAVISHAM: Ah! I had heard about that, Pip. From Mr Jaggars. You are

- adopted by a rich person, are you not?
 PIP: Yes, Miss Havisham.
 MISS HAVISHAM: Not named?
 PIP: No, Miss Havisham. 1110
 MISS HAVISHAM: And Mr Jaggers is made your guardian.
 PIP: Yes, Miss Havisham.
 MISS HAVISHAM: And you go tomorrow to London.
 PIP: Yes, Miss Havisham.
- A beat.* 1115
- MISS HAVISHAM: Well!...you have a promising career before you. Be good; deserve it. Goodbye, Pip!
- She stretches out her hand: PIP goes down on one knee and kisses her hand.*
- You will always keep the name of Pip, you know. 1120
- PIP: Yes, Miss Havisham.
 MISS HAVISHAM: Goodbye.
- MISS HAVISHAM exits.
- SARAH: [Apoplectic with jealousy.] Deserve it? Deserve it!!
- She exits.* 1125
- PIP: Goodbye, Miss Pocket.
- [To himself.] Goodbye Bidy. And goodbye...Joe.
- JOE: Goodbye Pip Old Chap...
- PIP: [To the audience.] I left early – I wanted to go alone. On the coach, I did think of turning back. But it was too late. Too...far. 1130
- All the mists on the marshes had risen...and the whole world lay spread before me: like a dream!
- MISS HAVISHAM: Like a dream, Pip. Like a dream. Like a dream.
- the sound of MAGWITCH's file...
- COMPANY: This is the end of the first stage of Pip's Great Expectations. 1135

EXTRACT*Taken from Oliver Twist, by Charles Dickens, adapted for the stage by Neil Bartlett

These notes are intended to help you understand the context of the drama.

The extract is taken from Charles Dickens's Oliver Twist, adapted for the stage by Neil Bartlett. Dickens provides social commentary on the desperate situation facing the destitute in the workhouses of Victorian England, places where the poor were virtually imprisoned and forced to work for their keep. The play also reveals the prevalence of petty crime on the streets of London, and the way it affects the life of one particular orphan, Oliver Twist.

The adaptation was originally performed in 2004 in London, by a company of twelve actors with some doubling of roles. The play is in two Acts, and the extract consists of Act One, Scenes 1–9.

ACT ONE

SCENE ONE

Treats of the place where Oliver Twist was born, and of the circumstances attending his birth

Silence.

A single figure (the actor who will play the DODGER, though his costume does not yet declare as much) is there on the stage, intently reading a book. Really intently.

Another figure comes on and reads over his shoulder, and another and another, until there are eleven of them – the COMPANY. 5

They look at the audience. They have a story to tell. They have a challenge:

DODGER: It is a solemn thing to hear, in a darkened room, the voice of a child ... recounting a catalogue of the evils and calamities which hard men have 10 brought upon him. Oh!, if we bestowed but one thought on that dark evidence of human error; if we heard for but one instant, in imagination, that deep testimony, which no power can stifle and no pride shut out – where would be injury, and injustice, and cruelty, and wrong ...? ... Two, three, four: 15

Unexpectedly,

Ensemble chorus (may be sung or spoken)

COMPANY: There are some people, of so refined and delicate a nature,
They would safely relegate to other centuries all images of vice, of 20 hunger and of horror;
Such may object, it being written in 1837, our tale is now not so much true as old;
Well we are glad to have its moral doubted, for in that we find assurance that it needed to be told:
To be sure, it is a work of fiction; 25
An impossibility, an anomaly, an apparent contradiction;
For it finds Hope, flourishing, where all hope was past;
It shows, in little Oliver, the principle of Good surviving through every adverse circumstance, and triumphing at the last!!

THE STORY BEGINS

DODGER: On ... a day and date which we need not take upon ourselves to repeat, 30 since it can be of no possible consequence – there was born ... the item of mortality whose name is prefixed to tonight's story.

He was born in a workhouse –

As the DODGER turns the page, suddenly, very swiftly, rather alarmingly and without any command apparently being given, the COMPANY 35 arrange themselves into a

TABLEAU

FEATURING OLIVER'S DYING MOTHER, A NEWBORN BABY, A DOCTOR, MRS CORNEY AND SEVERAL ELDERLY FEMALE WORKHOUSE INMATES.

	For some time after he was ushered into this world –	40
INMATE ONE:	This world of sorrow and trouble ...
DODGER:	It remained a matter of considerable doubt whether the child would survive to bear any name at all ...
INMATE TWO:	In which case, this memoir need never have appeared –
DODGER:	Or if it had, would possess the inestimable merit of being the most concise and faithful specimen of dramatic biography extant.	45
	However ...
	After a few seconds ...
	After a few struggles ...
	The child breathed.	50
	The sound of a baby choking into life and starting to cry as it is passed carelessly from INMATE to INMATE.
	If he'd known he was an orphan, perhaps he would have cried even louder.
DOCTOR:	It's all over, Mrs Corney.	55
MRS CORNEY:	Ah, poor dear so it is. Poor dear.
DOCTOR:	A good looking girl, too.
MRS CORNEY:	Found lying in the street.
DODGER:	Where she came from, or where she was going to, nobody knew.
DOCTOR:	The old story. No wedding ring, I see.	60
INMATES:	Ah!
DOCTOR:	It's very likely the child will be troublesome. Give it gruel, if it is.
MRS CORNEY:	Yes Doctor.

The INMATES are busy with the baby; MRS CORNEY is left alone with the body. She sees something around its neck, and steals it. 65

Suddenly, a terrible noise; workhouse bell or alarm or rattle.

SCENE TWO

Oliver Twist's growth, education and care

Enter MR BUMBLE. The action of transforming from INMATES back into COMPANY indicates the workhouse routine, the preparations for daily feeding time of the workhouse boys; a table, bowls, gruel et cetera.

A sign has been put up, reading 10. 70

MR BUMBLE reads this to the audience as if giving a lesson to stupid illiterate children who he beats when they get it wrong.

- MR BUMBLE: Ten – one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine ... ten!!! Ten years old already. Not that he knows he is.
- MRS CORNEY: [Busy with preparations.] The boy's a fool. 75
- MR BUMBLE: And sickly, Mrs Corney, obstinately sickly.
- MRS CORNEY: Well Mr Bumble hard as it is for us has charge of them to see the little ones suffer before our very eyes, they will sicken ... they get themselves smothered, they fall into the fire, they get themselves scalded to death when there's a washing ... Still, I always say, they may have no father and no mother but they're neat, they're clean, they says prayers every night for the people who feeds them, and sevenpence halfpenny per head per week is a good round diet for any child ... 80
- MR BUMBLE: And notwithstanding the most superlative, and, I may say, supernat'ral exertions on the part of this parish Mrs Corney, we have never been able to discover his mother's settlement, name, or condition. 85
- MRS CORNEY: How comes he to have any name at all, then?
- MR BUMBLE: I invented it.
- MRS CORNEY: You, Mr Bumble? What a literary character you are.
- MR BUMBLE: I, Mrs Corney. I name my fondlings in alphabetical order. The last was a Swubble, the next as came was a Unwin, the next Vilkins, but this was a T. Twist, Mrs Corney. Oliver Twist. 90
- MRS CORNEY: Hmph!
- OLIVER appears.
- MR BUMBLE: Oliver Twist. A naughty orphan, which nobody can't love. 95
- MR BUMBLE raps on the floor with his staff.
- TABLEAU
THE BOYS SAY GRACE.
- BOYS: Our Father
Which art in heaven – 100
- MRS CORNEY: We humbly entreat you to be made good, virtuous, and obedient, and to be guarded from all the sins and vices of appetite. Amen.
- BOYS: [Sing.] Amen.
- A second rap on the floor from MR BUMBLE; it is feeding time. A desperate scraping of bowls with spoons, followed by silence.* 105
- TABLEAU
OF THE BOYS 'DESPERATE WITH HUNGER AND RECKLESS WITH MISERY'.
- The boys elect OLIVER as their representative.*
- OLIVER: Please.
- Please, Sir, I want some more. 110
- MR BUMBLE gazes at him in stupefied astonishment; MRS CORNEY is paralysed with wonder; the BOYS with fear.
- MR BUMBLE: What?
- OLIVER: Please, sir, I want some more.

MRS CORNEY screams in horror. There is a general start. Horror is depicted on every countenance. Manic rearrangement into a new 115

TABLEAU

OF THE WORKHOUSE BOARD.

MR BUMBLE: I beg your pardon, gentlemen. Oliver Twist has asked for more! 120
THE CHAIRMAN

OF THE BOARD: For more!
BOARDMEMBER: He does know he's an orphan, I suppose?

MR BUMBLE: He does.
BOARDMEMBER: Knows he's got no father or mother?

THE CHAIRMAN 125
OF THE BOARD: That boy will be hung.
BOARD: Hear hear!!

THE CHAIRMAN
OF THE BOARD: I know that boy will be hung.

BOARD: Hung! 130
THE CHAIRMAN

OF THE BOARD: Mr Bumble!
MR BUMBLE: Sir!

MR BUMBLE's cane has come out and is swishing in anticipation ...

THE CHAIRMAN 135
OF THE BOARD: Post the bill!!
MR BUMBLE: I will Sir!!

The BOARD go off muttering as a sign in Roman capitals of a gigantic size is pasted up outside the workhouse gate, announcing

[Reading.] By Order of this Parish, For Sale, a Parochial Prentice-Boy 140

FIVE POUNDS

To anybody who will take
Oliver Twist off the hands of this Parish

MR BUMBLE: [Reading again.] Five pounds; Oliver Twist; anybody. 145
Oliver!

OLIVER: Sir.
MR BUMBLE: Oliver, the kind and bless-ed gentlemen which is so many parents to you, Oliver, you having not one of your own, being a naughty orphan which nobody can't love [Swishing of the cane.] are a going to prentice you and set you up in life, and make a man of you. [Swish.] 150

[Exhibiting the child to the audience, and attempting to raise a bid from the audience.] Five Pounds. Five pounds a Parochial Prentice. Anybody ...

Come now, gentlemen – a critical moment of the boy's fate, gentlemen – bow to the gentlemen Oliver – Oliver ... Don't cry. That's a very foolish action, sir. Look happy. Happy! Well! Well! – Of all the ungratefulest – 155

MR BUMBLE is drowned out by –

SCENE THREE
Oliver apprenticed

MUSIC: THE FUNERAL MARCH.

A funeral procession enters, as if Death had come for the child. This procession is led by MR and MRS SOWERBERRY, with NOAH and CHARLOTTE. Black drapery, hatbands and plumes, mutes and band of MOURNERS providing the music. 160

- MR BUMBLE: Mr Sowerberry sir, you don't know anybody who wants a boy, do you? – a parochial prentice? [Indicating the bill.] Liberal terms, Mr Sowerberry, liberal terms. Five. Pounds.
- MR SOWERBERRY: I should say three pounds ten was plenty. 165
- MRS SOWERBERRY: I should say it was ten shillings too much –
- MR BUMBLE: Four pounds –
- MRS SOWERBERRY: Three pounds –
- MR BUMBLE: Three pounds fifteen –
- MRS SOWERBERRY: Three pounds – 170
- MR BUMBLE: Sold. He's just the boy for you, ma'am. He wants the stick, now and then, but it does him good. Oliver!
- OLIVER: Yes sir.
- MR BUMBLE: Hold your head up. [He doesn't.] Well! Of all the ungratefulest, and worst-disposed boys as I ever saw, you is the worst, Oliver. [The cane rises ...] 175
- OLIVER: No – no, sir. But I am ... I am so ...
- MR BUMBLE: So what?
- OLIVER: Lonely, sir.
- MR BUMBLE: [Disengaging himself with difficulty, coughs, hemms.] Well then, you ... 180 you be a good boy. Good.
- OLIVER: Yes, sir.

Exit MR BUMBLE, moved despite himself, shooing off the MOURNERS.

- MRS SOWERBERRY: He's very small.
- MR SOWERBERRY: He'll grow, my dear, he'll grow. 185
- MRS SOWERBERRY: I dare say he will, on our victuals and our drink.

Charlotte! Give this boy some of the cold bits that were put by for the dog. I dare say the boy isn't too dainty to eat 'em – are you, boy?

- OLIVER: No ma'am.
- They watch in silent horror as they witness the terrible hunger with which OLIVER, eating on the floor like a dog, tears the bits apart.* 190

- CHARLOTTE: How 'orrible.
- MR SOWERBERRY: Horrible.
- CHARLOTTE: Dreadful.
- MRS SOWERBERRY: Dreadful. Well, have you done? 195
- OLIVER: Yes.
- MRS SOWERBERRY: Well get down stairs, little bag of bones. You don't mind sleeping under the counter, I suppose, not that it doesn't much matter whether you do or don't, you can't sleep anywhere else. Come on, don't keep me here all night. 200

OLIVER is put to bed. Scrutinised by the SOWERBERRIES, he goes to sleep.

MR SOWERBERRY: My dear.

MRS SOWERBERRY: Yes.

MR SOWERBERRY: Nothing, my dear, nothing. I was only going to say ... a very-good-looking boy, this, my dear. 205

MRS SOWERBERRY: He needs be, he eats enough.

MR SOWERBERRY: Such an expression of melancholy in his face ... In a black suit, and hatband, he would surely excite great emotion at funerals, my dear, great emotion. In the mothers. 210

MRS SOWERBERRY: Very novel I'm sure.

MR SOWERBERRY: Do boys dream, do you think, my dear?

MRS SOWERBERRY: Don't ask me. I don't want to intrude on anybody's secrets. What's he got to be dreaming of? [Exiting.]

MR SOWERBERRY: That he is in a coffin, perhaps; and being laid down to sleep for ever. 215

TABLEAU

OLIVER ASLEEP AMONGST THE COFFINS.

With MR SOWERBERRY like Death standing over him.

Jump cut; next morning.

Banging on a door. 220

NOAH: Open the door, will you.

OLIVER unlocks the door and lets NOAH in.

You're the new boy, ain't you?

OLIVER: Yes sir.

NOAH: How old are you? 225

OLIVER: Ten.

NOAH: You don't know who I am, do you?

OLIVER: No, sir.

NOAH: I'm Mister Noah Claypole, and you're under me. Which means I can whop you, whenever I wants to. 230

Enter CHARLOTTE with a breakfast tray for NOAH; she lovingly feeds him bacon, as –

CHARLOTTE: Oliver, shut that door at Mister Noah's back, take your tea away and drink it over there – [As he does.] and make haste; they'll be wanting you to mind the shop. 235

NOAH: [Eating bacon.] Workhouse.

CHARLOTTE: Lor, Noah, let the boy alone!

NOAH: How is your Mother, Workhouse?

OLIVER: She's dead.

CHARLOTTE: Oh! 240

NOAH: What she die of, Workhouse? – a broken heart!! – [Sings. 'Tol lol de rol' et cetera to the tune of The Funeral March, while acting out dying of a broken heart, trying to make OLIVER cry – CHARLOTTE joins the game.] Oh! – aaaah – is you a snivelling, Oliver?

OLIVER: No. 245

- NOAH: Oh?
 OLIVER: No.
 NOAH: Cause you know, Workhouse, it can't be helped now, and I'm very sorry for it – and I'm sure we all are – and pity you very much, but you must know, Workhouse, your Mother was a regular right-down bad 'un. 250
- CHARLOTTE: Oh!
 NOAH: A regular right-down bad 'un, Workhouse, and it's a great deal better that she died when she did, or else she'd have been hard labouring by now, or transported, or which is more likely than either ... hung!!!
- OLIVER, being goaded by the Taunts of Noah, rouses into Action, and rather astonishes everyone; i.e. he wallops NOAH. CHARLOTTE and NOAH then proceed to beat him up, during which –* 255
- Charlotte!
- CHARLOTTE: O you little wretch!
 NOAH: Help! 260
 CHARLOTTE: You little un-grate-ful, mur-der-rous, horrid villain!
 NOAH: Help! The new boy's a murdering of me! Oliver's gone mad! Help! Charlotte! Missis!
- Enter MRS SOWERBERRY.*
- MRS SOWERBERRY: Aaaaaaargh! 265
- MRS SOWERBERRY holds OLIVER so that CHARLOTTE can punch him while she slaps him; once he is thus secured NOAH gets up and hits him from behind. They lock OLIVER up in a big box or a coffin. OLIVER continues to kick and scream inside it.*
- This being done, MRS SOWERBERRY sinks into a chair.* 270
- Oh! –
- CHARLOTTE: Bless her, she's fainting. A glass of water, Noah –
- Exit NOAH.*
- MRS SOWERBERRY: Oh! Charlotte!
 CHARLOTTE: Ma'am, that boy's a dreadful creature; send for the police officers! 275
 NOAH: [Returning.] Send for the military!
 MRS SOWERBERRY: And no man in the house –
- NOAH throws his glass of water in her face as enter MR SOWERBERRY –*
- Oh!!!
- NOAH: Oh!!! 280
 CHARLOTTE: Oh, sir – Oliver, sir, Oliver!
 MR SOWERBERRY: Not run away; he hasn't run away!!
 CHARLOTTE: Not run away sir; he's turned vicious.
 NOAH: He tried to murder me, sir, and then he tried to murder Charlotte, and then Missis. Oh, what dreadful pain it is, please, sir, oh, the agony, the 285 agony sir, the pain et cetera.

Suddenly enter:

MR BUMBLE: Murder! I knew it! I felt a strange presentiment from the very first that that audacious young savage would come to be hung.
MRS CORNEY: Bad blood Mr Bumble. That mother of his made her way here against difficulties and pain that would have killed any well-disposed woman, weeks before. 290

MR BUMBLE kicks or thumps the box in which OLIVER is locked.

MR BUMBLE: Oliver –
OLIVER: Let me out!!! 295
MR BUMBLE: – do you know this here voice, Oliver?
OLIVER: Yes!!
MR BUMBLE: Ain't you afraid of it, sir? Ain't you a-trembling?
OLIVER: No!!
ALL: Oh!!!! 300
MRS CORNEY: Mr Bumble, he must be mad –
MR BUMBLE: It's not Madness ma'am. It's Meat.
MRS SOWERBERRY: Meat?
MR BUMBLE: Meat. You've over-fed him ma'am. If you had kept the boy on gruel, this would never have happened. 305
MRS SOWERBERRY: Dear, dear! – this is what comes of being liberal.

MR SOWERBERRY loses his patience and thwacks the box.

MR SOWERBERRY: Oliver, you're a nice boy, ain't you!
OLIVER: He called my mother names!
MR SOWERBERRY: Well she deserved it! 310
OLIVER: She didn't!!
ALL: OH YES SHE DID!! –
MRS SOWERBERRY: [Punctuating her remarks with a vicious thrashing of the box – she would clearly like to be thrashing the child in it.] – you ill-conditioned! naughty! hardened! bad-disposed boy! born of a bad mother! born to go wrong at one time or another! born to the misery of an idle life! lazy! ungrateful! ... ungrateful! ... oh! 315

A few more gratuitous thwacks, kicks and thrashes on the box, and they all exit. Silence.

SCENE FOUR

Oliver walks to London. He encounters on the road a strange sort of young gentleman.

When they've all gone DODGER comes back on. With the book. 320

DODGER: It was not until he was left alone that Oliver gave way to his feelings. Hiding his face in his hands, he wept – wept such tears as, God send for the credit of our natures, few so young may ever have cause to pour out before him.
And then, with no one there to see him or to hear him ... Oliver decided ... 325

He had better try to live.

DODGER opens the box, and OLIVER looks out of it, during:

It was a cold, dark night. The stars seemed, to a boy's eyes, farther from the earth than they had ever been before. There was no wind. 330

DODGER is not so much narrating as egging him on.

The first rays of light struggled through the shutters.

OLIVER listens and looks carefully around.

He got up, and he unbarred the door.

OLIVER gets out of the box. 335

One last look around – one moment's pause of hesitation – and he was in the open street.

DODGER closes and clears the box. Now the sun begins to slowly rise on an open landscape.

By eight o'clock he was nearly five miles away from the town. 340

MR BUMBLE and MR SOWERBERRY cross as if in pursuit; OLIVER hides behind DODGER.

MR SOWERBERRY: You won't spare him Mr Bumble –

MR BUMBLE: No, I will not, sir. I never do anything with a boy, without stripes and bruises. 345

They exit.

DODGER: He hid behind hedges.

Another four miles and he gained the high-road. At noon, he sat down for a rest by the side of a milestone.

[He reads the stone to OLIVER.] Seventy miles to London. 350

London.

London!!

Nobody could ever find him there! No lad of spirit need want in London; there are ways of living in that vast city which those who have been bred up in country parts have no idea of. It is the very place for a homeless boy ... who feels cold, and hungry, and has no-one to care for and no-one to take care of him ... a naughty boy, which nobody can't love ... a boy that everybody hates. 355

The sun is now blazing.

The first day, Oliver walked twenty miles. Then, being very tired, he slept. Then got up. And walked. Then slept. Then got up. And walked. For seven days. 360

On the seventh morning, he got to a place called Barnet; his feet were bleeding, and he was too tired even to beg.

People stared at him, but no one troubled themselves to inquire how the boy came to be there. Sat upon a cold door-step. Well you don't, do you? And then – [DODGER starts to transform himself into THE DODGER.] – he observed that another boy – a dirty, common-faced, strange boy – was surveying him. Most earnestly.
The DODGER pockets the book. 370

Hello my covey. What's the row?

OLIVER: I am very hungry and tired. I have walked a long way.
DODGER: Oh, I see. Going to London?
OLIVER: Yes.
DODGER: Got any lodgings? 375
OLIVER: No.
DODGER: Money?
OLIVER: No.
DODGER: [Whistles.] And I suppose you want some place to sleep in tonight, don't you? 380
OLIVER: Yes.
DODGER: Well ... don't you fret your eyelids on that score. I know a 'spectable old genelman as lives in London, what'll give you lodgings for nothink, and never ask for the change – that is, if it's a genelman he knows interduces you. And does he know me? Oh no. Not in the least. By no means. 385
Certainly not. John – also known as Jack – Dawkins, Mister; and, to his mates, the Dodger, Artful.
OLIVER: Twist. Oliver.
DODGER: Twist Oliver; on your pins. There! Now ... off to London!

The DODGER describes the route. 390

From Barnet to Field Lane, via Whetstone, Finchley, Archway, Holloway ...

All the way down Upper Street, down to the Angel ...
Down the passage by the side of the old workhouse (spits) ...
Gets a bit narrow, gets a bit muddy, down to the bottom of the hill ...
Field Lane. Just off Farringdon Road ... 395

Shops – all boarded up; dogs, children – at this time of night!; public houses – wrangling, screaming, wallowing, all a bit drunken, all a bit dirty; beer, fried fish: a bit ... wretched; dark; broken, greasy, a bit ... filthy –

OLIVER makes a move to run away – DODGER grabs him by the collar.

– ah, ah, ah ... through a door; down a passage; close the door ... 400

SCENE FIVE

Oliver meets a pleasant old gentleman

The DODGER whistles.

CHARLEY: [A voice behind a door.] Now then!
DODGER: Plummy and Slam!

Six of FAGIN's BOYS emerge from the woodwork, all in strange lurid clothes, as the footlights begin to glow. Humming and whistling ... 405

CHARLEY: There's two of you. Who's the other one?
 DODGER: A new pal.
 TOM: Where did he come from?
 DODGER: Greenland. Where's Fagin?
 TOBY: In the back, sortin' the wipes. 410

OLIVER is surrounded by and trapped amidst these alarming creatures, who are smoking and drinking. They look as though they might do something dreadful to him – but then – there, suddenly, in the midst of them, as if he had come from nowhere, is FAGIN.

The DODGER whispers something to him. FAGIN turns round, and grins at OLIVER. 415

TABLEAU

THE MERRY OLD GENTLEMAN AND HIS BOYS

Then:

DODGER: This is him, Fagin; my friend, Oliver Twist. 420

FAGIN bows and takes his hand.

FAGIN: I do hope I shall have the honour of your intimate acquaintance, my dear.

Boys ...

The BOYS move in to be introduced ... 425

Mr Toby Crackit ... Mr Charley Bates ...

TOM: Mr Tom Chitlin –

The BOYS begin to rifle OLIVER's pockets, steal his cap et cetera, and FAGIN beats them off with his toasting fork.

FAGIN: We are very glad to see you, Oliver, very. Charley, take off the sausages ... 430

CHARLEY: Yes, Fagin.

FAGIN: Thank you Charley. Suppertime, Oliver. Dodger, draw a tub near the fire for Oliver.

The BOYS prepare to eat; an echo of the mealtime preparations in the Workhouse. 435

Under FAGIN's fierce parental eye, each boy in turn is served a sausage, and wolfs it.

Are you hungry, Oliver?

OLIVER: Yes, sir. 440

He is served with his sausage, and wolfs it ...

FAGIN: Well eat your share, and then I'll mix you a nice glass of hot gin and water.

It is immediately provided.

Drink it off directly, there's another gentleman wanting the tumbler. 445

Would you like some more, Oliver?

But having drunk the gin, OLIVER immediately falls asleep.

Put him to bed, Dodger.

And the rest of you. Bed!

Swiftly, blankets et cetera ... 450

Now go to sleep.

Go to sleep.

FAGIN dims the lights, and looks round at his little sleeping team, huddled in corners with their sleeping bags ...

– Good dogs. Clever dogs ... And you, Dodger! 455

He checks on OLIVER, who is already asleep. He locks the door. He looks at OLIVER again.

Face like an angel.

FAGIN looks at the audience ...

Now that he is sure they are all asleep, he locks the door, then he opens a trap in the floor and takes out a small box. It is full of his treasures. 460

... Good dogs ... staunch to the last. Never tell where the loot is, would you?

[To the audience.] And why would they, eh? It wouldn't loosen the knot, wouldn't keep the drop up a moment longer. No, no, no! What a fine thing capital punishment is ... dead men never repent ... dead boys neither; never talk, never bring any awkward stories to light ... 465

Beautiful ... beau-ti-ful things.

He fingers his treasures ...

Suddenly FAGIN realises that OLIVER is awake and spying on him. He pulls a knife. 470

FAGIN: Why are you awake?

OLIVER: I couldn't sleep.

FAGIN: What did you see?

OLIVER:	Nothing –	475
FAGIN:	Are you sure?
OLIVER:	Yes.
FAGIN:	Of course you are. Tush tush. I only tried to frighten you. You're a brave boy. Ha! ha! you're a brave boy, Oliver! Did you see any of those pretty things, just then?	480
OLIVER:	Yes, sir.
FAGIN:	Ah! They – they're mine, Oliver. My little property. All I have to live on in my old age. It's a poor trade, you see, and everybody has to be careful for himself, Oliver! ... Some conjurors say that number three is the magic number, and some say number seven, but it's neither, Oliver, neither. It's number one.	485
OLIVER:	Number one?
FAGIN:	And in a little community like ours, my dear, we have a general number one; that is, you can't consider yourself as number one, without considering me as the same. You see we are all so mixed up together, and identified in our interests. Remember that, Oliver. Now go back to sleep ... Good boy. Good boy. Sweet dreams.	490
	OLIVER is asleep.
	Sweet dreams.
	FAGIN looks at the boy; then looks at the audience watching him do it; then blows out the candle. The night passes. OLIVER tosses and turns in his sleep.	495

SCENE SIX

Which is short, but a key to one that will follow
when its time arrives

MR BUMBLE and MRS CORNEY walk in through one of the walls and cross the scene like sharks drifting through a tank.

MR BUMBLE:	Stole it, my fascinators?	500
MRS CORNEY:	When she was stone dead I stole it – and yes, it is gold, I tell you. Gold that might have saved her life, had she not hid it. That child, Mr Bumble, that child was the offspring of a guilty union.
MR BUMBLE:	Yes, my love.
	FAGIN closes the door behind them as they leave.	505

SCENE SEVEN

Oliver becomes better acquainted with the merry old gentleman and his hopeful pupils

FAGIN:	Oliver. Oliver, wake up.
	OLIVER wakes up with a start from his nightmare.
	It's breakfast time. Are you hungry, Oliver?

- OLIVER: Yes, sir.
- FAGIN whistles and we jump cut to a cold bright morning. At top speed the BOYS pack their bedding away and produce hot rolls and ham from their hats; hot coffee appears; this is all done like a conjuring trick. The family has its breakfast together as – 510
- FAGIN: Well boys I hope you've been at work when out this morning.
 DODGER: Hard – 515
 CHARLEY: – As nails.
 FAGIN: Good boys, good boys. And what have you got, Dodger?
- DODGER – again like a magician – dazzling OLIVER – produces a watch and snuff box and spectacles ...
- DODGER: ... and ... a couple of wallets. 520
 FAGIN: Lined?
 DODGER: Pretty well.
 FAGIN: Not so heavy as they might be, but very neat and nicely made. Ingenious workman, ain't he, Oliver, eh?
- OLIVER: Very. 525
 CHARLEY: Ha! Ha! Ha!
 FAGIN: And what have you got Charley?
 CHARLEY: Wipes.
 FAGIN: And very good ones, very – you'd like to be able to make pocket-handkerchiefs as easy as Charley Bates, wouldn't you, Oliver? 530
- OLIVER: Very much if you'll teach me.
 CHARLEY: Ain't he green, Fagin!!
- CHARLEY laughs his laugh again and FAGIN shuts him up.
- DODGER: He'll know better, bye-and-bye, won't you, Oliver?
 FAGIN: Shall we play our game, boys? 535
- FAGIN loads up his pockets with all the morning's loot and pretends to be an old gentleman walking up and down the street looking in shop windows, humming a little tune and constantly checking that there are no thieves about and checking his pockets. He invites TOM to have a go at picking his pockets. Every time he feels a hand in his pocket, he cries out. TOM fails once too often, and FAGIN chastises him. 540
- No! No! You ill-conditioned, naughty, miserable! idle! lazy! ungrateful!
- As FAGIN continues NANCY enters.
- NANCY: Ill-treating the boys again I see, Fagin.
 FAGIN: Nancy, good morning. 545
 NANCY: And what's this?
 FAGIN: The new boy. Oliver, Miss Nancy.
 NANCY: How old are you?
 OLIVER: Ten.
 NANCY: God help you. 550
 FAGIN: We were just showing Oliver our game, Nancy. Charley, Dodger – Nancy ...
 NANCY: Conjure up a drink – and I might.

FAGIN indicates someone to pour NANCY a gin as requested. The game continues, with NANCY, after she's had her drink, joining in, and CHARLEY and DODGER proving themselves expert, taking from FAGIN, with extraordinary rapidity, snuff-box, note-case, watch and chain and handkerchief. Applause; which we see OLIVER join in. This is noted by FAGIN. 555

FAGIN: [To the audience.] Good boys. See what a pride they take in their profession! See what a pride they take in their profession, Oliver. Beautiful, ain't it? Right; pad the hoof the lot of you. [As the boys exit.] 560

NANCY: Bill says where's the cash?

FAGIN: My dear, I haven't so much as would –

NANCY: He don't want to know how much you've got, he just needs it this morning. 565

FAGIN: [Handing over money.] Tell Bill, I know he'll do me a good turn another time, eh?

NANCY: That's all, is it?

FAGIN: All. Good morning, Nancy.

She goes, and FAGIN locks the door behind her. 570

There now, what a pleasant life, isn't it? Make 'em your models, my dear, make 'em your models, do everything they bid you, and take their advice in all matters; – 'specially the Dodger's – he'll be a great man, that boy, and could make you one too.

Is my handkerchief hanging out of my pocket, Oliver? 575

OLIVER: Yes sir.

FAGIN: See if you can take it out, without my feeling it, as you saw the other boys do when we played our game ... Is it gone?

OLIVER: Here it is, sir.

FAGIN: No! You are a clever boy. I never saw a sharper lad. Here's a shilling for you. Now remember; if you go on, in this way, you'll be a great man – the greatest man of the time. 580

FAGIN goes to leave him alone and locked up.

OLIVER: I should like to go out, sir. With the others.

FAGIN: Should you, Oliver, should you? 585

OLIVER: Yes sir.

FAGIN: Already?

OLIVER: Yes, sir.

FAGIN: ... well.

He whistles. 590

CHARLEY and DODGER, using a streetname sign, take us to a street in Clerkenwell, a slightly wealthier area of London.

SCENE EIGHT

Oliver becomes better acquainted with the characters of his new associates, and purchases experience at a high price

As if the game of learning how to be a pickpocket were continuing, FAGIN brings on MR BROWNLOW, a well-dressed gentleman browsing at a bookshop stall. DODGER hands him the book, in which he buries his nose. 595

FAGIN, once everything is set up to his satisfaction, leaves them to it.

CHARLEY and DODGER show OLIVER how to pretend to be sauntering along: TOM and TOBY keep watch.

DODGER suddenly stops and lays his finger on his lips.

OLIVER: What's the matter? 600
 DODGER: Sssh! The old cove with the book. Standing by the bookstall. See him?
 OLIVER: Yes.
 DODGER: He'll do.
 CHARLEY: Prime.
 DODGER: 'Ere, Twist; watch this. 605

OLIVER watches with horror and alarm, eyes wide open as DODGER and CHARLEY give a running commentary on the execution of the theft.

One very respectable old personage, wearing ... velvet, nice ... and –

CHARLEY: Gold spectacles.
 DODGER: Reading away, as hard as if he was at home in his very own chair. Which 610 he very possibly fancies he is; can't see anything but his book –
 CHARLEY: – can't see the street, can't see any boys –
 DODGER: – can't see Charley, can't see me ... plunging the hand
 Into the pocket ...

And drawing from thence ... 615

The wipe;

Handing the same to my assistant Mr Charley Bates – I thank you –

And then ...

Scarpering round the corner!!

OLIVER is rooted to the spot. 620

MR BROWNLOW puts his hand to his pocket, misses his handkerchief, turns sharply round. He sees the boy.

MR BROWNLOW: Stop – Thief!!

With OLIVER still frozen to the spot, a CROWD OF BYSTANDERS emerge to deliver the following joyously violent chorus, during which OLIVER attempts to run away. 625

BYSTANDERS: Stop Thief!
 Soon as they heard it, they –
 Stop Thief!
 Up go the windows, and – 630
 Stop Thief!
 Out run the people, and –
 Stop Thief!
 The butcher the baker and
 Stop Thief! 635

The milkman the schoolboys and –
 Stop Thief!
 Stop Thief!
 Stop Thief!

COMPANY CHORUS: [may be spoken or sung] 640

There is a passion for hunting something deeply implanted in the human breast;
 Even when that something is but one wretched breathless boy;
 As he pants with exhaustion, they chase him without rest;
 And as his strength decreases, and the crowd gains upon him, they 645 whoop and scream with joy.

OLIVER is knocked down.

TABLEAU

OF BYSTANDERS GATHERED ROUND AND JOSTLING FOR A GLIMPSE OF THE FALLEN CHILD. 650

Then, in Punch and Judy (puppet show) voices:

BYSTANDER ONE: Oh, what a clever blow!
 BYSTANDER TWO: Down upon the pavement!!
 BYSTANDER THREE: Give him a little air –
 BYSTANDER FOUR: Air? he don't deserve it. 655
 ALL: Oh no he doesn't!!
 BYSTANDER ONE: Where's the gentleman –
 BYSTANDER TWO: Here's the gentleman –

MR BROWNLOW pushes through the crowd.

POLICEMAN: Is this the boy sir? 660
 MR BROWNLOW: Yes – Yes I'm afraid it is the boy.
 BYSTANDERS: Afraid! – that's a good'un ... [Et cetera muttering and murmuring.]
 MR BROWNLOW: I think he's hurt himself –
 BYSTANDER THREE: I did that, sir. Cut my knuckles on his mouth I did. I stopped him.
 MR BROWNLOW: Can you get up – 665
 OLIVER: It wasn't me. It was two other boys.
 ALL: Oh no it wasn't!!

They grab him.

MR BROWNLOW: Don't hurt him!
 ALL: Oh no, we won't!! Two, three, four: 670

A SHORT VIOLENT SONG (may be spoken)

For when a crime's suspected
 The Law most clearly states
 The job of dispensing Justice
 Is the Magistrate's. 675

During the above the BYSTANDERS, with indecent haste, set up a bench, dock etc, and create the next

TABLEAUMR FANG THE POLICE MAGISTRATE.*

SCENE NINE

Introduces Mr Fang, the police magistrate, and furnishes a slight specimen of his mode of administering justice

The Renowned Mr FANG is drunk.

680

BANG!! [Gavel.]

Jump cut into:

MR BROWNLOW: I am the party that was robbed; but I am not at all sure this boy actually took the handkerchief, and I – I would rather not press charges –

MR FANG: Who are you?

685

MR BROWNLOW: [Offering his card.] My name, sir, – my name, sir, is Mr Brownlow –

MR FANG: Officer, what's this fellow charged with?

POLICEMAN: He's –

MR BROWNLOW: Sir, I must –

MR FANG: [Bang.] Silence in Court!

690

MR BROWNLOW: I was standing at a bookstall –

MR FANG: [Bang. Bang.] Are there any witnesses?

POLICEMAN: None, your worship.

MR BROWNLOW: I did, sir, see this boy running away – but I fear that he is very ill –

MR FANG: Boy? What boy? Officer, what's his name? What, what?

695

OLIVER tries to speak but can't.

POLICEMAN: Says his name's Tom White, your worship.

MR FANG: Has he any parents?

OLIVER tries to speak but can't.

POLICEMAN: Died in his infancy, he says, your honour.

700

MR FANG: Stuff and Nonsense! [Bang.]

MR BROWNLOW: The boy really is ill your worship –

MR FANG: Three months!! [Bang.] Hard labour ... [Bang.]

Mixed dismay and approval from the crowd as OLIVER faints. A LAST-MINUTE WITNESS enters.

705

LAST-MINUTE

WITNESS: Stop! Stop! For heaven's sake stop a moment!!

MR FANG: What is this! Clear the Court!!

LAST-MINUTE

WITNESS: I demand to speak! Mr Fang, your worship sir, you must hear me!!

710

MR FANG: Well, what have you got to say?

LAST-MINUTE

WITNESS: I swear –

COURT: He swears!!

LAST-MINUTE

WITNESS: [Sing.] By Almighty God, that the evidence I shall give, shall be the Truth – the whole Truth – and nothing but the Truth – so help me God.

715

Applause.

I saw it done sir; the robbery ...

MR FANG: Yes! 720

LAST-MINUTE

WITNESS: ... was committed ...

MR FANG: Yes!

LAST-MINUTE

WITNESS: By two other boys!! 725

THE ENTIRE

COURTROOM: Oh!

They all turn and stare at MR BROWNLOW.

MR FANG: ... Sir, that book –

MR BROWNLOW: Sir. 730

MR FANG: The book you were reading when the incident took place –

MR BROWNLOW: Yes.

MR FANG: The very book you have now in your hand –

MR BROWNLOW: Sir?

MR FANG: ... Is it paid for? 735

MR BROWNLOW: Dear me, I forgot all about that.

MR FANG: [Bang.] A nice class of person to prefer a charge against a poor innocent boy!! You may think yourself very fortunate, sir, having obtained possession of that book under very suspicious and unfortunate circumstances, that the Law declines to prosecute. The boy ... is ... discharged. [Bang. Bang.] Clear the Court!! Clear the Court!! Officer!! 740

The COURT melts away leaving MR BROWNLOW alone with the perplexing problem of a collapsed and seriously ill boy. MR BROWNLOW takes OLIVER in his arms. As he does, the COMPANY just pause on their exits and see this happen. 745

Then, MR BROWNLOW takes OLIVER away ...

CHARLEY: [Because he thinks this is the end of the story.] ... Aaaaah! Altogether now, aaaaah ...

DODGER: Hold your noise.

CHARLEY: Ha ha ha. 750

DODGER: Do you want to get grabbed, stupid? What'll Fagin say?

CHARLEY: What?

DODGER: Yes, what?

CHARLEY: What d'you mean ...

Enter FAGIN. 755

FAGIN: Why's there only two of you? Where's the third? Where's Oliver? Where's the boy!!! Speak, or I'll throttle you. The boy.

DODGER: The traps got him – and that's about all of it.

FAGIN: So where is he now?

DODGER: Some house in Pentonville. I heard the instructions to the coachman. 760

FAGIN: Pentonville, my dear?

A sign goes up – PENTONVILLE.

MARK SCHEME

Maximum Mark: 80

---

Published

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and candidates, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which Examiners were instructed to award marks. It does not indicate the details of the discussions that took place at an Examiners' meeting before marking began, which would have considered the acceptability of alternative answers.

Mark schemes should be read in conjunction with the question paper and the Principal Examiner Report for Teachers.

Cambridge International will not enter into discussions about these mark schemes.

Cambridge International is publishing the mark schemes for the May/June 2018 series for most Cambridge IGCSE™, Cambridge International A and AS Level and Cambridge Pre-U components, and some Cambridge O Level components.

IGCSE™ is a registered trademark.

This document consists of 15 printed pages.

Generic Marking Principles

These general marking principles must be applied by all examiners when marking candidate answers. They should be applied alongside the specific content of the mark scheme or generic level descriptors for a question. Each question paper and mark scheme will also comply with these marking principles.

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 1:

Marks must be awarded in line with:

- the specific content of the mark scheme or the generic level descriptors for the question
- the specific skills defined in the mark scheme or in the generic level descriptors for the question
- the standard of response required by a candidate as exemplified by the standardisation scripts.

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 2:

Marks awarded are always whole marks (not half marks, or other fractions).

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 3:

Marks must be awarded positively:

- marks are awarded for correct/valid answers, as defined in the mark scheme. However, credit is given for valid answers which go beyond the scope of the syllabus and mark scheme, referring to your Team Leader as appropriate
- marks are awarded when candidates clearly demonstrate what they know and can do
- marks are not deducted for errors
- marks are not deducted for omissions
- answers should only be judged on the quality of spelling, punctuation and grammar when these features are specifically assessed by the question as indicated by the mark scheme. The meaning, however, should be unambiguous.

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 4:

Rules must be applied consistently e.g. in situations where candidates have not followed instructions or in the application of generic level descriptors.

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 5:

Marks should be awarded using the full range of marks defined in the mark scheme for the question (however; the use of the full mark range may be limited according to the quality of the candidate responses seen).

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 6:

Marks awarded are based solely on the requirements as defined in the mark scheme. Marks should not be awarded with grade thresholds or grade descriptors in mind.

1	Suggest a prop that could be used by either of the PORTLY GENTLEMEN in Scene 3, and say how it could be used for dramatic effect. The stage directions at the opening of Scene 3 mention a collecting tin and a clipboard, so it is likely that most candidates will select one of these and will therefore be awarded a mark for doing so. The second mark is reserved for a suggestion as to how the prop can be used for dramatic effect. <table border="1"> <tr> <td>A suggestion of an appropriate prop for either of the actors playing the PORTLY GENTLEMEN.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> <tr> <td>A suggestion as to how this prop could be used for dramatic effect.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> </table>	A suggestion of an appropriate prop for either of the actors playing the PORTLY GENTLEMEN.	1 Mark	A suggestion as to how this prop could be used for dramatic effect.	1 Mark	2

2	Identify one point in the extract where stage technology might be used, and say why it could enhance the drama. There are several moments where stage technology could enhance the drama. 3	Look at FRED’s speech from line 93 (‘There are many things...’) to line 106–7 (‘and I say, God bless it!’). What three pieces of advice would you give to the actor on how to deliver the speech effectively? Fred seeks in this speech to show the importance to him of celebrating Christmas, even though it has brought him no financial gain whatsoever. 4	Look at Scene 21 and suggest two ways in which the actors could convey a strong sense of emotional energy to the audience. Why would each of these be effective? Scene 21 is a fast-moving episode, which sets up a fantasy scene with FRED and WIFE on a flying bed, with SCROOGE and the GHOST intervening for comic effect. Question	Answer	Marks
6	You have been cast in the role of SCROOGE. How would you convey his changing state of mind in Scene 29? This scene is the culmination of the action, as Scrooge’s attitudes and motivations are transformed as a result of his visitation by the three Ghosts. This should capture the emotional journey from the start of the scene, as the Ghost of Christmas Yet To Come shows him his potential future, through to his excitement and elation as he realises that he has the opportunity to change things immediately as he has not missed Christmas Day. The scene opens with Scrooge’s residual positivity from his encounter with the Ghost, through his despair, and culminating in his euphoric babble as he realises a new opportunity has been afforded him. <table border="1" data-bbox="268 651 1369 1070"> <tr> <td data-bbox="268 651 1177 701">Rudimentary comments about SCROOGE’s state of mind.</td> <td data-bbox="1177 651 1369 701">1 mark</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="268 701 1177 786">A general comment about SCROOGE’s state of mind and rudimentary ideas about how to deliver the speech.</td> <td data-bbox="1177 701 1369 786">2 marks</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="268 786 1177 871">Some understanding of SCROOGE’s changing state of mind and a competent grasp of how to deliver the speech.</td> <td data-bbox="1177 786 1369 871">3 marks</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="268 871 1177 987">A clear understanding of the changes in SCROOGE’s changing state of mind, and several suggestions as how to deliver the speech.</td> <td data-bbox="1177 871 1369 987">4 marks</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="268 987 1177 1070">A detailed discussion of SCROOGE’s changing state of mind, and a thorough understanding of how to deliver the speech.</td> <td data-bbox="1177 987 1369 1070">5 marks</td> </tr> </table>	Rudimentary comments about SCROOGE’s state of mind.	1 mark	A general comment about SCROOGE’s state of mind and rudimentary ideas about how to deliver the speech.	2 marks	Some understanding of SCROOGE’s changing state of mind and a competent grasp of how to deliver the speech.	3 marks	A clear understanding of the changes in SCROOGE’s changing state of mind, and several suggestions as how to deliver the speech.	4 marks	A detailed discussion of SCROOGE’s changing state of mind, and a thorough understanding of how to deliver the speech.	5 marks	5

10	As a director, how far would you seek to stage the extract as a comedy, and why?		25
	This dramatisation of Dickens’s novel makes much of the rumbustious, colourful world of the story, emphasising its bizarre elements and heightening the sense of fantasy and humour. The themes of Dickens’s story are fundamentally dark. Responses should reflect this, and also the fact that in this stage version there are numerous comedic passages, which the director has the opportunity to emphasise. Allow credit for outlining cogent reasons for comedic staging – or otherwise – of the extract.

13	Your devised piece has been selected for a competitive student drama festival. What aspects would you want to work on or change, and why? This question invites candidates to consider how their piece could be adapted for performance in a different setting. Paper 1

MARK SCHEME

Maximum Mark: 80

---

Published

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and candidates, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which Examiners were instructed to award marks. It does not indicate the details of the discussions that took place at an Examiners' meeting before marking began, which would have considered the acceptability of alternative answers.

Mark schemes should be read in conjunction with the question paper and the Principal Examiner Report for Teachers.

Cambridge International will not enter into discussions about these mark schemes.

Cambridge International is publishing the mark schemes for the May/June 2018 series for most Cambridge IGCSE™, Cambridge International A and AS Level and Cambridge Pre-U components, and some Cambridge O Level components.

Generic Marking Principles

These general marking principles must be applied by all examiners when marking candidate answers. They should be applied alongside the specific content of the mark scheme or generic level descriptors for a question. Each question paper and mark scheme will also comply with these marking principles.

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 1:

Marks must be awarded in line with:

- the specific content of the mark scheme or the generic level descriptors for the question
- the specific skills defined in the mark scheme or in the generic level descriptors for the question
- the standard of response required by a candidate as exemplified by the standardisation scripts.

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 2:

Marks awarded are always whole marks (not half marks, or other fractions).

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 3:

Marks must be awarded positively:

- marks are awarded for correct/valid answers, as defined in the mark scheme. However, credit is given for valid answers which go beyond the scope of the syllabus and mark scheme, referring to your Team Leader as appropriate
- marks are awarded when candidates clearly demonstrate what they know and can do
- marks are not deducted for errors
- marks are not deducted for omissions
- answers should only be judged on the quality of spelling, punctuation and grammar when these features are specifically assessed by the question as indicated by the mark scheme. The meaning, however, should be unambiguous.

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 4:

Rules must be applied consistently e.g. in situations where candidates have not followed instructions or in the application of generic level descriptors.

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 5:

Marks should be awarded using the full range of marks defined in the mark scheme for the question (however; the use of the full mark range may be limited according to the quality of the candidate responses seen).

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 6:

Marks awarded are based solely on the requirements as defined in the mark scheme. Marks should not be awarded with grade thresholds or grade descriptors in mind.

1	Suggest a prop that could be used by the SERGEANT in Scene 5, and say how it could be used for dramatic effect. The stage directions in Scene 5 mention handcuffs and a brandy glass. It is likely candidates will select one of these and will therefore be awarded a mark for doing so. The apron that is mentioned is not used by the sergeant and therefore should not be given credit. The second mark is reserved for a suggestion as to how the prop can be used for dramatic effect. <table border="1"> <tr> <td>A suggestion of an appropriate prop for the actor playing the SERGEANT.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> <tr> <td>A suggestion as to how this prop could be used for dramatic effect.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> </table>	A suggestion of an appropriate prop for the actor playing the SERGEANT.	1 Mark	A suggestion as to how this prop could be used for dramatic effect.	1 Mark	2

2	Identify a point in the extract where a simple lighting change would be required, and say how it would enhance the drama. There are several moments where a simple lighting change would enhance the drama. The drama relies on contrasting scenes, which may be established by a variety of simple lighting changes. Allow one mark for the identification of where such an effect would be well placed, and a further mark for outlining why. <table border="1"> <tr> <td>An appropriate point in the extract where a lighting change is required.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> <tr> <td>A reason as to why it would be effective.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> </table>	An appropriate point in the extract where a lighting change is required.	1 Mark	A reason as to why it would be effective.	1 Mark	2

What three pieces of advice would you give to the actor on how to deliver the speech effectively? JAGGERS's entry is dramatically significant since it introduces the announcement of PIP's change of fortune. As a Victorian lawyer, JAGGERS's delivery is likely to be sober, understated and purposeful and his bearing full of gravitas. His physicality, gestures and expressions are likely to be mannered. However, allow other interpretations so long as they are consistent with the drama. Allow credit for each of three suggestions so long as each can be justified from the text. <table border="1"> <tr> <td>An appropriate piece of advice.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> <tr> <td>A further appropriate piece of advice.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> <tr> <td>A further appropriate piece of advice.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> </table>	An appropriate piece of advice.	1 Mark	A further appropriate piece of advice.	1 Mark	A further appropriate piece of advice.	1 Mark	3

6	You have been cast in the role of PIP. What aspects of his character would you want to show as you deliver the section in the opening of Scene 1 from line 2 ('I never saw my father.') to line 39 ('...beginning to cry.')? This scene is the introduction to the play as a whole and consists of PIP setting the scene of his own background. He is aged thirty-four and reflecting on his parentage and upbringing, but has lost all of the usual reference points apart from the grave stones that surround him. ## SECTION B

Question	Answer	Marks
9	The play was originally performed by a small company of actors. What dramatic possibilities does this offer the company in their approach? The extract assumes that there will be multi-role playing by the company. To that end, the same actor could play one or more roles and the company as a whole has a significant role to play. Candidates may focus on Brechtian techniques such as: choral speech; amplifying emotions; physical encroachments in the action. They should offer a detailed explanation of how this could be approached in order to create a distinctive character in performance. The play does not demand any one approach to the ensemble, however, so allow any creative approach. <table border="1" data-bbox="300 719 1329 1518"> <tbody> <tr> <td data-bbox="300 719 456 976">23–25</td> <td data-bbox="456 719 1216 976"> Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the possibilities offered to the company by the extract <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A comprehensive discussion of how the piece could be staged, with excellent awareness of its theatrical potential.</li> <li>• Excellent, practical suggestions with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul> </td> <td data-bbox="1216 719 1329 1518" rowspan="3" style="text-align: center; vertical-align: middle;">Upper band – application</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="300 976 456 1234">20–22</td> <td data-bbox="456 976 1216 1234"> Shows a perceptive practical understanding of the possibilities offered to the company by the extract <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An assured discussion of how the piece could be staged, with perceptive awareness of its theatrical potential.</li> <li>• Insightful practical suggestions with frequent and well-selected references to the extract.</li> </ul> </td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="300 1234 456 1518">17–19</td> <td data-bbox="456 1234 1216 1518"> Shows detailed practical understanding of the possibilities offered to the company by the extract <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An effective discussion of how the piece could be staged, with broad awareness of its theatrical potential.</li> <li>• Well-formulated ideas although there may be scope for further refinement; consistent and appropriate references to the extract.</li> </ul> </td> </tr> </tbody> </table>	23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the possibilities offered to the company by the extract <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A comprehensive discussion of how the piece could be staged, with excellent awareness of its theatrical potential.</li> <li>• Excellent, practical suggestions with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application	20–22	Shows a perceptive practical understanding of the possibilities offered to the company by the extract <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An assured discussion of how the piece could be staged, with perceptive awareness of its theatrical potential.</li> <li>• Insightful practical suggestions with frequent and well-selected references to the extract.</li> </ul>	17–19	Shows detailed practical understanding of the possibilities offered to the company by the extract <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An effective discussion of how the piece could be staged, with broad awareness of its theatrical potential.</li> <li>• Well-formulated ideas although there may be scope for further refinement; consistent and appropriate references to the extract.</li> </ul>	25

10	Look closely at Scene 6. How would you direct the scene to convey dramatic tension? Scene 6 has many opportunities for directors to convey dramatic tension to an audience. These include: voices of people not seen, use of light and darkness, use of torches, light used to show the fight; pacing; the tension of whether Pip will be caught over his attempt to cover up the pie and the victuals. As the scene progresses, there is a movement from physical tension in the fight, chase and arrest, through to psychological tension between Magwitch and Pip, and Pip's inner tension as exemplified by his direct address to the audience. Pip's compassion for Magwitch is also an important element of the creation of tension. <table border="1" data-bbox="300 685 1331 2038"> <tbody> <tr> <td data-bbox="300 685 456 931">23–25</td> <td data-bbox="456 685 1216 931"> Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the extract and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Comprehensive discussion of the director's intention with sophisticated understanding as to how it can be realised.</li> <li>• Excellent ideas with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul> </td> <td data-bbox="1216 685 1331 1429" rowspan="3" style="text-align: center; MARK SCHEME

Published

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and candidates, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which Examiners were instructed to award marks. It does not indicate the details of the discussions that took place at an Examiners' meeting before marking began, which would have considered the acceptability of alternative answers.

Mark schemes should be read in conjunction with the question paper and the Principal Examiner Report for Teachers.

Cambridge International will not enter into discussions about these mark schemes.

Cambridge International is publishing the mark schemes for the May/June 2018 series for most Cambridge IGCSE™, Cambridge International A and AS Level and Cambridge Pre-U components, and some Cambridge O Level components.

---

IGCSE™ is a registered trademark.

This document consists of 18 printed pages.

Generic Marking Principles

These general marking principles must be applied by all examiners when marking candidate answers. They should be applied alongside the specific content of the mark scheme or generic level descriptors for a question. Each question paper and mark scheme will also comply with these marking principles.

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 1:

Marks must be awarded in line with:

- the specific content of the mark scheme or the generic level descriptors for the question
- the specific skills defined in the mark scheme or in the generic level descriptors for the question
- the standard of response required by a candidate as exemplified by the standardisation scripts.

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 2:

Marks awarded are always whole marks (not half marks, or other fractions).

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 3:

Marks must be awarded positively:

- marks are awarded for correct/valid answers, as defined in the mark scheme. However, credit is given for valid answers which go beyond the scope of the syllabus and mark scheme, referring to your Team Leader as appropriate
- marks are awarded when candidates clearly demonstrate what they know and can do
- marks are not deducted for errors
- marks are not deducted for omissions
- answers should only be judged on the quality of spelling, punctuation and grammar when these features are specifically assessed by the question as indicated by the mark scheme. The meaning, however, should be unambiguous.

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 4:

Rules must be applied consistently e.g. in situations where candidates have not followed instructions or in the application of generic level descriptors.

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 5:

Marks should be awarded using the full range of marks defined in the mark scheme for the question (however; the use of the full mark range may be limited according to the quality of the candidate responses seen).

GENERIC MARKING PRINCIPLE 6:

Marks awarded are based solely on the requirements as defined in the mark scheme. Marks should not be awarded with grade thresholds or grade descriptors in mind.

1	Suggest a prop that could be used in Scene 9, and say how it could be used for dramatic effect. Three props are mentioned in Scene 9. Candidates are likely to refer to these. A gavel (small hammer) is referred to at the start of the scene, and shortly afterwards, MR BROWNLOW offers his card to MR FANG. MR BROWNLOW walks off from the bookstall clutching a book. Allow either of these as props. At the end of the scene, there is reference to a sign saying 'Pentonville' and It is possible that some candidates may select this as a prop. Allow one mark if so, but as there is little dramatic potential for its use, do not allow a second mark. The second mark is reserved for a suggestion as to how the prop can be used for dramatic effect. <table border="1" data-bbox="301 685 1331 819"> <tr> <td data-bbox="301 685 1177 734">A suggestion of an appropriate prop in Scene 9.</td> <td data-bbox="1177 685 1331 734">1 Mark</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="301 734 1177 819">A suggestion as to how this prop could be used for dramatic effect.</td> <td data-bbox="1177 734 1331 819">1 Mark</td> </tr> </table>	A suggestion of an appropriate prop in Scene 9.	1 Mark	A suggestion as to how this prop could be used for dramatic effect.	1 Mark	2

As Mr Bumble’s name suggests, he is a bumbling character and there are several aspects of this that can be brought out here: the delivery of his lines in his crass attempt to sell Oliver, the physicality of how he displays Oliver to the crowd, his swishing of the cane/beating of Oliver, his reaction to Oliver’s crying, his ineffective attempts to make himself heard as the crowd hubbub increases. 4	Look at Scene 3, line 221 (‘Open the door, will yer ...’) to line 273 (‘Exit NOAH’) and suggest two ways in which the actors could convey a strong sense of emotional energy to the audience. Why would each of these be effective? This extract from Scene 3 is the first point at which Oliver’s emotions are allowed to emerge in the play, and he starts to act as a functioning character in the action. Having been sold by Mr Bumble to the undertakers, Oliver is taunted by Noah Claypole about his former status in the workhouse. The argument rises to a climax as Noah taunts Oliver about his mother, which provokes Oliver to lash out. Allow credit for suggestions as to how the emotional energy of the passage could be conveyed to an audience, and an additional mark in each case for saying why it would be effective. <table border="1"> <tr> <td>A suggestion of a way of conveying emotional energy.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> <tr> <td>and</td> <td></td> </tr> <tr> <td>A valid suggestion as to why this method would be effective.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> <tr> <td>and/or</td> <td></td> </tr> <tr> <td>A suggestion of a way of conveying emotional energy.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> <tr> <td>and</td> <td></td> </tr> <tr> <td>A valid suggestion as to why this method would be effective.</td> <td>1 Mark</td> </tr> </table>	A suggestion of a way of conveying emotional energy.	1 Mark	and		A valid suggestion as to why this method would be effective.	1 Mark	and/or		A suggestion of a way of conveying emotional energy.	1 Mark	and		A valid suggestion as to why this method would be effective.	1 Mark	4

5	You are coaching the actors in Scene 7. Suggest two aspects you wish them to work on, and say how you think this would improve the performance. Scene 7 is an extremely physical and apparently comedic scene as FAGIN teaches his ‘hopeful pupils’ in a game of pickpocketing with its need for stealth and subterfuge. The scene calls for extremely well crafted physical skills, spatial awareness, total empathy for the other actors, and well-developed focus. 10	Look closely at Scene 5. How would you direct the scene to convey the atmosphere of Fagin’s hideout? This dramatisation of Dickens’ novel makes much of the rumbustious, colourful world of the story, portraying the darkest elements of social commentary. The exact location of Fagin’s hideout is not specified, but it is in a deprived area with few comforts. However, there is a strong sense of camaraderie. This is a question about directing and therefore the focus is not only on Fagin, but the entire context of the scene. Good answers may focus on Fagin’s actions and movement, the variety of tone that he uses as well as the proximity of actors on stage, the use of lighting, the decrepit set and ragged costumes etc. <table border="1" data-bbox="300 651 1329 1417"> <tbody> <tr> <td data-bbox="300 651 456 907">23–25</td> <td data-bbox="456 651 1216 907"> Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the extract and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Comprehensive discussion of the director’s intention with sophisticated understanding as to how it can be realised.</li> <li>Excellent ideas with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul> </td> <td data-bbox="1216 651 1329 1417" rowspan="3" style="text-align: center; vertical-align: middle;">Upper band – application</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="300 907 456 1164">20–22</td> <td data-bbox="456 907 1216 1164"> Shows a perceptive practical understanding of the extract and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>An assured discussion of the director’s intention with perceptive understanding of how it can be realised.</li> <li>Insightful ideas with frequent and well-selected references to the extract.</li> </ul> </td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="300 1164 456 1417">17–19</td> <td data-bbox="456 1164 1216 1417"> Shows detailed practical understanding of the extract <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>An effective discussion of the director’s intention with detailed understanding of how it can be realised.</li> <li>Well-formulated ideas although there may be scope for further refinement; consistent and appropriate references to the extract.</li> </ul> </td> </tr> </tbody> </table>	23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the extract and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Comprehensive discussion of the director’s intention with sophisticated understanding as to how it can be realised.</li> <li>Excellent ideas with sustained and detailed reference to the extract.</li> </ul>	Upper band – application	20–22	Shows a perceptive practical understanding of the extract and offers creative solutions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>An assured discussion of the director’s intention with perceptive understanding of how it can be realised.</li> <li>Insightful ideas with frequent and well-selected references to the extract.</li> </ul>	17–19	Shows detailed practical understanding of the extract <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>An effective discussion of the director’s intention with detailed understanding of how it can be realised.</li> <li>Well-formulated ideas although there may be scope for further refinement; consistent and appropriate references to the extract.</li> </ul>	25

12	How did your group work on characterisation, and how successful were you in creating distinct, believable characters? This question invites candidates to consider the way in which they approached characterisation, especially the shaping and presentation of complex personalities, with distinct, believable attributes and variable interactions. Weaker answers are likely to be unable to distinguish between characters, focusing instead on the supposed ‘message’ of the piece, or a simple recounting of the plot/narrative list. <table border="1" data-bbox="300 584 1329 1848"> <tbody> <tr> <td data-bbox="300 584 456 772">23–25</td> <td data-bbox="456 584 1216 772"> Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the creation of character <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Comprehensive discussion of approaches to characterisation in the devised piece.</li> <li>• Excellent evaluation of characterisation.</li> </ul> </td> <td data-bbox="1216 584 1329 1149" rowspan="3" style="text-align: center; vertical-align: middle;">Upper band – evaluation</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="300 772 456 960">20–22</td> <td data-bbox="456 772 1216 960"> Shows a perceptive practical understanding of the creation of character. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An assured discussion of approaches to characterisation in the devised piece.</li> <li>• Insightful evaluation of characterisation.</li> </ul> </td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="300 960 456 1149">17–19</td> <td data-bbox="456 960 1216 1149"> Shows detailed practical understanding of the creation of character. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An effective discussion of approaches to characterisation in the devised piece.</li> <li>• Well-formulated evaluation of characterisation.</li> </ul> </td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="300 1149 456 1337">14–16</td> <td data-bbox="456 1149 1216 1337"> Shows secure understanding of the creation of character. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A consistent understanding of approaches to characterisation in the devised piece.</li> <li>• There may be some evaluation of characterisation.</li> </ul> </td> <td data-bbox="1216 1149 1329 1848" rowspan="3" style="text-align: center; vertical-align: middle;">Middle band – understanding</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="300 1337 456 1592">11–13</td> <td data-bbox="456 1337 1216 1592"> Shows some understanding of aspects of the creation of character. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Variable understanding of approaches to characterisation in the devised piece.</li> <li>• A focus on the most obvious aspects of characterisation; there may be limited evaluative comment.</li> </ul> </td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="300 1592 456 1848">8–10</td> <td data-bbox="456 1592 1216 1848"> Shows undeveloped/superficial understanding of aspects of the creation of character. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A few partially formulated ideas about the approach to characterisation in the devised piece.</li> <li>• A superficial approach based mostly on description with occasional reference to characterisation in the piece.</li> </ul> </td> </tr> </tbody> </table>	23–25	Shows a sophisticated practical understanding of the creation of character <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Comprehensive discussion of approaches to characterisation in the devised piece.</li> <li>• Excellent evaluation of characterisation.</li> </ul>	Upper band – evaluation	20–22	Shows a perceptive practical understanding of the creation of character. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An assured discussion of approaches to characterisation in the devised piece.</li> <li>• Insightful evaluation of characterisation.</li> </ul>	17–19	Shows detailed practical understanding of the creation of character. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An effective discussion of approaches to characterisation in the devised piece.</li> <li>• Well-formulated evaluation of characterisation.</li> </ul>	14–16	Shows secure understanding of the creation of character. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A consistent understanding of approaches to characterisation in the devised piece.</li> <li>• There may be some evaluation of characterisation.</li> </ul>	Middle band – understanding	11–13	Shows some understanding of aspects of the creation of character. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Variable understanding of approaches to characterisation in the devised piece.</li> <li>• A focus on the most obvious aspects of characterisation; there may be limited evaluative comment.</li> </ul>	8–10	Shows undeveloped/superficial understanding of aspects of the creation of character. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A few partially formulated ideas about the approach to characterisation in the devised piece.</li> <li>• A superficial approach based mostly on description with occasional reference to characterisation in the piece.</li> </ul>	25

May/June 2018

2 hours 30 minutes

Additional Materials: Clean copy of pre-release material (0411/11/T/EX).

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

An answer booklet is provided inside this Question Paper. You should follow the instructions on the front cover of the answer booklet. If you need additional answer paper, ask the invigilator for a continuation booklet.

Section A

Answer all questions in this section.

Section B

Answer one question.

Section C

Answer one question.

You are advised to spend between 15 and 30 minutes reading the questions and the extract and making notes before you begin to answer the questions.

You are advised to divide your time equally between the three sections.

The questions in this paper are based on the text and the stimulus that you have worked on. A clean copy of the pre-release material is provided with this Question Paper.

The number of marks is given in brackets [ ] at the end of each question or part question.

This document consists of 3 printed pages, 1 blank page and 1 Insert.

Section A

Answer all questions in this section.

Questions 1–6 are based on the extract from Neil Bartlett’s stage adaptation of Charles Dickens’s A Christmas Carol, which you have studied.

- 1 Suggest a prop that could be used by either of the PORTLY GENTLEMEN in Scene 3, and say how it could be used for dramatic effect. [2]
- 2 Identify one point in the extract where stage technology might be used, and say how it could enhance the drama. [2]
